Chipper Chimp Gives Man Sign To Enter Space

Shakes Hands With Vet After His Rocket Ride

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A chimpanzee called Ham today signalled a go-ahead for man to enter space safely.

The chimp wound up a space flight of his own Tuesday with a chipper, cheerful handshake.

Ham is due back this afternoon to this rocket space port—which he left abruptly Tuesday atop a Redstone rocket.

His trip 155 miles high and 420 miles southeast into the Atlantic into the rescuing hands of the U.S. Navy carried several main significances:

1. It indicates manned space flight is feasible.

An American astronaut is scheduled this spring to duplicate Ham's flight.

2. The Russians appear likely to win the race to be first to orbit a man around the earth.

MORE TESTS SEEN

3. A slight mis-firing in the rocket system hurling out Ham's capsule may well require further tests with or without a chimp aboard, before a man goes up.

4. Ham himself is reported in excellent shape, a smart 37 pounds of amiability.

Plucked from the sea by a helicopter, he shook hands with the veterinarian greeting him when his one-ton space capsule was unlocked three hours after launching.

After a medical checkup, Ham drew a bonus of a banana on top of his scientifically prescribed menu which had not included bananas.

TO BE FLOWN BACK

The daring young chimp on the flying rocket was to be taken to Grand Babamas Island early today, and he is expected back here this afternoon as an honored airplane passenger.

His flight was one of graduated steps in a National Aeronautics and Space Administration program hopefully intended to put an American astronaut into several round trips about the earth in 1961.

In a big first step, Ham twice felt the crushing weight of increased gravity. Taking off, he weighed seven times more than on earth, and on coming down at a 5,000-mile-an-hour clip into the atmosphere was subjected to forces 12 times normal gravity.

But, also, for about seven minutes he felt no weight at all in free fall as he lay strapped on a couch within a capsule exactly like that built to carry a man aloft.

All this didn't bother his senses, judging from early analysis of information radioed down to earth, said NASA officials. For Ham had to press levers within certain time limits or else get an electric shock. Partial checks so far show he never got a shock, they added.

NONCHALANT IN TESTS

On earth, Ham was said to be so nonchalant and hammy about it, he would flick the levers just with his right hand and sometimes at the last possible split second—and then grin at his scientific observers. Other chimps trained for the flight

The CCF demanded that Defence Minister Harkness either deny disarmament statements attributed to him or resign his portolio.

Mr. Harkness said that published reports quoting him as inviting military reserve officers to "dip their feet into politics" in a war against pacifism bore no close resemblance to his actual remarks.

Liberal defence critic Paul Hellyer said he agreed with the defence minister in his basic opposition to Canadian neutralism in the East-West struggle.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) declared that reports of the Harkness remarks disclosed obvious contradictions between the defence and external affairs departments.

The Commons defeated 158 to 50 a Liberal motion of non-confidence dealing with federal-provincial fiscal relations.

Paul Martin (L—Essex East) said he suspects "an understanding" on federal-provincial fiscal relations exists between the Conservative governments in Ottawa and Toronto.

Wednesday, Feb. 1

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. EST to continue debate on setting up a broadcasting committee; the Senate meets at 3 p.m.

Three Perish, Thirty Escape In Montreal Fire

MONTREAL (CP) — Three bodies were recovered early today after fire raced through a four-storey rooming house in central Montreal. More than 30 persons, many in their nightclothes, fled to safety.

The first fireman arriving at the scene rescued two persons, one a paralyzed woman, by aerial ladder and were told all other occupants of the building had fled to safety.

More than 150 firemen battled the flames for four hours before bringing them under control.

A squad of firemen then started a routine check of the interior of the building and found the bodies.

One of the victims, a woman, was found in a bed in a second-floor room. The other two, a man and a woman, were found near the doors of separate rooms on the fourth floor.

None was identified immediately.

The fire in the century-old building was discoverid about midnight by a passing motorist. For a time firemen feared it would spread to neighboring houses.

Most of the occupants fled down the stairs, running to the street in their nightclothing in zero weather.

One report said an explosion preceded the fire.

Residents of nearby buildings were evacuated before the fire was brought under control.

HARKNESS ASKED TO RESIGN SEAT BY CCF MEMBER

Taken to Task Over Alleged Statements

OTTAWA (CP)—An uproar in the Commons Thursday night produced two CCF demands that Defence Minister Harkness resign or else repudiate already-celebrated statements attributed to him at a navy mess dinner.

Mr. Harkness did neither, although he reiterated that published reports bore no close relationship to what he actually said.

With Prime Minister Diefenbaker sitting wordless nearby, the defence minister rapped his socialist critics for making a mountain out of a molehill, and repeated his avowed opposition to neutralism and pacifism.

A navy reserve public relations officer unwittingly started the political fray last weekend by reporting that Mr. Harkness told reservists at a Saturday dinner that they—closer to the people than the regular forces—should combat propaganda from pacifists and "ban the bomb" movements.

CLAIM POLICY SPLIT

The CCF tack was that Mr. Harkness' statement improperly asked members of the armed forces to use political influence—and also revealed a policy seat between the defence and external affairs departments.

In the end, nothing came of the CCF charges.

They were levelled at a stage when parliamentary mechanics opened the chance for individual grievances.

The socialist grievance—with no formal motion of censure attached—died with the 10 p.m. House adjournment.

Earlier Tuesday, Erhart Regier (CCF — Burnaby - Coquitlam) tried to move the adjournment of the House on a "definite matter of urgent public importance"—using the reserve officers' press release as a

Ben-Gurion Stakes Future On Winning in Lavon Affair

JERUSALEM (AP)—Stubborn old David Ben-Gurion, one of the founding fathers of the Israeli republic, staked his political future today on getting his own way in the "Lavon affair."

President Izhak Ben-Zvi, after accepting the 74-year-old patriarch's resignation as prime minister Tuesday, gave no immediate indication whether he would ask him to try and form a new government or call for new elections. Ben-Gurion's cabinet meanwhile will continue to function as a caretaker government.

Ben-Gurion, who has led the 13-year-old Jewish state for all but 1½ of its years—when he retired voluntarily—said he was going to take a leave of three or four weeks to do some reading and writing.

The statesman has quit as prime minister seven times before—usually as a political manoeuvre — and has always bounced back on top.

He said in his letter of resignation that he had "no alternative" after failing to gain unanimous cabinet support in his row with the former defence minister, Pinhas Lavon.

Israeli censorship has clouded the Lavon affair but it apparently results from the smashing of an Israeli spy ring in Egypt in 1954, when Lavon was defence minister. Lavon was accused of responsibility for what was termed a "security mishap" and was forced out of the cabinet. He has been trying to clear himself ever since.

After several investigations, a committee of seven cabinet ministers in Ben-Gurion's coalition government cleared Lavon of blame last Dec. 25 and the majority of the cabinet approved the findings.

Ben-Gurion, however, refused to go along with the others, demanded a judicial inquiry in which witnesses would testify under oath, and accused Lavon of a campaign of slander against leading Israelis.

Lavon now is secretary-general of the powerful Histadrut labor federation and a leading member of Ben-Gurion's dominant Mapai (labor) party, which has been split by the controversy.

Louisiana Town Terrorized As Chlorine Car Derailed

NEW ROADS, La. (AP)—Eight persons, their lungs badly seared from chlorine gas which terrorized the tiny farm and lumber community of nearby Labarre, fought for their lives in hospital today.

Whiffs of the chlorine gas from a railway tank car derailed Tuesday still hung in the area, but the area is consideed safe.

A chemist said the ground was saturated with chlorine and it would "take a long time to wear out." The area was covered with soda ash and liquid caustic acid to neutralize the deadly green gas.

Seventeen people remain in hospital, eight of them in "very critical condition."

The victims are likely to contract chemical pneumonia on the second day, doctors said.

The gas killed an 11-month-old boy and sent about 100 to hospitals and clinics. Scores of farm animals were killed.

Attendants at St. Joseph's Hospital here said many came in suffering more from panic than from burned throats, lungs and eyes.

Eighteen cars of a 117-car Kansas City-Southern freight piled up.

The chlorine-filled car burst open. The green liquid spilled into ditches, turned to vapor and drifted in a light wind in huge greenish fog banks.

Officers and volunteers realized chlorine gas was involved. They raced between clouds of chlorine to about 75 homes, to Labarre elementary school where 400 children had just opened classes, and to Morganza High School, where another 300 children were in class.

The family hardest hit was that of James Harris Jr., whose son, James III, was the first victim. Harris lived in a shack a few hundred yards from the wreckage on a side road. Harris, his wife and two other children had collapsed from the gas.

Family Leaves After Breaking School Boycott

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The John N. Thompson family whose two sons broke a white boycott at an integrated public school, left their home during the night for an undisclosed destination.

Neighbors said the family departed carrying little or no belongings.

A man identifying himself as Thompson, 33-year-old father of six, called station WDSU-TV Tuesday night and said the family was leaving on the first train but gave no destination.

The two boys, Gregory, 9, and Michael, 8, entered McDonogh No. 19 Tuesday under the watchful but silent protests of white parents boycotting the school.

Samos Satellite Circling Globe on Pioneer Mission

POINT ARGUELLO, Calif. (AP)—Samos II is circling the globe every 95 minutes today on a pioneer mission which may lead to a whole system of United States electronic military scouts.

The ultimate goal of the program is to be able to make detailed photographs of any point on earth and thus detect a build-up by a potential opponent.

The mission is so secret that the air force won't even confirm that the satellite, launched on Tuesday, will radio pictures back to earth. The orbiting vehicle is equipped with cameras to photograph ground terrain and sensors to record electromagnetic radiation.

It can be made to transmit information as it passes over certain stations. At these stations data can be reproduced, stored, integrated and interpreted by automatic display equipment.

PICK UP SIGNALS

Signals from Samos II were being picked up by tracking and telemetry stations at Vandenberg Air Force Base, which is adjacent to this navy base; at Oahu, Hawaii and at Kodiak, Alaska.

All orbital data was being received at the air force satellite test centre in Sunnyvale, Calif., south of San Francisco.

The 99-foot Samos is a two-stage rocket—an Atlas ICBM topped by a 22-foot Agena-A. The entire Agena, weighing 4,100 pounds, goes into orbit.

The Samos program, begun in 1957, was given top priority last year after cessation of the U-2 reconnaissance flights over Russia.

SUPPORT BEN-GURION

JERUSALEM (Reuters)—The Israeli parliament Monday voted confidence in David Ben-Gurion's coalition government as the premier continued his vacation at a winter resort. The Knesset voted 77 to 23 against a non-confidence motion presented by the opposition General Zionist and Heruth parties.

Pakistanis Shower Queen, Philip With Red and Yellow Rose Petals

KARACHI (Reuters) — Cheering Pakistanis today showered the Queen with red and yellow rose petals and almost disguised the wreckage of civic decorations ripped apart by an overnight storm.

The Queen and Prince Philip drove through a two-mile flower shower on their arrival from India for a 16-day tour.

The high wind and rain that uprooted flagpoles and wrecked paper decorations lingered at the suburban airport when the royal couple flew in.

But a pale, noon-day sun gleamed through clouds later to light up an estimated 1,000,000 faces crowding the royal motorcade route into the city centre.

For most of the 10-mile journey from the airport, the Queen stood in an open car with President Mohammed Ayub Khan to acknowledge the cheers and shouts.

The Queen's first official engagement was to place a wreath on the tomb of Mohammed Ali Jinnah, founder of Pakistan. This country was partitioned from India as a Moslem state after Britain granted independence to the sub-continent in 1947.

The royal couple are to visit Quetta during the weekend and see the Warsak Dam, built with Canadian aid and opened last week.

But heavy rain and snowstorms in West Pakistan threatened to upset part of the program and officials said her visit to Quetta would be called off unless the weather improved.

Relief Payments May Be Boosted By Ten P.C.

TORONTO (CP) — Observers think an increase in Ontario relief payments may be announced soon, following a remark by Premier Frost in the legislature Tuesday.

The premier hinted the province may contribute more to direct relief when he replied to a statement by CCF Leader Donald MacDonald.

Mr. MacDonald noted that estimates of the public welfare department are to be considered Thursday. He said parts of the estimates are of particular interest to members of the Metropolitan Toronto social planning council, which is to meet local members of the legislature Friday. Consideration of certain portions of the estimates should be withheld until after the Friday meeting, Mr. MacDonald suggested.

"I think the matter is being taken care of in the minister's (Welfare Minister Cecile's) statement." Premier Frost replied.

Observers thought this meant Mr. Cecile will announce an increase in relief payments Thursday when the legislature starts to consider his department's estimates. They suggested the increase might be at least 10 per cent.

Direct relief is administered by municipalities and provides maintenance for persons who do not qualify for public assistance under other special welfare measures. The aid includes assistance for food clothing, household sundries, special diets, utilities, fuel and shelter. An estimated 70,000 get such relief in Ontario.

TAX DISCLOSURE ON HYDRO DRAWS SHARP CRITICISM

House Told Govt. Pays Federal Tax

TORONTO (CP)—Government statements on the state of hydro-electric power in Ontario, drew some sharp criticism Tuesday from opposition benches.

The opposition described as "preposterous" a statement by Energy Resources Minister Macaulay that the Hydro-Electric Power Commission has to pay taxes on electricity circulated through the United States to another part of the province.

He said his department is negotiating with the federal government for removal of the excise tax on the "involuntary" exported power. The excise tax is estimated at $400,000 with a projected tax of $675,000 in 1962 and $690,000 in 1963.

Mr. Macaulay said it is improper that a federal tax should be levied on a provincial organization, publicly owned and operated at cost, particularly when the "involuntary" power is not sold.

ANSWERS QUESTIONS

Mr. Macaulay, second vice-chairman of Hydro, spoke in answer to questions by the opposition. The estimates of the department of energy resources were approved by the legislature during the first part of the session.

Premier Frost scoffed at suggestions by Liberal Leader Wintermeyer that cheaper hydro rates be given industries to stop them from moving to Quebec.

Ontario could never compete with the price of Quebec power because of Quebec's abundance of potential water power. Industries using enormous amounts of power and employing few persons would be better located in another province, said Mr. Frost.

Mr. Macaulay said under current methods thermal plants were cheaper for handling peak

Builder Ordered To Be Returned To Bahamas

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto builder, accused of skipping bail while awaiting trial on three fraud charges laid in the Bahamas, Tuesday was ordered returned to the Bahamas.

Theron H. Jackson was ordered returned by Magistrate Donald Graham under the Fugitive Offenders' Act.

The court was told Jackson jumped $1,500 bail last summer after three fraud charges involving $5,912 had been laid against him.

The magistrate told Jackson extradition would not be carried out for 15 days and that he has a right to apply for a writ of habeas corpus.

The fraud charges allege Jackson sold lots and houses to two different persons, taking a deposit from each.

Four Canadians Are Questioned About Theft From Peter Lawford

NEW YORK (AP)—Four Canadians, arrested Sunday night, have been questioned about the burglary in early January of a hotel suite occupied by actor Peter Lawford and his wife, a sister of President Kennedy, Chief of Detectives James J. Walsh said today.

Police have been reluctant to discuss the burglary, in which $30,000 in gems and $1,000 in cash were reported missing.

Walsh said today the four persons—three men and a woman—had been questioned.

Deputy Police Commissioner Walter Arm, department press representative, turned aside all queries.

"No one has been charged with the theft and we can't discuss it any further while it is still under investigation," Arm said.

"Besides, there are other ramifications."

He declined to say what those ramifications are.

Walsh said the four questioned about the theft were booked on grand larceny charges.

They were arraigned in felony court Monday but disposition of the cases was not immediately known.

The four arrested were listed as:

William Livingston, 33, Quebec, a salesman.

David Ramsay, 33, Quebec, a lumber grader.

Ronald Spears, 30, Montreal, a salesman.

Rosalind Wade, 23, Montreal, a bookkeeper.

Walsh said the four were booked in connection with the theft last Saturday of a lady's suit from a Fifth Avenue store.

Asylum Given Rebels, Liner To Be Returned

Passengers Delighted At Ending Adventure

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters)—The passengers of the captive liner Santa Maria today were reported disembarking at the Brazilian port of Recife.

Radio reports said their luggage was being taken ashore.

The Portuguese Embassy at Recife was reported to have said the liner would be taken over to be returned to its owners, while asylum would be given to the rebels by Brazil.

Rebel Capt. Henrique Galvao said the passengers were delighted at ending their adventures. He said he hoped they were "fully satisfied with everything."

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

RECIFE, Brazil (AP) — The Santa Maria headed in from the South Atlantic toward Recife with her captive passengers today, but stopped short of the dock for another parley to determine future action.

A U.S. Navy spokesman announced this development as President Janio Quadros met with his cabinet in Brasilia, 1,000 miles to the southwest, to decide what to do about the commandeered ship.

As for the rebels themselves, Quadros sent assurances of political asylum to their chief, Captain Henrique Galvao. He promised to do anything that existing law permits.

Quadros' message did not measure up completely to Galvao's request for permission to unload passengers, refuel and return to sea to continue his fight against the dictatorial regime in Portugal.

RECALLS PAST MEETING

The new chief executive, inaugurated Tuesday, radioed felicitations to Galvao and recalled a meeting they had several months ago in Caracas, Venezuela. It was in Caracas that Galvao plotted seizure of the $16,600,000 Portuguese liner in hopes of starting a movement to unseat Portugal's premier, Antonio Salazar.

Quadros showed concern for the passengers aboard, saying: "We accompany with profound feelings the fortunes of the hundreds of passengers who find themselves under your guard and responsibility."

The U.S. Navy spokesman said Rear Admiral Allen Smith and Brazilian authorities conferred aboard the ship about landing of the passengers and on the Santa Maria's future.

Officers of the U.S. destroyer Damato said the negotiations took place about three miles off the port, outside Brazilian territorial waters. The Santa Maria was standing still in the water under a noontime sun.

Gen. Humberto Delgado, exiled chief of the Portuguese revolutionary movement against Salazar, was in Recife. One report was that he had talked with Brazilian officials and then relayed Galvao a request to dock.

It was not clear whether this would mean that Galvao was to take up the political asylum offered by President Quadros without a final decision on whether he could keep control of the ship.

DELGADO BOARDS SHIP

A Rio de Janeiro radio station, Radio Jornal do Commercia, said Delgado was among the men who boarded the Santa Maria for the sea consultations.

A last-minute hitch preventing Galvao from sailing again could mean that the nearly 600 passengers, including about 40 Americans, would have to be disembarked by ship in the calm waters near the channel to Recife Harbor.

Escorted by three U.S. destroyers and a Brazilian destroyer, Galvao moved the

Roy Thomson Denies Mirror Has Won Fight

LONDON (CP) — Publisher Roy Thomson said today there is no change whatsoever in the battle for control of Odhams Press.

"That's pure supposition," he told a reporter. "It is not true. There is no change whatever in the position.

"I don't think there will be anything definite to say until next week."

He denied a report—published in one of his own newspapers—that Thomson Newspapers in the United Kingdom was expected to withdraw its bid for control of Odhams Press, leaving the way clear for a take-over bid by Cecil Harmsworth King's Daily Mirror.

The report that the Thomson bid would be withdrawn appeared on the front page of The Scotsman. The newspaper's economics correspondent said there is no longer any doubt that The Mirror's bid for Odhams would go through.

"I don't know where he got that," Thomson said. "I guess he just assumed it, the way so many things are assumed on Fleet Street."

The Scotsman, published in Edinburgh, is owned by Thomson but would not have been part of the proposed merger between Thomson Allied Newspapers and Odhams.

The Thomson-Odhams merger plans were announced a week ago but two days later King came through with a rival bid for Odhams, which publishes several newspapers and magazines.

In his statement today, Thomson left the clear implication that he still hopes to find a way to stop The Mirror bid. The merger with Odhams would have made him effective head of one of the world's largest printing, publishing organizations.

The multi-million-pound rival bids for Odhams have rocked Fleet Street for a week.

Director of Safety League Describes Program at OSD

By GEORGE G. HAM
Director of Child Safety
Ontario Safety League

As we walked across the playground in a sea of laughing and jumping children, their greetings sounded distorted and yet distinct, for these were some of the 500 children from all over the province enrolled at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

The cause of this excitement was a big kindly man in the uniform of Belleville's City Police Department, Sgt. W. R. Blatchford. The occasion was the official ceremony instituting the Elmer safety program at the school.

"It wasn't always this way," explained Sgt. Blatchford. "When I first visited the students in the classroom, the teacher told them who I was and asked if they knew what my presence there meant. One young child walked to the blackboard and wrote 'trouble'."

We had just left the office of the school superintendent, Mr. J. G. Demeza, who explained there had been many difficulties to overcome, due to the students' limited vocabulary. It is not unusual for a child to enter the school with a maximum vocabulary of 10 words. When this is compared with the child entering a normal kindergarten with a 2,000-word vocabularly, one begins to understand the magnitude of the communication problem.

Sgt. Blatchford showed me a model of intersections built by Mr. Vader and the boys in his metal shop. It was complete with miniature traffic lights that worked, railway crossing flashing red lights and safety islands with flashing yellow lights . . . just one example of many aids and new approaches devised by the school staff.

We next visited a classroom festooned with drawings of Elmer and miniature pennants, and on the blackboard was the result of a class discussion on the ceremony held that morning. This was only one of 27 classrooms in the junior school which Sgt. Blatchford visited to observe teaching methods during the planning and preparation for this safety program.

I asked a grade teacher if the program was working, and in reply she related a field trip her class took downtown as an example: "I thought we'd never get there; every time we approached anything resembling a street crossing—alley ways, house driveways—the whole class stopped and looked left, right, in front and behind. It was all I could do to get them moving again."

Over a million Canadian children have already learned Elmer's six traffic rules in this amazingly effective safety education program. Schools operating the program fly a large pennant bearing Elmer the Elephant's picture, as long as no child is involved in an accident. If one does occur, as a result of a pupil breaking one of the rules, the flag must come down for 30 accident-free days.

Elmer has grown into a national institution. This pleases all of us who work with him, but not more than the knowledge that because of him, many deaf children will learn how to cross a busy street.

Kiwanians Told About Work With Retarded

There are close to 500,000 retarded children and adults in Canada today, with more being added at a rate of three out of every 100 infants born, local Kiwanians were told yesterday by Mrs. K. J. Reid, membership chairman of the National Association for Retarded Children.

Mental retardation, advised the pretty Trenton housewife, is not a disease but an impaired or incomplete mental development, for which there is no apparent cure. Found in all strata of society, there are 70 different types and causes of this condition, some of which are easily recognized at childbirth, while others may not be recognized for some time after.

Patience and courage are required of a family with a mentally retarded child, said Mrs. Reid, who can speak from first hand experience having such a child in her own family. It is very difficult for such a child to learn even the most simple tasks necessary to everyday life. There is a period of adjustment which may be long and hard to accept by a family, cautioned the speaker, but the development of an outgoing attitude regarding this situation must be made by the parents if the child is to be accepted into the regular life of the neighborhood.

NOW 168 GROUPS

Speaking on the development and work of the associations for retarded children, Mrs. Reid, who has been in this work for a decade now, noted that in 1948 the first meeting of people interested in this problem was called in Toronto. Since then 168 local associations have sprung up across Canada, together with the national association.

These associations have been very active in providing day schools, which are perhaps the most important need of the mentally retarded next to their acceptance by family and neighbors, and there are now day classes in many Ontario centres with an attendance of anywhere from three to 450 pupils.

Sheltered workshops are necessary at a later stage in the life of the mentally retarded in order to help them find some niche in the life of the community. Vocational training is provided here and a number of sheltered workshops are successfully engaged in subcontracting work for manufacturers.

Summer camps, (there are three in Ontario), research work and an educational program which is producing some rewards in stimulating research are some of the other projects of the associations.

HOLLAND LEADS

Looking at the problem of mental retardation in other parts of the world, Mrs. Reid pointed to Holland as the leading country in providing facilities for the care and education of the mentally retarded. This program has been in operation since 1910 and there are some 190 sheltered workshops employing 20,000 retarded adults in Holland today.

Mrs. Reid suggested that some attention to this problem by the government was required. There are government subsidies available for schools for the mentally retarded but these schools must be maintained by the local association.

The association in Belleville got its start in 1958 and has now acquired its own school building, thanks to the assistance of the local Lions Club, said Mrs. Reid. There is still much conversion and repair work required, however, to render the building 100 per cent fit and suitable. More help is required, Mrs. Reid explained in providing caretaking services and furniture for the classrooms.

Facilities for retarded children are just as necessary to a community as police or fire facilities, concluded Mrs. Reid. She extended an invitation for people to visit the open house being held at the local school on April 8th.

District Lt.-governor Al Weaver was on hand, together with an inter-club representation from the Trenton Kiwanis Club, to present the Lt.-governor's ribbon to immediate past president George Tripp. The ribbon was awarded to the Belleville Kiwanians for being the top club in the district for the last quarter of 1960.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of Kiwanian Roy Dulmage for the majority of the meeting together with president Dr. Bob Brain.

Chief Taylor Again Seeks New Town Police Station To Replace 'Parking Box'

TRENTON — Chief Constable F. J. Taylor says in his annual report that unless something is done soon to build a new police station, police services will be seriously handicapped and could result in serious personnel problems which would be both difficult and costly to rectify.

Chief Taylor released his report Tuesday.

"At the present time we have reached the saturation point in the old police station", his report said. "We stumble along, trying to do a Grade A job in a packing box".

Chief Taylor said that the police department was operating from "obsolete, dingy, unsanitary, cramped and depressing quarters", and that for five years various councils and town officials had promised to do something about the situation".

"We hear the excuse that the municipality hasn't the money", reads the report. "If we reflect back on the past five years we will see that many local projects have been considered passed and completed, all of which cost large sums of money, and many of which were financed by the debenture method".

Chief Taylor charged that many who opposed new quarters for the police department did so for "selfish reasons" or because of a "complex" about any or all lawful authority.

He gave a brief resume of reports submitted by the architectual firm of Craig and Zeidler stressing that the minimum space required for the administration of police work in Trenton was 4,200 square feet and recording the fact that only 1,460 square feet of space now was available to the department.

Architects and builders, called for opinions, have said it would be unwise to make costly renovations to the present building.

ANCIENT STATION

The building where the police station is located is more than 100 years old. At one time it was used exclusively for a market place and the town hall. Years ago, the police department was constructed on the ground floor.

In an interview Tuesday, Chief Taylor said that the building was damp and foul-smelling in summer and damp and cold in winter. Last year the station was closed while pest exterminators endeavored to rid the building of cockroaches.

Chief Taylor said that the police officers are forced to eat their lunches in a small, dingy office off the main office. There is not enough space to hang overcoats and nowhere to keep proper files and records. The chief constable's office is piled high with excess paper work for which there is no filing space.

"In March of 1959 the Trenton board of health condemned the building as unfit for human habitation," he said. "I urgently request town council to take definite steps to relieve the present situation, thereby maintaining adequate police protection for the citizens of the town."

49 Fewer Court Cases In 1960 Says Annual Report of Police Chief

TRENTON — Citizens here are becoming more law-abiding says the annual report of Chief Constable F. J. Taylor. The report said 1,321 cases were dealt with in court including breaches of the Liquor Control Act, the Highway Traffic Act, cases which come under the criminal code and others. In 1959, 1,370 cases were handled.

The 1960 figure is the lowest in eight years.

Men committing breaches of the law numbered 1,246 while 75 women were listed as offenders.

In 1960, 76 persons were sent to the county jail, two to penitentiary, one to reformatory and two to the Ontario Hospital.

Arrested and detained overnight were 429 persons (493 in 1959); 41 persons were arrested on warrants from other police departments and held for escort; 61 persons were arrested for other departments and held overnight in custody.

The report says 417 transients were given shelter for the night, while in 1959 they totalled 405.

Sixteen autos from town were stolen, 10 being recovered in town and six elsewhere. Nine autos were recovered for other departments.

Property valued at $13,591.94 was stolen of which $2,188.06 was recovered.

Break-ins were of a minor nature and the value of the property stolen was low.

In 1960, 441 motor vehicle accidents occurred with a property loss of $66,530. This was slightly higher than the 1959 total and about $8,000 higher than the 1958 total.

Three persons were killed in Trenton as the result of one motor accident. Prior to this, the last fatal accident occurred May 2, 1957.

BUSY BEATS

During the year, constables making rounds at night found 666 doors or windows of business places insecure. Police cruisers also operate in the business and residential areas in an effort to keep crime at a minimum.

The budget appropriation for 1960 was $107,588.07. Expenditures were $103,674.94. Thus the credit balance for the year was $3,913.13.

Receipts from fines, fees and government grants totalled $34,245.65, making the actual cost of police protection to the taxpayers $69,429.29.

In, his report Chief Taylor paid tribute to the police departments in the area surrounding Trenton for their co-operation. He also said that the newspapers and CJBQ had shown every consideration to the department.

Chief Taylor said that his department had worked closely with Probation Officer Dennis Atkins in cases involving juveniles and where family problems were involved.

The traffic committee, comprised of Councillor C. V. Graham as chairman, Grant Rathbun, town engineer Walter Murray, Lloyd Weese and Chief Taylor reviewed the traffic situation from time to time and made recommendations to council.

During the year, special emphasis were placed on staff training programs. Leaders in the field of police and detective work were called in to lecture to the officers.

Inspector R. J. Rutherford attended a week's seminar at McMaster University in Hamilton on an advanced detective course. Staff Sergeant W. Youmans attended a seminar for inspectors at Gravenhurst Fire College and Chief Taylor attended a seminar on police administration at McMaster University.

CRACK SHOT

A series of revolver classes was held during the year with Constable R. E. Miller being awarded the annual trophy.

The Police Commission, comprised of Magistrate T. Y. Wills as chairman; Judge J. C. Anderson, secretary, and Mayor James MacDonald, was available for advice and consultation.

Members of the police department include Chief Taylor, Inspector R. J. Rutherford, Staff Sgt. W. Youmans, Sgt. Gordon Steenburg, Sgt. D. C. Bradshaw, P/Sgt. B. E. Westfall, Constable R. A. King, R. E. Miller, J. A. Graham, D. C. Camp, G. J. French, H. C. Chatson, S. Vickers, F. Nokes, G. Davis, C. B. Schwager, M. Houlden and H. Kastner.

Mrs. Rosamund Smith is the clerk-stenographer for the department. Mrs. Nellie Bain is the justice of the peace and Mrs. Margaret Kenny, the court reporter.

During the year, Mrs. Rosina Bailey resigned as stenographer and resignations were received from Constables L Mastin and R. E. Jeffery.

Start Campaign

TRENTON — The Chamber of Commerce held a breakfast meeting Tuesday at which president Douglas Whitley said that the membership campaign was under way. The annual meeting will be held in April. Members of the chamber will attend a special luncheon meeting at the Country Club Feb. 22, sponsored by the Lake Ontario Development Association and the department of trade and industry.

Scouts Need More Leaders Say Officials

TRENTON — At last week's meeting of the Trenton District Council of the Boy Scouts Association, district council president J. C. Dobby and district commissioner Sam Mowbray stressed that leaders are urgently needed.

There are more than 450 boys in the various Cub packs and Scout troops and many of the Cubs cannot pass up to Scouts because there is a shortage of leaders.

More co-operation between the various adult groups concerned was called for.

Parents are apathetic towards their boys' progress in the Scout movement, with the exception of a very few.

Sponsoring bodies, church and service groups, fail to supply needed assistance in the leadership field.

Special leadership courses would be made available to any adults who would volunteer to help.

A number of activities are being planned for Scout Week, Feb. 18-25.

Home Found For Towns Family At Frankford

TRENTON — Henry Fulford, welfare officer for the Salvation Army corps, said today that a home had been found in Frankford for the Towns family.

Last week, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Towns, their 11 children and Mr. Towns' father, Joseph, lost their home and all their possessions in a fire that swept their frame home in the early morning hours. Neighbors sheltered the family until accommodation could be found.

Mr. Fulford said that the response to pleas in the newspapers and over the radio for a house, furnishings and kitchen utensils had been "wonderful". Clothing for the family was supplied from Salvation Army stocks.

The children will attend Batawa school and Mr. Towns and his son will drive to work in Trenton.

No Children Killed in Town Last Year

TRENTON — In his annual report Sgt. Gordon Steenburg, town safety officer said that no fatal accidents involving school children occurred during 1960 but seven children suffered minor injuries in accidents involving motor vehicles.

Sgt. Steenburg paid tribute to the Kiwanis Club which sponsors the Elmer Safety campaign. He said that 104 programs dealing with safety measures were broadcast by CJBQ. Lectures and films were shown in the schools.

Sgt. Steenburg commended the school crossing guards for their work.

He said that 18 classes were held in the Police Traffic Training School. The total number of persons enrolling and attending these classes was 239. These persons were tested for field of vision, color blindness, distance judgment, reaction time, night vision and glare recovery. A number of the trainees were found to be deficient in one or more of these tests and were taught corrective measures.

Auto Markers Going Slowly Says Issuer

Following the customary early season flurry when local motorists flocked to obtain their new licences, 1961 auto markers are now almost going begging at the local licence bureau.

Local licence issuer George Olsen noted this morning that only about 15 per cent of 11,000 passenger vehicle markers normally sold in this area, have thus far gone out.

"There are only six more weeks before the March 15th deadline," noted Mr. Olsen, "and we have over 9,000 markers still to go out."

In reminding motorists not to wait for the last minute rush, Mr. Olsen also asks motorists not to forget their insurance liability cards when coming in to renew licences.

Failure to produce the liability cards results in the ante for licences being upped by $5.

Santa Maria into Recife Harbor after a night of uncertainty and confusion.

ASKS GUARANTEES

Galvao had shied away from entering port without iron-clad guarantees against losing his $16,600,000 prize, which he calls a liberated part of Portuguese national territory.

His concern was for formal assurances from Brazil's new president, Janio Quadros, that the revolutionists could keep the ship to carry on their fight against the regime of Portugal's Premier Antonio Salazar.

The destroyers Gearing, Wilson and Vogelgesang formed the escort for the entrance to the harbor. A sister destroyer, the Damato, was tied up in port, with its crew ready to assist if needed.

The majestic grey luxury liner, 20,906 tons and 610 feet long, edged in slowly for this new chapter in a saga of the high seas.

A contingent of Brazilian marines stood by to assure orderly disembarkation of the passengers. Throngs who hurried to the docks were kept back of a high iron fence by police.

President Quadros said nothing about the Santa Maria at his inauguration Tuesday at the hinterland capital of Brasilia nd this public silence contributed to the overnight confusion.

NO FORMULA FOUND

He and his new foreign and justice ministers were reported to have conferred on the case into the early hours of this morning. A Brasilia dispatch to the Rio de Janeiro newspaper Jornal do Brasil said they failed to come up with a formula that would coincide with Quadros' announced sympathy for Galvao.

Brazil's normally friendly relations with Portugal, the mother country, undoubtedly were a factor in this discussion.

The U.S. Navy, which has four destroyers in the area, was reluctant to undertake the hazardous unloading of the 588 passengers at sea.

The liner was reported in international waters off Ponta de Pedra, not far from Recife.

A Brazilian radio station quoted Galvao as saying he would enter Recife today provided he was given guarantees by President Quadros that he could sail out again to carry on his fight against Portuguese dictator Antonio de Oliveira Salazar.

MAY SCUTTLE SHIP

Vowing "we wil never surrender," the rebel leader was reported to have warned again he would scuttle the $16,600,000 cruise ship before he would give her up.

U.S. Rear Admiral Allen Smith, negotiating with Galvao for removal of the passengers, said after a 2½-hour conference with the rebel leader Tuesday that the situation was not "as definie as all concerned would like it to be."

Smith, who sailed back to Recife in the destroyer Gearing after his talk aboard the Santa Maria, gave indications that he might be acting as a go-between for the rebels and the Brazilian government. He said that some of the things he discussed with Galvao had to be kept secret for the present.

Smith, U.S. commander in the Caribbean, told the passengers over the liner's public address system :

"You have had the sympathy of the entire world. I have just conducted a conference with Capt. Galvao. He has given me strong reason to believe that he intends to discharge all passengers.

"Within 24 hours I hope all of you will be disembarked. Do not, however, be too optimistic. It is entirely possible that Capt. Galvao's plans will not materialize."

A navy spokesman said that if plans to discharge the passengers in Recife fall through, "the United States naturally would continue its interest" in the case. Forty-six Americans are reported among the passengers.

REBELS ON GUARD

Several rebels with machine-guns and side arms were seen strategically placed o nthe decks by Americans boarding the liner. A huge sign in red letters stretched above the second deck forward read "santa liberdade" —meaning "blessed liberty" in Portuguese.

A Recife radio station quoted Galvao as telling Smith that if he fails to get safe clearance from Brazil, he will "decide right away to go to another place."

Asked where, the rebel leader was reported to have replied, "Accra (in Ghana) and we would need American protection and fuel."

The radio report said the American admiral asked Galvao what he would do if a Brazilian ship tried to seize the captive liner. The 65-year-old insurgent chief replied:

"I will defend myself and I think the Americans should protect my ship because American passengers are aboard. But I do not believe the Brazilians will try to interfere with the ship."

Should Galvao run for Ghana, he must elude Portuguese warships patrolling off the West African coast.

The Salazar government washed its hands of any agreements reached by the U.S. Navy with the rebels.

"We have not been consulted by the Americans on the talks and we bear no responsibility for them although we appreciate their effort to safeguard the passengers," a government spokesman said in Lisbon.

He said Portugal was interested only in the safety of the passengers and crew and in getting the privately-owned liner back.

Salazar has denounced the rebels as pirates, but the spokesman said the Lisbon government had no intention to demand their extradition in the event any of them are interned by a foreign country.

Political asylum in Brazil for Galvao and his band of 70 was taken for granted — if they wanted it—but the rebels gave no indication of settling for that.

Lt.-Gen. Humberto Delgado, reputed to be the master mind of Galvao's plot and leader of Portuguese national independence movement, flew here Tuesday night from his home in exile in Sao Paulo. He told reporters that once the passengers were off the ship, the seafaring revolutionists would sail away again in the Santa Maria to a secret destination.

The 610-foot liner was reported running short of fuel and fresh water, but Delgado gave no hint where Galvao would get supplies if he did not come into Recife

Stewart-Warner Plating Unit Damaged by Fire, Smoke, Water This Morning

Heavy fumes from the muriatic acid used in the plating department at the Stewart Warner main plant on McDonald Ave. hindered the early efforts of local firefighters when called to the scene of a fire in that area at 7:13 o'clock this morning. Coupled with the frosting up of the Scott air-packs, normally used for breathing under such conditions, the fire was not an easy one to fight. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Despite these troubles the fire was brought quickly under control and by 8:30 a.m. the spread of the flames to other parts of the plant was halted and the fire contained in the plating unit building at the rear of the premises. Every piece of equipment and all off shifts were called to the scene, Fire Chief Gerald Vance state, with 48 men in all used to render efficient action.

Due to the large amounts of smoke the loss created by the fire was not readily assessable although it is presumed to be considerable, said Chief Vance.

The entire building was damaged and dirtied by the smoke with further troubles caused by burst waterpipes, no electricity, and the heating system being out of order.

The 140 staff members at Stewart Warner were far from being inactive due to the fire, however. There is a tremendous clean-up job to be done and at last reports all hands were busily engaged in this work.

Also on hand were the Salvation Army whose provision of coffee, soup and sandwiches to the firemen helped greatly during the 10-below zero temperature.

The new building on the north side of Pine Street was not damaged.

would use two hands for the right and left levers.

Ham's test was a prelude to sending one of seven human volunteers on a similar flight perhaps this spring.

Later would come launching of chimps into actual orbit, later to be followed by a man.

But Russia bids to win on man in space for several reasons. The Soviets have long had far more powerful rockets. Sputnik II, launched in November, 1957, carried up the dog Laika. Since then the Russians have even recovered two dogs, each weighing about 10 pounds, aboard a space craft sent into orbit last August.

Soviet space capsules are big enough perhaps to carry even two men at a time.

Soviet ships now, patrolling the Pacific indicate Russia is on the verge of some new launching, but again with no advance details.

FUEL BURNS FAST

During Ham's flight the Redstone rocket burned fuel too fast. This signified danger to automatic "brains" in the rocket-capsule system and triggered off release of an escape rocket carried on top of Ham's capsule.

This rocket mechanism was intended to carry the capsule away if the rocket blew up on launching. In sdt i ehpt,adlee launching. Instead, it helped give an extra push so Ham travelled some 40 miles higher and 130 miles farther than intended.

This gave him two extra minutes of being weightless and forced faster and hotter re-entry to the earth, and sent rescue ships scurrying to a surprise landing spot.

But cheerful Ham took it all without ill effects, and this augurs well for human astronauts on some tomorrow.

A Little Meaningless

"Space travel is going to be hit-or-miss and perilous for a long time to come," says the Hartford Courant, a statement with which no sane man can quarrel.

Then it continues: "Already, scientists are beginning to raise the question whether, in view of the stupendous costs, all this experimenting isn't a little meaningless."

With that statement, every sane man ought to quarrel. And we mean quarrel in full voice, not just quibble over the question of whether it is possible for anything to be "a little meaningless."

The Courant hedges: "True, there is an amount of military necessity involved," it says. That element is to be deplored. "Sure, success boosts national prestige in the international propaganda duel." That is the least acceptable reason for such expenditures. "But whether for purely civilian purposes there is any sense in going to the moon right now, it would indeed be difficult to say." It would, indeed. "For purely civilian purposes," there is hardly anything which man has accomplished in the few thousand years he has been on earth which, at the beginning of the attempt, did not appear valueless. "For purely civilian purposes" what was the sense of inventing a horseless carriage, of the Wright brothers getting both feet off the ground at Kittyhawk, of Alexander Graham Bell shouting words over a wire?

"Down here on earth there are a lot of other improvements that might be undertaken to make men and the world better." And how are the space travel experiments hampering these efforts? We have surplus food in Canada and idle planes and ships, yet weeks after it was known thousands of Congolese natives were starving not one bushel of wheat has been shipped. Does the expense of space travel experiments prevent this being done? The U.S. needs more highways, slum clearance programs. Do space travel experiments mean there are no men to undertake these jobs? It is a question of money, somebody says. What has happened to that proud boast that anything physically possible is financially possible? If money is the bottleneck, why prefer giving up space travel experiments to giving up rock 'n' roll records or westerns on TV or betting on the horse races or Miss America contests or built-in obsolescence?

The day the human race faces a challenge and an opportunity like the possibility of space travel and nobody gets excited and enthusiastic about it, that day we might as well go back to the caves, for the race as a whole will be stodgily dead and hopelessly wedded to the "practical" and man's whole history will have become more than "a little meaningless."

Worry About Wrong Thing

Why is it that people always get wrought up about the wrong things?

For the second time in approximately a year, a 14-year-old Ontario boy has been sentenced to hang for murder. Everybody knows he will not be hanged. The sentence will be commuted. But the Toronto Telegram reports that the Federal department of justice is drafting a bill which would set an age limit for the death penalty, probably 18, perhaps even 21.

It has been fairly well established that the death penalty does not deter others from committing murder. What it does do is to prevent a murderer from repeating his crime, after he has been paroled following a lengthy portion of his "life sentence." For that reason, we favor retaining it. We have more sympathy for the murdered than for the murderer.

But there is no reason why, in a civilized community, the murderer should not be put to death in as humane a way as possible. There is more than ample evidence that hanging, in many instances, means that death is preceded by torture. Yet, while the justice department is worried about 14-year-old boys being given death sentences which will never be carried out, it does not propose, according to the Telegram, to change the method of execution.

This makes ridiculous any contention that rational humanitarian impulses are prompting the proposed change in the law.

NO POLICE NECESSARY

In Egypt, a new bill of rights is presented under which, should a wife run away, a husband no longer would be able to call on the police to help him force her to return.

This could result in happy husbands merely going through the motions of trying to find runaway wives, much as the box-office cashier, to attract the attention of the patron who forgot his change, raps on the window with a sponge. (Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

Feed or Starve Cold But Get Rid of It

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Having caught the children's cold (and if your household is like mine your family, too, plays musical colds a few times a winter), I have been staggering around all day with rubber knees, a cough that would burn out brake-lining in an hour, and two little green men who stand punching away with hot needles on my eyeballs.

My colleagues, and even interested passers-by, have come up with some sure-fire remedies for combatting this cold, and I want to thank them all for their sage advice.

In the first place, I have learned, you must always take to bed with a cold, and stay there until the bug decides to go elsewhere and play. That's the only way to beat the game.

On the other hand, you must never succumb to the temptation to take to bed. The only way to throw off a cold is to keep on your feet and send it packing by a manly exhibition of vigor.

In the second place, you must always feed a cold. Just keep stuffing yourself with food, and all this nutrition will eventually frighten away the bacilli and their relatives.

On the other hand, you must always starve a cold. Food is absolutely disastrous to the system during a siege of chills and fever, and nothing more must trickle down your gullet.

In the third place, the only way to conquer a cold is by drowning yourself in liquids — orange juice, hot lemon tea, rock-and-rye with plenty of lemon, and 17 pitchers of uniced water.

On the other hand, drinking liquids does absolutely no good at all. The only reliable method for flushing the poisons out of the system is to get into a Turkish bath for a few hours, and let the pores do the rest. No sane person would try anything else.

Other absolutely guaranteed methods for knocking over a cold include electro-therapy, homeopathy, Swedish massage, mesmerism, insulin shock treatment, and Getting in Tune with the Infinite.

I will not even dwell on such assorted old wives' tales as wrapping a camphorated rag around your neck or rubbing two chicken feet together when the moon is in the second phase of Astar.

Naturally, I have my own theory about the whole thing. It is my firm belief that the only way to get rid of a cold is to pass it along to somebody else. Preferably to the people who come up and tell you what to do about your cold.

The Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson will be chairman. Mr. George Maybee will be the accompanist of the evening. Among the features will be the appearance of Master Billie Outerbridge, violinist, now residing in Belleville, who has recently come from Japan with his mother, who is a daughter of the late Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker. Master Outerbridge received his musical education from a Russian violinist in Japan. Other features of the program will be provided by Belleville Collegiate Glee Club and by St. Michael's Band.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR EARL L. DOUGLASS

CONSIDER THIS APPROACH

"I am too despondent today for words."

What is despondency? It is that dipping down of mind and mood which leaves us with a feeling of fright, insecurity, frustration and general misery.

There are many causes for this sagging of mood and thought. One aspect which is often neglected is the physical. People are frequently despondent because they are exhausted, or have eaten a meal which does not digest, or have lost sleep. To be sure, overwhelming problems make people despondent. If we do not know how things are coming out for us in the end, we can become downcast. Psychiatry has a contribution to make in the diagnosis and treatment of despondency. But physical aspect is something which causes despondency more often than we think and something we can handle ourselves.

The next time you become inexplicably downcast do not think of it as presaging the coming of some kind of ill fortune, but ask yourself whether or not your physical life has been vital, healthy, and normal during the preceding few days. Often you will discover that you are not worrying at all, you are just so exhausted that your thoughts scarcely get out of your mind before they turn turn around and come back in again. Also what you need may not be medicine but a different menu.

The physical basis of despondency is real and we never get to the basis of the matter until we realize this.

Now Unions Capitalists

New York Times

The A.F.L.-C.I.O. will soon initiate a departure that strikingly reflects the enormous financial interests of organized labor in this country — assets that have made American unions "capitalists" in their own right. We refer to the Department of Investment which will begin to function on the sixteenth of this month at A.F.L.-C.I.O. headquarters in Washington.

No one knows exactly the total of union funds which present investment problems. There are, of course, the surplus operating funds in the unions' treasuries over which they have complete control — as to the amount of which not even an estimate has been made. Then, too, there are the welfare and pension reserves, much of which are under sole union management.

These billions of unions' funds are invested in an increasing variety of ways. In the past they have gone mostly into Government bonds. But in the last few years a growing proportion has been put into Government-insured loans for housing or mortgages, corporate bonds and even corporate stock.

Alexander Bookstaver, who has been appointed head of the federation's new investment department, has had impressive experience in giving financial advice. For the last five years he has been financial consultant to the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union where he helped manage assets of more than $350 million. Before that he was associated in the management of the Amalgamated bank.

After Jan. 16 his services, and those of his staff, will be available to all A. F. L. - C. I. O. affiliated, and, of course, to the federation itself. We wish him all success.

Robin Hood Later Hero

BBC London Letter

According to some authorities, 1960 marked the 800th anniversary of the birth of Robin Hood, the merry outlaw of Sherwood Forest. According to others, it marked the 600th anniversary of his death. He could hardly have lived to such a ripe old age.

In a talk broadcast recently in the BBC program 'The Northcountryman', Albert Makinson advanced a theory to account for the discrepancy. Rejecting the idea that Robin Hood was a mythical character, he said that the best-known theory placed him in the reign of Richard the Lion Heart (1189-1199) and involved him with Prince John and his bold, bad barons. In that case it was very likely that he had been born in about 1160. "According to the other theory Robin flourished in the 1320's, in the reign of Edward II. The evidence for this is very strong. In the oldest of the Robin Hood ballads the king is Edward,not Richard or John; and it was about that time that the long bow reached a pitch of development that would make Robin's prowess possible." Moreover, there was no written record of Robin Hood as a famous outlaw until the 1370's, although one or another Robert or Robin Hood seemed to have been in trouble with the law at every period between 1200 and 1500. There had been a Robin Hood of Wakefield in the troubled reign of Edward II.

The reason for 'putting back' the Robin Hood stories a quarter of a century was, Mr. Makinson suggested, that the political wrangles of the 1320's were sordid affairs from which neither side emerged unblemished, and it would not have done for a popular hero like Robin Hood to be involved in them. The stories were therefore gradually transferred to the more Heart, John and the Crusades. romantic and acceptable atmosphere of Richard the Lion There was a precise parallel in the tale - used by Sir Walter Scott in 'The Bethrothal' - of Sir William Bradshaw and his wife, Lady Mabel, who had married again believing him to have been killed in the Crusades. In fact, the couple lived in the reign of Edward II; and Sir William never went to a Crusade - he was exiled for political reasons.

Professors May Mumble

Toronto Star

University faculties are prone to blame the schools for the high failure rates among first year university students - one in every four or five flunks out. They may have got the wrong sow by the ear. Part of the blame rests with the universities themselves — poor teaching in their own pastures.

Professors and teachers call themselves teachers, but in fact far too many of them are not. They do not know how to teach and have never had any instruction in the art. The presumption seems to be that it is enough to expose a college student to a lecturer whose mind has been pronounced full by a Ph.D. degree, and then by some magical osmosis, the professorial knowledge will flow to the student. As often as not there is no such magic.

Every person who has been a university student has experienced professors who, however brilliant in their special fields, mumble and jumble through a lecture, sputter among ill - sorted notes or merely read chapters from a book — perhaps their own. It might be said that many students succeed despite their professors, not because of them.

Rutgers University, New Jersey, recognizes the weakness. In an attempt to enable highly trained specialists to be at the same time effective teachers, its graduate school has developed in its Ph.D. course a special seminar on educational problems. The school is also providing a year of internship in which the graduate student does some teaching and examining under the supervision of experienced teachers in his field.

Canadian graduate schools have no such pedagogical coaching for students intending to teach college classes. They might well consider providing it, or the universities could set up some sort of intraining program to show newly appointed staff members how to teach.

Diuretic Drugs Not Intended To Be Used to Reduce Weight

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I hear there is a new drug out, called Diuril, for reducing. Is it true it will help us lose weight? — Mrs. M. R."

That isn't the purpose of the drug. It's a diuretic, a good and useful one, but it is not intended as a reducing drug and won't help in that respect. You could, for example, lose some weight just by drinking no water at all for several days. You'd dry out your system. But it wouldn't be healthful, and when you began drinking water, you'd put all the weight right back on again.

That's the answer to your question about using a diurectic as a weight reducer. However, there are cases, such as just before the menstrual period, in which the retention of excess fluid in the system can cause a temporary, rather sudden, and occasionally extreme gain in weight for a few days. Some of these cases are greatley benefited by use od diuretics. But the diuretics don't reduce weight. They correct a temporary excess accumulation of fluid in the body.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a dropped kidney and what treatments should be taken? — Mrs. D. H."

This is also called a "floating kidney." If it's a mild case, nothing need be done. If severe, surgery to "anchor" the kidney so it can't move around so much is the answer. Some movement is normal. Too much is too much.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My first baby had to be born Caesarean because she was premature and not in a position to be delivered normally.

"If I am to have another baby can I have a normal delivery next time, or must all my babies be Caesarean? My doctor told me I could very well have a normal delivery next time. Did he say that just to comfort me? What is your opinion? — Mrs. B. D."

There are now plenty of records of women who have had mormal deliveries after having had a Caesarean, and we know positively that the old idea of "once a Caesarean, always Caesareans" is not true.

No, your doctor wasn't just trying to comfort you. He was giving you the facts. Naturally he can't guarantee that the next baby will be born normally. You can't be positive in advance that circumstances won't arise, as they did with the first baby, requiring a Caesarean section. But even so, why worry about it? The important thing is that you and the baby are healthy. The method of birth is merely incidental.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can you give me some information about distilling kerosene? I have heard of it being used for treating such diseases as cancer and rheumatism, and since it has no alcoholic content it is difficult to distill. If any special instruments are needed, I would like information about where to get them. — R. Z."

Slow down a minute, friend. First, there's not a shred of evidence that kerosene will help any such diseases. And second, I certainly wouldn't try distilling such inflammable stuff — although alcohol isn't necessary to distill things. How about distilled water? In the third place, the "instruments" needed are simple enough — just a petroleum refinery! That's where kerosene comes from, the distrilling or "cracking" of petroleum. Forget the whole idea, please.

"A Reader": I question the investment in an expensive exercise machine unless some special circumstances make it unavoidable. My reason: There are so many kinds of exercise that cost nothing — walking, setting-up exercises, lying on your back and kicking your feet. If the machines are worth the money to you as a matter of preference, that's fine. But they aren't usually necessary to get exercise.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DARE AND DO!

To dare is first to make the resolution and then to go ahead and do! There is so much that must be done — so many great opportunities for the world to plan for and carry through to their conclusion.

By reading your newspaper you will discover how much there is yet to do — so much to build the things that go to make a better world, and more useful human beings.

I look out from my office window each day and I wonder about tomorrow, and the next great projects.

Are we building the wrong things? Can the world handle itself?

Why don't we read Thoreau, and his explanation of the Simple Life? We need more happiness in the world, and fewer huge buildings.

We need better schools, and more of them.

We need greater ideals and men wise in their handling. We can't build too many schools, nor can we make them too good.

How many of us can recall the big school in the little town! What multitudes of youth have gone from them out into the world with ideals they never knew about before!

Knowledge is Power!

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

On the one hand, we have the traditional Biblical reference to three score years and ten as being the age a man can expect to see. And on the other hand, we have the optimistic assurances of the medical profession that twenty years have been added to the life expectancy of the average Canadian during this century.

But 61 seems to be the average age at which men die, and almost 65 the age for women. These are the statistics for 1959 for the province of Ontario, which is a good province to pick for such figures since it has a great variety of human habitats in which men and women are to live and die, from the high pressure of big cities to the numerous frontier communities of its north, where no highways run, and where life is old-fashioned.

It is not quite 61 for the men, but 60.9, so that we are able to say of Mr. Average Man that he dies in his 61st year. That's the way it is usually phrased in the notices.

After seventy, it used to be said we were living on borrowed time. But with these statistics, it looks as if we are free to say, after 60, that we are living on the instalment or lend-lease system.

War Amps Mail Car Keys Tags

TORONTO — From Scotland Yard, Nice, Dublin, Vienna, the British West Indies and every part of Canada and the United States missing car keys — lost by Canadian motorists — come drifting back to the War Amps Key Tag Service headquarters in Toronto, one or two key sets in every mail.

This is the 15th year the War Amps Key Tag Service has distributed car key tags, providing motorists with an effective protection against an exasperating and sometimes costly mischance — loss of car keys — in return for the trifling price of the tags.

This year the total national distribution will be 8¼ million key tags.

"Last year," says Allan Piper, manager of the service, who wears hooks in place of the hands he lost in World War 2, "34 per cent of all recipients subscribed to our service by buying their tags. In the past year alone we returned 10,104 sets of lost keys to their owners. Since we started the service in 1946 we have returned over 60,000 sets."

The practice of providing each car owner with two tags is a recent and popular innovation. In most families the wife uses her own set of car key. The two tags provide complete family protection against loss.

The key tags are sent out gratis. The recipient subscribes by mailing back 60c for duplicate tags; 35c if only one is needed. The money is sent to the War Amps Key Tag Service, 140 Merton Street, Toronto.

The War Amputations of Canada was founded in 1919 under dominion charter. Lt.-Col. the Rev. Sydney E. Lambert, OBE, is dominion president and Alan L. Bell, honorary dominion secretary.

Air Transport Command Outlined to Cadet Squadron

A very interesting account of the organization, duties, equipment and experiences of the Air Transport Command rendered by Air Commodore F. S. Carpenter, AFC, CD, Air Officer Commanding of the Command held the close attention of 130 persons attending the Father and Son Banquet of the Royal Canadian Air Cadet Squadron No. 608 at Quinte Secondary School yesterday evening.

The duties of the Air Transport Command, whose bases encompass all of Canada and extend as far as the Sinai desert, are many and varied, noted the speaker. It is responsible for the survival training of all RCAF personnel, the training of all Search and Rescue personnel (as well as Search and Rescue duties in Ontario and the western two-thirds of Quebec), looking after the reserve RCAF squadrons and the 65 Royal Canadian Air Cadet squadrons in Ontario, joint air training with the Canadian Army and other joint operations, air photography, Arctic reconnaisance and air transport.

This latter duty is unique to that performed by the five other commands of the RCAF inasmuch as this service is provided equally to the Royal Canadian Navy and the Canadian Army as well as the RCAF, the former Chief of Air Operations explained. Commenting on the various duties of his command he noted that the RCAF "is at the top in aerial photography."

A description of the various aircraft used in his command also proved stimulating listening for those present. The uses, payloads and ranges of various aircraft in use as well as the comparison of these with the new aircraft shortly to be acquired by Air Transport Command proved most interesting. It has been the policy to use aircraft designed and built as freighter units, convertible to passenger use when necessary, and this has brought about some unique design and construction problems and solutions, commented the Air Commodore. These problems have been successfully met and the Imperial Defence College graduate stated that the RCAF "was very happy with the aircraft built in Canada."

On Saturday this group donated all revenue derived from the open air rink to the building fund of the Legion. When one considers the extreme difficulty this organization has in making ends meet in its efforts to supply skating and hockey to the youngsters of the town, one realizes the value of the donation.

It is seldom that enough money is derived to pay the total cost of maintaining ice, but the group still gave the income from one of the best days this winter. The sum of some $30 went to enrich the building fund and the members of the Legion have expressed their thanks to the Athletic Association.

This week the firemen are staging a benefit dance for the same purpose.

Ten Simple Steps Towards Higher Marks

10 STEPS TO BETTER LEARNING

Good work habits are essential if you want to make better grades.

When the manager of a factory wants to produce more goods and make more profits, he calls in an efficiency expert. The expert tells him how to rearrange his machinery and alter the habits of his workers so that the work can be done faster and with greater ease.

Many potentially brilliant students need a similar overhauling of their work habits. When they get it, their brilliance is uncovered.

It saves time and energy to know where and when you are going to work, how you are going to work and what you are going to work at.

Once you get in the habit of doing assignments according to a certain pattern, the task of getting down to work ceases to agonize you. It comes naturally and is, in fact, enjoyable.

You find, also, that you now have more time for other things.

Here are some suggestions that will help you do more efficient work:

1. Have a regular place of study in your home.

Make sure it has good lighting and is situated away from the TV set, the radio and the confusion of the rest of the house. You may not be able to avoid all noise and interruptions, but you should have a place that is relatively quiet and free of instrusions.

In this study nook, provide a place to put your books so you will always know where they are. You should not have to hunt through the house. The student who spends 10 or 15 minutes searaching desperately under newspapers and behind divans for a textbook is not always in the best frame of mind for study when he finds it. A good student knows where his books are.

2. Set aside a regular time to study and a fairly regular amount of time to devote to it.

According to Dr. James Conant, the senior high school student preparing for college today should spend from 15 to 20 hours a week in study outside the classroom.

3. Always make sure you understand exactly what you are expected to do on assignments.

Ask the teacher questions until this is clear in your mind. Never leave subject matter to guesswork.

4. Keep a "Things-I-Have-to-Do" list.

Every time you are given an assignment, put it on the list and assign yourself a specific time at which to do it.

5. Do your work as soon as you can.

Even if you see an hour or a day in the future which you are sure will be free for study, try to do the work sooner. So often those future times you will think you can depend on are suddenly wiped out by emergencies and unexpected events.

6. Allow yourself enough time for each assignment.

But do not spend so much time on one assignment that others suffer.

7. When your mind begins to wander, quit working for five or 10 mnutes.

Relax. These periodic work breaks bring you back to the job amazingly refreshed and ready to go on.

8. Do your own work.

After all, you — not Dad or Mom or the neighbor — are supposed to be getting the education. You won't have Dad's brain with you on exam day.

There is nothing wrong, of course, with asking for advice and examples. But the basic work should be your own. After getting help from another person, test whether you can do the problem for yourself.

9. Use the dictionary.

If you do not understand all the words used by the instructor or the author of your textbook, you will not understand all the lesson. You should be able to define the terms used. A dictionary should be as much a part of your equipment as pencils and paper.

10. Study the hardest things first.

This takes a great exertion of will. The temptation is great to take the line of least resistance and do the easy ones first. The trouble with that approach is that after your energy runs out, the hardest jobs remain. Hard chores never grow easier by aging.

It makes sense to do the hardest work when you are fresh and most alert and can give it your longest, best attention.

Remember the good advice offered by Thomas Huxley:

"Perhaps the most valuable result of all education is to make you do the thing you have to do, when it ought to be done, whether you like it or not; it is the first lesson that ought to be learned. . ."

Tomorrow: Better grades through better reading.

RCAF Equipment Adopted By Army for Navigation

OTTAWA (CP) — Equipment similar to that used by the RCAF for air navigation is being adopted by the army for ground navigation.

Informants say tenders now are being called on an automatic navigation aid developed by the army for use in tanks and other vehicles.

The army has set aside some $1,600,000 for purchase of about 100 of these devices for installation in tanks of the Canadian Infantry Brigade group in West Germany.

As usual, the army has given the new device a formal name and a nickname. The formal name is "Canadian Navigation Set, Land, Vehicular, Canadian Mark I." The nickname is "Navaid."

The device enables a tank commander to know where he is at all times — providing he knew his starting point. It will prevent him from getting lost in darkness, fog or smoke and enable him to navigate empty desert or arctic tundra.

An army spokesman said that during the Korean and Second World wars there were many casualties because commanders of fighting vehicles sometimes couldn't obtain a quick "fix" of their position in unfamiliar terrain.

GIVES VEHICLE'S POSITION

The Navaid, which weighs less than 100 pounds, automaticaly computes the location of the vehicle as it moves. An automatic plotting board, about the size of a television screen, displays the vehicle position and heading on a standard army map by a lighted arrow which points and turns to follow the vehicle's ground movements.

No manual plotting, calculation or recording is required. The device is not dependent on radio and is immune to jamming. It is similar to equipment used by the RCAF except that it does not have to take wind drift into account.

An open and shut case for an airtight car

Pick a Volkswagen. Any Volkswagen, old or new. Watch the owner get in. Chances are he's in the habit of opening the window before he shuts the door. The reason: His Volkswagen is airtight. (We keep hearing that the VW actually will float.)

When a Volkswagen leaves the factory, everything fits. Every part stays as tight as a drum for years and years. Volkswagens don't develop rattles, even in their dotage. And they don't rot away beneath you.

The Volkswagen is a solid car. It was designed that way, and our factory employs three thousand inspectors to keep it that way. Completed cars are rejected for faults and blemishes you couldn't spot with your naked eye. We take pride in the Volkswagen's finish. Inside and out, top and bottom, the VW is dipped and sprayed through five coats of paint.

When you buy a Volkswagen, you make a lasting investment. An investment that we go to great lengths to protect.

Because of the way the VW is designed, your running costs are cut way down. Because of the care with which it is constructed, it stays new longer and grows old more gracefully. That's why you see six and seven-year-old Volkswagens running around like two-year-olds. And that's why they hold their trade-in value better than any other car.

But we don't think the VW is so good it can't be improved. We are constantly finding ways to make it a better car.

For example, the ones now in the showrooms have a new engine that provides 10% more passing power, but with the same gas economy. Now all four gears are synchronized. You can change into first without stopping. There is more space under the front hood. You can take nearly twice as much luggage.

Visit your VW dealer soon. Hear the rest of his airtight case for buying a Volkswagen.

Trade between nations is a two-way street. West Germany is one of Canada's best customers. And every Volkswagen sold in this country helps Canada to sell Germany more Canadian goods.

Boy Scouts Aux. Sponsors Card Party

"A good time was had by all" was the general feeling on last Tuesday night at St. Michael's Auditorium when 3rd Belleville Ladies' Auxiliary' card party drew to a close. In spite of the cold weather, there was a gratifying turn-out, with 14 tables of bridge and 16 tables of euchre. The proceeds from the evening will be put to good use toward the proposed "Father and Son" banquet, or a trip for the boys to the coming Boy Scout Jamboree in Ottawa.

The help and co-operation of the group committee—Dr. R. Allore, M. Cooper, E. C. McCallum, G. Wilson, and the leaders—G. Powers, B. Lynch and F. Nobel, was greatly appreciated. Special pride was felt toward the Cubs who were on hand, in uniform, to do "their good deeds for the day" as they busied themselves escorting the guests to their respective tables and were always ready and eager to help in any way they could.

Thanks to Cubs Michael Allore, Chris Clifford, Douglas Couture, Paul Deryaw, Richard Farrell, Tommy Finkle, Danny Gilhooley, Jimmy Gilhooley, Henry Glancey, Paul Goyer, John Holland and Paul Truaisch.

Wild Mink Skins Bring High Prices

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices paid at a fur auction here give some idea why mink coats are so expensive.

A particularly fine wild male mink skin brought the highest price, $54.50, and the average for males was $24 while the smaller female skins were about $12.

It takes about 70 to 75 closely matched skines to make a full-length coat.

European buyers snapped up most of the wild minks at the Hudson's Bay Company auction while Canadian and American buyers got most of the ranch minks, preferring pastels and particularly sapphire.

Congregational Meeting

ST. THOMAS' ANGLICAN

The Congregation of St. Thomas' Church, met in the Parish House for the annual vestry meeting with a good representation present from all the Parish activities.

Following the opening of the meeting with prayer by the rector ,Rev. Canon A. S. McConnell and the appointment of Mr. H. T. Floyd as vestry clerk, reports were presented by the rector, the assistant Curate, Mr. J. C. Riesberry, and the church wardens, Mr. M. F. L. Jones and Mr. Ronald Keel. In his report the Rector noted a considerable increase in attendance at morning services, due in part to the addition of a 9.30 a.m. family service each Sunday, but a slight decrease in attendance on Sunday evenings. During the year, 291 services were held in the Parish, there were 88 baptisms, 63 persons were presented to the Bishop for confirmation; there were 21 marriages and 27 burials.

Canon McConnell expressed his thanks to the Rev. J. C. Riesberry, the church wardens, Mr. M. F. L. Jones and Mr. Ronald Keel; the junior wardens, Mr. R. T. Morton and Mr. Mac Smith, the members of the executive council of the vestry and to many in the Parish who had worked so faithfully during the year. A special word of thanks went to Mr. A. S. Lewis, General Chairman of the two Parish visitations and to all who had assisted in these important Parish events.

With a total of receipts of upwards of $50,000 from the general account and Parish organizations, the financial statement showed the Parish in an excellent condition. During the year the Bank Loan of $4,150 had been liquidated; the Diocesan budget of $6,488 was paid in full; $2,000 was paid on church extension and a substantial sum of money was set aside for the future building facilities. Excellent reports were presented from the Sunday School, the different groups of the Woman's Auxiliary; the Parochial Guild and also other church organizations.

The Rector made a presentation of a photograph of the church to Mr. M. F. L. Jones, retiring Rector's warden, and expressed his warm and sincere appreciation of his valuable services so willingly and effectually given to St. Thomas' Church in the past two years. He announced his choice of Mr. Ronald Keel as Rector's warden for the coming year.

The report of the Nominating Committee presented by Mr. M. F. L. Jones and Mr. A. S. Lewis was received unanimously by the vestry and is as follows: Lay Delegates to Synod — Messrs. A. S. Lewis, Dr. P. G. Loder, R. W. G. Freestone, J. M. Bertrand, W. S. Stone, A. R. Scott; alternates— Mr. A. A. Clarke, Brig. J. E. Genet ;executive council of the vestry — Messrs. G. M. Miller, F. J. Stone W. T. Simpson, F. W. Newman.

The vestry also appointed Mr. R. W. G. Freestone and Mr. W. T. Simpson as auditors, and confirmed the appointment for 1961 of Mrs. S. E. Morton on the executive of the V.O.N. With the appointment of the new officers for the year, confirmed by the vestry, Mr. Ronald Keel presented the budget for 1961, which was approved without change at the meeting.

A motion by Mr. C. N. Nicholson, in which he expressed the appreciation of the Parish for the work of Canon A. S. McConnell and the Rev. J. C. Riesberry was presented by the Rector's warden and warmly received by the vestry.

In closing his report, to the vestry, Canon McConnell said, "Someone has said that it takes a clergyman five years to get to know a Parish. I am now sure of that as I begin my sixth year as Rector. In the past year I have shared more fully in your sorrows and troubles, but, fortunately, too, in much of your joys. I feel that I am being drawn more closely into the family that we call the Parish. Let us always remember that we are a Christian fellowship serving the Lord with gladness of heart.

The past year has been a happy experience for me, and I trust, for all of you. There has been a spirit of complete harmony in all our Parish activities, and none greater than between the church wardens and myself. My prayer is that in such a spirit we may continue our work for Christ and His church in this Parish of St. Thomas'".

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by by the Evening Guild and those present enjoyed a half hour of fellowship together.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

A short visit to Kingston last week brought to mind two anecdotes which we remembered reading in our old scrap book. They concern a former famous member of parliament for the city, John A. Macdonald. The first took place soon after young Macdonald began the practice of law in Kingston when, one winter's day, an American farmer came in great trouble to consult him. The farmer's team of horses had been seized by the customs for non-entry and duty, and were advertised for sale by auction the next morning.

Macdonald after taking his fee of ten dollars, told the farmer to go to a barber and get his big beard cut off, and to meet him at the sale next morning, differently dressed if possible, and do as he told him. Accordingly, lawyer and client were both at the sale next morning when the horses were put up, and the farmer bid for them as directed and demanded the privilege of trying them before paying for them.

"Not by a jug full!" said the auctioneer, "that would never do".

The lawyer, however, who was in the crowd, said it was only right the man should try the horses before he paid for them.

"Oh, well," said the auctioneer, "if you say so, Mac, I guess it's all right. He may try them".

Then the lawyer whispered to his client: "Now, make for the other side like sheet lightning!"

The date of that story was not given, but the winter must have been cold and the ice solid from shore to shore.

The second ancedote was witnessed by the writer of the clipping in the scrap book. He says, "I witnessed it in the streets of Kingston. It was after an election, when Sir John A. was out of office. He was in a wagon thanking the electors for their votes and after telling them that now he was out of office he could promise them nothing for their aunts and uncles and cousins, he ended his speech in this way: "And now gentlemen, I am going to do what the devil never did". Then his followers looked with all their eyes and listened to hear what wonderful thing it was.

"Gentlemen", said the orator, bowing profoundly and looking solemnly, "Gentlemen, I'm going to leave you. Good-bye".

From another clipping, dated 1885, we learn that even then Canadian cheese was surpassing American cheese in European markets. "It was discovered that when Canadian and New York State cheese were shipped across the Atlantic together, the Canadian article was preferred by English buyers. One speaker was of the opinion that the secret of the superiority of Canadian cheese lay in its age . . . Another speaker suggested as reasons why New York cheese was less desirable than Canadian: (1) The failure of the makers to expel sufficient moisture; (2) the endeavor to make skims appear as good as cream cheese by leaving some moisture in it; (3) too rapid curing; (4) too much acid and too little salt in "firming"; (5) undue reduction of cheese-makers' wages".

The article also stated that the New York cheese was shipped too green. It is interesting to note that, though no reason for the statement is given, two writers of the same era linked green cheese with the moon. John Heywood (1497-1580) in his Proverbes, "The moon is made of a greene cheese", while in his Works, Francois Rabelais (1495-1553) also said "Though the moon was made of green cheese".

Swing Skirts Main Note By Hartnell

By ROSANNA GROARKE

LONDON (Reuters) — Fitted hip yokes and swinging skirts were the main new note of the spring fashion collection shown Tuesday by Norman Hartnell, Queen Elizabeth's dressmaker.

Hartnell started work on his collection only eight days ago because he was busy designing most of the Queen's clothes for her tour of India and Pakistan.

But there was general agreement that the collection was Hartnell's best for several seasons.

The Indian influence was seen in a long, slim evening dress of softly-pleated white chiffon, silver embroidered and called Taj Mahal.

A high - necked, cap - sleeved coat dress, embroidered in white and silver sequins and banded at neck and sleeves with gold braid, also had an Indian look.

USED JADE GREEN

Some of the colors used by Hartnell were jade green, moonlight blue, coral pink and dazzling white.

Some suits had gently-flared skirts but most were pencil-slim and the slim skirt, discarded by most London couturiers, was used in some dresses.

Coats were swinging and collarless or unobstrusively collared, many in big checks.

The new importance of hiplines de-emphasized the bosom on daytime clothes and produced what Hartnell called a "flat-figured" look.

But most of his evening dresses moulded the figure, at least to hip level. Afternoon and evening dresses were misted with transparent coats in matching chiffon to provide the 1961 "blurred look."

Woman Museum Curator Wants Minister to Protect Manitoba History, Culture

WINNIPEG (CP) — A woman museum curator says the Manitoba government should establish a "department of heritage" headed by a full - time cabinet minister to protect the history and culture of the province.

Barbara Johnstone, curator of the Hudson's Bay Company museum, told a service club luncheon that "the whole picture of cultural responsibility for the province is still just a spit in the eye.".

She said government taxes "provide for the sick, the criminal, the weak, even the lazy— but we have not one department to feed the minds of the young, the vital, the thinking people."

She recommended establishment of cultural centres in six or eight towns throughout the province, to which travelling museums and art exhibits could be taken and where ballet and theatre groups could visit on tour.

Miss Johnstone is an eighth-generation member of a family that has served the Hudson's Bay Company and its predecessor, the Northwest Company, for 247 consecutive years.

Elaborating on her suggestion of local cultural centres, she said:

"Manitoba means 'place where the spirit speaks.' I'd like to see the spirit of small town dwellers freed from isolation, from the grain elevators, the Chinese cafe and the pool room."

To avoid "becoming clogged with small museums in every other town — really storage attics" she proposed a thorough survey of the province, in consultation with local historians, to find the suitable locations for the centres.

She said that only one man now works as a historian for the provincial government—the "desperately overworked archivist."

Queen Elizabeth H-S Assoc. Holds Panel on Guidance

The Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association held its monthly meeting at the school on January 24th.

Mrs. Swan's Grade 8 group again won the attendance plaque.

It was resolved to send the Retarded Children's School $25.

A letter was read requesting that the sponsorship of the 9th Belleville Scout Troop be transferred to St. Margaret's Church. A motion was made to this effect and seconded. It was voted on and carried unanimously.

Dr. T. Burnett, president, expressed the thanks of the Home and School to Mrs. S. Reston for her untiring effort as president last year and presented her with a past-president's pin. Mrs. Reston graciously thanked everyone for their co-operation during the past year.

PANEL SPEAKERS

Dr. Burnett called on the panel speakers to come forward. Mr. McQuaid principal of Queen Elizabeth School; Mr. Bradford, Guidance Councillor for Moira Secondary School; Mr. Daugherty, personnel manager of Northern Electric; Mr. Casey, manager of Simpsons Sears; Dr. Harold Welch of the Entomological Laboratory, with Dr. Burnett as moderator, made up the panel. Their topic was, "Educational requirements for employment".

"Tonight there is a unique set-up with the industrial leaders in the community on a panel discussion", stated Mr. McQuaid: Guidance is an optional subject here in Belleville. Grades 7 and 8 have the opportunity to take it and learn about occupations. Some students do reach tentative decisions in this way. Intelligence tests are conducted in grades 1, 4 and 7, but they are not the whole answer. Real guidance is taught informally by the teacher in the classroom, who tries to encourage the children to be good citizens with democratic ideals and honesty. Partnership with the home is an essential requirement. The main function of the teacher is to get the child to want to succeed.

GOOD P.S. TEACHERS A NECESSITY

"Three-quarters of the battle is lost if the teachers are not good in public school," stated Mr. Bradford. Good work habits must be established before the pupil reaches high school. The drop-out in high school is a serious problem. Mr. Bradford distributed a typewritten sheet outlining the guidance services in Moira Secondary School. The guidance office contains a great deal of up-to-date material, which may be loaned to the student. A qualified teacher-counsellor is available for interviews and answering questions. There is a testing program throughout the school, including the Carnegie studies. A class period a week in group counselling or occupations is given to all grade 9 classes, three grade 10 and two grade 11 classes. Speakers are brought in for some of the assemblies and tours are taken to such places as Ryerson Institute of Technology, Queen's University and Northern Electric.

Mr. Daugherty, representing the manufacturer, thought a broader look should be taken at the growth of this nation and the opportunity it offers the children. In the future, Northern Electric will require fewer unskilled workers and more thoroughly educated engineers. The ability and desire to get along with other people at close range under difficult circumstances is an important factor for employment. Mr. Daugherty felt there was no need to be alarmed at the increase in unemployment, as a relatively small part of the six million labor force in the country are unemployed. Children in this school must be educated to be alert, versatile thinkers, not passive, trained imitators. Initiative can be encouraged and instilled in children before they reach school.

Mr. Casey, in quoting from an article he had read lately, said one third of the children entering Public School never reach High School. Also, one third quit between grades 1 and 8. A bare nine per ecnt will attain a senior matriculation. This article felt that the educational system and the student's family must share the blame for the large number of school dropouts; so must culture. It emphasizes material possessions and the acquisitions of goods.

HIGHER TRAINING NEEDED

Dr. Harold Welch declared that the professions need higher training. Three criteria are necessary: namely, a grade 13 matriculation, a university degree of three to four years, and a period of specialized training. Dr. Welch proceeded to outline the education required for lawyers, doctors, dentists, teachers, scientists, engineers and architects. Parents who desire their child to enter a profession is not a factor, which should control a child to university. Dr. Welch felt it may lead to frustration and disillusionment. There is a great need for people in skilled trades and business. A child's mental ability and interest are determining factors. More Federal and Provincial support by scholarships and bursaries are required.

An excellent period of discussion followed. Mr. G. Whitman thanked the panel for a thought - provoking meeting and also posed many interesting questions himself.

Homecoming

by Mary Moore

A random guess is that one letter out of every four that I receive from our readers ends up with some comment about my family. Samples: "I love hearing what Marianne and Herbie are doing. Keep us posted." or "What is Pete doing? Is he really going to be a psychiatrist?" or "How old are your grandchildren now?"

Since I have big fat news right in my house with me this minute, I will indulge myself and you.

Marianne and Herbie and Gary and Davey and Herbie's sister Doreen arrived at our house at midnight having driven over 1,000 miles from Saint John in two days. All but Doreen had bad colds. All of the lights in our house were blazing for we knew when to expect them for they had phoned twice en route.

No carload of travellers was ever happier to tumble into their destination. Before a blazing fire we had hot cocoa and orange juice and toast made from homemade bread. In about an hour I had the priceless privilege of putting my precious four-year-old Gary in the top bunk of their new maple bunk beds. He laid down his weary head on the soft flannette sheet, shut his big brown eyes while Grandma sang "Wise old Owl in a Tree" twice through — and he was asleep.

Sue slept through it all. In the morning while all her family stood watching and waiting for her reaction to them after four months' separation, she said "boy boy" to Gary and Davey. Then fixed Herbie with her big blue eyes and solemnly said "daddy". In about a minute she sidled up to Marianne and laid her hand on her knee, then without a word, reached up both arms and was clasped hard by her doting mother.

Our first full scale meal was a turkey diner with all relatives present. With a good night's sleep they were all better and able to enjoy it.

Since then for a change from cold turkey we had a roast loin of pork. The butcher trimmed it well and cleavered it between the ribs and Herbie carved it handily.

ROAST LOIN OF PORK:

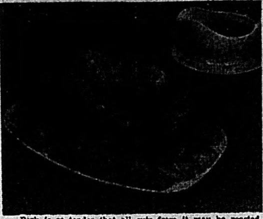
Roast uncovered at 325 deg. Fahr. until well-done (internal temperature should be 185 deg. Fahr.) A loin weighing 3 to 4 pounds should be roasted 40 to 45 minutes to the pound. The loin I roasted was larger. It weighed 6 pounds and I roasted it 3 3-4 hours at 325 deg. Fahr. for I wanted it to be crisp and well-browned.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

WEDNESDAY

Swiss Steak with Mushroom Gravy; Devilled Carrots (see Tuesday); Fluffy Mashed Potatoes; Fresh Frozen Raspberries; Cookies; Coffee.



Pork is so tender that all cuts from it may be roasted, if desired, even pork hocks. Our picture shows a roast loin of pork garnished with clove-studded apricots. Leftover roast pork is a great favorite sliced cold with spiced apples and scalloped potatoes.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Mr. H. Y. — My daughter wants to quit school and go on the stage.

Aida — I want to quit school and study for the stage. That's different.

Mr. H. Y. — I thought my daughter had more sense than to let herself get stage-struck, but no. She wants to transfer from her first year in a teacher's college and become a showgirl.

As a lawyer, I represent many theatre people. Aida has met some of them and has heard me discuss some of my experiences in theatrical circles. Surely she must know that she's not the type. Most of the actresses are vain, selfish and narcissistic. If they're not the centre of attention at all times they're miserable.

Aida's a wholesome, sweet kid. She'd never fit into that tinselled, tawdry, knock-down and drag-out business. On the other hand, she'd make a wonderful teacher. She's so bright and patient, and has such a way with children.

I'm sure the theatre can get along without her and she'd be better off without the theatre. It's the schools that need her. She belongs there.

Aida — Dad just hasn't met the true representatives of theatre art, and he's repeating the same old cliches which insist that a life on the stage is a life of sham and false values.

I am 17 and have spent the past two summers as an apprentice in a highly rated summer stock company. I painted scenery, handled makeup, played bit parts, and learned how much blood, sweat and tears go into a production. I have a great respect for everyone in the game, from the box office treasurer in front to the stage-door watchman in back. I long to be part of it.

Shortly after college opened, I applied for admission to the classes of a theatre school. To my delight, I was accepted. I may return to teacher-training courses, and I wish my father didn't feel so tragic about my transfer. I'll still be getting a wonderful education, including languages and writing.

The Council — Aida seems to be on a sound track (not the Hollywood kind) at present. Mr. Y can take heart from two signs: first, the extent of her skill has been determined; second, she's not delusional or unrealistic. Her feet are on the ground — the cold bare floor of a stage with slippery ladders.

Whether Aida stays with the theatre or not, her training will have lifelong benefit because it strives to teach her to communicate effectively. She'll learn poise and posture, diction and voice projection. Nervous, jagged mannerisms will be eliminated, gracefulness and self-control developed. Even if she ends by teaching or keeping house, Aida can profit from such courses as fencing, playwriting and stage-lighting — to mention a few.

But should it become clear that the entertainment field is her cup of tea, Mr. Y. can be proud of his daughter and cheer her along the hard course because the genuine trouper is not a poseur — not the self-worshipper he knows — but a sharer, a benefactor, and a benign magician who wields great power for good.

Watch Danny Kaye lift people out of their stodgy selves. Watch the lame leap across a stage, in fancy, with Maria Tallchief. When Jimmy Durante says laugh, we laugh. When Lily Pens approaches a high C, we all stop breathing! In entering the heart of show business, Aida will join the ranks of the true lovers of humanity, not narrow lovers of self.

"Ninety minutes is a long, long time," sang Noel Coward about a TV show. As actress or teacher, Aida is learning ways to make time fly for her audiences.

It was decided also to again have a "Spring Fair" in May.

The 1960-61 officers for the Foxboro Home and School Association are: past president — Mrs. L. Sheppard; president — Mrs. Glenn Bradshaw; vice-president — Mrs. Harry Ashton; recording secretary — Mrs. M. J. Waller; treasurer — Mrs. Alex Stoughton; social convener — Mrs. W. Congregational Meeting

BRIDGE ST. UNITED

The congregation of Bridge Street United Church met recently to receive annual reports for the year 1960 and, on the whole, a year of progress in all areas of the church's work was shown. Approximately $73,000 was raised by the congregation and its organizations of which $24,000 was for the helping of others through the church's missionary and maintenance program and other phases of benevolent work.

An innovation for this year's meeting was a potluck supper, served by members of Mrs Greatrix's group of the Coronation group of the Woman's Association, to capacity filled tables.

The Rev. H. M. Davis conducted the opening devotional, assisted by the Rev. R. F. Sherwin, who read the Scriptures. The names of 25 church people, who had passed away during 1960, were read and a moment of silence observed in their memory.

Mr. Davis was elected chairman of the business meeting and Miss Loretta McDougall was appointed secretary. Reports on all departments of the church's work were reviewed by Mr. Davis.

Concerning the report of the Session, Mr. Davis noted that 86 new members had been received into the church with 85 being removed by certificate and death, leaving the total membership at 1,757. There were 59 baptisms, 33 weddings and 41 burials conducted by the ministers.

GRATITUDE EXPRESSED

Sincere gratitude was expressed for the many services that have been performed by efficient and dedicated people in the church through 1960, particularly to Mr. Gordon and the members of the choirs for their faithful leadership in praise and worship; to Sonny Belch for his competency in carrying out his duties as caretaker; to Miss Morden for faithful service as envelope secretary, and to Miss N. Ketcheson for time and service given assisting Miss Morden; to Mrs. Riley for willing and efficient secretarial service; to Mr. Banting, the superintendent of the Sunday School, and his staff of teachers and helpers; to Mr. Thompson, church treasurer, for skilled services freely given; to Clare Faulkner who, through difficulties, has maintained a good ushering service at the Sunday worship; to Miss Helen Sulman and Mrs. Moon, the church flower committee for rostrum decorations attractively done; to Mr. Slack and Miss Morden and her helpers in the preparation of Holy Communion; to the presidents of the missionary auxiliaries, woman's associations, and the leaders of all children's, young people's and men's groups; to all the officers and members of the boards.

Mr. Sherwin, in reporting on the Chritsian Education Program, commented that probably the most significant development in the Christian Education program is the recent decision of the congregation to proceed with the recommended extension of Christian Education building facilities. Many long hours of work and thought and prayer on the part of the church extension committee preceded that decision.

The pupil enrolment of the Sunday school stands at 477, an increase of 16 over last year's enrolment and the Sunday school staff is of an excellent calibre under the general superintendency of Mr. A. D. Banting. Mr. Sherwin also commended the leadership given to mid-week groups.

The sincere and heartfelt thanks of the congregation for the dedicated leadership of its ministers was expressed by Mr. W. J. Morrison and heartily endorsed by all present.

ELDERS, STEWARDS

New elders elected to the Session were as follows: Messrs. W. H. Downing, R. K. Jeffrey, R. N. Laughlen, A. MacKillican, L. McQuaid, B. Philp, J. R. Reynolds and T. Walker.

Mr. A. H. Maguire was made an honorary member of the Session, in recognition of faithful service performed as an active elder.

Stewards elected for a three year term were: J. D. Courtney, Bill Deline, Bruce McKenzie, Harold Mott, Newton Thompson, Ken Huntley, Walter Elliott, Gerald Hyde and Tony Cavers.

Auditors appointed were: P. C. McGuire and K. M. Bird.

From the executive the following were chosen to fill the offices — president — T. Kuchta; secretary-treasurer — Mrs. Kenneth Rideout; newsletter, publicity and programming — Mrs. W. L. Griffiths and J. Haig; religious education — Mrs. T. Kuchta. From the membership at large, Kenneth Rideout was appointed librarian and Dr. W. L. Griffiths was chosen to take the leadership of the discussion group.

The appreciation of the Fellowship was expressed for the contributions made during 1960 by the past president, Mr. Rideout, the past secretary Mr. Ketcheson, the past treasurer Mr. Haig and executive members Mrs. Allen and Mr. Daechsel.

FELLOWSHIP GOOD

The reports for 1960 revealed that the enthusiasm for the Fellowship was increasing and the various departments emerging strong and vital. The new assembly place at the Home for Retarded Children at 281 John Street, Belleville, is appreciated by all and especially the children of the Sunday School. The Fellowship faces 1961 with encouragement and hope for growth and development where people of goodwill and liberal thoughts can pool their reasoning and their talents in freedom. A special effort will be made to let people of like minds find congenial association and exchange of view points.

Club Activities

KUM DOUBLE CLUB

HALLOWAY — The January 25th meeting of the Kum Double Club was held in the church Sunday School room with members of Marsh Hill Harmony Club and the Young Peoples, as special guests.

The president, Mrs. Harry Morgan, extended greetings to these two groups and Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Robson took charge of the worship service, using the theme, "Strength for the Day," taken from Isaiah 40: 31. Readings were given entitled, "The Twenty-third Psalm"; "The Inevitable"; "Just for Today."

Mrs. Coleman Townsend read the Scripture from Isaiah 40: 26-31 and prayer and meditation was given by Mrs. Robson. A story, "Healing the sick child," was read by Mr. Robson and was in keeping with the film, "One on Every Street," which was shown. This film depicted the work carried on in the hospitals for the mentally retarded children and this proved most enlightening.

A short business period followed with Mr. H. Morgan in charge. Mention was made of the next meeting, to be held at the home of Stan and Mary Stanley on February 8th, in the form of a box social. At this time, the men are to make up the boxes with the ladies doing the bidding. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. A. Donaldson, and 24 members were present.

Mrs. John Robson and Mrs. F. Wellman led in a series of games and contests, after which refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

SUNBEAM M.B.

FRANKFORD—The Sunbeam Mission Band of Frankford United Church was held on the afternoon of January 24th at 4.15 p.m., in Rose Lowery Hall.

The worship service was opened with a prayer by Gail Jordison. A poem, "Jesus, Friend of Little Children," was read by Shirley Kellar. The worship service closed with prayer by Margaret Hayes.

The poject for the day was making invitations for a "Valentine Party."

The meeting closed with the Mission Band benediction.

C.A. Group Enjoys Joint Skating Party

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle C.A's Stirling Pentecostal C.A's and Trenton Pentecostal C.A's all joined together for a skating party in Frankford Community Arena on January 27th. Mr. Fred Wood and Mr. Austin Watson served as doorkeepers.

Following an enjoyable time on skates, the young people gathered in the lower auditorium of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle, in a large friendship circle. After a rousing sing-song of favorite choruses, Pastor Bob Donnan, of Stirling, led in prayer.

Hot dogs, ice cream, cookies and hot chocolate were enjoyed by all and a time of fellowship followed.

Old School Chums Honor New Bride

WELLINGTON — The Misses Joanne Herrington and Christina Macdonald were co-hostesses, at the Herrington home, Consecon Street, on Tuesday evening, when a number of former school chums met to honor, Mrs. O. Mastin. (Frances Wuycik) with a miscellaneous shower.

A bride's book was made during the evening. Also two contests were played, with Miss Diana Dick and Miss Dorothy Broadbridge the winners.

After the contests Miss Joan Herrington read an appropriate address to the guest of honor and with the help of Miss Macdonald presented her with the many lovely gifts.

After the gifts were opened and admired by all, Frances thanked her friends for their kindness.

Guest of honor at the party was Mrs. Roscoe Mastin.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, assisted by the bridegroom's mother.

MODERN MANNERS

DOES YOUR STATIONERY REFLECT GOOD TASTE?

Do you purchase your personal stationery in a hit-or-miss manner? If so, it obviously doesn't occur to you that the recipients of your letters will form an opinion of your good taste, or lack of it, when they view your selection. There is really no excuse for being slipshod about it because, today, good-grade stationery can be bought at reasonable prices.

Both men and women can rest assured that they will not be criticized if they adhere closely to old tried-and-true conventional form in the selection of personal stationery. If a woman chooses a good-quality white sheet, folded on the left and of a size that requires one more fold in the center before insertion in the envelope, she cannot go wrong. Or she may choose a large single sheet that has to be folded twice to fit the envelope. Both of these styles are correct for a man to use.

Both the folded double sheet, and the single, are in impeccable good taste when used for writing formal letters — or any type of letter, for that matter. Also, it is well to remember that only white stationery is proper when answering a formal invitation.

Don't misunderstand me. I do not mean to indicate that the use of a colored note-peper is frowned upon. In its proper place (for use when writing the informal letter), one's desires may hold sway. Do, however, avoid flamboyant colors, such as bright blues, greens or pinks! Stick to pastel shades.

In past years a small card, referred to as a "correspondence card," was very popular for the writing of short, informal notes. Today, this form has fallen into disuse and the modern "semi-note" has taken its place. This is a folded-over note-paper, measuring four by five inches, and is extremely useful when writing short letters or when answering the informal invitation.

Another thing to guard against is overdoing when endeavoring to add a personal touch to your stationery.

A finely engraved monogram, a group of initials, or simply one's address, are the best forms. Avoid large, ornate initials that sprawl all over the top of the paper. A young girl may have her first name engraved, or printed, on her letterhead. Even a nickname is not incorrect in this instance. A matron should never resort to these forms, however.

Also, watch the color of the ink you use! It really isn't smart to use green or purple ink when writing letters. Blue is the most commonly used and is considered absolutely correct. Black follows as a close second and is also in good taste.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question: If I am escorting a lady, and we enter a place that has a revolving door in the entrance, should I go first and push the door for her, or follow the usual procedure and let her lead the way? — Mr. K.T.A., Shreveport, la.

Answer: There are two ways to accomplish this maneuver. One — first assist the lady into one of the compartments of the door. You enter the next one and push it around, stopping it when the inside is reached so she may step out. Two — you enter first, letting her follow. The first approach is preferred, but sometimes, if there is a crowd, the second has to be resorted to.

SPANS CANADA — The crest of the Canadian Council of Foremen's Clubs is to be found in 42 centres from coast to coast. Started by the YMCA the Foremen's Clubs are dedicated to helping foremen to understand and develop their administration and supervisory responsibilities and to develop the character and personality of each member. Identification Cards for Ring Printed in Jail

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—A Vancouver police officer, who asked that his name not be used, said Tuesday night that prisoners in the federal penitentiary here printed counterfeit identification cards for a country - wide forged cheque ring.

The policeman said the cards bore a coat of arms and a photograph printed on glossy paper and were used to cash bogus cheques in Edmonton.

Warden P. W. Hall said certain materials found in the penitentiary's printing room "would lead to the conclusion they could have been used to print bogus identification cards." Vancouver is 12 miles from here.

Both were commenting on an Edmonton report that police found evidence that the printing shops in the New Westminster and Kingston, penitentiaries were used to print the false cards.

The report said a man arrested in a forgery case had two cards, one showing him as an inspector of the federal justice department and the other as an investigator for the postal department.

TWO DIES FOUND

The warden, transferred here from Prince Albert, Sask., last year said that before he arrived two dies bearing coats of arms were found in the small shop in which the prison magazine Transition is printed.

Police said that the glossy papers used for the cards were the reverse sides of photographs of a soccer game played by the Penguins, the B.C. penitentiary team. Warden Hall said the photographs were available to all prisoners to send to relatives.

The print shop here is devoted solely to printing the prison magazine. The ancient press was donated some years ago by an old lady living in the area.

Warden Hall said no charges were laid in the discovery of the dies because they could not be traced to anyone.

BOY KILLED

MOUNT FOREST (CP)—Donald Leslie Graham, 10, was killed Tuesday on his way home from school when he ran from behind a parked truck into the path of a car driven by Boyden F. Keller of Orillia. Mount Forest is 50 miles south of Owen Sound.

PRINCIPALS IN DEBATE — Yaacov Herzog, left, Israeli Ambassador to Canada, and Dr. Arnold Toynbee, famed British Historian, are shown as they prepared to face each other in a debate on Israel. Foremen's Club Is Excellent Example of Service Given By 'Y' in Your Community

Although most are inclined to think of the YMCA as a youth movement or activity, there is much more to the "Y's" activity than this. It also serves the adult members of the community and the Foremen's Club is an excellent example of this valuable service.

The local Foremen's Club, which is the fifth largest in Canada, was founded in 1953 and currently has 132 members from 25 local firms in industry. It, as were 42 other clubs across Canada, was formed to help foremen understand supervisory responsibilities, and the administration of these responsibilities, and to develop personality and character in its members.

In order to achieve these objectives the individual clubs have courses on public speaking, lecturers on suitable topics relating to management, personnel and human relations work and visits to plants to see how they function.

The local club has been especially honored in its work through the efforts of two of its members, both past presidents of the club, who have gone on to the work of the Foremen's Club at a national level. Hugh Jones of the Northern Electric firm was national president of the Canadian Council of Foremen's Clubs, which is affiliated with the National Council of YMCA's, just as the local clubs are affiliated with their local "Y's." Mr. Jones is currently on the advisory board of the Canadian Council and is the chairman of this year's management development course.

The other local member who has been active on the national scene is Frank Grandame, also of Northern Electric. Mr. Grandame, a former alderman of this city, is a director on the Canadian Council and is the assistant director of education.

There is much activity which is conducted at the national and district level for the benefit of the club members and the firms they represent. Every year, for instance, there is a one-week course in management development held at both Laval University and the University of Western Ontario. To date, 450 foremen and plant managers have graduated from this course. The course covers such topics as: Human Relations and Administrative Practices; Meaning and Use of Figures and Cost Reports: Production Management and Planning; Working with the Union (these are the subjects for this year's course.)

There is also an annual 2-day national conference on industrial management. The themes for these conferences cover such topics as "The Right to Manage" and "The Foreman's Role in Labor."

Another annual two-day session is the training seminar held at Geneva Park, Lake Couchiching for executive members from across Canada. There is also a tool and production show sponsored by the National Council once every two years in Toronto for one week. Scholarships are also provided for children of foremen at both Laval and Western Ontario Universities.

More to the local scene, perhaps ,are such projects as the one-day training workshop to be held in Belleville at the Quinte Secondary School on April 29th. Sponsored by, the Eastern Ontario Zone of the Foremen's Clubs, this session will have as its theme "The Supervisor's Role in Productivity." Guest speakers and panel discussions will cover the various topics of interest revolving about this theme.

From the foregoing it should be most evident that this or any other community would be much the poorer if it had no YMCA with adequate facilities. Such activities as the above certainly add to the welfare and better level of living of any community and are indicative of the local YMCA's endeavor to provide the citizens of the area with the best possible service, to all citizens, both youths and adults.

FULL-TIME STUDENTS

The number of full-time students in British universities is expected to reach 110,000 in the 1961-62 academic year.

FIGURET

J.A.H. HUNTER

We have another important date for our game today — 1874, the year of Winston Churchill's birth.

Using all four figures each time, only one of each and no other figures at all, you form expressions for successive numbers starting at one.

Any regular arithmetical signs may be used, but factorial and summations signs are not allowed. This does not debar the simple plus.

For example, 17-4-8 can be a solution for 5.

143 is very difficult in this really difficult game, and the limit without a break seems to be 160.

I shall be interested to see and comment on any lists sent in by readers.

Thanks for the date, to: J. O. Roberts, Lachine, Que.

Princess Anne Learns to Skate The Hard Way

LONDON (AP)—Princess Anne is learning to ice skate and sacrificing some of her royal dignity in the painful process.

She took her third lesson and an uncounted number of tumbles at a public rink in suburban Richmond Monday.

The 10-year-old princess already is a skilled horsewoman, swimmer and tennis player. With Prince Charles she races around the private roads of Windsor Castle and Buckingham Palace in a miniature sports car.

Hate Will Kill You if You Have to Live With It Says Playwright Arthur Miller

NEW YORK (AP) — "Hate is all right if you know how to resolve it into love, but it will kill you if you have to live with it," said playwright Arthur Miller.

After separating two months ago from his actress wife, Marilyn Monroe, Miller moved into a hotel suite and now keeps an English bicycle in his bedroom. He rides it daily in Central Park for exercise while he is finishing a new play.

On a table in the living room the published script of a movie he wrote, The Misfits, co-starring Miss Monroe, Clark Gable and Montgomery Clift. Originally a short story, it is based on material Miller gained during a stay in Reno, where he obtained a divorce from his wife before marrying Marilyn in 1956.

The new book version of The Misfits has this dedication: "To Clark Gable, who did not know how to hate."

"Actually, Clark did know how to hate," said Miller, "but in a short time it was dissolved. He was a wonderfully positive man."

Miller, a lanky man with furrowed Lincolnesque features that crinkle often in a friendly grin, worked as a stock clerk to earn money to go to college He wrote his first play at 19, turned out 10 failures before clicking with All my Sons in 1947.

"I wish I could tell you what my new play is about," he said, "but I'm still trying to discover that.

"It's about modern people in the quest of how to live humanly—a dilemma we all find ourselves in."

The dramatist, who won a Pulitzer Prize with Death of a Salesman, quit Hollywood because "I couldn't stand anyone looking over my shoulder." He finds writing a lonely but rewarding life.

Miller says he isn't sure what his philosophy is—or even that he has one.

"I follow my nose in a situation," he said. "I hope I'm a civilized man—and that's about as far as I can go.

"I think we know a great deal about everything except how to live together, and I suppose my plays are an attempt to unearth what is preventing us from doing that.

"We've developed a world which is great for everybody but people. It produces a lot of goods, but it doesn't let people flower and realize themselves.

"For the most part we relate to each other only as competitors or carnivores — and so little time through love."

Asked if he cared to say anything about his "friendly separation" from Miss Monroe, Miller hesitated, then said:

"I'd rather not."

Seizure of Santa Maria Brings Joy to Exiles But Does Not Faze Salazar

LONDON (CP)—The seizure of the Santa Maria brought jubilation to Portuguese political exiles in Rio de Janeiro, Paris and London but it was unlikely to faze Antonio de Oliviera Salazar.

The 71-year-old professor has unconcernedly survived a string of assassination and revolution plots since he began his iron rule of Portugal 32 years ago.

His supporters hail him for balancing the budget, increasing social services, eliminating unemployment, maintaining social stability—and making the trains run on time.

His opponents claim Portugal has the lowest standard of living and the highest illiteracy rate in Europe, plus one of the most extreme maldistributions of wealth in the world.

Worst of all, they say, is Portugal's lack of freedom.

Wage increases must be approved by the state. Election candidates must be approved by the state. All publications must be approved by the state. Voters' education and tax-paying qualifications must be approved by the state.

"Opponents of the regime can be deported to overseas territories for indefinite imprisonment and the political police has a reputation for using torture.

Salazar himself does not fit into the traditional picture of a tyrant. A tidy, methodical and unassuming bachelor who forbids smoking in his presence, he has become known as "the reluctant dictator." He is modest and shy, with a dislike of being photographed or appearing in public.

But he used to keep a picture of Mussolini by his bedside and is firm in his contention that democracy is outdated.

Born of poor peasants in a small northern village, Salazar was a 19-year-old seminary student when King Dom Carlos I was assassinated in 1908. Two years later, when the Portuguese republic was proclaimed, he entered university.

He earned a doctor of laws degree and in 1918 became an economics professor.

With the country's economic situation deteriorating in 1928, Salazar was appointed finance minister by the military dictatorship of Gomes da Costa.

Salazar balanced the budget for almost the first time in a century. President Antonio Carmona made Salazar premier in 1932.

Salazar promptly founded his National Union party and proclaimed a constitution.

In 1945 Salazar relaxed censorship and allowed political activity for the first time in 20 years but as opposition appeared, the lid was clamped down again.

Opposition leaders were arrested and their meetings banned.

For the 1958 election, Gen. Humberto da Silvo Delgado was the first man ever to contest the presidency against a Salazar candidate. His campaign manager was arrested and his meetings broken up by police—but he still managed to poll 25 per cent of the voters, according to government "estimates."

After the election Delgado was placed on the army's retired list for "disobeying military discipline" and 20 of his supporters were jailed. A week later, in January, 1959, he took asylum in the Brazilian Embassy.

A few months later, Capt. Henrique Carlos Malta Galvao, now the rebel captain of the Santa Maria, also sought asylum there.

Galvao, who was given a three-year jail term for subversion in 1953 after making a critical report on the administration of Angola, escaped from a Lisbon hospital while erving a 15-year term for subversion and incitement to revolt.

Delgado has toured Europe making speeches against Salazar and predicting he would be toppled by an uprising "very soon."

But so far speculation has been mainly concerned with who will succeed Salazar, now an old man with a heart condition.

'Growth Factor' Puzzling to Liberal Member

OTTAWA (CP)— Paul Martin (L—Essex East) said Tuesday he suspects "an understanding" on federal-provincial fiscal relations exists between the Conservative governments in Ottawa and Toronto.

He told the Commons that the current situation implies a "secret understanding" not revealed to the other nine provinces—between Premier Frost of Ontario and Finance Minister Fleming.

Mr. Martin issued a demand for information on which the opposition can decide whether the federal government is adhering to the principle of equalization, whether it is favoring one province at the others' expense and whether it is fulfilling election promises.

He spoke on a Liberal non-confidence motion calling for the government to retain the principle of equalization in tax-sharing deals—the principle of supplying extra cash for provinces in fiscal need.

MENTIONS GROWTH FACTOR

Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced earlier that a letter was sent to the provincial premiers Monday suggesting dates for a resumption of last October's plenary fiscal conference and saying Ottawa is ready to attach a "growth factor" to equalization payments.

Mr. Martin charged the government with "allowing fiscal matters to drift." He said that until the opposition raised the issue last Friday, the government "had no idea when it was going to call a conference."

He demanded to know the meaning of "growth factor," suggesting that Mr. Diefenbaker as late as Sunday night — the letter was sent Monday— "had no idea of using the phrase growth factor."

Killing of Arab Civilians By Israeli Army Comparable To Nazi Slaughter of Jews

- - Toynbee

MONTREAL (CP) — British historian Arnold Toynbee says persecution of the Jew does not absolve Israel of moral responsibility for mistreatment of Palestinian Arabs.

In a two-hour debate with Israeli Ambassador Yaacov Herzog, Dr. Toynbee said the killing of Arab civilians by Israeli forces during the 1948 Palestine war was morally comparable to the Nazi slaughter of Jews during the Second World War.

The debate attracted international attention.

Mr. Herzog said the Nazis' deeds were something "quite specific" and incapable of comparison with other atrocities recorded in history.

The Nazi genocide, he said, was "a crime the human imagination still finds difficult in grasping."

The debate was a sequel to an address by Dr. Toynbee to an audience of Jewish students at McGill last week in which he first drew a parallel between the Jewish treatment of Arabs and Nazi treatment of Jews and also disputed the Jewish title to Israel.

Mr. Herzog said in defence of the title that there had always been some Jews living in Palestine, and "the return to Israel has always been central in our faith." Besides, the title was recognized by the "international community."

The United Nations General Assembly decided in 1947 to set up the State of Israel, he said.

Dr. Toynbee said the majority of people living in Palestine prior to the creation of Israel were Arabs and they owned the greater part of the land.

During the 1948 war, he said, many Arab civilians were killed by the Israeli forces and others had to flee for their lives, leaving their land behind. The land was taken over by Jewish settlers.

"To put it bluntly, this is robbery and I am sure it is on the Jewish conscience."

Mr. Herzog said Israel stands ready to give compensation for private property but it is impossible to solve the refugee problem "unless the Arab governments are willing to co-operate in alleviating their suffering."

He said the UN set up a commission in 1948 to study the possibility of rehabilitating or repatriating refugees "in the context of a general peace settlement."

"This resolution has been dead since 1948. The Arab states have never announced a desire to live in peace with Israel."

Admits Extortion Letter Written On His Machine

TORONTO (CP)—Joseph Dellaera, 31, of Hallandale, Fla. admitted Tuesday an extortion letter to a wealthy Toronto woman was written on his typewriter, but denied being its author.

The letter demanded $10,000 for silence about "certain personal incidents" which are alleged to have taken place while the woman was vacationing in Florida.

Dellaera is one of two Florida men on trial here for extortion. He told the court he lent the machine to a "Mr. Lantz" who later returned the letter to him and asked him to mail it.

He said Mr. Lantz, whom he met in a Miami bar, also asked him to complete some business in Toronto—the return of jewelry insured for $25,000 to Mrs. Helen Glass, wife of a Toronto building contractor.

Dellaera testified he had no knowledge of any extortion attempt. His job, he said, was to arrange for the return of the jewelry to Mrs. Glass and pick up two sums of money totalling $10,000 for the return. He was to get $500 he said.

Jointly charged with Dellaera is Fred Zakrie, 30, also of Hallandale. Dellaera said Tuesday Zakrie had not been involved in any way in the transaction.

Zakrie will testify later.

Britain Welcomes New Hand On the Helm at Washington

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain has stopped "waiting for Kennedy." Now the question may be whether she can keep up with that flying young man.

For months, Whitehall has been looking for a lead from Washington. Admittedly, ministers could be found who regretted the breaking up of what they called the "old boy network" linking London with the White House.

Privately, however, responsible Britons welcomed a new hand on the helm in Washington. They liked the look of President Kennedy and they nodded approvingly at the rehabilitation of the eggheads implicit in his cabinet appointments.

And British newspapers generally welcome the tone of the State of the Union message to Congress. It is hailed variously as a stirring call to action, a message imparting new zest to the Western alliance, a replacement of bromides by candor.

And yet — could it be that Kennedy is travelling a little too swiftly for Britain's liking? Official comment is naturally polite, but there is just a possibility that some of the more experienced hands in Whitehall may feel that the president is being a little precipitate.

It would be wrong to overemphasize any suggestions of British reserve. It is far too early to make an assessment. For the time being, any British worries about Kennedy are concentrated on his probable approach to Africa.

British officials currently are sensitive about their record on "colonialism."

Fears that Kennedy may force the pace in Africa are probably premature. The new president is obviously going to have his hands full in dealing with domestic probems and the broader picture of East-West reations.

Nevertheless, the rejoicing about Kennedy seems greater on the left than the right. Probably nobody in the government would go so far as Labor party intellectual R. H. S. Crossman.

Just back from a visit to Washington, where he found the atmosphere "wonderfully exhilarating," Crossman writes:

"At one fell sweep the new president has replaced the dreariest by the ablest administration of the century."

FISH IN HUTS—About 1,000 shacks have been built on the frozen Perade River in Quebec where millions of three-inch tommycod are caught each winter. The tiny fish are pulled in through holes in the ice inside each hut. This collection of huts is near Ste. Anne de la Perade, Que., where the tommycod season lasts for two months to mid-February. Winter Carnival Revolves Around Two-Month Tommycod Season

STE. ANNE de la PERADE, Que. (CP) — The little tommycod who abound in the rivers around here have their own ambassador among the fishermen this season.

He is "M. Poisson" — Mr. Fish — an olive green papier mache figure who is the symbol of Ste. Anne's winter carnival which revolves around the two-month tommycod season.

When M. Poisson presented his credentials Jan. 2 at the opening of le Carnival des Petits Poissons, he announced fishing would be good. He has been as good as his word.

One fisherman reported catching 700 of the little fellows on a single line in one night. Another said his son filled 20 bags with fish in one day. Each bag weighed 60 pounds. The fish measure about three inches in length and the season lasts until mid-February.

FISH IN SHACKS

About 1,000 of Ste. Anne's multi-colored fishing shacks decorate the ice. Each has a stove in one corner and a fishing hole in the centre. Other communities between Trois-Rivieres and Batiscan along the St. Lawrence have similar shack villages.

But little fishing has been done on the St. Lawrence itself this season. Constant icebreaker patrols prevent shore ice from becoming thick and last year many shacks were lost when ice broke off and drifted away.

But it doesn't seem to matter. The tommycod — called les petits poissons des chenaux—are keeping fishermen on the smaller rivers happy.

Ste. Anne started le Carnival des Petits Poissons as an answer to other regional winter carnivals. M. Poisson is its reply to the Bonhommes Carnivals who have cropped up at other winter festivals.

There is dancing on the ice, skating, sleigh riding, a tractor race and a 50-foot-high slide for the youngsters.

The gourmet isn't forgotten either. The visitor with a yen for something different in taste may sit down to roasted tommycod, tommycod stewed with potatoes and onions and an omelette made of tommycod eggs.

Communes System in China Being Discarded Quietly

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist China's peoples communes system, put into effect more than two years with a booming propaganda campaign, quietly being discarded.

The Peking government, under pressure because of nationwide hunger due to crop failures, has decided to slack off the communes system. It has also decided to slow the "big leap forward" program.

The let-up in the announced drive to overhaul the West in farm and factory production has not been set out officially. But a change in party directives and reports from refugees who have fled the country confirms the step.

The twin actions appear to be temporary.

In the people's communes, farmers were organized into an army of farm workers, taken from their homes and placed in barracks. Their children were left to the care of the state.

WAS TOO AMBITIOUS

Western economists argued China's rate of investment and construction in the "big leap forward" was too ambitious for the economy to stand.

Peking apparently has finally faced up to the fact. A program of consolidation rather than one of unbridled growth is being instituted.

A recent communique from the Communist party central committee ordered reduced work weeks, increased rest periods and no night work. It asked for more attention to quality rather than quantity and to the upkeep and maintenance of industrial plant and equipment.

"Material incentives" and "small individual freedoms" have been ordered for farmers.

These include small plots of land for private use, two days off a month, the right to own some poultry and a pig or two, and the right to eat and sell surplus production. All these were swept away under the commune system.

The communes are being broken up into producers co-operatives.

WOULD START MILL

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—T. C. Higgison, retiring Board of Trade president said Tuesday night the Rothesay Paper Corporation is prepared to start construction of a multi-million-dollar paper mill in East Saint John next June if a suitable site is available. He said the first stage of the development would represent an expenditure of $32,000,000, with an annual expenditure in this district of $13,000,000.

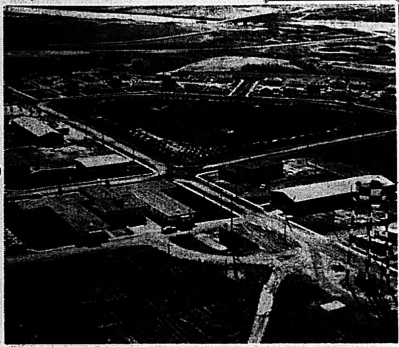
BUILD PRAIRIE DAM — Graders move earth for construction of the South Saskatchewan River dam in a government-sponsored program to irrigate 500,000 acres of prairie farmland. The main earth dam, located 20 miles south of Outlook, Sask., will rise 210 feet above the river forming a 135-mile-long lake behind it. The project, including a $20,000,000 hydro-electric generating station, will cost about $182,000,000. (CP Photo).

South Sask. River Dam Turns Dreams of Years Into Wheat Farmers' Delight

By GRAHAM COX
Canadian Press Staff Writer



CONSTRUCTION TOWNSITE — A model village for workers and their families has been constructed at the main dam site of the South Saskatchewan River project, 20 miles south of Outlook, Sask. Homes (background) are arranged in a neat pattern about a central tree-lined park with administration offices and warehouses on the opposite side. Site of the main dam is behind the village (centre top) where a temporary bridge crosses the river. (CP Photo).

OUTLOOK, Sask. (CP)—It's a dry and dusty land. In summer, if there's rain, its fields wave with golden wheat.

There's a great scar spreading across the land—a scar that planners, and dreamers before them, hope will make it a rich, green, sweet land, rain or shine.

The scar is the South Saskatchewan River Dam about 60 miles south of Saskatoon.

It doesn't look like much right now. But when it's finished—possibly by the fall of 1966—it will tower 210 feet above the river bed and stretch for about three miles from east to west.

Two years after start of construction, great, flat graded areas reach out from either bank of the river. The only tangible indication of the location of the dam about 20 miles south of Outlook is an access bridge built by the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration to handle the movement of building materials which have to be trucked from one side of the river to the other. Some 750 men are working on the project this winter.

CREATING LAKE

The dam has been planned to create a lake reaching back into the south about 135 miles. It will provide irrigation and insurance against drought for an estimated 500,000 acres of farm land, enabling farmers to produce other than their basic wheat crop, with its fluctuating, uncertain markets.

With 500 miles of shoreline, the lake will have only a slight displacing effect on people now settled in the 109,600 acres that will be flooded.

PFRA, builder of the $100,000,000 dam for the federal government, has found that in all this area there are only half a dozen homesteads and that only about five per cent of the land is under cultivation. The rest is adjacent to the river and of little value except for grazing.

The whole project—the dam, the irrigation project and a $20,000,000 hydro plant capable of producing 475,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity a year—will cost about $182,000,000.

In conjunction with the main dam, and built under the same $100,000,000 contract, there will be dams across the Qu'Appelle River Valley and across Coteau Ravine.

The Coteau dam a mile and a half southwest of the major structure will act as a gate across the spillway, controlling the level of the lake and the flow of the river north. It will sit astride a 17,000-foot gate-controlled concrete chute and, with a discharge capacity of about 285,000 cubic feet a second, will be used to alleviate pressure from the main dam.

The Qu'Appelle Valley dam will be a 90-foot structure used to contain the lake about 50 miles southeast of the main site, keeping the water from rushing down the valley to Regina and beyond. It will also help provide a steady supply of sediment-free drinking water for Regina and Moose Jaw.

Walter Thompson, PFRA construction engineer, says about a quarter of the earth fill work at the main dam site has been completed at a cost of $10,000,000 and that few problems not foreseen in the 10 years of preparation have been encountered.

Five huge tunnels are to be driven around the dam under the west bank to be used in diverting the flow of the river while a final 800-foot gap is closed.

Of the five tunnels, each about 4,000 feet long and 20 feet in diameter, three will be used after the diversion as penstocks carrying water to drive the turbines of the hydro plant.

About 50,000,000 kilowatt hours each year are expected to be used by the province for irrigation work, leaving a substantial amount of power for use in industrial development.

The present goal is to complete tunnelling projects in the spring of 1962 with bridging of the last gap and diversion planned for August, 1963.

Marlon Brando Likes Tahiti And Does Not Want to Leave

By BOB THOMAS

OFF TAHITI (AP) — Marlon Brando, aboard HMS Bounty, fastened a rubber band around his slightly greying locks to keep them from flying in the wind.

"What a bore," said the actor his hair grown long for his role as Fletcher Christian in Mutiny on the Bounty.

Brando leaned against the rigging of the majestic three-master, anchored off Papeete under a leaden sky. A hundred film makers were waiting—at $23,000 the day—for sunshine that never came.

Except for his flapping hair, Brando seemed little concerned about the delay, nor did he appear happy that the film company would be returning to Hollywood early because of the rainy season.

On the first day of shooting 10 weeks ago, he remarked to director Carol Reed: "I'm sorry to see this day come. It just means one day sooner that we will be going back to the states."

FEELS COMFORTABLE

He gazed at the Tahitian shore with its groves of curved-trunk cocoa palms and the green hills and purple peaks beyond. "I'll hate to leave," he said. "This is the first time in 10 years that I've been able to feel comfortable among people."

In Tahiti, Brando can walk the streets unnoticed. It's not because the people don't know who he is; many do. But Tahitians never bother their fellow man, and Brando has achieved an anonymity he hasn't known since he became a star.

Some may think it unusual for a man to be a movie star and want to remain anonymous. But then, as the world well knows, Brando is not the usual kind of star. Director Reed has said "there is no more exciting, no greater actor in the world today."

Paar's Narration Loaded With Illuminating Comment

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — If Jack Paar really means it when he says he wants to quit his late evening TV program at the end of this year, he has a great future in the travel-talk business.

Tuesday night, Jack had an hour of prime NBC time to show some amateur movies taken during his recent travels.

It was a fairly entertaining and well-paced program. Paar's narration was loaded with bright and often illuminating comment.

He told of transparent plastic plumbing in East German homes. He showed the problem of riding a camel and of fighting a baby Spanish bull.

When a clip of film showed Paar and family gawking at the Coliseum, Jack remarked: "That has stood there for centuries. New York would have torn it down and put up an aluminum skyscraper by now."

He described a London breakfast of kipper as "like eating a fat brush." He found handling chopsticks in Hong Kong "like knitting a meal on the way to your mouth."

Bobby Darin's variety show, which preceded the Paar travelogue, was a "special" in the classic form: Lots of music, singing and dance sequences, dramatic settings and a comedy monologue by a guest star—in this case, Bob Hope.

Darin is an ambitious young man with an attractive voice and the poise of Perry Como. Hope tossed off a series of Washington wisecracks.

Sample: "I just got back from Washington. There was no use staying. I'm not a brother."

The beardless Belleville McFarlands, their hold on second position at stake, tangle with the Kingston Frontenacs in a highly important junior "B" hassle here tonight.

And as of right now if there is anything hotter than the south end of a firefly it is these selfsame Frontenacs.

Bolstered by a couple of compact Fords, the Fronties have been riding high the last five outings. They are unbeaten in that many starts, having won three and tied a pair. They defeated Picton in Picton the other night by a 6-2 count.

The Macs had better have their hockey britches hitched high tonight for Coach Kenny Linseman has his Kingston youngsters in high gear.

As of now they boast 18 points, in fourth position, just four behind the Whitby crew. And get this, just five behind the McFarlands.

The Macs, as was noted, will be fighting to retain their second spot hold as they lead Whitby by a single point and trail the loop-leading Peterborough squad by six points.

The standing at the moment is: Peterborough 29; Belleville 23; Whitby 22; Kingston 18; Picton 10 and Cobourg 0.

And there's another brawl battle scheduled for tonight. Whitby tangles with the Petes. And the Macs hadn't better depend too much on a Peterborough victory for these Whitby kids are hot and liable to hand the circuit-toppers an upset. The Peterborough club defeated Cobourg 12-1 on Monday night.

The McFarlands have finished with the Petes schedule-wise, and have three games to play, including tonight's tilt. Tomorrow night they go to Picton and finish the sked against the same club here next Wednesday.

The Petes have two games left, including tonight's game and two losses would give the Macs a chance to tie them for the top slot. All they have to do is defeat Kingston tonight and Picton twice.

It can be done, too, if they play the hockey they are capable of producing. But they will have to go all out, even against this hot-at-times Picton squad. The last time they tangled in a back-to-back twin bill with the "Little Macs" from McFarland's hideaway, they defeated Chris Lockyer's squad here, then with perhaps a touch of cranium inflation, went back to Picton and took an upset defeat on the button.

All remaining games of the schedule are important ones, especially for the top four clubs. No positions are definite as yet and like your last dollar bill, subject to change. And with all clubs going all out to hold or improve their standing spots, the games from here to schedule end (next week) should be gruelling battles.

And tonight's joust between the Macs and Kingston will be no exception. Coach Gordie Bell must needs toss all his power at the crest-riding Frontenacs who have no intention of staying in that fourth slot if they can help it.

And there will be some spine-tingling frays in the playoffs. Both semi-finals and finals are best-of-seven series. The top team will have the edge with the odd games on home ice.

Convener Jack Devine has called a meeting of the league mentors for next Wednesday night to arrange playing dates for the playoffs. He feels the league standing should be pretty well set by that time. However, anything can happen in the meantime.

In this series the team finishing on top of the heap at schedule end can have its pick of opponents. What's left, naturally, will play off.

The Petes can clinch the loop perch with a victory tonight over Whitby, while the Macs can make their second-spot a little more secure by turning back the Kingston threat.

So—a tip to hockey fans—don't miss tonight's game. It should be a fighting thriller all the way down to the wire. Game at 8.30.

Quebec Bonspiel

Ready For Semi-Finals

QUEBEC (CP)—Most of the big guns had the day off today in preparation for Thursday's semi-final rounds of the Quebec international bonspiel.

Only the quarter-finals of the Francois Jobin Trophy were to be played today, starting at 1:30 p.m. EST.

Sixteen rinks remained in contention for the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy, the bonspiel's big prize, following quarter-finals Tuesday night in the Chateau and Omega competitions plus the third round of the Jobin.

Four each remained in the Chateau and Omega categories and eight in the Jobin. Finals for the Governor's will be played Saturday.

Today, in the Jobin competition, Len Gillis of Kirkland Lake met Colin Caswell of Sudbury; Gerry Wright, Orillia, met Jean Lacroix of Cap-de-la-Madeleine, Que.

Tuesday night in the Chateau quarter-finals Ernie Slatcher of Weston nipped Oscar Parker of Oshawa, 7-6.

In the Omega, Jack Burgess of Weston—winner of the Lieutenant - Governor's last year—edged Sudbury's George Moore 10-9.

CANADIANS WON

FALKIRK, Scotland (CP) — Canada's touring women curlers chalked up a 12-39 win Tuesday over a Falkirk team during their first day of play in this town on the Firth of Forth. Results included: Mrs. H. Turnbull, Sarnia, 13; Mrs. T. Morrison, Falkirk, 10.

Smokies Nip Norway 8-3

OSLO (CP)—Trail Smoke Eaters marked their first victory and their first injury Tuesday as they began a 17-game exhibition series to work into shape for European-style play in the world hockey championships in Switzerland March 2-12.

The Smoke Eaters fought to an 8-3 victory over the Norwegian national team but learned after the game that playing coach Bob Kromm had suffered a broken nose, apparently when he was high-sticked in the third period.

Kromm was taken out of the game with an injured nose. Hospital x-rays showed it was broken. It was not immediately known if the injury would affect his playing status.

Team manager Ugo de Basio said after the game that "we didn't like those high Norwegian sticks in the final period."

"That's not the way we're used to playing hockey. We keep the sticks on the ice and hope the others will do the same."

De Basio said the Smoke Eaters' timing was off somewhat "but the team will come on all right after a while."

TOOK EARLY LEAD

Trail took a 2-1 first-period lead on goals by Jackie McLeod—who also got the game's last goal in the third—and Harold Jones. McLeod, a Trail pickup, was reinstated as an amateur in December after nine seasons with the Western Hockey League.

Two other pickups, Dave Rusnell and Darryl Sly, scored unanswered goals for the Canadians in the second period. Sly came to the Smoke Eaters from Galt Terriers, an OHA senior A club, while Rusnell joined Trail at the start of the season after playing in Britain.

The Canadians' 4-1 lead going into the third period was cut to 4-2 in the first minute as the Norwegians came out fighting. But the Canadians quickly adjusted to the rough stuff, outscoring the Norwegians 4-1 in the balance of the period.

Other goal scorers were Ed Christofoli, Harry Smith and Ed Tambellini.

Maseroski Poke Named Hit of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — The place was Pittsburgh's Forbes Field; the time, Oct. 13, 1960—late afternoon on a hazy autumn day.

The score was tied at 9-9 in the ninth inning of the seventh and final game of the world series when Bill Maseroski, a .273 hitter, strode to the plate clutching his bat in the manner of mighty Casey, determined to do or die.

Maseroski did. He slammed Ralph Terry's second pitch high over the left-field wall and the Pirates had won the game and the world series from New York Yankees.

There was a moment of stunned silence, then the 36,683 fans in the park and the entire city of Pittsburgh were struck with the kind of noisy madness that can afflict a major league baseball city that hasn't won a world championship for 35 years.

If there was any more thrilling occasion in sports during 1960, United States sports writers and broadcasters hardly know about it.

Voting in the annual Associated Press poll, 77 named Maseroski's series - winning homer as the thrill of the year.

Meet Chicago Tonight

Rangers Face Do-Or-Die Stretch

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers are scheduled to play eight National Hockey League games during the next 12 days.

It's their stiffest stretch of the season and also shapes up as their most important.

How the club fares out in the eight games could very well decide whether or not it gets into the 1961 Stanley Cup playoffs.

Going into a game against Chicago Black Hawks tonight, the Rangers are 13 points out of fourth place—the last playoff spot.

Detroit Red Wings, idle tonight, currently hold fourth place with 49 points and 21 games to play. Rangers have 36 points and 23 games left.

Tonight's Hawk-Ranger game—at New York's Madison Square Garden—is the only one scheduled in the league.

All six teams are to see action Thursday night, however. New York visits Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs go to Detroit and Chicago hops from New York to Boston.

GADSBY READY

The Rangers received both good and bad news Tuesday.

Defenceman Bill Gadsby, who suffered muscle spasms in his back against Detroit a week ago, is ready to return to the lineup.

But Lou Fontinato, another defenceman, is still recovering from a badly cut leg suffered in a game against Toronto two weeks ago. He is not expected to dress before back-to-back weekend games against Boston Bruins.

The Canadiens, winless in four starts and tied with Toronto for the first place, may have all-star defenceman Doug Harvey back in harness Thursday night.

Harvey, who has been dogged by injuries since suffering a shoulder separation Christmas Eve, has been skating the last few days.

Gerry Goyer Gets Pair For Cougars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders today own sole possession of first place in the Western Hockey Leaue.

The Stampeders defeated Vancouver Canucks Tuesday night on Lou Jankowski's brilliant goal with just 19 seconds remaining, winning 3-2. In other action, Victoria Cougars defeated Winnipeg Warriors 4-3.

Other Calgary scorers were John Kosiancic and Ron Leopold. Scorers for Vancouver were Bruce Carmichael and Danny Belisle.

In Victoria Gerry Goyer scored twice for Cougars, then set up Doug Macauley for the overtime clincher.

Winnipeg goalgetters were Lorne Davis, Howie Hughes and Gerry Brisson.

N.H.L. Brass Holds Forth In Florida

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—National Hockey League club owners decided Tuesday that player ineligibility will be dealt with under league disciplinary procedure, and cannot be a basis for protesting the outcome of games.

A league spokesman said the action details something overlooked when in 1957 the owners decided to rule out protests. The league game results will be final with the sounding of the game-ending buzzer, he said.

At the one-day, annual midwinter conference, the owners also discussed television advertising policies but took no action.

One proposed called for exclusive sponsorship of a commodity, under the plan, if one team's TV games were sponsored by a beer company, other teams would have to limit their sponsors to companies offering other commodities.

Clarence Campbell of Montreal, league president, called the meeting a "state of the league" business session. He said the men met here to escape the competitive influence of the games in their home towns.

Royals Down Soo Birds 5-3

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Last place Montreal Royals downed second place Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds 5-3 in an Eastern Professional Hockey League game Tuesday night.

The win moved Royals to within two points of fifth place Sudbury Wolves.

Former Montreal Canadiens goaltender Jacques Plante stopped 29 Sault shots compared with 18 by the Thunderbirds' Roy Edwards.

Single goals for the winners went to Don Hogan, Gary Mork, Glen Gressman, Walter Bradley and Reg Grigg.

Sault goals were scored by Jim Farelli, Alain Caron and Ed Kachur.

The teams were tied 1-1 at the end of the first period and there was no more scoring until the third frame, when the Royals rapped in four and the Birds' two.

The second largest Sault crowd of the season, 3,357, watched the Thunderbirds lose their fourth game in a row.

Referee Matt Pavelich called only five minor penalties, three of them to the Royals.

Stanka in Japan

Says He's Chisox ‘Tool’

TOKYO (AP) — Joe Stanka, self-styled guinea pig in American-Japanese baseball relations, has accused Chicago White Sox of using him as a tool to get Japanese players.

Stanka said Tuesday the White Sox front office has protested his signing a 1961 contract with the Nankai Hawks of Osaka, claiming he is the property of the American League team.

The veteran minor leaguer said he went on the voluntary retired list at the end of the 1959 season and was restored to the active list strictly by White Sox action.

In an interview, he said the White Sox really do not want his services. He said they want several Japanese ball players for juries or ailments were forhim as the "scapegoat" to get Japanese baseball officials to make a deal.

The 6-foot-5 pitcher from Waynoka, Okla., declared his 1960 Nankai contract was "a heck of a lot bigger" than the White Sox ever offered, and this year he got a raise.

Last year he had a 17-12 won-lost record.

SAYS CONTRACT SENT

In Chicago, Ed Short, White Sox promotions director, said:

"Last year we sent Stanka a contract but he told us he was thinking of quitting baseball to take a job in Oklahoma. He wound up playing baseball in Japan. We've sent him a contract for this season, but apparently he is going to stay over there.

"We would like to have him back, especially if his record over there last season is any indication of what he can do.

"We don't know what he means in saying we want several Japanese players for publicity purposes. We wouldn't want any players for any purpose other than their ability to play baseball."

Films, No Hurry

The Training Camps

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Movies will be taken of the secret sparring matches of Ingemar Johansson so the Swedish heavyweight can see how he is shaping up for his rematch with champion Floyd Patterson.

"You don't have any idea how important it is for me to be able to watch myself trying to do the things I have in mind," said Johansson, who meets Patterson in Miami Beach March 13.

The first filmed sparring matches are scheduled Thursday. Johansson said earlier he would box behind closed doors twice a week.

SPRING VALLEY, N.Y. (AP) Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, in no hurry to reach peak condition, sparred easily Tuesday for three rounds in a workout before newspaper men.

Patterson boxed a round each with John Henry, 205-pounder; Wilson Hannibal, 190, and brother Ray Patterson, 185.

Since he pitched camp at a country club here in mid-October, the champion has boxed about 40 rounds.

He doesn't intend to overdo the boxing in preparing for his third title fight with Sweden's Ingemar Johansson at Miami Beach, Fla., March 13.

Bears Lose Records In Chicago Fire

CHICAGO (AP) — George Halas Tuesday set up temporary headquarters in a downtown hotel, a block from where Chicago Bears offices were destroyed by fire during the night.

The National Football League pioneer said he was not sure how much damage was done to records of advance ticket sales, films of games, diagrams of plays planned for next season, player personnel data and other valuable material.

"Until we get a construction engineer in the building to determine how safe it is to enter and start searching, we don't know just how much . . . we can salvage," he said.

"Player contracts we had on file are duplicated in the NFL headquarters, and many of the Bears' team records have been microfilmed and placed in safety deposit boxes.

"We had diagrammed a lot of new plays and I don't know if duplicates were made. If the originals were destroyed, we may be in for more trouble."

Flyers Dump Royals 6-3, Teepees Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers, hampered by injuries but coming through with one of their best efforts of the season, upset the league - leading Guelph Royals 6-3 in OHA junior A hockey Tuesday night.

It was the first win of the year for Flyers over Royals. They did it without the services of four injured regulars.

In the other OHA junior A game, St. Catharines Teepees beat Toronto Marlboros 5-3 in St. Catharines. Murray Hall got two goals and two assists for the Teeps.

Flyers' win gave them a three-point lead over Hamilton Red Wings in the battle for third place. The St. Catharines win boosted Teepees lead over the last - place Marlboros to six points.

In Niagara Falls, the Flyers took a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Billy Knibbs and Ron Hergott. They were never headed after that. The from Jeannot Gilbert, Gary Harmer, with two, and Bob Awrey.

Gene Ratelle scored two and Bob Cunningham one for the Royals.

Flyers outshot the Royals 40-32 but Wayne Rutledge was sensational in the Niagara Falls goal, particularly in the third when his club was shorthanded.

In St. Catharines, the Teepees lagged for two periods before tightening up to take the decision in the home stretch.

St. Catharines scorers, besides Hall, were Doug Robinson with two, and Ray Cullen.

Rich Kay, Gus Brassard and Bill Collins scored for Marlboros. It was Collins' first goal in junior A action.

Would Stop Segregation In Baseball

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) Dr. Robert Wimbish, a Negro leader, called on New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals to force an end to segregation against their Negro players during spring training here.

Dr. Wimbish sail Tuesday he would refuse to help Negro players solve their housing problems here this spring. "It's time the management of the clubs takes a hand," he said.

He suggested that downtown hotels which provide housing for white players in the New York and St. Louis organizations be persuaded to house and feed Negro players.

Wimbish, a prominent Negro physician, has served as an unofficial housing bureau for the two major league teams for several years. Yankee catcher Elston Howard has lived in the Wimbish home during spring training and the physician has found accommodations for many other players.

"This business contradicts my active fight against discrimination," Wimbish said, "and I can no longer participate in it."

Wimbish is president of the St. Petersburgh Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People..

He said he had heard complaints from Negro baseball players on several occasions about housing and eating facilities at St. Petersburg.

Cuban Named Top Boxer Of Month

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Cuba's Florentino Fernandez was named boxer of the month by the National Boxing Association Tuesday and given a middleweight ranking for his decisive triumph over Rory Calhoun.

The Cuban, ranked sixtn among the welterweights a month ago, stopped Calhoun, former middleweight contender, in the 8th round last Saturday night. Fernandez, 24, was placed ninth among the 160-pounders.

Although the NBA recognized Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, as middleweight champion, it cited Paul Pender of Brookline, Mass., for his seventh-round technical knockout of Britain's Terry Downes Jan. 14. Pender is recognized as champion in Massachusetts. New York, and Europe.

Despite the defeat, Downes, the British champion, was promoted from fifth to fourth among the contenders.

Archie Moore, stripped of his light heavyweight title by the NBA, was ranked seventh among the heavyweights.

The light heavyweight title is vacant.

Chadwick Goes on Loan

Simmons Refuses Rochester Post

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins' hopes of improving reserve strength appeared to have been fouled Tuesday by goalie Don Simmons.

The Boston National Hockey League team acquired Ed Chadwick for Simmons Monday in a straight player swap of the minor league goalies. Bruins made the deal with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Chadwick, who yielded 3.36 goals a game in 44 contests at Rochester this season, was to report to Boston's farm club at Providence in the American Hockey League. With the Bruins' injured list mounting it was almost certain he would be called up.

Simmons, recently returned by Providence to the Bruins because of a disappointing performance, was ordered to Rochester, but said he wouldn't report there.

The Bruins then loaned Chadwick to Rochester, subject to recall if he is needed by the Bruins. The loan is effective to the end of the season, or until Simmons reports there, the Bruins office said.

Maple Leaf manager - coach Punch Imlach, in New York Tuesday, said "we're going to try to convince him (Simmons) to go through with the trade."

The Bruins engaged in a full workout Tuesday for Thursday's game with Chicago Black Hawks at Boston Garden, despite the fact that several players are handicapped by injuries.

Among those reporting to the club trainer for treatment of injurits or ailments were forwards Willie O'Ree, Charley Bruns, Gary Aldcorn and Murray Oliver, defencemen Dallas Smith and Autry Erickson, and goalie Bruce Gamble.

Now It's Glass Clubs For Golfers

KALAMAZOO, Mich .(AP) A fishing tackle firm has announced the development of a hollow, tubular fibreglass golf shaft.

Company officials said Tuesday they expect this to revolutionize the manufacture of golf clubs.

The shafts are made by a further refinement of the company's patent on fibreglass fishing rods. In 15 years the fibre - glass rod has virtually eliminated all others from the market, officials said.

The tubular golf club shaft is made entirely of fibre glass and without a core. Its developers claim it promises both extra power for the long ball and a finer touch around the greens.

Aces Shade Hershey 4-3

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces took an early 3-0 lead against Hershey Bears Tuesday night, blew it, then recovered for a 4-3 victory in an American Hockey League game played before a crowd of 5,830.

Fleming Mackell's unassisted goal at the 9:48 minute mark of the third period proved to be the winner. Also scoring for sixth-place Quebec were Jackie Leclair, Jean-Marie Cossette and Michel Harvey.

Defenceman Howie Yanosik tallied twice for Hershey, the other goal going to Jack McIntyre.

In recording their second home-ice win over Hershey, the Aces advanced to a point of fifth-place Rochester. It also enabled them to close the gap between themselves and fourth-place Buffalo Bisons, whom they now trail by only two points.

The Bears, who remained in third place, four points back of second - place Cleveland, had come from behind with two goals late in the second period and another during the early minutes of the finale to tie the score at 3-3.

Mackell, in clinching the outcome for Aces, stole the puck away from Bears defenceman Marc Rheaume at the Hershey blueline, skated in alone on goalie Bob Perreault, beating him on a backhand shot from close range.

Referee Ed Powers called a total of eight penalties, includingtwo majors to Bears' Hector Lalande and Harvey for fighting early in the second period.

Up Purses For Trots At Woodbine

TORONTO (CP)—Purses for harness racing at Old Woodbine track will be increased by $50,000 this year, track manager J. C. McPhee said Monday.

Total purse distribution for the track's first season of night racing will be $400,000.

The Ontario government recently announced it will permit night harness racing in the province for the first time, and Old Woodbine plans 52 nights of it.

For the first time this year, no D-class races will be carded at Old Woodbine. Each of the 11 stakes, including the $10,000 Canadian Cup pace and the $8,000 Maple Leaf Trot, will be one-dash events.

Purses for the other nine stakes have been increased $500 each.

Purses for overnight events have been boosted in all classifications. Invitations will be raised to $3,500 compared to $2,500 in 1960, class A to the $1,800-$2,200 range from $1,700-$2,000; class B-1 to $1,500 and class B-2 to $1,300.

Class C-1 will be $1,000 and C-2 $800. Two-year-old horses will race for $600 in non-stake races and three-year-olds for $700.

Claiming races with prices of $1,000 and up will be carded on every program, Mr. McPhee said.

LEAFS GET POLLOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Vice-President Frank Pollock of the Toronto Maple Leafs International League baseball team Tuesday announced acquisition of Ellis Burton, 24, a switch-hitting outfielder, from St. Louis Cardinals. Burton started the season with the National League Cardinals last year, but was sent to their Rochester farm team where he batted .257 in 116 games.

No Payola For This Hole-in-One

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Pro golfers Dow Finsterwald and Mike Souchak were practising for the pilot film of a new television series named $100,000 Hole-In-One.

Professional Jerry Barber the referee and commentahole in one?" Finsterwald "How much if I sink a asked.

Said Barber: $25,000.

"Here goes," said Dow. And he holed an ace on the 170-yard hole.

"But," hurriedly warned Barber, "it doesn't count in practice."

And it didn't.

Asks Food, Shelter for Wild Fowl

NEW YORK (AP) — Ducks Unlimited, the internationally known migratory water fowl conservation organization, Tuesday asked all its members to make food and shelter available for wild ducks and geese during the current severe winter.

The plea went out at the request of President Carstein Tiedeman of Grosse Point, Mich.

Ducks Unlimited also approved the United States department of interior's plan to use grains stored by the surplus commodity corporation to feed the birds.

Representative Thomas Johnson (D-Md) said in Washington Monday 750,000 wild ducks and geese face starvation on the Maryland - Delaware - Virginia peninsula because of the deep snows and frozen ponds.

Pittsburgh To Re-Enter AHL in 1962

NEW YORK (AP) — Pittsburgh will re-enter the American Hockey League next season, it was announced at the loop's annual meeting Tuesday night.

The league granted the Pittsburgh team the right to make up a reserve list—that is, sign players with the intention of using them in the 1961-62 season.

"Pittsburgh never was out of the league," said a spokesman. "It was merely an inactive franchise."

The team was forced to drop out after the 1955-56 season because it had no place to play its games. By next season, a new civic arena will be built seating 13-14,000 for hockey.

The addition of Pittsburgh will bring the league to its full strength of eight teams agin.

Says She Can Win

Diver Warns Writers

VICTORIA (CP)—Diver Irene MacDonald of Vancouver plans to stick out her tongue at some of Canada's sports writers if she makes good in the British Empire Games in Australia in 1962.

"I competed for Canada in the Olympic Games twice, and both times I blew it," she said in an interview. "I carried the weight for the entire team because it was always 'Irene MacDonald will do this' or 'Canada's chances rest with Irene MacDonald.' All the pressure was on me.

"My big aim now is Australia in 1962. If I make it no one will expect anything of me because they think I always lose anyway.

"I think I can win."

And if she is successful, she said with a grin, "I'm going to come home and stick out my tongue at a lot of sports writers."

The 26 - year - old Vancouver Amateur Swimming Club star has some definite ideas on Canadian sport.

"It's about time Canada stopped sending teams made up of a bunch of people who play sports in which we don't have a chance anyway, and started concentrating on sports where we do rate a chance.

"Last year we took a team of gymnasts with us when everyone knew we didn't have a chance. Quite frankly they were terrible, right out of their class.

"Yet, one of our fastest free-style swimmers had to be left at home because the swimming team is limited to 10, including two divers.

"And in swimming our chances were fairly good."

Irene says she knows the feeling of being left behind because there is no money.

In 1952 she won the Canadian diving title but was cut from the team to make room for a swimmer.

In 1956 she was third in the diving at Melbourne and finished sixth at the 1960 Olympics. She was third in the 1954 British Empire Games and second in the 1958 empire games at Cardiff, Wales.

She has a set of suggestions for improving Canada's chances in the 1964 Olympics:

Set a standard for each sport that teams must meet before entry in the Olympic Games instead of sending a "little bit of everything."

Increase the swimming team to a minimum of 10 plus four divers and set up a central training centre with a 50-metre pool and diving tank on each coast.

"For what they have to work with Canadian swimmers and divers did wonderfully. But tehre's almost nothing here in the way of training facilities."

As for her own plans, Irene says they extend to the 1964 Olympics but not as a competitor.

"I've got a class of six divers that are promising now and some of them should be ready by 1964.

"I want to go to the Olympics again but this time I'll go as a coach.

We have such a home just listed for sale — it has what one would expect in a family home — the 3 bedrooms, living room with open fireplace, dining room, modern kitchen and bath. Nude Scene Lasted Only Two Seconds

PARIS (Reuters)—A beautiful 19-year-old blonde hopped out of bed completely nude.

Millions of viewers saw Nicole Paquin become the first fully - undraped woman on French television.

She was playing the part of a Gestapo agent's mistress who had succumbed to the charms of a French resistance hero in the Second World War.

French movies are known for their nude scenes but the state-owned television service is usually far stricter.

Nicole told reporters she watched the TV film with her father, a physics teacher.

"Papa thought I was very good," she said.

The nude scene lasted only two seconds. Viewers saw a rear view of Nicole.

A Paris newspaper said she had revealed "the most fetching posterior ever seen."

Board Issues 56 New Licences During Year

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Liquor licence board issued 56 licences to bring the total of licensed establishments to 2,191 for the year ended March 31, 1960, Judge W. T. Robb, board chairman, said in his annual report tabled Monday in the legislature.

The board transferred $384,393 to the provincial treasury for the year.

Infractions of the law resulted in 11 suspensions of licence privileges; three for serving minors; 12 for permitting drunkenness; one for serving nonmembers in a club; three for serving short; and one for unsatisfactory operation of the premises.

The board reported that the status of six municipalities changed from "dry" to "wet" and 19 municipalities voted in favor of lounge and dining lounge licences.

For the 1959 calendar year, the board reported that licensees spent $23,299,112 for improvements, maintenance and sanitation.

DESERONTO

Enforce Bylaw At Discretion Of Police Chief

DESERONTO — A special meeting of council was held last Thursday evening to deal with several pressing matters. Acting Mayor Lott was in the chair and all members were present with the exception of Reeve Metcalfe.

Councillor Howard reported that he had not yet been able to arrange a meeting with the Public Utilities Commission regarding the recommendations for fire protection.

One application for the position recently vacated by K. Sharpe was read. Before the application could be considered Councillor Howard began a discussion by his assertion that the owners of privies an septic tanks were being discriminated against. He maintained that a large number of residents used the drain on Centre Street and the rest of the town paid for the upkeep. In his opinion the council should assume the responsibility and cost of the service. This brought about a lengthy discussion concerning the size of tank and the frequency of service. Finally council decided to accept the application of Cecil Brant at a yearly rate and he is to call at the town hall for instructions twice weekly.

A discussion of the parking by-law was then introduced and finally council decided that the by-law was to be enforced at the descretion of the chief of police. Any cars found obstructing the removal of snow are to be removed at the expense of the owner and subject to a fine of $5.00 for each offence. This penalty was added to the by-law which previously had no penalty attached.

load requirements, but when higher voltage lines were in operation power electricity would be carried from northern to southern grids at less than cost to consumers.

The 49-page hydro report said Ontario's self-sufficiency in total energy will drop to 8.4 per cent by 1970 from 11.9 per cent now. Dependence on the rest of Canada would increase to 72.8 per cent from 42.8 per cent.

THEN NUCLEAR

It forecast that by 1970 48 per cent of Ontario's electricity would be produced by hydro, 38 per cent from convention fuels and 14 per cent from nuclear power.

Mr. Macaulay said on the average hydro was cheaper in Ontario than any other jurisdiction in North America. And it was getting cheaper all the time.

Hydro is experimenting with high voltage lines that will carry from 460,000 to 600,000 volts as compared to lines now carrying 115,000 and 230,000 volts.

KIDNEY DISEASE NOTED

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (Reuters) — A chronic inflammation of the kidneys believed to be caused by radioactivity has appeared in some parts of Yugoslavia, Tanjug news agency said today. Causes of the disease, endemic nephritis, have not so far been discovered. According to some opinions, however, it is caused by the introduction of lead into the organism by the radioactivity of the earth, Tanjug said.

HARKNESS ASKED

foundation for changes of confused policy.

At that time Mr. Harkness referred to a considerable amount of propaganda of a neutralist and pacifist type—"and by pacifist I mean in favor of unilateral disarmament and so forth."

He added:

"A considerable number of people who are putting forward that propaganda re taking part in 'ban the bomb' movements, putting advertisements in newspapers, engaging in marches, and things along that line.

"In my opinion their purpose in doing this is to undermine the will of the Canadian people to resist aggression and to weaken Canadian resistance."

Speaker Roland Michener ruled Mr. Regier's motion out of order. But that didn't prevent the CCF member from raising the issue again later.

LIBERAL COMMENTS

At that time he drew only one Liberal comment — from Paul Hellyer, the party's defence critic—who stated:

"I would like to take this opportunity to say on behalf of those of us on this side of the House that we agree with the minister of national defence that this is no time for pacifism or neutralism. The Canadian temperament is neither. It has not been in the past and is not now."

Except for Mr. Hellyer's brief intervention in the debate, the entire attack was carried by CCF members.

Mr. Regier charged that Mr. Harkness' opposition to "ban the bomb" movements indicated an obvious government division in the matter of nuclear weapons being in possession of Canadian defence personnel.

He appealed to Mr. Diefenbaker to say whether Canadian troops should be given nuclear weapons.

Mr. Regier also objected vigorously to Mr. Harkness making such a statement to members of the armed forces.

"A minister of the Crown appealing to people on his payroll to come to his defence is a violation of our heritage," he said.

Mr. Harkness reiterated that he intended to continue voicing his opposition to "neutralism and to pacifism as expounded by those who advocate unilateral disarmament and so on as far as Canada is concerned. . . ."

He interjected that "I quite understand that the CCF party has a neutralist and pacifist outlook and policy."

"That is baloney and you know it," countered Mr. Regier.

Harold Winch (CCF — Vancouver East) called on Mr. Harkness to deny the report issued by the public relations officer or resign.

"He has evaded and dodged—but he has not denied it," Mr. Winch said.

He viewed Mr. Harkness' reported statement as a "directive" that reserve officers should use their influence to "oppose these movements for peace in Canada along the lines of the ban - the - bomb movement."

Mr. Winch continued:

"I maintain it is a breach of a cabinet minister's responsibility and something which can only cause confusion in the public mind and in the international mind, something to be most roundly condemned and most bitterly attacked."

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) said his group's complaint was not—as Mr. Hellyer had put it—that the minister chose a mess dinner to make an important statement.

"Our grievance is that he chose a dinner to make a mess of Canadian practice and tradition."

DESERONTO

Furnace Fire Quickly Extinguished

DESERONTO — A fire alarm about seven o'clock on Thursday morning took the fire department to Marysville where a furnace had exploded at the home of W. McAuley. The fire was quickly extinguished by the firemen but considerable damage was done to the contents of the house by soot. The owner had tried to put out the fire before he called the firemen but his extinguisher was not sufficient to handle the blaze. The firemen returned to town within half an hour. The damage was not estimated.

The residents of Tyendinaga Township are well pleased that their council has an agreement with the town of Deseronto to furnish fire protection for the area as in several cases the quick response of the Deseronto department has saved the township the loss of some buildings. It seems a far cry from the time when a rural fire was sure to be a total loss unless enough neighbors could be called to put into play immediately the old bucket brigade.

Crofton

CROFTON — The Rev. A. S. McConnell of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, called on Mr. and Mrs. John Gray and Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Munro on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hutson returned to their home on Wednesday. Mrs. Hutson had spent a couple of weeks with her sister, Mrs. Patterson of Burlington, while Mr. Hutson spent the time with his daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Sharp, Mr. Sharp and Dennis, at Roslin.

The sympathy of this community is extended to Mr. Douglas Moxam and family of Belleville in the loss of a loving wife and mother. Mrs. Moxam was born in this community and lived here until her marriage. Her funeral was from the John R. Bush Funeral chapel on Friday to Burr's Cemetery for interment.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gray and family, of Deseronto, spent Sunday with their mother, Mrs. W. J. Gray, also Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lefort and family and Mr. and Mrs. John Gray and family.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Sallsbury were supper guests of Mrs. E. Crook on Sunday.

Cross-Canada Survey

No Prospective Changes In Basic Tax Structures Seen in the Coming Year

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For most provinces there are no present indications of major tax changes this year.

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press showed that Nova Scotia, Ontario, Alberta and Quebec may have boosts of differing kinds.

Manitoba may revise hospital insurance premiums but, like British Columbia, Saskatchewan, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland, has given no hint of any prospective changes in the basic tax structure.

For those provinces likely to boost taxes, the purposes range from financing hospital insurance and building highways to helping municipalities and swelling general revenues.

Quebec started the ball rolling, effective Jan. 1, with increases in personal and corporation income taxes. These were passed by the legislature in late December and were the only changes of any consequence adopted by any province last year.

They are expected to yield, respectively, $14,000,000 and $12,000,000 a year. While the effective date coincided with the start of hospital insurance, Premier Lesage has stated they were not for that purpose but to catch up with extravagances of the former Union Nationale government.

The premier has said no new taxes are planned for social welfare measures but has hinted at higher charges for liquor outlet licences and royalties and dues paid by companies exploiting natural resources. However, there has been no suggestion of further general tax increases.

Premier Stanfield of Nova Scotia has indicated the government plans to increase the three-per-cent sales tax used to finance hospital insurance, saying the present tax will not meet costs of the plan. Speculation is it may go to five per cent.

It likely will be necessary shortly, he adds, to increase the gasoline tax to meet the cost of road-building. Now 17 cents, it may go to Newfoundland's Canadian high of 19 cents.

The premier has spoken also of "enormous" costs of welfare and education and added: "Additional taxation is never popular, but I would be less than frank if I did not say that we may have to face it." However, there has been nothing specific on any other possible increases.

In Ontario, Premier Frost's favorite topic for years has been the need for more revenue, with the province going into debt at the rate of about $113,000,000 a year.

Mr. Frost has made no commitments on taxation, waiting to hear further on Ottawa's position on Ontario's demand for a larger share of the federal-provincial revenue pot. He said recently in the legislature he expects to get the federal answer in the next few weeks.

Government sources indicate a sales tax is the most likely if Ontario does not get the assurance of a better deal when the federal - provincial agreements run out next year. Provincial economists have been considering some form of sales tax, possibly levied on the retailer's gross revenue.

In Alberta, Premier Manning has stated that some kind of industrial taxation scheme will be introduced at the legislature session opening this month.

His government last year presented a bill—subsequently withdrawn—involving uniform taxation of industries, pipelines and power lines, in which revenue collected would be distributed among all municipalities providing services for them.

Without giving details, the premier said recently the new legislation will be "quite considerably different" from this and indicated it would be broadened in scope. Meanwhile, under a substitute bill passed last year, the government has completed an assessment of major industries and power lines for tax purposes.

While there have been no suggestions of changes in taxes as such in other provinces, Premier Roblin of Manitoba has hinted he will propose changes in hospital insurance premiums to recognize differences in individual incomes. He particularly noted that pensioners pay the same premiums as more affluent persons.

The premiums now are $3 a month for single persons and $6 for families. They started originally at $2.05 and $4.10.

Mr. Roblin, observing that some provinces pay for hospital insurance with a sales tax, has indicated none will be imposed in Manitoba at least for this year.

The Liberal-Progressive opposition has long forecast that a sales tax will be needed to meet provincial expenditures, while the CCF has been pressing for higher taxes on companies exploiting mineral resources.

One change in the hospital premium setup was made last year, in New Brunswick, where the new Liberal government did away with the $4.20 monthly for families and $2.10 for single persons.

The insurance now is financed from general revenues, though the government made no tax changes last year and has given no indication that any are impending.

Belgian Govt. Being Pressed To Approve Ruanda Regime

By ADIAN POTE

USUMBUA (AP)—The Belgian administration in Ruanda-Urundi is pressing the government in Brussels to recognize the new republican government of Ruanda Territory, set up during the weekend in a peaceful tribal coup d'etat.

The administration evidently feels that the new government, though still legally out of bounds, is friendly to Belgium.

An administration spokesman reported that the situation was calm in Ruanda, the northern holf of Ruanda-Urundi, which Belgium administers as a UN trusteeship territory.

BAHUTUS SUPPORT

The new government is headed by Premier Gregoir Kayibanda and made up of members of his moderate Parmehutu party and other similar "popular" parties. It is supported by the Bahutu tribe, who make up 85 per cent of the population and who were dominated by the aristocratic Watutsi tribe headed by deposed mwami (king) Kigeri V.

Kayibanda and President Dominique Mbonyumutwa, a Bahutu chief, have said they want the UN trusteeship administered by Belgium to continue.

Kayibanda's government was not democratically elected as the UN planned. It was chosen by about 3,000 African mayors and municipal councillors at a meeting in Gitarema called to free the Bahutus from the domination of the Watutsis. In effect the action confirmed in office a provisional government elected by a large majority last summer.

The Belgian administration here takes the view expressed by one official that "If Kayiband had not done this, there would have been a lot of trouble, and the United Nations would have had an even bigger mess to answer for." More than 200 persons were killed in warfare between the Bahutus and the Watutsis in 1959, and there was another flareup last summer.

"The Africans in Ruanda had been promised elections for a permanent government Jan. 15, and when the United Nations postponed them (until after March) there was great disappointment," a Western diplomat explained.

"Kayibanda seems merely to have jumped the gun, for it is pretty certain he would have won the elections anyway and done just the same thing as he did at the weekend."

SEEK UN VACCINE

ROME (Reuters)—The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization has been asked to organize immediate mass vaccination to prevent a possible new outbreak of African horse sickness this year in Mediterranean countries, Europe and Russia. A report issued today said the vaccination campaign would create a "buffer zone" in Turkey, Greece, Bulgaria, India and Pakistan to stop the disease spreading into Europe and the Far East.

Visa Granted

WINDSOR (CP)—Mrs. Milka Lewis, an attractive Belgrade bookkeeper who married a Windsor man on the eve of being deported to her native country, was granted an immigration visa Monday.

The visa means the 24-year old blonde can stay in Canada with her husband Frank Lewis, 27, an employee of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Mrs. Lewis, whose maiden name was Zorojevich, had stayed here on a visitor's permit. She was to be deported when the couple were married in a surprise ceremony.

The case was reviewed by Immigration Minister Fairclough. The visa was granted as a result of an order-in-council by the Governor-General waiving the normal immigration requirements.

Oil Firms Told To Boost Output Or Face Controls

Must Be Raised Nearly 50 P.C. Within 3 Years

OTTAWA (CP)—The government warned the oil industry Wednesday night to expect import controls unless Canadian crude oil output is raised nearly 50 per cent within three years.

The new policy announced by Trade Minister Hees calls for voluntary production targets to be met through increased use of Canadian oil in domestic markets west of Ottawa and by "some expansion" of exports by pipelines to existing United States markets.

Mr. Hees said the small amount of foreign crude now entering Ontario will have to be displaced altogether. Also required would be "progressive reduction" of shipments to Ontario or products refined from foreign crudes in Montreal.

Industry officials said later the policy would require the Montreal refineries, supplied by cheap seaborne crude from the Middle East and Venezuela, to halt movement of some 50,000 barrels of products daily to points west of Ottawa. Their refining capacity is around 300,000 barrels daily.

INDUSTRY COMMENTS

Oil company reactions were guarded.

Imperial Oil Limited promised its "fullest co-operation" while others like Shell Oil and the Canadian Oil Company said it was possible to achieve, but difficult.

The president of Canadian Oil, W. Harold Rea, said "much depends on the success we have in exporting to the United States."

John W. Proctor, general manager of the Canadian Petroleum Association, said he hopes production targets set by the government can be met over the next three years, thus eliminating the need for further action by government agencies.

U.S. WARNS

The U.S. reaction was stated by Interior Secretary Stewart Udall:

". . . I feel compelled to say that if the plan is not implemented by gradual steps it could conceivably work against the interests of the domestic oil-producing industry in the United States."

He warned that in such an event the U.S. might have to review its import policy on Canadian crude oil.

Canada at present is exempt from American oil report quotas established to protect the U.S. industry against heavy foreign competition at a time of world surplus.

SEE AS WARNING

Sources close to the Canadian government said the new policy constitutes a warning to U.S. companies supplying the overseas crude that their Montreal market will be protected only as long as they increase their Canadian output.

These informants said the government would start with the voluntary production targets, moving to mandatory import controls if necessary. If neither step worked, a pipeline could be built to Montreal and thus for-

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States has cautioned Canada against attempting to capture too large a share of the American oil market too quickly.

As the Canadian government unfolded its new oil policy Wednesday U.S. Interior Secretary Stewart Udall said a gradual rise in imports from Canada should not materially affect the American industry, providing shipments are orderly and well-timed.

But if imports from Canada have a marked and abrupt adverse effect on the American industry, a review of the Canadian exemption from American oil import controls will result.

The Canadian policy, discussed with American cabinet members at a meeting here Jan. 25, aims at boosting markets for Canadian oil through a voluntary reduction in some imports and by increasing export to the United States.

This would eliminate for some time at least any prospects of Canadian government endorsement of an oil pipeline from the Alberta-producing fields to Montreal refineries now served mostly by imports from Venezuela.

DISLIKE PIPELINE

American authorities generally dislike the pipeline idea, figuring it would eliminate the Montreal market for Venezuela's crude and force the United States either to accept more oil from Venezuela or provide that Latin country with economic aid.

The United States faces a heavy surplus of its own, particularly in middle western states where domestic suppliers are complaining of heavy Canadian competition. American authorities are much less concerned with Canadian shipments to the Puget Sound area around Seattle where Canadians compete mostly against other imports.

Udall, who handles oil policy in the Kennedy administration, added: "Our domestic producers understand the policy considerations which underlie the current exemption of Canadian imports under the mandatory oil import program.

"However, if the Canadian plan has a marked and abrupt adverse effect on our petroleum industry, such action would undoubtedly furnish the basis for a review of the pattern of United States oil import conport controls as they pertain to Canadian crude oil, condensates and natural gas liquids."

UN HEAD SEEKS RIGHT TO CURB CONGO'S ARMY

Hammarskjold Asks UN for Authority

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold has asked the UN Security Council for authority to curb the Congolese Army's activity in politics as a first step to prevent The Congo from exploding into civil war.

Adlai Stevenson, appearing as the Kennedy administration's chief delegate to the council for the first time, told the session Wednesday he was not prepared to comment. He indicated he would speak later in the week.

But Hammarskjold's request appeared headed for rough sledding from the Soviet Union, which has been assailing the secretary - general for months and has refused to vote him new powers even in less controversial fields.

The council scheduled a morning session to continue its latest Congo debate, which is likely to take up the rest of the week.

MUST REORGANIZE

Without giving up his policy of neutrality for the UN force in Congo domestic affairs, Hammarskjold insisted that he must be allowed to reorganize the Congo Army, which he said has been taking sides in the warfare between President Joseph Kasavubu and forces supporting deposed premier Patrice Lumumba.

"I would welcome a decision by the council requesting the secretary-general to take urgently appropriate measures for assistance in the reorganization of the national army, preventing it or units thereof from intervening in the present political conflicts in The Congo," he said.

The council also heard a demand from the United Arab Republic that Lumumba be freed from jail and that Belgian military men alleged to be in The Congo be ousted.

UNDER ATTACK

Hammarskjold's policy of not allowing the UN force to interfere in the domestic affairs of The Congo is under attack from the pro-Lumumba group, from the Belgians, from Kasavubu and from provincial premiers. Each wants the UN force to take action against the others.

The secretary - general cautioned the council that the demands for armed UN intervention made clear what problems would arise if the council changed the neutrality policy.

He told the council that factional activity by the army, foreign interference in the form of arms, men and propaganda, and talk of various alliances brought closer the risk of civil war.

WANTS LEADERSHIP

TORONTO (CP)—CCF Leader MacDonald called Wednesday for the establishment of a separate division within the department of education "to give vigorous leadership in the development of trades and technical training." He told a meeting of the Toronto Beaches CCF Riding Association that one of the major failures of the department is the total absence of leadership in trades training.

Critics of Religious Instruction Said Hitting Education Foundation

TORONTO (CP) — Critics of religious instruction in schools are making "an assault on the foundations of Canadian education itself," says Dr. Herbert L. Pottle, secretary of the board of information and stewardship of the United Church of Canada.

Dr. Pottle, a former Newfoundland commissioner for education, writes in the current issue of the United Church Observer.

He says the critics "parade as champions of religious freedom and in doing so they use the language of the Christian so cleverly as to deceive the very elect." But they were "compelling more and more of us to ask probing questions about the quality of Canadian education."

The real trouble, he says, is that Canadians "have no sense of compelling purpose for our schools that can inspire the nation."

"This critical state of Canadian education must obviously become the concern of all the churches.

"In fact, there are significant signs in Canada at the moment that an inter-faith dialogue on the fundamental aims of education—to include Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews—would find support from many quarters.

"Indeed, its success is largely guaranteed in advance because in matters of basic education the things the communions (churches) hold in common are more important than those that keep them apart. . . .

"The fact is that, even without a violent wrenching of the constitution, education can be made a national concern. . . ."

The "real breakthrough," Dr. Pottle adds, must follow when the federal and provincial governments meet "in a great debate on the ends of education."

Groundhog Should Wear Ear Muffs If He Sticks Head Out

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario is locked in a deep freeze today, caught in a cold snap that has swept Canada from the Atlantic to the Rocky Mountains.

Groundhog day, set aside for the long-range spring forecast, is so frigid that if a groundhog dares to thrust his head above ground he'll be forced to wear earmuffs.

Toronto shivered in its most prolonged cold spell in 43 years, temperatures dropping to 15 below zero in the suburbs. The 16 straight days of sub - freezing weather have not been matched since 1918's record cold which lasted 29 days.

The more than two-week cold snap has caused car owners to snarl and garage men to grin.

One Halifax service station owner said he has a five-day waiting list for the use of his battery re-chargers. The Maritimes have had cold but dry weather for 15 days and there are few signs of alleviation. Halifax temperatures dipped to five below overnight, the lowest since the cold snap began.

Sunny skies, easterly winds and scattered snow flurries or snow squalls were forecast for the lower lakes areas Friday.

Temperatures in Southern Ontario slid lower than predicted. Windsor was one of the warmest spots with seven below. Toronto had eight below—and lower in the suburbs—and London [illegible] below.

Sarnia had the coldest night in living memory as the mercury ranged from 24 below in the suburbs to 15 below downtown. In the Owen Sound area it was —23

Congress of Labor Requests Massive Spending Program

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress warned the federal government today that one in every eight workers probably will be jobless when unemployment hits its winter peak soon.

This means that just about 750,000 workers will be unemployed within a few months, the CLC said. At mid - December there were 528,000 jobless people.

The congress—voice of Canada's organized labor movement of some 1,100,000 workers—urged Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his cabinet to launch an immediate massive spending drive on public projects to offset unemployment.

"We have to get the rate of growth up again and keep it up," said the CLC in its annual legislative submission to the cabinet.

It was presented to the prime minister by Claude Jodoin, CLC president, backed by a large delegation of trade unionists.

There was little new in the CLC's program to beat unemployment — a program it unveiled last October, emphasized later at the prime minister's conference on unemployment and then repeated—with more detail — in a submission last week to the Senate committee on manpower and employment.

In essence, it calls for a super-spending drive on such public projects as roads, schools, hospitals, slum-clearance—even if it means the federal treasury must go in the red to do it.

The congress also expressed worry about the dwindling reserve of the Unemployment Insurance Fund, which experts

Move Afoot to Give Senate Sole Divorce Authority

OTTAWA (CP) — A plan is afoot to give the Senate sole and permanent parliamentary authority to grant divorces.

The idea, developed among senators and reported to be gaining support among MPs, is that the Senate be given power to dissolve marriages by resolution or decree. It would replace the present system under which each divorce requires an individual act of Parliament which must pass both houses and receive royal assent.

Applications for parliamentary divorces come from Quebec and Newfoundland, the two provinces without divorce courts. That would also be the pattern under the new proposal among senators who have

The plan is being hatched strong objections — chiefly on constitutional grounds — to a Dec. 16 Commons bill that would waive on an annual basis the Commons' task of endorsing each divorce bill originating in the upper house.

The Commons measure, a private member's bill which M. Douglas Morton (PC — Toronto Davenport) piloted to a rapid and surprising passage, needs approval by the Senate where debate on it is expected next week.

"We won't do it," Senator Arthur Roebuck, chairman of the Senate divorce committee,

CBC MAY CARRY RADIO PROGRAMS FROM RUSSIA

Special Committee On Broadcasting

OTTAWA (CP) — Radio programs from Russia and the Communist countries of eastern Europe may soon be carried on the CBC, Revenue Minister Nowlan indicated Wednesday in the Commons.

Mr. Nowlan, who reports to Parliament on Broadcasting matters, also disclosed that jamming of CBC shortwave broadcasts to eastern Europe has declined substantially in the last few months.

"In Poland there is apparently no jamming now."

Mr. Nowlan, noting that programs have been exchanged between Russian and Canadian stations, largely on athletic events, said there is a move afoot now "to broadcast programs which might be emanating from Russia."

Through tape - recording and other techniques, eastern European programs will also be available in Canada, he went on. "It is not now a closed area."

APPROVES RESOLUTION

Mr. Nowlan spoke just before the House gave unanimous approval to a government resolution to establish a special Commons committee on broadcasting.

Some Near Panic As 24-Hour Wait Frays Nerves

Release Delayed a Day After Erroneous Report

RECIFE (AP)—Their captivity ended, the passengers of the commandeered liner Santa Maria came ashore today with thanksgiving for deliverance from a nightmare at sea.

The 20,906-ton Portuguese ship steamed into Recife at noon, anchoring just off a dock. An hour later the nearly 600 passengers began loading onto tugs for the last 500 yards of their unexpectedly extended voyage.

For the time being at least odyssey of the Portuguese liner was ended—12 days after she was commandeered 2,800 miles away in the Caribbean, by Portuguese rebels headed by Capt. Henrique Galvao.

(Erroneous radio reports broadcast Wednesday by Rio de Janeiro radio stations and carried by Reuters said the ship was reported disembarking passengers at Recife. Origin of the reports was not known immediately. The ship remained three miles offshore yesterday.)

The Brazilian government had not announced what was to be done about the ship after the landing of the nearly 600 passengers.

The liner moved into shore after several tense sessions of bargaining between Galvao and Brazilian authorities.

The 610-foot ship sailed slowly to within 500 yards of a dock. Passengers jammed the rails, waving and shouting. Some cried with emotion.

One of the passengers, artist Lawrence Williams of Victoria, B.C., told reporters earlier the passengers had been "in peril of our lives every moment."

For more than 24 hours the passengers had been within tempting sight of land—about three miles offshore—as negotiations for the landing went on. Some of the passengers had been verging on panic as rations ran short while the hot equatorial sun beat down upon the ship.

Galvao refused to tie the ship at the dock. Tugs went out to begin taking off the passengers.

Buses were brought up to take passengers to the Portuguese Club where they could await arrangements for their return home. U.S. citizens in Recife threw open their homes for the 45 or so Americans aboard.

Police kept crowds back from the dock. Other spectators lined surrounding roofs.

The grey ship rode at anchor this morning with a Brazilian frigate still alongside.

Four U.S. destroyers and the nuclear submarine Seawolf kept close watch on the Santa Maria from just outside the three-mile limit, mindful that negotiations have collapsed before, just as Possible East-West War in Congo Has Kennedy Regime Worried

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kennedy administration officials were reported deeply worried today about a possible breakdown of United Nations peace efforts in The Congo and the development of a dangerous new East-West crisis there.

The threatening emergency in Africa is one of those President Kennedy evidently had in mind Wednesday when he told his press conference, in discussing U.S. military strength in relation to world problems, that "the situation grows more serious."

"The Chinese Communist strength increases," Kennedy said, "the intervention by the Communists in these critical areas which I mentioned has grown greater, and therefore we have to consider whether in the light of this conditional threat, the strength we now have, not only our nuclear deterrent, but also our capacity for limited war, is sufficient."

The "critical areas" Kennedy mentioned were Laos, Cuba and The Congo. The Communist bloc has been furnishing arms to Cuba, and the United States has charged the Soviet Union with airlifting arms to pro-Communist rebel forces in Laos.

There have been persistent reports from The Congo recently that Russia and the United Arab Republic were delivering arms to forces backing imprisoned former premier Patrice Lumumba against the shaky government of President Joseph Kasavubu.

These reports are a main source of apprehension here that the Congo civil conflict could quickly develop into an East-West struggle similar to that in Laos. Such a development would confront the United States and its allies with a decision whether to intervene directly on the side of the Kasavubu government.

Kennedy has declared his support for the UN efforts to restrict the Congo conflict and gradually restore peace and order. But UN power to deal with the situation is limited, especially in the face of the reported outside assistance to pro-Lumumba troops.

Parliament At a Glance

Trade Minister Hees announced a national oil policy involving the periodic setting of production targets designed to reach 800,000 barrels a day in 1963.

He said if the voluntary system doesn't produce the expected results the government will take "whatever further steps the circumstances may require" — including regulation of imports and exports.

Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier) challenged Mr. Hees to show any difference in essence between his announcement and the oil policy recommendations of the Borden royal commission on energy in July, 1959.

CCF Leader Argue said the announcement is undoubtedly an important one for the lagging Canadian oil industry, holding out hopes of renewed activity and explanded production and markets.

Revenue Minister Nowlan rejected all suggestions that the cabinet has exerted any pressure on CBC programming or financing.

Find Canadian Borrowing From U.S. Deeply Cut

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian borrowing in the United States in 1961 is a trickle compared with former years, according to figures revealed Wednesday.

A. E. Ames and Company, stockbroker, say borrowing by Canadian companies and provincial and municipal governments to Jan. 30 this year totalled only $1,000,000, compared with $13,750,000 to Feb. 1, 1960; $75,000,000 to Feb. 2, 1959, and $50,000,- to Feb. 3, 1958.

One aim of Finance Minister Fleming's baby budget last December was to reduce foreign borrowing.

District Farmers Forced To Draw Water Due to Wells Drying up Early in Winter

Dry wells across Hastings and Prince Edward counties, caused by one of the driest autumn and winter seasons in history, are forcing dozens of district farmers to draw water for their stock and even for household use.

In many instances farm wells which never before ran dry, have given out, many of them even before winter set in.

Records kept at the Belleville water filtration plant show that January was the driest in the past 25 years and possibly set an all-time record. During the month there was a total precipitation of only one inch.

Many farmer have been drawing water for their stock since early in the fall and almost any day sees a lineup of farmers at the Belleville pumphouse waiting to get water supplies.

Drawing water has become a full-time business for truckers with tank trucks with nine such trucks drawing water regularly. In addition scores of farmers draw their own water in 30 and 40 gallon milk cans and some in smaller containers.

Some farmers without adequate storage facilities at home have to draw water every day for their stock.

LOTS OF WATER SOLD

"I never saw anything like it this winter," stated Jim Scriven pump house manager. "During January we sold 323,000 gallons of water to tank truckers and farmers."

The demand for water keeps one man almost continually busy servicing tank trucks and farmers drawing their own water.

And being forced to draw water for stock is an expensive proposition.

Truckers charge up to about $9 for 1,000 gallons delivered to within a 12 to 15-mile radius. And a big herd of stock can drink a lot of water.

Farmers drawing their own water from the city pumphouse are charged $1.00 per thousand with a minimum charge of 25 cents.

To accommodate the out of town truck trade, a two-inch supply hose has been hooked up taking about five minutes to fill a 1,000 gallon tank.

Mock Wedding Presentation Much Enjoyed

The regular monthly meeting of the Senior Citizens' Social Club was held on Wednesday evening with 75 enthusiastic members in attendance. The meeting was opened by president Harry Sales, in the usual manner with singing of the National Anthem, followed by birthday greetings to all members born in the month of February.

The main feature of the entertainment was the presentation of a mock wedding of John Brown and Nancy White, performed by the gowned minister and also with the usual number of bride attendants, all beautifully costumed for the occasion as well as a number of family guests. This was concluded with the wedding reception, with the customary toasts, and followed by a period in which all those in costume enjoyed a promenade and square dancing to the accompaniment of an imitation rag time band. The whole group then joined in a singsong of old familiar tunes quite appropriate for a sub-zero winter evening.

Mrs. Graham and Mr. Scales entertained with timely readings.

The winners at euchre were: Ladies' first, Mrs. M. Keegan; ladies' second, Miss Towner; gents' first, F. Bedell, and second, C. Thorne. Mrs. A. Accera was the winner of the door prize.

The president read a letter of invitation from the Trenton club for members of the local club to visit them on the evening of Friday, March 24th next, which was gratefully accepted.

Refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned.

Marysville Boy Injured, Steps In Front of Car

An eight-year-old Marysville boy suffered a fractured right leg and broken left arm Wednesday evening when he stepped in front of a car on highway 2 near his home.

Belleville provincial police said that Philip Elmy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Finlay Elmy, had alighted from a truck opposite Jack's Lunch, then stepped out around the vehicle into the path of a car driven by Walter Chapman of Middleton Park, Trenton.

The boy was taken to Belleville General Hospital where he is under the care of Dr. J. H. Hart and Dr. Earl McDonald. The accident occurred about six o'clock last evening.

Thirty minutes earlier three persons escaped injury in a three-vehicle mix-up on Highway 401 at the intersection of Wallbridge Road.

Police said cars involved were driven by Carman Dafoe, R. R. 5 Belleville; Gerald Whitney, Orchard Drive and William Theobald, Dunbar St.

Sea Cadets Win Rifle Contest

The rifle marksmen from Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps "Quinte" came out on top of the three-team inter-service shoot held by the 608 Squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Cadets at Quinte Secondary School yesterday evening. Led by Ordinary Cadet Wilfred Hood, who was high scorer of the evening with 94 out of 100 points, the Sea Cadets scored 511 points out of a possible 600 to take the match with an overall average of 85.1.

No. 608 Squadron came a very close second with a total of 506 out of 600 and an overall average of 84.3, followed by No. 173 Squadron from Trenton, whose six-man team fired for 453 in total points and an average of 76.0. A return engagement between the Sea Cadets and the Air Cadets is scheduled for the middle of the month.

A basketball tournament was also held which the host squadron won in the final quarter of the play-off game between them and the Trenton Squadron.

The evening's activities were a part of the Air Cadet Week which is being observed at Quinte Secondary School. The local program, now in its fifth year, has been taken as a model for all Air Cadet squadrons across Canada. It concludes tomorrow evening with a dance.

SOME NEAR

a solution seemed at hand.

There was no indication whether the Brazilian government had given in to Galvao's demands that he be allowed to debark the passengers, refuel, replenish depleted water and food, and sail out again to carry on his revolt against Antonio de Oliveira Salazar, strongman premier of Portugal.

It was learned authoritatively that Humberto Delgado, the Portuguese who is titular leader of the uprising from his exile in Brazil, managed to slip aboard the Santa Maria Wednesday night.

Presumably he and Galvao discussed their next move.

U.S. and Brazilian authorities showed concern for the passengers. Brazilian port authorities said some of the woman passengers were becoming hysterical. Food and water were short.

Authoritative sources said the passengers now are considered actual hostages, and Brazilian and U.S. authorities were acting with caution to avoid any incident that might jeopardize the captives.

Everyone agrees with the fact that it has been cold for the past few weeks, but the month of January failed by a wide margin to establish any records for cold weather.

During January the minimum temperature was 14 below with a mean temperature reading of 12.5.

The ten year average for January shows a mean temperature reading of 18.2 the same as for January last year.

But back in 1948 it was colder with a low reading of 23 below and a mean temperature for the month of 11 degrees.

And back in 1945, it was really a doozer. The mean temperature that month was a chilly 8.9 degrees and the thermometer plummeted to 28.9 degrees below zero.

But last month was one of the driest on record with but .02 inch of rain and 9.9 inches of snow for a total precipitation of only 1.01 inches. A year ago January saw .61 inch of rain and 23.3 inches of snow for a total precipitation of 2.94 inches.

The continued cold spell experienced in the area for more than two weeks will take some beating. Almost without exception the thermometer each night has gone below the zero mark.

And the weatherman has promised no immediate relief even after the 15 degrees below registered last night — the coldest of the year.

City fuel dealers and garagemen are having a field day.

Furnace oil trucks have been kept on the run as the oil level in basement tanks drops with alarming rapidity.

And as the cold spell continues, more and more motorists are finding that car batteries just won't take it any more.

99 New Houses Built in City In Past Year

While roughly comparable to the construction totals of 1954 and 1957, building in Belleville during 1960 was less than half of the record of 1959 when more than six million dollars was spent in construction.

Last year's total was $2,648,714, of which approximately one-half was made up by residential construction.

During the year there were 99 new dwellings built in the city with a total value of $1,231,750. Residential repairs and alterations totalled $89,842.

There were 14 new commercial structures built during the year costing $271,100 with alterations and repairs to existing commercial buildings amounting to another $65,760.

Industrial building totalled $525,422 and institutional $463,839.

The Shadow Knows! Or Does He?

WILLIE WOODCHUCK

The groundhog, naturalists say, is an overstuffed member of the squirrel family.

That is understandable.

Any animal that will leave a winter-long sleep and a warm cosy bed in weather like this must be "nuts".

That is what Willie the Woodchuck does.

At least, that is what an old folks tale has him doing on February 2 every year.

The legend has Willie coming topside on that date, looking around and if he sees his shadow, nosedives for his subterranean chesterfield and snores for another six weeks.

In other words Old Man Winter will hang around for that length of time.

However, if Willie is greeted by an overcast sky, spring is just around the corner, the robins are winging northwards, and the pussy willows are readying to "bust out".

But there is argument here

The northern woodchucks claim their Confederate counterparts south of the Mason - Dixon line started the whole thing.

They say no self-respecting groundhog is going to invite snout -freeze by poking it through a snow crust. Besides what's six weeks when you're rent-free, grub-free and taxless.

The southern 'chucks around Alabama, the Virginias and the Carolinas originated this February 2 business.

Down thataway the breezes are warm, the sun shines brightly and the peanuts have an appetizing smell around February 1st. The chucks do not worry about the arrival of spring. Spring down there is a date on the calendar as far as they're concerned.

Some oldtimers in the north say the woodchuck emergence is a legend or a myth. "Show me someone who has seen one around February 1 or 2nd", they say.

"Besides, the woodchuck is not blessed with any overdose of intelligence".

That's Willie looking at you from the top of this column.

Any resemblance between Willie and a university professor is merely a figment of the imagination of someone who has been kicked out of college.

He looks like the chap who wrote "All I want for Christmas is my two front teeth"—and got them.

His defeatist expression resembles that of a Nixon supporter who just heard Kennedy has been elected.

However if you believe in the groundhog legend, he's the guy who will decide the fate of your fuel bills for the next six weeks.

P.S. — Willie saw his shadow today.

So hole up, fuel up and shut up. There's nothing you can do about it.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 13-16 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Montreal reported near noon today. Wednesday's noon rate was 99 1-16.

Pound sterling $2.78 3-16, up ⅛.

CBC MAY CARRY

in the course of a reply to Paul Martin (L—Essex East), who behind the Iron Curtain came had expressed misgivings about the decision to curtail CBC shortwave broadcasts to western Europe.

Mr. Nowlan said there were "economic reasons" for the curtailment—largely resulting from expanded service to Canada's northland.

The service to Africa, "where there is not such an extensive knowledge of Canada" as in western Europe, was being extended substantially. Shortwave services to eastern Europe were being maintained.

MAY BE SAME

Mr. Nowlan said that as a result of better reception made possible by local rebroadcasts of Canadian programs it is expected that the actual number of listeners in the west European countries concerned will remain substantially the same and might even increase.

The revenue minister rejected all suggestions that the cabinet has exerted any pressure on CBC programming or financing, and said the government has no intention of abandoning the present system of annual parliamentary grants for the publicly-owned corporation.

J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista-Twillingate) and suggested that longer - term grants be made.

WOULD RECOMMEND

The revenue minister, answering questions and suggestions from the opposition, also:

1. Said he is prepared to recommend that the CBC board of directors be enlarged to provide greater French-language representation.

2. Said the policy of allowing newspaper interests to hold TV and radio licences could hardly be changed, because "I can imagine many newspapers in this country which would have to divorce themselves from radio and television."

3. Expressed doubt there is any merit in the charge that the CBC is being used as a vehicle for Communist propaganda.

"But the CBC is a national organization," he said, "and one of its purposes is to present views which cover various facets of our activities, political and economic, and I do not think anyone can take objection to that."

OIL FIRMS TOLD

eign crude would be displaced entirely.

Mr. Hees, in his announcement to the Commons, indicated that the government in effect has extended the warning first issued to the industry in August, 1959, by the Borden royal commission on energy.

The commission said the industry should get 12 to 18 months to perk up its sagging Canadian production through its own efforts before the government turned to alternatives such as import quotas or the pipeline from Alberta to Montreal.

SETS TARGETS

Mr. Hees said the production targets, set periodically, will be designed to have oil production—including natural gas liquids—reach 800,000 barrels a day in 1963. The Canadian output averaged 550,000 barrels a day last year.

MUST INCREASE

The minister noted that refining capacity in Ontario will have to be increased so that by 1963 it will be high enough to supply the Ontario market—west of the Ottawa Valley—from Canadian crudes.

Production expansion will be on a voluntary basis, Mr. Hees said. However, importers of crude and petroleum products will have to report their imports monthly — starting this month—to the National Energy Board.

Plan Changes In Official Town Plan

TRENTON — Wallace Little of Project Planners Associates, the firm responsible for the town's official plan, met last night with members of the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board to discuss modifications suggested by the Department of Municipal Affairs.

New board members Mrs. Harriet Simmons, J. H. Forbes and Bruce Ireland were welcomed by the chairman, Dr. W. A. L. McDonald. Also present were members Howard Langdon and A. S. Robson; secretary O. W. Larry, town engineer, Walter Murray and assistant engineer Arie Hoornweeg.

The department had suggested several changes in the plan. It was suggested that certain projects be moved up from Stage 2 to Stage 1 of the plan, due to the fact that some areas of the town are being opened by sub-dividers and these developments had not been foreseen when the plan was formulated.

Mr. Little explained that the official plan outlined the basic concepts as to how the town may develop. He said that the zoning by-law implements this plan, but that it goes further than the plan inasmuch as it points up classifications of types of buildings. The official plan takes the long-range view while the zoning by-law deals with present uses, which may go on for an indeterminate period.

The department also said that the real responsibility for the plan and the zoning by-law falls on the shoulders of town council and that the planning board acts only as an advisor to the council. The principles laid down by the board should serve as a guide to council for development and the board may make recommendations to council.

Following a proposed traffic survey, certain changes will be incorporated in the plan. This survey should be completed by next year.

At the present time, the official plan is in the hands of the Department of Municipal Affairs and must be approved by the minister before it will achieve legal status.

Complete Plans For Forming Special Bureau

TRENTON — The Community Co-ordination Council met last night to complete plans for a central bureau of information regarding a calendar of coming events, times and places of meetings of fraternal organizations and other items of interest to the community.

The telephone answering service will supply such information and will also tell callers the names and phone numbers of local ministers, times of church services, and such things as the location and times of charity games, etc., if requested. The service is available 24 hours a day.

When planning fund-raising projects, organizations may check to find out if the date decided upon has been booked by any other organization.

Members were reminded of the inter-service club dinner at the Queensway Hotel on Feb. 6.

Present at the meeting were the president, T. E. Bedford; vice-president, Al Perry; secretary-treasurers, Herb Smith, Mrs. F. Jeffery, Gord Carr, L. McGaughey and N. Sprague.

Danny Senik New Community Gardens Head

TRENTON — Danny Senik was elected chairman of the Community Gardens Commission at a special meeting of the commission on Tuesday night. Mr. Senik played an active part in the activities of the commission last year, serving as chairman of a subcommittee.

Vice-chairman for 1961 will be Councillor C. V. Graham, who, with Councillor Ross Burtt, was appointed by council to the commission this year.

Bruce Todd will serve as secretary with assistance from a member of the municipal office clerical staff.

Chairman of the personnel, maintenance and snack bar sub-committee will be Bob Johnson, who will be assisted by Councillor Graham and Councillor Burtt.

Carl Weese will continue as chairman of the publicity, promotions and rentals departments with assistance from Bruce Todd and Ralph Weaver.

Since the town has assumed the handling of all financial transactions to do with the gardens' activities, O. W. Larry, town clerk, will be required to sign all cheques after payment of accounts has been approved by the commission. Co-signer will be the chairman, with the vice-chairman as alternate.

Manager Ron Thornton will be permitted to settle all accounts of $25 or under from a floating fund of $75, without previous approval of the members.

Councillor Vagn Lange, 1960 chairman and a member of the commission for seven years, wished the new executive members every success. He said that in view of the fact that the Gardens' deficit had been considerably lower in 1960 than in previous years, he had hopes that in 1961 the Gardens would break even. He also paid tribute to the work of the retiring secretary, Norman Banfield.

A resolution was approved authorizing the expenditure of a sum not to exceed $400 for new equipment for the snack bar.

Mr. Thornton reported that the bar could not handle large crowds during intermission of hockey games with the present equipment.

A planer will be rented to clear the ice of excess layers. This is a precautionay measure with the possible break down of expensive machinery in mind.

At the suggestion of H. S. Pane, chairman of the Board of Health, the commission will explore the possibility of having an attendant with a working knowledge of first aid measures on hand at all times.

The commission will meet on the second Monday of each month.

Special Films Shown Hunters

TRENTON — A two-hour program of colored films and commentary sponsored by the Hunting Safety Instructors' Association of Trenton was held last night at the Community Gardens. The films were supplied by the Department of Lands and Forests. Special emphasis was placed on accidents which happen annually during hunting season.

The object of these programs is to acquaint hunters with the proper handling of firearms.

The films depicted actual hunting parties in action.

It was explained that half of all hunting accidents in Canada involve teen-agers just learning to shoot. Ninety per cent of these accidents could be avoided with a knowledge of proper hunting procedure.

Joint Space Effort Unlikely

Most spectacular proposal by President Kennedy in his first "state of the union" address to the U.S. Congress was a joint space probe project by all nations, including Russia.

Of all his proposals, this must surely be the one of which the President expected least. The likelihood of Russia co-operating in such a project is extremely small, for reasons we shall outline a little later. Why, then, did he make the offer? Probably not for any propaganda advantage which the U.S. might hope to gain out of Russia's refusal to accept the proposal, but rather to follow a consistent line, treating Russia the same as all other nations and offering her a place in this project as well as in two others, in which she may very well co-operate. A weather prediction program and a communications system through satellites may very well interest the Russians and, too, it is likely that the establishment of such programs would be very much easier with their assistance than without it, by reason of the simple fact that the USSR is such a large proportion of the land mass of the earth.

Space probes to Mars and Venus are an entirely different question. In the first place, there is grave doubt whether President Kennedy was completely accurate when he said that the U.S. is ahead in the science and technology of space, while the Soviet Union is ahead in the capacity to lift large vehicles into orbit. With regard to the Russian sphere of superiority, there can be no question. The edge has been proven by performance, and the fact that the Russians may have had many unreported failures does not alter the situation at all. Kennedy's claim for superiority in technology, though, does not appear to hold water in at least one realm, that of guidance systems. Instead, quite the reverse appears to be true. The accuracy with which the Russians hit the moon, at a predesignated spot, was held at the time to be abundant proof that Russian guidance systems were "more sophisticated" than those used by the U.S.

The ability to lift, and to guide accurately, a space probe is, however, only part of the problem. Such a probe would be useless if it could not relay information back to the earth This is the realm in which the U.S. appears to have an edge and in a peaceful world the co-operation Kennedy proposes would be the logical approach. For Russia, though, this would be paramount to admitting that the capitalistic system could produce a better product than the Communist system. The only thing likely to bring an acceptance of Kennedy's offer in this sphere would be a conviction that the U.S. possessed rockets and guidance systems as good as the Russians. There has been little evidence that such is the case.

For the Russians to co-operate while enjoying a distinct superiority in the power of rockets and their accurate guidance would almost certainly involve revealing the secrets of this power and accuracy to the U.S. In turn, of course, the Russians could expect to obtain U.S. secrets "in the science and technology of space." But, for the moment anyway, it is the power and accuracy of rockets, rather than the science of space, which can be put to military use. To accept Kennedy's proposal would involve trading military secrets for secrets at present of no military value. Is it reasonable to suppose the Russians will do this? Would the U.S. do this if the positions were reversed? The answers are obvious.

"Fag"

It has been fairly well established that among the things the Duke of Wellington never said was the oft-quoted assertion that the Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton.

Alexander Macmillan, grandson of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, evidently had this old misquotation in mind when, defending "fagging" by junior boys, he declared that four prime ministers, various princes, dukes, marquesses, viscounts, earls, barons, baronets and knights had had their bottoms beaten and that "the character of all of them have been wrought, not just on the playing fields, but under the lash of the senior boys."

Macmillan was probably right and it should be fairly obvious that such a system, while perhaps ideal for molding character for life in an aristocracy, is hardly suitable for a democracy, where it is held improper for judge, jury and executioner to be one and the same person.

Too many old Etonians have played the role of senior boys in colonies throughout the world, which is one reason why old boys from other "public" schools and "grammar" schools are now finding it so difficult to preach the gospel of black and white brotherhood.

Britons Are Efficient

By B. H. in the Winnipeg Free Press

A Canadian who stands beside a ribbon of red-hot steel as it races through giant rollers at a speed nearly 60 miles an hour instantly knows more about the economy of Britain than he could learn in any book of statistics. Here the post-war marvel speaks for itself.

The Port Talbot plant of the Steel Company of Wales, on the southern Welsh coast, is the largest of its sort in Europe, probably the most efficient in the world. It makes a third of all the sheet steel used in Britain, and its sister plant a few miles away makes three-quarters of all Britain's tinplate for use in a hundred factories and countless products all over the kingdom. These results came from queer beginnings.

When the war had been won the British steel industry was old-fashioned and comparatively inefficient. A wise and generous competitor, the United States gave Britian Marshall Plan dollars to re-build this and other industries.

The British had started to use the money to the best advantage when, of a sudden, steel was nationalized by a Labor government. The Conservatives denationalized it, but not entirely. Steel today is operating under an odd double-headed system — privately owned factories but prices fixed by a central board.

As we watched buckets as big as bungalows dumping molten metal as one might pour tea, I asked one of the foremen how his workers liked nationalization and denationalization.

"They wouldn't have known" he said, "that we'd been nationalized if they hadn't read it in the papers, or that we'd been denationalized either. And they couldn't care less".

The men in this factory over four miles in length were not brooding on economic theories. They were making steel and making good wages. At first sight they didn't seem to be working hard. Many of them stood around dials and levers, apparently idle, in this mighty hell on wheels, but an ordered hell, all its fires under control.

Suddenly when, for the first time in months, something went wrong, the moving steel band left the rollers and writhed up toward the ceiling like a crimson snake, that crew went into action like a single man. In perhaps a second at the most the whole titanic apparatus was reversed, the snake was wound back again and, seconds later, was racing normally again to coil itself in nest drums.

Among 23,000 workers every man new his job, and he knew something else as well — his wages would be strictly fixed by his productivity. The more steel produced per hour the more he would be paid. The average was £19 for a week of five days or 42 hours but it varied widely between different trades and, with overtime, might be much more than that. All the workers were so interested in maximum production that the bulletin boards at many places in the plant were eagerly read as they recorded every day's output.

Efficiency pays in many other plants. For example, I watched a Jaguar being built near Coventry, from a few hunks of steel to a finished automobile, gliding, after a couple of hours, to its first outdoor tests, under its own power. The men on the drill presses, the women sewing upholstery, worked like machines without a glance at the visitors. They understood the meaning of production for they had learned it under siege and bombs, in wartime.

So did the girls who built television sets in a factory nearby. Having seen, some months earlier, the most modern television factory in Japan, I thought its British counterpart a rather grimy, inferior organization. So it was, outwardly, since it used one of the few old buildings hereabouts that escaped the German's saturation raid on Coventry.

A closer look showed me that the British were using better machinery than the Japanese. They had substituted automatic devices for much work still done by hand in Japan. The same imagination had been applied in a factory where telephone exchanges, some larger than a house, were made for markets all over the world, including Canada.

Or again, in the Scottish lowlands, a cloth factory had installed the very latest machines, recently invented. In an adjoining plant they made those fine cashmere sweaters that women value as both garments and status symbols. Here was not only efficiency but art. The scouts of this company had spied out in advance the fashion secrets of London, New York and Paris, the designers had kept ahead of the changing styles, even the color of the yarns had just been altered to suit next spring's demands.

British industry is working to provide the best products at the lowest price. It expects and does not fear competition, since competition made it in the first place more than a century ago. There was a lesson in all this for Canada but no Canadian can learn it properly without seeing our friendly competitors — and customers — actually at work.

Phone Talk Lengthens

St. Thomas Times-Journal

An American source says that telephone conversations are twice as long as they were 10 years ago. What applies to the United States no doubt applies to Canada.

In the early days of the telephone, conversations were restricted to three minutes. Anyone still talking at the end of that time was cut off by the operator. In course of time the limitation was removed, and as the telephone grew more popular and when no home was complete without one (or more), talks became prolix. That's a polite word for long-winded.

It is difficult to understand why, but the telephone seems to stimulate people to talk. Two women who may hold a casual conversation on the street will talk and talk on the telephone as if they had not seen each other for months. Two women who have been window-shopping all afternoon, with an interval for tea, will talk over the telephone again in the evening, chewing over all the doings of the afternoon.

From the aforesaid, it will be assumed that we think the chief offenders are women, but there is some excuse for them because they are alone in the house so much. We do not blame them for telephone marathons.

The worst culprits are the teenagers; especially the feminine of the species. Boys are limited in their talks, mainly devoted to sports but girls have a greater range of subjects — movies, dresses, boys, the last dance they were at or the next one they are going to, etcetra. We have seen a teenage girl lying on the bed, fully dressed, holding the telephone at her ear and settled down for a long long gab.

There is—probably more trivia talked over the telephone than in any other way.

OPEN GATES

Love is the manifestation of God in the human heart.

We read in the Bible that God is love. The whole of God's being, therefore, is love. There is nothing in the makeup of God — if we can use such a term — but love. Love is a personalized reality. Furthermore, it is a universal spirit Wherever God is there is love. In the universe created by Him, love is a reality which extends from one end of that universe to the other.

So love in the heart of man is a portion of God in man. We are made in the image and after the likeness of God. We have mind, personality, and will power. But in addition we have that which is of God himself, namely, love. If the lower creatures have it at all they do not have it in the same way or to the extent that we have it.

Love is the divine insignia stamped upon the human soul.

True religion, therefore, is love — the emotion of love, the disposition of love, the controlling presence of love. Jesus Christ was God's love for us put into bodily form and turned into the stream of history.

Let us not think that we can have religion without love. Belief is important — but love is religion itself. Only the loving heart knows God and opens its gates to receive Him.

20 YEARS AGO

Despite pleadings and warnings, motorists continue to park their motor vehicles on city streets in direct violation of the corporation's snow plough by-law, which prohibits the all night parking on the streets of Belleville. Last night city police "ticketed" fifteen motor cars all found parked on city streets and directly a hinderance to the operation of the city snow plough.

Prices for all lines of produce remained essentially unchanged from last week's quotations on the market, with attendance again being below normal. 'A' large eggs sold at 28 cents per dozen and at 25 cents and 23 cents for mediums and pullets; butter remained steady with vendors doing a brisk business at two pounds for 75 cents; chickens sold at 25 cents per pound with large fowl selling at $1.50 to $1.75. Wood vendors were scarce with only one or two trucks being in evidence; prices remained at the usual $10 per cord.

Those who have watched the children of Belleville making slides on the hills, especially when they run down upon a roadway where there is danger from passing traffic, realize that something ought to be done to give these youngsters the utmost healthy enjoyment and safety in these sports. Children ask for no frills. They prefer the rugged and the natural in sports. They would rather sleigh-ride down a hill than use an artificial slide.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

The principle of communism as far as the international party is concerned is to ensure that all intelligent people are in the party. If a person is intelligent but unwilling to come, body and britches, into the party, he is disposed of. This is indisputable, as far as the communist — controlled areas of the map are concerned.

It is not a new principle in politics. There were long periods of time in Europe in which, if you were not a Christian in the approved meaning of the term, you were disposed of. History consists, for centuries at a time, of the record of states or communities in which the ruling clique employed the time - honored process of elimination to those who resisted the status quo. And among us right now are any number of people who sincerely believe that the only practical method of handling those who disagree with locally accepted ways and means is to squash 'em, suppress 'em, or, for two pins, pack them off to some other place.

But the only thing wrong with the principle, as the communists are bound to find out, just as our Christian and libertarians forobears found out, that when the only intelligent people left are of the debased type of intelligence that will pander and submit to force for the sake of security and comfort, then you have a highly selected breed of toadies who collapse of their own fat. It isn't tyranny that changes the shape of the nations; it is toadyism.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

UNFOLD

The most natural craving of anyone is to be free — to be free to think, act and grow.

The inventors and scientists live happy lives — for they are continually unfolding their ideas and theories. And as they do it, they reveal new wonders that come with all their inspirations and thrills.

That method of education is best which allows a child to unfold naturally and happily along lines that stimulate its own personality.

A great book enables the mind to unfold and to play in new fields. A well acted play appeals to the imagination and acts upon the mind and heart alike.

A good listener permits himself to unfold in the presence of his informer — silently.

I like to think of the fallen autumn leaves nestling under the snow of winter near to the warm heart of Mother Nature, and then think of watching the new leaves of spring unfold. And then, later, when the buds appear, and finally the exquisitely colored flower — what an unfolding!

What a soothing influence comes over us when we unfold our aims or desires, or even troubles to some friend who is able to appreciate our feelings and match his or her sympathy and cheer with ours.

But perhaps the most useful unfolding is to unfold yourself to yourself!

Do this naturally and with an earnest desire to be true to your best instincts, and you cannot help but reflect this unfolding to those who love you most.

Unfold during this New Year of 1961 — and may God grant it be a happy unfolding during all the months ahead!

Thumb-Sucking Not Normal Behavior for 7-Year-Old

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have a 7-year-old child who sucks her thumb constantly. The only exception is when she is in school. Today she brought her pencil home and she had chewed it in two!

"I have discussed this with our family doctor. He tells me it is her nerves and that she will outgrow it, but what he fails to tell me is when. As a baby this child cried all the time she was awake, day and night. Three doctors (one a child specialist) told us at this time it was her nerves and she would outgrow it. Will she ever outgrow this condition, and if so, when? — C. H. K."

A baby is born with certain characteristics of strength and weakness, physical and emotional. Thereafter, as the child grows, it reacts to everything it encounters — in a word, environment.

The baby senses love or neglect, friction, worry, tension or other powerful feelings in parents or other family members. Competition with other children, at home or in school may be an important factor. Fear ca nbe instilled, or confidence encouraged.

Mrs. C. H. K.'s letter is typical of a disturbed child. Thumb-sucking in early childhood is quite normal and not to be worried about. However, when it persists, especially in such marked degree at 7 or more, it is not a normal pattern.

I would go so far as to say, on the basis of the letter, that this little girl, unless something is done to help her, will grow up into a frustrated woman. She should have help now.

It's significant that she sucks her thumb "except when she is in school."

The letter has the ring of intelligence and sincerity. I am going to reply without mincing words. It sounds as though there is something in the home environment which bothers the child deeply.

Sometimes parents, including highly intelligent people demand too much perfection of a child. Or sometimes two parents insist on quite different things from a child — both things good, but the child is confused by being led in two different directions at once. Or — well, there are various possible childhood conflicts, and some children, like some adults, can wilt and become fearful under pressure, while others thrive under it.

My strong feeling is that this child should be seen by a psychologist, or child guidance clinic, or the like. This includes a trained, objective look at the family environment.

The child may or may not need therapy. Perhaps disclosing to the parents some blind spot in their approach to the problem, or uncovering some rather simple family situation may be the answer.

The child, poor jittery younster, needs help, for incessant thumb-sucking at 7 is a danger sign and looking into the past, the constant crying is a tiny baby is not normal and is not due to "nerves."

Unless some organic disease as hyperthyroidism, is present, a child is not naturally "nervous." Something has to instill it.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Every time I open my mouth to take a bite of food, my jaw cracks. I experience no pain but it seems more annoying lately. I asked my destist but he gave no indication that it was due to my teeth. Should I see a physician? — Mrs. J. S."

Jaw-cracking" usually is the result of some looseness in the socket — just as some people can make their knuckles pop, or are "double-jointed." Some times malocclusion — that is, when the teeth don't meet properly — contributes to this, but since your dentist didn't find that to be the case, I see no cause for any further action.

Note to H. C. .: I know of no reason why a diphtheria shot during a cold would affect a child's hearing.

"Vitamin starvation" is possible even if you eat a lot. In order to check your diet to make sure you are getting necessary nourishment, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O Box 185, Dundee, Ill., for a copy of my pamphlet, "Vitamins, the Alphabet of Health."

Please enclose a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover handling and postage.

Purely Personal Prejudices:

Where there is character, there will always be conflict; a home in which harmony always reigns bespeaks a family in which character has been crippled by one psychological weapon or another; the aim should not be the avoidance of conflict, but its reasonable resolution by open means.

It is a mistake to believe that we can ordinarily "think things out" — we must talk things out, and our thinking usually limps a half-mile behind, sometimes never catching up.

No man is so old, successful or independent that, after a television appearance, his mother will not call up and say, "I thought you looked tired my dear."

No one student in ten thousand breaks down from "oerwork"; what they break down from is being over-matched in subjects they have no business taking at colleges they shouldn't be going to.

It is terribly easy to have the courage of your convictions if your convictions are based on what you desire rather than on what is objectively right; the only truly courageous man is he who acts against his desires and immediate self-interest, and such men are so rare that we call them not heroes but saints.

Of course we learn by experience: after we see a wreck on the road, we drive carefully for three or four blocks.

When most people praise "democracy" they are looking up and saying, "I'm as good as you are;" very few are looking down and saying, "You're as good as I am."

If I were a preacher the first sermon I should give would be based on a text by William James, who said: "The hell to be endured hereafter, of which theology tells us, is no worse than the hell we make for ourselves in this world by habitually fashioning our characters in the wrong way."

What is most typical of the human race is that we have entered the Age of Space before we have even learned how to cope with two inches of snow on a city street.

No man deserves to be called "ignorant" unless he is ignorant of his ignorance.

The chief difference between our grandfathers' day and ours is like that between the walker and the pedestrian: the former put his spirit into his legs, and the latter takes his life into his hands.

The celebrity who is constantly worried about becoming a "has-been" would have been better off to remain a "never-was."

After a certain age flattery should depress us, not delight us' as Washington Irving observed a long time ago. "Whenever a man's friends begin to compliment him about looking young, he may be sure that they think he is growing old."

A magnifying-glass makes everybody's skin look coarse and ugly; so does a magnifying mind.

Students Claim New World Bed Pushing Record

FREDERICTON (CP) — Twenty - four University of New Brunswick students arrived here Wednesday night after an all-day ordeal and claimed a new world bed pushing record.

They pushed their single passenger hospital bed over hill and dale at the rate of seven miles an hour to cover 102 miles in 14 hours and 20 minutes. They started from a point six miles east of Hampton at 6 a.m. and arrived in Fredericton at 8:20 p.m.

The previous record of 70 miles in 18½ hours was claimed last week by a group of University of Waterloo undergraduates who pushed a bed from London to Waterloo.

About 30 University of Western Ontario students said Wednesday they would aim at the world record by trying to push a bed from Windsor to London, about 113 miles.

UNB's stunt was aimed at publicizing its annual winter carnival opening here today.

Union Carbide Scholarships Increased $500

TORONT O— An increase of $500 in Union Carbide Canada Limited's scholarships and fellowships was announced today by company president, A. A. Cumming. Henceforth the scholarships will be valued at $2,500 and the fellowships at $3,000.

Union Carbide annually distributes 80 scholarships and four fellowships to students attending the 21 Canadian universities participating in the company's educational assistance program. Established in 1954, this program has assisted 173 students and expended over $430,000, including capital grants to 18 university building funds.

Under the revised program, scholarship students will receive $700 the first year and $600-a-year for the following three years of their academic studies. Previously they received $500-a-year. The fellowship awards have been increased from $1,500 to $2,000.

Along with the revisions in the amount of scholarships, Union Carbide has also broadened the eligibility requirements of the program. Previously the awards were open to secondary school students enrolling in an engineering, physical science, commerce or business administration course with a view to entering business or industry upon graduation. Now included are students planning to enter the field of education after receiving their degrees in any of the foregoing courses.

Inquest Hears Driver Lacked Proper Licence

EDMONTON (CP) — Diesel locomotive engineer Donald W. McIvor of Edmonton said Wednesday his 27-car CNR freight train slammed into a school bus Nov. 29 at "not less than 45 miles an hour" with its horn blowing, bell ringing, headlight shining and emergency brakes set on all cars.

He was testifying during the first day of an inquest into the deaths of 17 of the 41 teen-age passengers aboard the bus when it moved into the train's path at a level crossing near Lamont, Alta., about 45 miles northeast of Edmonton. The hearing continues today.

Frank Budney, 31, driver of the bus said he has never held a Class A licence required by law in Alberta for bus drivers. He said he had driven a school bus for four months during three periods including about one month at Lamont prior to the accident.

He said he wrote an examination for a B licence in 1959 and failed.

Gregory Moshanski, owner of the school bus, said Budney told him before beginning to drive the bus that he had a class A licence.

COULDN'T REMEMBER

Budney said the last thing he could remember before the accident was going to bed Nov. 28. "The next thing I remember is waking up in bed Dec. 26", he said.

Budney said be had never before met a train at the crossing. He said he opened the bus door before crossing the tracks "once in a while" but after further questioning said he opened the door whenever the windows were steamed up.

He said he always stopped about 25 to 30 feet from the tracks and crossed the tracks in first gear.

Kennedy Countermands Order Cutting Dependents Overseas

WASHINGTON (CP) — Acting under orders from President Kennedy, senior defence department officials today were busy cancelling detailed arrangements already under way for a severe cut in the number of American service dependents overseas.

The president announced at a press conference Wednesday that he had countermanded his predecessor's order for a limit of 200,000 service dependents overseas.

President Eisenhower took the action in an attempt to cut down on overseas dollar expenditure, but the new president announced that his defence secretary, Robert McNamara, had been able to find other ways to save the money.

McNamara was due to hold a press conference later today and was expected to be questioned about the means by which he intended to halt the outflow of dollars and gold with respect to the three services.

LACKS DRAMA

In general the president's press conference failed to touch the dramatic heights reached in the first one a week earlier, at which Kennedy announced the release by Russia of two American flyers it had been holding for seven months.

The predominant theme Wednesday was the president's expressed conviction—stated first in his inaugural address and then in his state of the union message—that at home and abroad things are going to get worse before they get better.

But he did say that things on the home front aren't bad enough to justify a tax cut at this time in an effort to improve business conditions.

Much of the questioning was devoted to domestic subjects but other foreign policy statements made by the president were:

1. It would be extremely difficult to achieve normal relations with Communist China while Peking still held the five Americans it had imprisoned there.

2. He would not commit himself to a meeting with Nikita Khrushchev if the Soviet prime minister came to the United Nations in March, but at the same time he did not rule it out.

2. Portugal had made known to the United States its concern about the U.S. attitude over the Santa Maria incident. The U.S. hoped that Portuguese interests in regaining control of the ship could be protected.

4. His view that Berlin remained one of the critical problems in East-West relations was unchanged.

5. He was not ready to make any announcement about possible visits to the United States by Western leaders such as Harold Macmillan, the British prime minister, or President Charles de Gaulle of France.

The president's press conference was carried live on television and radio, as was his first in office a week ago. White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said the next session won't be on a live basis, but he added this format "by no means" was being abandoned altogether.

CONGRESS

say may plunge to $85,000,000 by May from its one-time peak of $900,000,000.

On immigration, the CLC said it takes exception to an inflow of immigrants at times when Canadian workers face trouble in getting jobs.

HITS LABOR PLAN

Doubt and dislike were cast by the CLC on the government's plan to require foreign-controlled business and labor organizations in Canada to disclose financial information.

The government forecast legislation along this line in the speech from the throne last November.

"We are inclined to take exception to the coupling together of business and labor organizations since to our mind they cannot be so readily equated," the CLC said.

"There is far less secrecy about the operation of international unions in Canada than is the case with international corporations," the congress said.

CRITICIZES NEUTRALITY

On international affairs, the CLC said that neutrality is not Canada's role.

Until there is world disarmament, Canada must maintain, consistent with its resources, an "effective military establishment" which can be useful to itself, its allies and the United Nations, the congress said.

"While looking toward world disarmament, the congress does not believe that Canada can make a contribution in this direction by unilateral disarmament or by pursuing a policy of armed or disarmed neutrality."

Earlier, the CLC called for a royal commission and investigation of the monetary policies of the Bank of Canada and James E. Coyne, its controversial governor.

The government was asked to set up the inquiry in a special resolution passed unanimously by the executive council.

The CLC feels the Bank of Canada has been gripping the money supply too tightly—at a time when cash reserves should be more freely available.

MOVE AFOOT

said in an interview. "I for one am not prepared to endorse any such fundamental change."

Senator Roebuck said Mr. Morton's bill would violate the constitutional provision that all acts must be passed by both houses of Parliament before Crown assent is sought. It would be "an inadvisable precedent."

He favors instead the parliamentary delegation of authority for the Senate to pass resolutions dissolving marriages. And he said he could see no reason why this delegation of power should have to be made by both houses at each session. It could be permanent.

Senator Roebuck stressed that these are his own views. But he added that there is widespread opposition to Mr. Morton's bill and hinted that he has the backing of many Senators in his alternate plan.

APPEARS ACCEPTABLE

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax), chairman of the Commons committee which has handled the bills coming down from the Senate, commented that Senator Roebuck's plan appears to be acceptable to all Commons members he has sounded out.

"I think it's the perfect solution," Mr. McCleave said.

Mr. Morton said he has been in touch with those studying the situation and has let them know he would support "any reasonable amendment" reaching the Commons.

"All I want to do is amend the procedure so that we in the Commons don't have to handle these bills, by rubber-stamping them or otherwise," he said. "They (the Senate) are the best authority on how they should handle it."

The resolution or decree system could be established by a Senate amendment to the Commons bill. If the amendment carried in the upper house, the whole bill then would have to be sent back to the Commons for approval.

Government views on the question have not been stated. No cabinet ministers participated in the brief Dec. 16 debate on Mr. Morton's bill or in an earlier debate on a CCF private member's bill to broaden the grounds for divorce.

Macmillan Plans April Meeting With Kennedy

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan will go to Washington early in April for talks with President Kennedy, it was officially announced today. He is expected to arrive in Washington April 3 or 4.

An official announcement from the prime minister's office said he and his wife, Lady Dorothy, have accepted an invitation first to visit the West Indies during Parliament's Easter recess.

They will arrive in Trinidad March 24 and their visit will end in Jamaica April 3.

In Washington the White House announced that Kennedy and Macmillan will confer there the week of April 2. A round of informal talks is planned, an Associated Press report said.

To Remember Tough Lessons, Use 3-Times Over System

By LESLIE J. NASON, ED. D., WITH HARRY KARNS

(Article 3)

Much of the knowledge you are expected to absorb must be obtained through reading.

But here's a very sad fact: Most of what nearly everybody reads evaporates quickly from his memory.

In today's chat, we are going to give you a plan which will help anchor in your mind a large part of what you read so it will be there ready for use when needed.

The outcome of reading by hap-hazard methods is so bad that we sometimes wonder why people bother at all. Tests have shown that a so-called good reader can get 20 per cent of the ideas in an article in the first reading, but that a week later little of the information remains lodged in his mind.

You'll never be able to plug all the holes in this sieve called the human brain. But you can plug up many of them if you go about it in the right way.

George told us he couldn't answer questions on tests to the satisfaction of his teacher. We took a look at his papers. They revealed that George wasn't getting or retaining precise meanings from his textbook.

Our advice to George was simple. Here we suggest it to you as a general pattern for your reading. In the latter article, we will go into greater detail.

ONCE ISN'T ENOUGH

Read your assignments three times, as follows:

One, skim through the entire assignment to get a general idea of what the chapter is about.

Two, keep this general idea in mind and read the assignment again with the aim of fitting the information and that idea together.

READ

Three, having fitted the big idea and the information together in a main pattern, read for details and exact meanings and associate them with the proper larger items in the general outline.

Thurman Wade, the speed-reader we told you about in the first article, compares reading with the working of a jigsaw puzzle:

"You don't progress very fast if you scatter the pieces on the table and try to fit them together by trial and error.

"The smart jigsaw puzzler first takes a good look at the picture on the box. Is it a landscape? Then he sees that the blue pieces are going to fit into the sky and the green pieces into the trees and that spotted pieces represent the grazing cow.

"He conditions himself to what is coming and he's ready to work the puzzle. It's the same with reading. You have to get that big idea before you can fit the reading material into its correct perspective."

But what about our hero, George?

George practised reading by the three steps described above for 10 days. He then took another test.

At the end of George's paper the professor wrote:

"Good, at least you've learned to think precisely."

HITTING ON ALL 10

George, who had been earning "D's" up to this point, received a grade of "B" for the semester. He had learned to read for meaning instead of just gazing at words. He had learned to use his entire thinking space while reading.

Few persons use their brains to ful capacity.

Of the brain's conscious thinking space only one-tenth (just a hall closet, nothing more) is needed to listen to the actual words said by a speaker. What happens to the rest of the floor space?

It doesn't stand vacant. Something moves in. The space is filled from some source from the sights and sounds around you, from the radio, the TV, the honking of cars in the street.

It may be occupied by feelings of hunger, frustration, or weariness, or thoughts of ambition or resentment. It may be filled with apprehension, fear, worry or a jumble of all these things.

You should — and you can — fill in those improperly filled spaces with thoughts of your own choosing and employ them in definite and appropriate tasks of learning.

Thus, reading should be done against some background of purpose. If it is, full attention can be focused on the assignment at hand and an efficient use made of time.

Summary:

1. Read to get the purpose, the big idea, the general picture.

2. Read again to fit the material into that picture.

3. Read for details and exact meanings.

(Tomorrow: More about how to read for better grades.)

Around The Tee

A rink composed of Al McCullam, T. A. Carruthers, Bill Riley with Mac White as skip will journey to Cobourg on Friday to take part in the competition to select a representative of the district in the Brier playdowns leading to the Canadian championship. There will be eight rinks in the competition, a knockout draw, and the Belleville rink will play a rink from the Peterborough Curling Club. A district playoff will be held at the local rink around February 17th to decide the rink going to the Ontario playoffs.

On Wednesday evening the playoffs within the Quinte Club were held and witnessed by a large gallery. There were four rinks in the match and the games were on ten ends. In the one match a rink of Dick Lumbers, Ken LaPalm, Bob Lanning with Charlie Cox as skip met a rink of Charles Bonter, Harold Wilkinson, Ron Benn with Ernie Wilkinson as skip and the Cox rink was victorious by a close score. In the other match the White rink met a rink of Ross Booth, Dr. McCorquodale, Doug Ashley with Ben Corke at the helm and this rink could not seem to get going and were seven down at the end of six ends. They made a slight comeback but not enough to overcome the big lead.

The two winners hooked up and the White rink was much steadier throughout the final game. In the eighth end White was lying seven, one short of possible, when Charlie Cox threw his last stone. The veteran skip took the out-turn and made a "cold" draw to the button to count shot. It was the mas perfect shot of the night and Charlie was given a great hand by the players and the spectators. The Quinte Club will be well represented in the playoffs. The rink is sound from top to bottom and any one of the players can make the tough shot when needed and all are good on the "take-out." They will meet a lot of tough competition and here's wishing them the best of luck.

Preparations are moving rapidly ahead for the men's open bonspiel which will open at the Quinte Curling Club on Tuesday next at nine in the morning. This is the big event of the year for the local club and several committees have been busy getting the loose ends together. There will be 64 rinks in competition with the winners of each day's play coming back on Saturday to compete for the beautiful sets of prizes that have been arranged.

There will be two three-game winners and two two-game winners each day. If a rink loses its first game it must win the next two to move into Saturday and if a rink wins its first game it must win the other two in the draw to be eligible. Some of the outstanding curlers in the province will take part in the spiel and the matches will be graced by Al Parkhill, president of the Ontario Curling Association, who will bring his Oshawa rink down, the members of which are all former residents of this city. There are a number of top-notch rinks from the local club competing and will no doubt make the jewellery class. The ice will be repainted and flooded during the weekend and Mr. Flintoff states there will be the best ice possible and there should be no excuses.

The women's section of the Curling Club will follow with its open bonspiel the next week and the rinks will compete for the beautiful Ontario Intelligencer trophy and accompanying miniatures as the main trophy of the spiel. There will be two days of curling and some notable outside rinks have signified their intention of competing. Teher will be splendid prizes for the winners and the door of hospitality will be wide open.

A most successful meeting was concluded with a benediction by Mr. Coleman.

Sweet Holiday Supper

New idea for left-over ham! Cut fairly thick slices and arrange in shallow baking dish. Place slice of pineapple, fresh or canned, on each slice of ham. Combine one-third cup melted butter and two-thirds cup honey. Brush generously over top. Bake in hot (425 degree) oven about 20 minutes basting frequently with the balance of the butter-honey mixture.

BUTTERED SQUASH

Perfect companion for turkey or ham. Cut a thin slice off each end of three pepper squash. Halve squash and scoop out seeds. Place in shallow baking dish with centre cut down. Pour water to a depth of one-half inch in dish. Bake in 450 degree oven thirty to forty minutes. Remove from dish and brush centre cuts of squash generously with soft butter. Fill hollows with hot creamed onions, preferably small ones, dot with butter and sprinkle each with a few capers.

Lines on Life

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

There is nothing as permanent in the world as change. The 20th Century is no different in that respect from the eras that preceded it, with one exception: The rapidity of the changes.

It used to take generations before anything new could penetrate human living. Now, every few years, inventions and discoveries occur with such quickening pace that the face of the earth changes often with a single lifetime.

But the naked eye sees only theobvious changes: Travel, communication and the like — radio, television, jet planes and the telephone. The more important changes we can't see as easily.

These are the changes in our values, the changes in our attitudes and points of view, in what we make important or deem unimportant.

What was once dear and precious now is considered trivial or, at best, optional. What was once cheap and perhaps even vulgar now is thought to be important and worthwhile.

We have moved, in our time, from morals to morals. We have no special code of conduct of our own. We just want to keep up our acceptance on the part of others — just keep up the morale!

The result is that we develop standards which are no standards, which change with the passing fancy and the passing fad.

We float and are whisked about from pillar to post. We lack backbone. Too often we are only wishbone.

Our new god is "self-expression." But what are we expressing? The finest, the noblest, the best that is in us? Or is self-expression for many an excuse for vulgarity, greed and excessive lust?

The ancient world used the interesting example of the charioteer and his horses Locking up the horses in the stable they called inhibition. But setting them loose so that they could run wild and become a menace they labelled self - expression. Harnessing the horses to a chariot, putting them to some useful task, they called self-control. We are in peril of being reduced to mediocrity. We like what everybody likes and dislike what everybody else dislikes. We go where everybody else goes and say what everybody says. We are even dangerously close to thinking what everyone else is thinking.

To be redeemed from mediocrity, we need to stand aside from the crowd, to know what we stand for, and what we won't stand for.

We need develop codes of our own that reflect our deepest and our finest. We need the moral courage to protest and to dissent from the majority when the majority has succumbed to error and vulgarity.

Yes, we need to learn self-expression. But first, we must ask the deeper question: What kind of self are we really expressing?

Would Your Husband Take You To a Film He Has Seen Before?

By MARGARET McKINLEY

Love is a many splendored thing . . . especially when a man takes his wife to the pictures without telling her he's seen the film.

This kind of gesture is more indicative of true love than the man who brings flowers or chocolates for his wife, says a famous U.S. psychologist, Dr. Helen Hall Jennings.

"Sitting through a movie twice is a sacrifice, and a man who does this wants to give his wife pleasure at his own expense. Further, he wants no credits for it," adds Dr. Jennings, who has just completed a survey on modern attitudes to love.

And the man who brings flowers and chocolates?

"A lovely gesture, but no sign of true love," she reports. The gifts, she points out, might well come from a loving heart — but also from the conscience of an unfaithful husband!

And if he remembers not only their wedding anniversary but the date of their engagement with such tokens it is likely that he is more in love with his past youth than with her.

CLINGS TO PAST

"A man who does this after some years of marriage reveals a desire to cling to the romantic past when life was sweet and ideal," she believes.

Many persons are unable to spot real love, says Dr. Jennings. "One of the complaints heard most often by psychologists and marriage counsellors is the one: 'My wife (or husband) doesn't love me any more (or as much)'.

"In a great many instances, however, love is there but the individual is unable to see it because he's looking for something else.

"Far too many people look for the fictional trappings of romance. When these aren't present they feel love is waning.

"But romantic gestures are only a game that married persons should outgrow. Real love is displayed in other ways — by unselfishness, consideration of the other's feeling and the ability to give of one's self to the other". But, she adds, tender and sentimental feelings must remain in the marriage. These can be expressed in various ways:

Tolerance on the part of a woman towards her husband's mechanical bunglings about the house as he tries to mend the plumbing or fix a fuse.

A wink to his wife from a husband at a crowded gathering, when both are at separate ends of a room.

A refusal on the part of a man or wife to say "I told you so" when he or she wins an argument.

TRUE TEST

The true test of love? "This" Dr. Jennings reports, "Comes when a wife thinks her husband is wonderful and when a husband thinks his wife is beautiful — after a full year of marriage".

More thoughts on love:

'It isn't spring when a young man's fancy turns to love . . . it's Christmas. This bit of heresy comes from sociologist Raymond Clouder who says: "Studies show that young people are drawn together romantically much more so around Christmas time than in Spring".

It's basic, he explained. Apparently the need for warmth in December stirs up romantic feelings. "I imagine most of our June birdes had December romances", he says.

And America's jewellers report there has been a "severe" 'falling off in the purchase of expensive rings.

"The modern girl isn't so much concerned about flashing a real sparkler on her hand", jewellers in conference in Chicago were told. "She'd rather have a cheaper ring and use the extra money for furnishings.

Canadian Arctic Life Viewed by W.I.

The president opened the January meeting of the Wooler Women's Institute in the usual manner and welcomed all guests. The January meeting is the annual men's meeting and all the members bring their husbands to be entertained.

There were 65 members and guests present. Several thank you notes were read. Mrs. Mac Anderson, convener for the evening, gave a reading. "A recipe for the New Year" and Mrs. John MacCallum favored with a solo. This was followed by a reading by Mrs. Charles McColl, "Husbands". Neil Root and Lylo Williams of Frankford, sang several selections with Neil playing the accompaniment on the electric guitar.

Mr. Hugh O'Neil of Trenton introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Frank Ross also of Trenton. Mr. Ross had previously spent nine years with the R.C.A.F. He showed some outstanding pictures of Life in the Canadian Arctic, and accompanied them with a most interesting commentary. This was followed by community singing and a vocal solo, by Mrs. Hugh O'Neil. Mr. Angus Gunter gave two readings "Temper" and "Can't say we never had a word". Two amusing contests brought the program to a close.

Refreshments were served by the committee.

Foster Parents Make Italian Girl Happy

MONTREAL (CP) — Maria Pia Calbe is an 11 - year - old Italian girl who had never had toys of her own until a few months ago.

Her widowed mother is unable to work because of a heart condition and Maria is one of hundreds of children supported by Canadians through the Foster Parents' Plan.

Her foster parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Gourlay of Barriere, B.C. Before Christmas they sent her an extra cash gift of $5 to buy toys for herself.

The toys were bought and Maria gratefully wrote to the Gourlays saying she would like to send them a gift but couldn't.

Instead, she and her mother went to the Canadian military cemetery near Ortona, her home, and placed white flowers on the grave.

"It has always touched me to see those rows of white crosses in remembrance of the glorious sacrifice of Canadian soldiers who, with their own lives, saved our country," wrote Maria.

A British Columbia regiment, the Seaforth Highlanders, took part in the battle of Ortona in December, 1943. The town was captured Dec. 28 after one of the fiercest engagements of the Second World War.

Talk on B.G.H. Given at H-S Association

TWEED — Dr. Russell G. Bateman of Belleville, was the speaker at last Wednesday night's meeting of Tweed Consolidated Home and School Association, and in his remarks he explained the workings of Belleville General Hospital, its problems in providing service to the ever-increasing number of patients and the doctor's place in hospital services.

He admitted that the introduction of the Ontario Hospital Services plan in Ontario was one of the chief reasons for the urgent need for more hospital accommodation, but was not the sole contributing factor. The modern trend is "go to the hospital if you are sick." Future plans for Belleville hospital are for a total of 650 beds by 1980, compared to the present 250 to 275.

The speaker was introduced by Vice-president Keith Cotton, who acted as chairman for the evening in the absence of President John Bancroft.

Congregational Meeting

VICTORIAN AVE. BAPTIST

Members and adherents of the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church met recently for the annual congregational supper and business meeting. Dinner was served by the Dorcas Association and all enjoyed a delicious meal and a friendly fellowship together. In keeping with the Baptist Jubilee Advance emphasis for 1961 on Stewardship and Enlistment, a film entitled, "Dedicated Men" was shown.

The business of the evening was under the chairmanship of Rev. Gordon Woodcock who conducted a memorial service in memory of Mrs. Arthur Huddleston, Miss Margaret Hagerman, Mrs. Leslie Fraser, Ft/Lt Peter Robson, Mr. William Cranston and Mrs. Frederick Cook. Mr. Bert Orr read a passage of Scripture and Mr. Howard Hall led in prayer.

The presentation of the reports showed that each organization had enjoyed a successful year. The evening gave much cause for thanksgiving to God for the rich blessings and progress of the church both spiritually and materially under the consecrated leadership of the pastor, Rev. Gordon Woodcock.

The report of the church clerk, Miss E. Nurse, showed that 35 new members had been received, 22 by baptism, and 13 by letter, bringing the total membership to 365. The total givings of all organizations were $27,104 and $7,428 was sent to missions.

The church appreciated the faithful service of the choir under the leadership of Mrs. A. Reilly and Mr. William Connor, organist, for the special music each Sunday, as well as the Easter Cantata "Penitence, Pardon and Peace," "From Darkness to Light," and the Christmas Cantata "Bethlehem."

Mrs. T. Stovell presented the budget and Mr. Woodcock gave the report of the nominating committee, and the proposed slate of officers which was approved.

During the past year, much time was given to prayer and thought in regard to the purchase of property in east Belleville to further the extension of the Baptist work in that part of the city. An extension committee, under the leadership of Mr. Arnold Orr, was formed consisting of 12 members and the audience heard with interest their verbal report and recommendations for a church building to be erected in the near future.

The Experts Say

Pancake Tuesday Founded By Thrifty Housewives

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Thrifty housewives who used up their stock of eggs, grease, lard and drippings before Lent were the unwitting founders of Pancake Tuesday, a custom that has survived generations.

The ingredients, then forbidden during Lent, were used up on Pancake, or Shrove, Tuesday, the day before the start of Lent, by making pancakes.

This year Shrove Tuesday is Feb. 14 which also happens to be St. Valentine's Day. As in early times, women in many countries will prepare pancakes for their family's dinner.

Early pancakes were made of four symbolic ingredients—eggs for Lenten sacredness, flour for the staff of life, salt for wholesomeness and milk for innocence.

Today, with the addition of various fruits, cream cheese and sour cream they have taken many forms and are known by many names including flapjacks, griddle cakes, blinis, blintzes, flannel cakes and crepes.

FREEZE FOR LATER

Prepared mixes have simplified preparation but many people still prefer to make their own. With the increasing popularity of home freezers, it's often a good idea to make double the amount and freeze half. Then when you're rushed you can pop the frozen pancakes into the toaster or a 350-degree oven and in a few minutes they're ready to eat.

Here's a pancake recipe that yields 16 four - inch pancakes. You need 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour; 2 tsps. sugar (optional); 1 tbsp. baking powder; 1 tsp. salt; 2 cups milk; 2 eggs, beaten; 1 tbsp. melted shortening.

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add milk to well-beaten eggs and pour into flour mixture, stirring just enough to blend. Don't worry about little lumps—they'll disappear during cooking. Stir in melted shortening.

For even size and uniform cooking, dip into batter with ¼ cup measure and pour onto highly greased griddle or heavy frying pan. Cook until edges of pancakes are light brown and tiny bubbles that have formed on top have begun to break. Turn and cook the other side until golden brown.

TRY PEACHES

Serve immediately with lots of butter and maple syrup and bacon, sausages or minced pork patties. Spread, don't stack, pancakes on cookie sheets as they are finished and keep in a warm oven until serving time.

To make peach griddle cakes sift together 2½ cups bread flour; ½ tsp. salt; 1 tbsp. granulated sugar, and 1 tsp. baking soda.

Add slowly 1½ cups sour milk, and one whole egg and one yolk beaten together. Beat briskly until smooth then add 1 tbsp. melted shortening and 1 cup fresh or canned freestone peaches which have been finely sliced or chopped, then beat the mixture again.

Bake the cakes on a hot, generously greased griddle. Serve hot accompanied by a hot peach syrup made with the juice from a can of peaches; ½ cup brown sugar (less if you prefer); a dash of salt, and a few drops of vanilla extract. Bring to a boil and simmer for a few minutes. They may also be served with plain cream or sour cream instead.

FLOODS HIT BELGIUM

CHARLEROI, Belgium (AP) Several villages in southern Belgium were flooded Tuesday night by the rising waters of the Sambre and Meuse rivers. Troops and firemen worked all night to rescue isolated householders. In some communities floodwaters submerged the lower-storeys of homes.

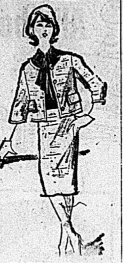
Fashion News In Print



By VERA WINSTON

The prints are starting to trickle in and what pretty prints they are!

This charming little day-into-evening dress is of pure silk in tones of blue or of red in a pretty paisley type pattern. It has an asymmetric half tunic in front and a small self bow at the side seam, and is completely silk-lined.

Looks lovely under furs and perfectly entrancing under moonlit resort skies.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Murray P. — She's probably the world's worst housekeeper.

Virginia P. — So what? I make up for it in other ways.

Murray P. — A man can take just so much of sloppy housekeeping. We've been married seven years and have a three-year-old son. At first I enjoyed the way Ginny and I dashed out of the house to see a movie, or to greet freinds arriving at the airport. "Obey that impluse" was her slogan. It was so different from my mother's way that I was fascinated.

But we're older now. Ginny's 29 and ought to stop kicking things under the bed before company comes. She might wash out a few cups and saucers during the day, instead of taking a fresh set every time she wants a cup of coffee. Things pile up. You should see the mess that greets me.

When the baby came, she stocked up on gadgets — all sorts of choppers, peelers, mashers. Are they ever used? Of course not. We're all eating out of jars, can, cartons and packages — provided I remind Ginny that there's nothing left and it's time to shop.

he's a cheerful, bright woman and a devoted mother to Randy. With such a wonderful qualities, why can't she sober up and act her age when it comes to running a home properly? She just doesn't care to.

Virginia P. — If it were up to Murray, I'd be like his mother and have a broom or a spoon in my hand all day. He knew what a dim view I took of those Sunday dinners that took three hours to make two hours to eat, and three more to clean up after. I thought I'd convinced him that a TV dinner, plus a Sunday outing, is a far better idea.

Okay, so I'm a poor housekeeper. Why keep arguing about it? You'd think Murray would accept the fact that things lying around don't bother me the way they bother him, and he'd pick them up himself instead of delivering pep talks to me all the time.

I can't shine on all fronts. He admits I keep our little boy in good shape and spirits. I'm also the secretary of our family 'society,' a job which keeps me busy planning family meetings four times a year, and, along with Murray, I'm active in Masonic activities.

It's about time he stopped trying to reform me.

The Council — Perhaps to impress upon Murray that she's at the opposite pole from his mother, Virginia is leaning so far backwards that she resembels here mother-in-law in rigidity! Refusing to budge from her lackadaisical position, she's as blind to the happy medium as the most obsessive dust-chaser.

In Murray's behalf, we remind Virginia that there is an irreducible minimum of housework required in every home, in the interests of sanitation as well as sanity.

Real freedom to do interesting, exciting, creative things, Virginia, springs from as orderly way of life. With the physical "essentials" out of the way, all attention can be directed to the jaunts, adventures and enrichments you wish for. But leaving and returning to mounds of filth, and lists of unattended-to errands, is dispiriting and distracting. Usually it all but nullifies the buoyant effect of the "stolen" escape.

But from Virginia's corner, we'd have Murray see the job of Housewife as the hardest in the world! It's so complex that sociologists now view it as a profession, requiring long training plus a "flair."

So, with three changes, namely Virginia's acceptance of responsibility for a smoothly-running home, Murray's forbearance and good-natured assistance, and as many electric labor-saving devices as the traffic will bear, the P. household can turn into a full-fledged home.

Basically, Virginia is an ideal homemaker, for she has the warmth and graciousness which can turn even a hovel into a cozy shelter. All she must remember from now on, however, is to add a few flicks of a dust-mop to her friendly ministrations.

Cooking and cleaning for one's family are, in one sense, as much a part of love as hugging and kissing.

W.I. Hears Talk on C.A.S. Work

MADOC — Harts-Riggs Women's Institute held their January meeting at the home of Mrs. Ted Meraw on Wednesday evening with Mrs. Allan Franks presiding.

Mrs. Cecil Woods had prepared a paper on the topic, "That man is the best cosmopolite, who loves his native country best". The subject was well arranged and the members are indebted to Mrs. Woods for the time and the thoughtful preparations spent on the subject. In her absence, it was read by Mrs. Field Allen.

GUEST SPEAKER

Following the business period Mrs. Bateman introduced Mr. Adamson, representative of the Children's Aid Society of Hastings County. Mr. Adamson clearly explained the necessity of the C.A.S., the work done, the methods followed, and some of the rewarding results. He answered numerous questions asked by members.

Lunch was served by the hostess. Everyone felt that the meeting had been most instructive and worthwhile.

Appreciation to the guest speaker was expressed by all the members.

Apples are Staples For Dessert

It is a joy to me to watch my little grandchildren eat simple puddings. The way they spooned into an apple cottage pudding that I served made me decide to give you the recipe.

Have you made a cottage pudding lately? The batter I am giving you may be used over other fruits too, such as canned cherries and their juices or fresh frozen raspberries or strawberries or blueberries.

APPLE COTTAGE PUDDING:

Place thick layers of sliced peeled tart apples (I used Spys) in a deep greased baking dish. You will need at least 4 cups or more, well packed. Add 2 tablespoons hot water or canned apple juice. Sprinkle with 1-2 cup sugar and 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg and put in warm oven while you make this Cottage Pudding Batter: One-quarter cup butter or margarine, 2-3 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1-2 cup milk, 1 3-4 cups sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt. Cream the butter, add sugar gradually while beating. Add egg and beat in. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt; add alternately with the milk. Turn over hot apples in baking dish and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 40 to 50 minutes. Serve warm with milk or cream.

APPLE ROLY POLY:

4 tablespoons softened butter or margarine, 3 cups chopped tart apples (about 4 apples), 1-4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind biscuit dough (see below).

Make Biscuit dough: Two cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons shortening, about 2-3 cup milk. Sift the dry ingredients together; then cut the shortening into them using pastry blender, until the mixture is the consistency of coarse corn meal. Add enough of the milk while stirring with a fork, to make a soft dough that can be easily handled. Turn onto a lightly floured board and knead lightly about 20 seconds. Then roll or pat into a rectangle 12" x 8". Spread with 1 tablespoon soft butter. Then cover to within 1-2" of the edge with the apples which have been cored, pared and chopped finely. Sprinkle with a mixture of the brown sugar and cinnamon and roll up like a jelly roll. Then cut the roll into 1 1-2" crosswise slices. Meanwhile boil the granulated sugar, 2 tablespoons of the butter, the water, lemon juice and rind together for 10 minutes. Pour this syrup into a shalow baking dish 10 x 8 x 2". Place the rolls, cut side down, in the syrup. Spread them with the remaining 1 tablespoon of butter. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes. Serve warm with some syrup from the pan poured over each roll. Top with whipped cream roll. Too with whipped cream Serves 8.

H-S Assoc. Hears Talk on 'Making Wills'

DESERONTO — The Deseronto Home and School Association met on January 19 at the public school. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Sweetnam, the vice-president, Mrs. Jackson, welcomed those who had braved the extremely cold weather to attend.

The principal of the school, Mr. P. Roach, reported the completion of the basketball court.

The Association decided to hold a 'Valentine Tea' at the home of Mrs. D. C. McVicker on February 8th. Mrs. C. Gray was appointed as convener and Mrs. Punchard will be in charge of the tea table.

Mrs. Doris Lucas gave a demonstration of hair dressing which proved of great interest to the audience.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. Kimmett.

The attendance prize was won by the pupils of Mrs. Calver's room.

The February meeting will be held at the high school and it is hoped that an excellent crowd will be present.

MAKING OF WILLS

The speaker of the evening, Judge J. F. Smith, was introduced by Mr. Roach. His address was about everyday law that everyone should know, particularly the making of wills. He cited some interesting cases where mix-ups were caused by faulty planning of the will. It was an interesting and informative talk and held the interest of all.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Smith.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

QUESTION BOX

Question — I recently gave quite a large evening party. Among my guests was a well-known singer. I was embarrassed almost to tears when one of the other guests went up to him and insisted that he sing for us. I would never have asked him to do so, and I thought it was extremely out of line for this woman to put him in the position of having to sing or seeming "high-hat" if he didn't! He was a good sport, and obliged by singing two songs. I apologized afterwards, and he just shrugged it off. Am I right in feeling the way I do about this? — Mrs T. P. H., Chicago, Ill.

Answer — You most certainly are! I have discussed this with several actors and other members of the theatrical profession, and many of them say they shun parties for just the reason you mention. Too often, apparently, the hostess herself is guilty of asking that he do "his act" for her guests. This is extremely unfair. I commend you for your attitude! A performer likes to have "time off" from his job as much as anybody. To impose upon him when he attends a party, is inexcusable. If this should happen to you again, announce that you simply will not allow a song to be sung, or a joke to be told, by the celebrity who is a guest in your home. Some folks may think you are "stuffy", but you will be doing the right thing, so disregard their comments.

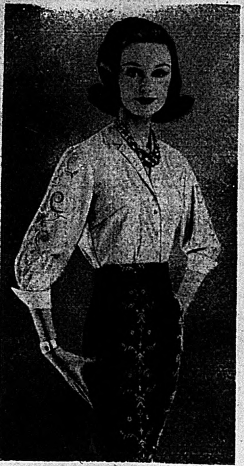
Question — Last month I spend a week end with friends who live in the country. I was sure they wouldn't mind, os, without asking, I took my little miniature poodle along. I didn't know they had a cat and we had a lot of trouble the whole time with the two animals. I recently called my hostess to again thank her for the hospitality (I had already written) and she seemed rather cool towards me. Could this have been caused by my having taken the dog with me? — Mrs. L. E., Poplar Bluff, Mo.

Answer — It most certainly could! It is a definite imposition to take a dog (no matter how well trained) anyplace, without asking permission first. This is particularly true when you are to be a house guest. There are many reasons for this. Allergies, a pet in the family you are to visit (as in your case) or even a definite dislike of dogs in general. For animal lovers, and I include myself, this is hard to understand. We sort of take it for granted that everyone will love our pets as much as we do. Just know that some don't! Ask before you take him anywhere, even for a casual visit to a friend, unless you know beforehand that he will be welcome.

ENDS SEGREGATION

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia abandoned its policy of massive segregation in public education Tuesday. Governor Ernest Vandiver signed into law three bills designed to keep schools open with a minimum of integration.

Entertaining at Home



By TRACY ADRIAN

Home entertaining is at its height during the cold winter evenings and here is a hostess outfit that would please the most particular party-giver.

The shiny cotton blouse is in pale pink with tiny jewel buttons forming the closing and shocking pink embroidery decorating the three-quarter cuffed sleeves.

With the shirt are reed-slim trousers in rich plum. They are also adorned with shocking pink embroidery.

St. Mark's E.G. Appoints 1961 Officers

DESERONTO — The first meeting of St. Mark's Evening Guild for 1961 was held at the rectory on January 24th with ten members present.

Canon Coleman spoke of his trip to Vancouver and showed sime pictures taken during the trip.

The election of officers was presided over by Canon Coleman as follows: president — Mrs. V. Joyce; vice-president — Mrs. Lois Spence; secretary — Mrs. Anne Waddingham; treasurer — Mrs. Audrey Gray.

Mrs. Spence and Mrs. Cork were elected to shop for materials for the fall bazaar. The next meeting will be held on February 21st with Lois Spence and Marilyn Fraser as co-hostesses.

After the meeting closed lunch was served by Mrs. Margaret Lyons and Mrs. Margaret Jackson. A social hour followed.

Peas Out of the Pod

Peas out of the pod include the canned and frozen ones. Both types are graded for quality and sometimes for size. The grades for quality are: Canada Fancy and Canada Choice — a third grade — Canada Standard applies to canned peas alone. The grade mark on the label of the package or tin indicates not only a quality product but also assures that the peas were packed under good sanitary conditions in government inspected plants. Canada Fancy peas are as nearly perfect as possible in flavor, texture and color. The pack has a minimum of defects. Canada Choice peas may not be quite so young and tender or quite so uniform in color and texture but they still have good characteristic flavor. Canada Standard canned peas are likely to be more mature and firmer than the top two grades. There may be more broken peas in the pack but flavor and odor are normal.

Peas that are graded for size are passed through screen meshes. The grade size is given on the container label by number, for example Size 1, Size 2, or by word designation—Small. The largest size pea is usually Size 5. When peas are not graded for size this must be indicated on the label.

Top quality peas, that is Canada Fancy peas, are the best for use as a dinner vegetable. Canada Choice peas are also used in this way, or they may be combined with other vegetables or used in casseroles. Canada Standard peas are popular for soups, stews and creamed dishes.

The selection of either canned or frozen peas is a matter of personal preference. Comparison of price between frozen and canned should be made on a cost-per-serving basis rather than between whole containers.

Canned peas are precooked; they need only to be heated. Frozen peas should always be cooked according to package directions. Both become something even better if one or two tablespoons of snappy chopped onions are added along with the butter. Rosemary, marjoram, nutmeg and savory are also good seasoners for peas; ¼ teaspoon of any one of these herbs to 3 cups of peas is a good guide for the beginner.

Onions Add Flavor, Variety To Your Winter Meals

This is a season of good quality and plenty for the snappy, succulent yellow onion. Seen in stores everywhere are both bulk and packaged displays. The latter are usually in transparent bags of three to five lbs., graded and marked Canada No. 1 and in some cases size is also indicated. Small yellow onions make good boilers, medium sized ones are bakers and choppers, while large onions slice and fry well.

Look again at that onion display — there's color there — yellow, white and red — choice will depend on how strong an onion flavor is desired. White onions have the mildest flavor and therefore are the preferred ones for eating raw in salads, sandwiches and relishes. Yellow onions have medium strength, are good general purpose onions and are the most plentiful. For those who like a strong flavor, red onions will fill the bill.

Choose onions for quality — select those that —are firm and solid
—have dry crackling skins
—are of uniform shape
—have bright, clear appearance.

Onions that are beginning to sprout or are soggy and moist should be avoided.

Store onions in a cool dry place to prevent sprouting and deterioration. Storage life for onions kept in the kitchen is about 2 to 3 weeks.

Preparation — unless in the mood for a good cry, peel onions under cool water, or turn on exhaust fan to draw fumes away from face. The Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, suggests using onions to make a rich luncheon or supper dish:

ONION CHEESE PIE

1-3 cup butter, 1¼ cups sifted unsalted cracker crumbs, 2½ cups sliced and quartered onion, 2 tablespoons butter, 1½ cups milk, 3 eggs, slightly beaten, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 to 3 cups shredded medium Cheddar Cheese.

Melt the 1-3 cup butter. Add to cracker crumbs and mix thoroughly, then press firmly into a deep 9" pie plate to form a pie shell. Saute onion in the 2 tablespoons butter until transparent but not brown, 7 to 7 minutes. Arrange on crumb crust. Scald milk, then stir gradually into beaten eggs. Add salt, pepper and cheese, mix well, then pour over onion. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until a silver knife inserted in centre comes out clean and top is golden brown, 25 to 30 minutes. 6 servings.

The Consumer Section in Ottawa says one of the tastiest treats to come out of the kitchen lately is French Fried Onion Rings. Four dips for the rings before frying are absolutely necessary to give a clinging coat and prevent outside layer from scaling off.

FRENCH FRIED ONION RINGS

3 large yellow cooking onions, ½ cup milk, ½ cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon water.

Peel onions. Cut into slices slightly more than ¼ inch thick, then separate into rings. Dip into milk, then into salted flour, then into beaten egg and water, and back again into the flour. Let stand a few minutes for coating to dry. Fry in deep fat heated to 370 degrees F. to 375 degrees F. or until a 1 - inch cube of day-old bread browns in 60 seconds. Drop in a few onion rings at a time and fry until a delicate brown, about 2 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve immediately or keep in a warm place. 6 servings.

Mr., Mrs. Thomas B. Hallam Mark Diamond Wedding

Sixty years ago on January 31st in the parish church of Ratcliffe-on-Soar, Nottinghamshire, England, Miss Rhoda Ellen Mills, and Thomas B. Hallam, were united in marriage by the Rev. F. A. Wodehouse, vicar of Trinity Anglican Church.

In the year 1913 the family came to Canada and took up residence at 9 Elm Street, where they have remained to the present.

Mr. Hallam became associated with the Grand Trunk Railway, later C.N.R., and retired over 20 years ago as a locomotive engineer, most of the time he was on passenger service out of the Belleville division.

A family dinner was held to celebrate the occasion and during the evening neighbors and friends called to extend their congratulations to the couple and shower them with gifts.

Telegrams of best wishes were received from the Queen, Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, Lee Grills, MP, and Mayor McLean Haig. The numerous cards they received from their many friends all bore best wishes on their diamond anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Hallam have five children, all living in the district. Three sons, Irving, Neal and Tom; two daughters Mrs. W. M. (Phyllis) Barlow, of Belleville, and Mrs. H. C. (Irene) Brown of Picton. There are eight grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Hallam are members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Hallam is a veteran of the First Great War.

Macmillan Wants More Time To Consider Opposition Demands for Investigation

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan was reported Wednesday to have asked for more time to consider opposition demands for an investigation into planned British newspaper deals.

The prime minister met with Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell and Liberal chief Jo Grimond and was believed to have indicated he wants a few days longer to consider whether any action can be taken.

The meeting followed renewed talks by ministers Wednesday about the implications of recent movements in Fleet Street, including the proposed merger between Odhams Press and Thomson Newspapers Limited in the United Kingdom and the bid for Odhams by the Daily Mirror group.

Some see dangers in Fleet Streets tendency towards bigger units. The feeling in Whitehall, however, seems to be that Macmillan is unlikely to call for an inquiry.

Financial quarters predicted that the Daily Mirror group's £32,000,000 ($89,600,000) bid to take control of Odhams would succeed.

The bid was made Jan. 27, two days after Canadian publisher Roy Thomson announced his £27,000,000 ($70,600,000) group here would merge with Odhams, publisher of two national newspapers and almost 150 magazines.

The £50,000,000 ($140,000,000) Mirror group has offered to buy 12,000,000 Odhams shares. This would create a £9,000,000 ($252,000,000) company that would be the largest in its field in the world. The mirror group already publishes many magazines.

A London stock exchange correspondent reported Wednesday that it now appeared certain that the Mirror bid would succeed. This was strengthened by a report in the Thomson-controlled Edinburgh Scotsman.

The Scotsman's economic correspondent wrote that there was "no longer any doubt" that the mirror bid would succeed.

Thomson told a reporter this was "pure supposition" and there was "no change whatever in the position."

Later in the day he appeared on a BBC program called African Forum in which he answered questions from African students.

Replying to a Nigerian student who asked him whether it was a good thing for a man to control more than one paper, Thomson said multiple ownership was proper as long as the proprietor gave his editors complete freedom on matters of policy, as he did with his newspapers.

Thomson added that when a man owned a great many papers, as he did, it was "impossible to have a common editorial policy."

He contended that the "local situation" could vary with only a geographical difference of few miles and that each editor must be free to form policy as he saw fit in his own sphere of influence.

When questioned on how his newspapers would greet a politically controversial subject, Thomson stuck to his theory of "delegation of editorial authority." He added, however, that if a newspaper's policy got too far away from the good of its area, he would "advise" the editor, though he would not force his own opinions on him.

Misery and Smouldering Resentment Challenging Newly-Formed Brazil Govt.

RECIFE, Brazil (AP)—Here in this corner of the Americas, misery and smouldering resentment are challenging Brazil's government.

There are millions of hungry peasants in northeast Brazil. A fiery admirer of Cuba's Premier Fidel Castro has risen among them. He warns Janio Quadros, who took office Tuesday as Brazil's president, that the demands he makes on behalf of the peasants must be met or they will resort to revolutionary action.

Revolutionary action under Francisco Juliao, 48, already has had a few trial runs. Juliao is often called the Communist leader in Brazil's northeast. He denies being a communist.

Juliao's threat is regarded so seriously that the state government is taking hasty measures to counteract it. This simply adds to the rapidly growing strength of Juliao, whose followers believe it is he who forces the moves.

Juliao is a Socialist party member of the Pernambuco state legislature. He has been building his organization carefully for six years and the movement has been stimulated by the Cuban revolution.

Juliao moved in on the weak and ineffective Ligas Componeses (farmers' leagues) and organized them for action. About a year ago he was ready for Ligas invasion of a privately owned farm. The state subsequently bought the farm with the intention of trying orderly allotment of land. But there were too many peasants for it, and the state bought two other farms nearby to take care of the excess.

The Ligas grew in strength and numbers, spreading to other states.

Juliao's activities had impact, both in the country and in the misery-laden slums of Recife, half of whose 800,000 people live at bare subsistence level.

Brazil's peasants always have been poor, and an almost feudal system of land ownership by absentee owners has kept them that way. Today, however, the situation is aggravated by conditions of crisis or near crisis in much of the nation's agriculture, from north to south.

The northeast undergoes a major drought at least once every seven years and many lesser droughts in between.

Peasants can work only a few months a year in the dry and semi-dry areas. For eight months they live a hand-to-mouth existence, undernourished, under-clothed and housed in incredible conditions of disease-bearing filth.

Governor Cid Sampaio of the state of Pernambuco told me: "These people are becoming conscious of the idea that they must rise to their own defence. They are banding together to defend themselves.

"If the problems of the peasants are not solved soon, if poverty makes their situation unbearable, they will reach the point of despair."

Sampaio, himself a landowner and industrialist, says the area's woes are a heritage of 30 years of careless federal government.

He believes he will be able to accomplish a great deal to remedy the situation in a five-year program of land reform and industrialization.

CHIMP CAPSULE IN THE SEA —This was the scene at sea Tuesday, 420 miles down the Atlantic missile range as the Mercury capsule containing "Ham," a chimpanzee, was about to be lifted from the sea. Two men are in a raft, near the bow of the destroyer Ellison, moving in to right the capsule and attach a tow line so the helicopter hovering overhead can pull it from the ocean. Child's Death Attributed to Multiple Injuries

TORONTO (CP) — A pathologist testifying Wednesday at the preliminary hearing of James Hilary Young, 21, charged with murdering his two-year-old step-son, attributed he child's death to multiple injuries.

The Crown alleges the child, George Wallace Young, died Dec. 23 from beatings of terrific force.

Pathologist Dr. Chester McLean testified that gangrene had developed on the boy's buttocks, that two bones of his lower left arm had been broken, that tips of three fingers on his right hand had been blackened, and that he had suffered a recent hemmorrhage of the right half of the brain.

Crown counsel James Crossland told Magistrate T. S. Elmore that Young lost his job after marriage and stayed home while his wife Ethel worked.

The hearing was adjourned to Feb. 8.

Kennedy's Plea for Unity Falling on Lot of Deaf Ears

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The cry of national peril voiced by President John Kennedy seems to have fallen on a lot of deaf ears in Congress. The narrow victory given his supporters on a parliamentary strategy move indicates Kennedy may be forced to bend some of his far-reaching plans to the will of political realism.

On Monday Kennedy went before Congress with a warning that the future of democracy is in doubt, that the problems of free societies are critical and the tide unfavorable. It was a fervent plea for national unity, inside and outside Congress.

Events that followed Tuesday indicated clearly that there is disunity even in Kennedy's own Democratic Party, and that the determined coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats is digging in to wage a major war against Kennedy's legislative programs.

The issue before the House of Representatives was enlargement of the House rules committee, which determines if and when legislation reaches the House floor for legislative action.

The Kennedy forces sought to increase the committee membership to 15 from 12 to break the power of southern Democrats and Republicans to block or stall legislation which might enlarge Negro rights, increase social welfare programs or promote other programs which might find disfavor with the coalition.

This battle for enlargement of committee membership—to include the addition of liberal-type congressmen—also involved the prestige of House Speaker Sam Rayburn, a highly respected 79-year-old politician.

Rayburn squeezed through with a victory of 217 to 212, a mere five-vote margin in a House of 261 Democrats, 174 Republicans and two vacancies. Of those voting, 22 Republicans supported expansion of the committee and 64 Democrats opposed enlargement. All of the opposing Democrats represented southern states or states bordering on the South.

The rules committee, headed by Virginia Democrat Howard Smith who waged a forceful battle against enlargement, now will be expanded. But there are many gimmicks a committee chairman can use to stall the flow of bills, including demanding that extra witnesses be heard, a time-consuming process which already is holding back a Senate vote on a Kennedy-type bill to aid depressed areas.

Cross-Canada Survey

Bird Watchers Spot Variety Of Birds in Areas Seldom Seen in Latest Census

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bird-watchers across Canada had moments of excitement as they took to the woods with binoculars for the annual mid-winter count.

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press showed a variety of birds spotted in areas where they had seldom, if ever, been seen before during the census period.

New to the Ottawa area was a barrow's golden eye duck. An Arctic tree-toed woodpecker was reported by the Edmonton Bird Club. A turkey vulture was identified near St. Thomas, Ont. A bittern, rare at this time of the year, was seen in Nova Scotia.

The count, part of a continent-wide program sponsored by the Audubon Society during Christmas week, also showed a number of continuing trends.

European black-headed gulls are becoming more prevalent each year in Nova Scotia. The brown-headed cowbird, unrecorded in New Brunswick until 1943, now is present in large numbers.

MANY ROBINS SEEN

In Newfoundland, where 3,812 birds of 23 species were counted, a highlight was the sighting of 400 robins. Their presence was accounted for by an abundance of dogberries on which they feed.

Among 55 species identified in Nova Scotia were two snowy owls, one winter wren, three sparrow hawks and the single bittern. The number of varieties was six less than the record year of 1958.

Observers in New Brunswick note that the bird population has changed in the last 30 years, bringing many bright-plumaged birds that formerly didn't winter so far north. Milder winters are suggested as one reason; the fact that more people are apparently interested in birds and provide food for them is another.

The mockingbird, first noted in 1908, is slowly becoming a winter resident of the province. It was among 28 species and 2,995 birds counted near Fredericton.

FEWER WATERFOWL

Fewer birds were counted by watchers in both the Quebec City and Montreal areas. The drop was accounted for chiefly by waterfowl along the St. Lawrence River. Around Quebec 24 species were seen compared with 22 a year earlier and the number of birds was 1,413 as against 2,000. The number sighted around Montreal was 2,000, a drop of 3,000 from the previous year.

Ottawa-area observers counted 6,222 birds of 41 species, one less than the record year of 1959. Unusually large numbers of black ducks, horned larks, goldfinches and snow buntings were seen.

Watchers at Toronto counted a total of 81 species, including a record number of large hawks. Unusual for this time of the year were a red-necked grebe, a pair of ruddy ducks and a cooper's hawk.

Among rarities were two bluebirds and a brown thrasher spotted in Kent County in Western Ontario.

In the Winnipeg area 682 birds of 26 species were seen.

SEVERAL FIRSTS

North of Regina, where 34 species and 4,221 birds were reported, some varieties were included in the count for the first time. They included the short-eared owl, ruffled grouse, red crossbill, townsend's solitaire, song sparrow and pine siskin.

Uncommon birds among the 2,007 seen near Edmonton were the peregrine falcon, horned owl, marlin hawk pigeon and brown creeper as well as the Arctic three-toed woodpecker. Hungarian partridges and ring-necked pheasants introduced to Alberta as game birds were seen in larger numbers.

Vancouver bird watchers spotted 115 species and 99,289 birds, including 35,092 starlings and many seagulls, ducks and chickadees, compared with 106 species and 112,517 birds the previous year.

"Jest a Second"

Unsuccessful Appeal Made To Change Act

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature's legal bills committee heard an unsuccessful appeal Wednesday for recognition of "healing through prayer" in the provincial Coroner's Act.

It approved and sent to the legislature the government's proposed amendments without the changes sought by Leslie A. Tufts of Toronto, head of the Ontario Christian Science committee on publication.

Mr. Tufts' complaint was on an amendment providing that every person who has reason to believe that anyone died "from death or sickness for which he was not treated by a duly qualified medical practitioner" shall notify a coroner of the facts and circumstances of the death.

He said several laws in the United States give recognition to healing through prayer and asked that it also be accepted in Ontario.

WOULD EXTEND

He would have had the section extended to include, as well as a medical practitioner, "a duly accredited religious practitioner of a well known church or denomination, through prayer or spiritual means alone." Christian scientists feel they are being prejudiced by the wording of the bill, he said.

Attorney-General Roberts replied, without elaboration, that the change proposed by Mr. Tufts might provide an opportunity for fraud.

Committees held the spotlight Wednesday as other meetings were held on conservation, education, and highways and highway safety.

A. H. Richardson, chief conservation officer of the department of commerce and development, said some conservation authorities are not doing enough and other areas are badly in need of conservation groups.

PAYS HALF

While the provincial government pays half the cost of the authorities, the initiative must come from the municipalities. There now are 33 authorities in Ontario and three more are being planned.

CCF Leader MacDonald said the government should take the initial step. It is not giving any leadership, he maintained.

William Stewart, minister without portfolio, suggested thought be given to the establishment of a province-wide plan for land use.

In the highways committee, Deputy Transport Minister Alan MacNab said every driver will be given at least a partial test from time to time "if and when" his department becomes completely mechanized.

Vernon Singer (L—York Centre), noting many drivers develop poor eyesight but refuse to stop driving, suggested drivers be tested every five years. Mr. MacNab replied that drivers with deficiencies are better drivers on the average.

The committee was told 38 per cent of driving licence applicants failed on the first test last year.

HORSE POWER

One horsepower is the power needed to lift 33,000 pounds one foot in one minute—about 1½ times the power an average horse can exert.

Eskimos Moved to Shore Of Hudson Bay Making Success of New Location

CHURCHILL, Man (CP)—Eskimos who moved to the shore of Hudson Bay from the starvation-haunted Barren Lands are reported making a success of their new settlement.

R. I. Kennedy, regional administrator of the Northern Affairs department base here, said about 115 Eskimos now at the coastal settlement of Whale Cover are "a pretty strong group."

The pioneer settlers of Whale Cove, 250 miles north of this port on the west shore of the bay, were Eskimos from the inland areas around Henik Lake and Garry Lake. Vagaries of the caribou migration and the decline of the Barren Lands caribou in recent years led to death by starvation for nine Garry Lake Eskimos in the winter of 1958.

Eskimos from Henik Lake, northwest of Whale Cove, first moved to the new settlement in the summer of 1958. They were joined later by Garry Lake Eskimos who had been moved from territory 525 miles northwest of Churchill by the government.

"They're pretty well able to look after themselves," said Mr. Kennedy. "They're getting a lot of food and they're storing a lot of food."

Hunting, trapping and fishing have yielded the natives seals, whales and caribou.

"The settlement was intended to be self-sufficient," Mr. Kennedy said, "and it now is pretty well self-sufficient" although the government has not been able to aid Whale Cove as much as the department would like.

There is a government store at the community which is not a profit-making enterprise but is supposed to break even. Northern affairs feels that despite his lack of formal education, Eskimo storekeeper Teenar has "been doing remarkably well."

Hunters with surpluses can sell fish, meat and whale oil to the store in order to obtain other supplies. The aim is to sell the surplus from the community's hunting to Eskimos working at the nickel-mining community of Rankin Inlet, still farther north on the shore of the bay, where the men haven't as much opportunity to hunt.

Rankin Inlet provides a fair-sized buying population with 450 to 500 Eskimos, about 100 of whom are working at the mine.

A school was established this winter with Jean Happychuk of Winnipeg, an experienced northern teacher, in charge. Newcomers to Whale Cove were helped by natives familiar with coastal conditions, and the government provided fish nets and a 40-foot Peterhead boat, a type familiar in the north, which has sails and an auxiliary engine.

The boat is being used for whaling and sealing — new occupations for the inland Eskimos. Those who steer clear of seafaring have been successful at hunting and fishing in the area.

Because of the newness of the settlement, Mr. Kennedy said, the government was not certain "what the optimum population of Whale Cove should be."

"We think that very few more will be encouraged to migrate there."

Accommodation at the settlement is mostly in the form of one-room frame structures designed by government officials but there were a few igloos last winter.

"An igloo is a lot more romantic in January than in November or April," Mr. Kennedy said. The traditional snow houses can't be built until the miserable wet and cold weather of the fall is over and they melt early in the spring.

The tents used in other seasons are wet and draughty.

Woman, Child Killed in Crash At Parry Sound

PARRY SOUND (CP) — A woman and child were killed and five persons injured Wednesday when two cars collided head-on about 30 miles south of here.

Dead are Mrs. Doreen Kennedy, 35, of Parry Sound, and Deborah Scott, 2, of Sudbury.

Mrs. Kennedy's husband, David, 37, suffered a fractured shoulder and jaw; her daughters, Jean, 11, and Judy, 7, received fractures and facial injuries. They are in fair condition in hospital at Parry Sound.

In serious condition here are Deborah's parents, Bruce Scott, 32, and Mrs. May Scott, 33. Mr. Scott suffered a fractured pelvis, head, chest and internal injuries; Mrs. Scott fractured hips, ankle and internal injuries.

Two Acquitted Of Mischief In Malton Fire

BRAMPTON (CP)—Two men charged with mischief in a $160,000 fire at a Malton truck terminal last March were acquitted Wednesday after a general session judge said witnesses at the trial were afraid of something.

William Westaway, 31, and Edward Gregory, 34, both of Toronto, were acquitted after the jury deliberated four hours and three minutes.

The fire at the Gill Interprovincial Lines Limited occurred the day the company gained an injunction to restrain picketing at the plant by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind) during a labor dispute.

In his address to the jury Judge Donald MacLaren said the witnesses appeared to be afraid. Crown counsel Alex Hall had an unusual amount of difficulty adducing evidence from witnesses, the judge said.

The two men and Paul Knoll, 26, of Toronto, were originally charged with arson. Later the charges against Westaway and Gregory were reduced to mischief and Knoll was held as a material witness.

Pearson Calls for Scrapping Interceptor, Bomarc Missile

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson said Wednesday night Canada must co-operate with the United States in continental defence—but not necessarily under the North American Air Defence Command.

"I do not think we should default on continental defence," he told a TV audience.

He appeared with Judy LaMarsh, Liberal MP for Niagara Falls, on the CBC program The Nation's Business.

Answering questions and responding to observations made by Miss LaMarsh, Mr. Pearson expanded on recent Liberal policy statements calling for Canadian withdrawal from NORAD insofar as interceptors are concerned.

He said Canada should purchase five or six squadrons of the latest type of high-flying reconnaissance plane, to patrol Canadian skies. They would be armed against attack from hostile aircraft, but not with nuclear weapons.

The Arrow interceptor, which was scrapped by the government in 1959, would have met the requirements he had in mind.

"We would have to co-operate with the United States," he went on. "But perhaps it would not be necessary that we do this under NORAD. That is something we would have to review."

Speaking for the Liberal party, he said: "We co-operated with the United States before 1957 and we will co-operate with them again."

It was in 1957 that the Liberals were turned out of office by the Conservatives under Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

He called for scrapping of the CF-100 jet interceptor now used in Canada's home defence squadrons, and of the Bomarc ground-to-air missile which the government is preparing to install at launching sites in Ontario and Quebec.

Both are obsolete, he maintained.

Mr. Pearson termed "nonsense" any suggestion that the Liberal party had turned isolationist or neutralist. Canada could not be neutral in the struggle between freedom and Communist imperialism.

However, it was neither necessary nor desirable that Canada should become a nuclear power. Nuclear weapons should be limited or abolished "before they abolish us."

Those nuclear weapons now in Western arsenals should be brought under NATO control, where there was "much less chance" of their being used accidentally or unnecessarily.

The program was videotaped in advance for transmission. Mr. Pearson now is on a speaking tour of the west coast.

Mother of Five On Way Home To Join Hubby

WINDSOR (CP)—Mrs. Frank Rayner, 30, and her five sons left here by air Wednesday to join her husband at a London, Eng., hospital. He is suffering malignant cancer.

The courageous mother, who came with the family to Canada seven years ago, has been separated nearly a year from her 34-year-old husband.

He was forced to give up his job in Windsor after undergoing surgery for the cancer. Trouble recurred and he went to England for medical service under an Imperial Army veterans plan.

The trip for the family climaxed seven months of anxiety. The family appealed to provincial and welfare agencies for aid in returning to England. Costs of transportation were shared by the city and province, the Canadian Legion and Trans-Canada Air Lines.

The family includes one-year-old Daniel, Richard 2, Bradley 5, Terrence, 9, and Stephen 12.

Cam Mitchell In Nightmare Over Separation

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—"This is a nightmare," actor Cameron Mitchell said of the circumstances that are keeping him in jail under $50,000 bond because his former wife says he is delinquent in alimony payments.

Unless he can raise the bond he may lose the starring role in a 39 - week television series called The Beachcomber being filmed here.

Mitchell failed in two efforts for freedom at hearings Tuesday When he got down on his knees and pleaded in sobbing voice for a chance to be heard, Judge Frank Smith ordered him removed from the courtroom.

The judge said he could see no substantial guarantee that Mitchell would remain here under jurisdiction of the court unless the writ under which the high bond was set remained in effect.

After the judge denied a defence motion to quash the writ and ended the hearing, Mitchell fell to his knees with hands clasped.

"Please, your honor," he cried. "In the name of Jesus Christ—my father was a minister—let me talk, please. My very life is at stake."

TAKEN FROM COURT

Judge Smith ordered Mitchell taken from the courtroom.

The TV and movie actor apparently will remain in jail until March 6, when a hearing is scheduled on his wife's complaint, unless he raises the $50,000 bond.

One of Mitchell's two lawyers, James Byrd of Orlando, said so far as he knows the 42-year-old actor "doesn't have enough to put up a $500 bond, much less $50,000."

Mitchell said he gave his wife everything when they separated 5½ years ago after 16 years of marriage.

He said he has to pay his wife about 40 per cent of his gross income under an interlocutory decree issued in California last May. (Papers filed in the case indicate he was ordered to pay her 24 per cent.)

"I have to live too," he said. "Forty per cent for her, 10 per cent to an agent, five per cent to a manager and on and on—it all comes to about 128 per cent.

'SICK' AT SPENDING

"I paid her $2,050 a month for five years. I come from a poor family. When I think of these sums of money she's spending, I get sick inside. That's all we used to fight about was money."

His wife Johanna, the daughter of wealthy Saskatoon meat packer Fred Mendel, lives in Pacific Palisades, Calif., with their four children.

OUTLOOK, Sask. (CP) — A tidy little farm on the site of what was once Outlook's town dump will point the way to best use of irrigation from the South Saskatchewan River Dam.

Even before the final agreement was signed and work started on the $182,000,000 dam project in central Saskatchewan, the federal government and Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration were getting ready.

They wanted a pre-development farm to determine what effects irrigation would have on raising the potential yield in the 500,000 acres of drought-ridden land the project is to serve when it is completed in 1966.

Just east of Outlook they found the location — the town's nuisance grounds. Today the site is a neat, clean, well-managed and productive farm of 155 acres, possibly the best in the area.

"We started out to prove that irrigation, properly used, could make the intended area of irrigation one of the most productive of diverse crops in Canada," said manager Ian Petrie, "and I think we have."

DOUBLE WHEAT YIELD

The farm is operated on a 10-year crop rotation program using wheat, potatoes, oats, barley and hay.

The 155 acres are roughly broken into 12 areas. There are 10 fields of 10 to 12 acres each plus 24 acres of pasture and 10 30 acres of farmstead with buildings and corrals.

Most of the farms in the area are "dry land farms" with one principal crop—wheat.

Even with wheat, Mr. Petrie said, the farm was able to produce double the provincial average of 15 to 20 bushels to the acre in 1959.

During the same year the farm produced oats at a rate of 100 bushels to the acre, barley at 70 bushels and potatoes at about 10 tons to the acre.

Under direction of Mr. Petrie, a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan school of agriculture, the farm employs two systems of irrigation — sprinklers and flooding.

RAISED CATTLE

In the flooding process, the fields designated were scored with shallow ditches at about 30-foot intervals after the fields had been levelled and graded so the water would flow down the ditches by force of gravity.

As well as growing sown crops, the farm also managed to take care of 40 head of feeder cattle during the 1959 trial period. They were grazed on irrigated pasture with their diet supplemented by grain.

During a regulated 123-day period, the cattle gained about 231 pounds a head. This worked out to 1.87 pounds a head per day with a yield of 513 pounds for each acre grazed.

The experimental period yielded a profit of $1,207 against a cost of $951. The 18 acres on which the cattle grazed produced an average profit of $57 each.

A similar project was undertaken by PFRA manager Bill Herringer at Hays, Alta., where each of 17 acres grazing 40 head of cattle showed a profit of $69 under mechanical grazing with no grain fed. Another similar area showed a profit of $110 to the acre with grain being fed to cattle.

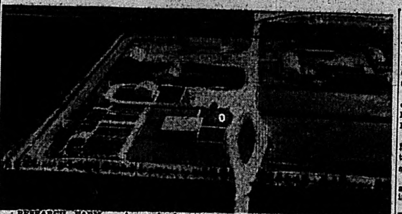
INITIALLY COSTLY

The mechanical grazing process is planned for the Outlook farm this year and means that feed for the animals is given to them in a long trough from a side-loading wagon.

Irrigation of farms is going to be expensive initially, says Mr. Petrie. It might go as high as $50 an acre and is one of the reasons the more successful farmers aren't enthusiastic about it.

Another factor is that the government has suggested farms of about 200 acres will be the maximum allowed in the irrigated area.

Mr. Petrie says he expects that many farmers will go into the feeder cattle trade, buying in the spring, fattening all summer and selling in the fall. He adds that there is also a rich potential for market garden farming that did not exist before irrigation.



RESEARCH FARM — A pre-development farm, designed to prove the advantages of irrigation, has been established by the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration on a 155-acre site near Outlook, Sask. On it the administration hopes to determine in advance the potential yield of a 500,000-acre irrigation project scheduled for 1966 with completion of the South Saskatchewan River dam. (CP Photo).

BRIDGE TO GO

CHATHAM (CP)—Tenders for the demolition of Kent Bridge across the Thames River and the erection of a new structure have been called for Feb. 8, it was announced Tuesday. The new bridge is expected to cost up to $400,000.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

According to reports of the Trail Smoke Eaters' debut in Europe, they are favored to win the "Most Gentlemanly Trophy" of the upcoming world hockey tournament.

In their first entanglement with the puck-chasing descendants of the proud Vikings, they clobbered (score-wise) the Norsemen of Norway 8-3, but bowed in the high-sticking department.

Smokie coach Bobby Kromm didn't like the antics of the Norskys. It seems one cracked his stick over the Kromm beak and left it in two or more pieces. Krommy trick all right, but the coach won't be sniffing Norwegian sardines for the next few days.

The Smokies' manager, one Ugo de Basio, snorted after the game, "That's not the way we're used to playing hockey. We keep the sticks on the ice and hope the others will do the same."

Wait until the Smokies run into some of that European refereeing. The continental whistle-blowers think a slash is a slit in a hobble-skirt and hooking is something that poor fish fall for.

Canadian teams in world hockey tournaments or any exhibition series up to this point, have the reputation of playing a hard-hitting rugged game. They introduced the bodycheck to European squads and while at first it raised a furore, the continentals came to like it.

And as the Smoke Eaters will find out before long, the Russians and Czechs in particular can throw a padded torso almost as good as any Canadian "bad man."

If memory is correct, an earlier edition of the Smoke Eaters, and more recently the Penticton V's featuring the Warwick Tank Trio, did anything but keep their sticks glued to the ice.

In fact the Warwick Freres et Cie, so an expatriate Canadian in Geneva, Switzerland told me, were the first Canadian commandos to go overseas but these were disguised in hockey uniforms.

He said that while the Pentictons were playing an exhibition game in a Royal Canadian Air Force camp, one of the Warwick boys skated up to an air force player and knocked him flat.

Tthe flyboy regained his landing gear and asked in amazement "So what's the big idea?"

The Warwick said with a grin, "You didn't do a thing, buddy. Imagine what you'll get if you start something."

It seems that every Canadian hockey team that goes to Europe gains some sort of a reputation.

The McFarlands, after learning that slashing from the ankle to the knee and higher, and hooking from skate to skull was more or less legal as far as the European referees were concerned, decided to apply some good old Canadian defensive measures.

They rocked-and-rolled a couple of Scandinavian clubs without benefit of Presleyan "beats" and drew the wrath of the fans, the players and the journalists.

In Helsinki the Finnish fans responded to a couple of hefty Canadian body checks that stood a couple of homebrews on their heads in a rinkside snowbank, with cute little snowballs. The "snowballs" were small jagged pieces of ice wrapped in moist snow.

The Finn journalists headlined their stories with "gangster tactics" and "Western Canada hooliganism."

The Swedes, Germans and Italians didn't like the boisterous Canuck style. A high German hockey official made no bones about it in a criticism of the Canadian play.

Which drew a press conference retort from McFarland assistant manager Billy Reay to the effect: "They hook and slash us off our feet—and it's deemed legal. When they get an elbow in the ribs, or a stiff bodycheck where it will do the most good they blast. Who the hell do these guys think they are, telling US how to play hockey?"

Well, times do change. Now, Glory be, we've got a hockey team overseas that is complaining of European rough play.

Russ, Yank To Match High Jumps

NEW YORK (AP)—The Soviet Union's Valery Brumel, who is credited with 7 feet, 4½ inches in the high jump, is coming to the United States to match leaps with America's John Thomas.

Dan Ferris, Amateur Athletic Union executive, said Wednesday he had received confirmation that a Soviet team, including Brumel will arrive here Feb. 14 for a series of indoor meets.

Besides Brumel the Russian delegation will have Igor Ter-ovanesjan, a broad jumper and sprinter, and Yeugeni Momotkov, Russia's champion, 1,500-meter man who will compete in the 1,000-yard runs, the mile and the two-mile events.

Boxer Dies After Fight

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano says an Italian heavyweight boxer's death in his first fight raises again the moral implications of boxing as a sport.

Oride Matteuzzi, 22, an amateur, died Monday night at Bologna after leaving the ring in the first round of a scheduled three-round match.

Commenting on the death, L'Osservatore's director Raimondo Manzini writes:

"Boxing is a crude fight of man against man, each aiming to see the adversary knocked down in the ring. . .

"It is not important if a doctor says that the athlete is in full possession of his faculties. The final aim, and the human price of the competition, poses again the problem of a sport which recalls the cruelty of primitive fights."

Worsley Mainstay In Rangers' Win

Hand Hawks 3-1 Setback

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lorne Worsley is undoubtedly the driving force behind New York Rangers' push for a National Hockey League playoff berth.

The pudgy netminder—almost traded away last summer because he apparently didn't fit into the club's plans — again showed Wednesday night how much he means to the club.

He stopped 18 of 19 shots in the first period and wound up with 44 saves as the Rangers beat Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 in the league's only action.

The victory, before a crowd of 11,378 at New York's Madison Square Garden, moved the Rangers within 11 points of fourth place, the last playoff spot.

They have 22 games to play in which to make up the deficit. Detroit Red Wings are currently in fourth place.

RANGERS FELL BEHIND

The Rangers fell behind 1-0 in the first period but came to life in the next two periods, scoring once in the second and twice in the third.

Floyd Smith, Bill Gadsby and John Hanna were the scorers for New York and Ron Murphy for Chicago.

The Hawks got their lone goal against Worsley, 31, at 10:28 of the first period when Murphy deflected a passout by Eric Nestrenko. But good Chicago efforts were thwarted time and again after that by Worsley.

Smith tied it 1-1 at 11:41 of the second, jamming the puck past Hawk goalie Glenn Hall after teammate Johnny Wilson stole it away from a Chicago defender.

Gadsby fired in the winner just 17 seconds after the start of the third period. Gadsby had been out of action since Jan. 22 with an acute muscle spasm in his back.

Hanna put the game out of reach 12 secondsbefore the end, scoring his first goal of the season by shooting into an empty net.

Chicago removed Hall from his net with about one minute left in favor of an extra forward.

Ball Kisses Cup, Misses $50,000

By JIM BACON

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) Six pros who carded 65s and 52 others who broke par are the guys to catch today as the $50,000 Palm Springs desert golf classic goes into the second round of its 90-hole, five-day play.

And the $50,000 prize to the lucky winner who scores a hole-in-one is still up for grabs although Dave Marr of Houston came heartbreakingly close Wednesday when his ball rolled right over the cup on the 203-yard 16th at Thunderbird.

Marr's 65, however, was good enough to land him in a mass first-place tie with Ken Venturi, Dow Finsterwald, Bob Rosburg, Dr. Cary Middlecoff and Charlie Sifford, the great Los Angeles Negro pro.

Sifford also was a near-miss artist. Two putts that rimmed the cup and jumped out would have given him a 63 — two strokes ahead of the field.

MANY BREAK PAR

Altogether, 58 players in the field of 128 pros broke par and more than 75 finished at 72 or better.

Behind the six leaders, at 66, were Bob Shields, Jay Hebert and Don Whitt. Another stroke back were Art Wall, Gardner Dickinson, Henry Williams, Fred Hawkins and Johnny Pott.

Fourteen players were tied at 68, including Al Balding of Toronto. Arnold Palmer, the defending champion here and the game's leading money winner in 1960, was among 14 who finished at 69.

Venturi, Rosburg and Sifford all carded eagles to help get them in the front grouping.

Joe Campbell, the Knoxville pro who won last year's hole-in-one jackpot, was one of a dozen 70 shooters.

Campbell disclosed that he almost repeated last year's feat on the fourth hole.

LOOKED LIKE IT

"I hit a six iron that landed only inches away from the cup," he said. "The backspin took it into a shadow, and from where we were on the tee, it looked like another hole-in-one. Everybody was delirious. When we got on the green we saw that it was a few feet away. It was a better shot than the one I hit last year, and I can say I was just one stroke away from a hole-in-one again."

Campbell said he got a two on the hole and also disclosed that he has cut himself in on a deal again—a split if he gets another hole-in-one. Last year he collected only $12,500 of the $50,000 he won because he split himself up several ways.

Mike Souchak, always a contender, was disqualified for signing an incorrect card. His scorer put down a five when Souchak actually shot a six.

Red Nags Enter Big Chase Race

LONDON (AP) — Capitalistic holders of sweepstakes tickets in the Grand National Steeplechase March 25 may get rich through the effort of three Communist - owned horses.

The trio, owned by the Soviet Union, were among the 56 entries announced Wednesday. Three previous winners of what is generally regarded as the world's toughest horse race also are on the list.

Merryman II, last year's winner; Oxo, the 1959 winner; and Mr. What, winner in 1958, are among the horses likely to match their jumping skill against the Russians.

The Russian entries, Reljef, Grifel and Epigraff II, have never raced before in Britain. Automatically they'll carry top weight of 168 pounds.

The Russian horses, as will all other horses in the four-mile, 856-yard chase over 30 obstacles, will carry the get-rich-quick hopes of millions of people all over the world. The National is the basis for the first Irish Sweepstakes of the season.

Philip Pika, member of the Russian permanent trade delegation in London, went into the records as the owner of thre three Russian entires.

British rules state that horses must be entered under the names of individual owners.

Hull Bows To Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — A determined Kingston Frontenac team came from behind twice Wednesday night to topple the league-leading Hull-Ottawa Canadiens 4-2 in an Eastern Professional Hockey League game.

The fourth - place Frontenacs were down 1-0 going into the second period and it was 2-2 going into the third.

Lorne Ferguson, Buddy Boone, Don Blackburn and Stan Maxwell scored for Kingston. The Hull marksmen were Cliff Pennington and Billy Carter.

Pennington was playing his first game after a brief stint with Montreal Canadiens in the NHL.

The winner, scored by Maxwell, was a tough one for goaltender Ed Johnston. Maxwell made a rush and Johnston made the stop but Maxwell's clearing shot from behind the net bounced in off defenceman Chuck Hamilton.

The win put Kingston six points ahead of the idle fifth-place Sudbury Wolves and within three points of the third-place Kitchener Beavers.

Although the shots on goal were low, 19 by each team, 2,591 fans sa wa game which was a bruising wide-open affair with fine defensive work on both sides.

Keon's Future Bright

TORONTO (CP)—Just about 10 years ago, a raw youngster dogging a puck around an open-air rink in Noranda, Que., got the idea he wanted to play in the National Hockey League.

The youngster also vowed his NHL career would have to be with Toronto Maple Leafs—just the way it turned out.

Ten years later, bringing him to the age of 20, forward Dave Keon of the league - leading Leafs, is one of the hottest players in the circuit.

Keon who can collect goals without penalties last year jumped from St. Michael's Majors of the Ontario junior A to NHL—and stuck.

So far he's pushed his 165 pounds around the rinks for a record of 12 goals and 18 assists in 50 games with a paltry six minutes in penalties.

Coach-manager Punch Imlach says "Here's one of the best players at this stage of the game that I've seen in a long time. He could be as outstanding in a couple of years as Henri Richard is with Montreal.

KILLS PENALTIES

"He's a good skater and, what's very important, a good checker. What's more, I use him to kill penalties. No other rookie in the league does that."

Experts figure that barring injuries, Keon has more than a better chance to take the NHL rookie of the year award and the $1,000 prize money it brings.

Even without this, the vital rookie whose father works in a Noranda copper mine, can look back on a good year with as much as $10,000 earned for seven months work.

In his starring year with St. Michael's last year, Keon toted 33 goals and 38 assists in 47 games. Then the call came from Leafs.

Indians Send Bowsfield To LA Angels

CLEVELAND (AP). — The Cleveland Indians Wednesday assigned pitcher Ted Bowsfield to Los Angeles Angels, to replace Red Wilson who announced his retirement earlier in the day.

Bowsfield, 25, a southpaw, had a 1-2 record with Boston when the Indians obtained him in a trade last spring. He pitched 11 games for Cleveland, winning three against four losses and compiling an earned-run average of 5.09.

Wilson, 31, a catcher the Indians obtained last August on waivers from Detroit, was one of the Cleveland players picked by the new Los Angeles American League entry. He broke into the major leagues with the Chicago White Sox in 1951 and had a lifetime batting average of .264.

Bisons Dump Reds 9-4

BUFFALO (AP)—Dick Gamble's three goals paced Buffalo Bisons to a 9-4 American Hockey League victory over Providence Reds Wednesday night.

Gamble also had two assists. His linemate, Larry Wilson, scored twice and had two assists and Wayne Hicks, third member of the line, had a goal and three assists.

Billy Dea also tallied twice for Buffalo and Chico Maki got the other Bison goal. Ed Panagabko, George Ranieri and Zellio Toppazzini were the Providence scorers.

The Bisons jumped to a 3-0 lead in the opening period but the Reds tied it midway through the second. Gamble put Buffalo ahead to stay, however, shortly after the third Providence goal.

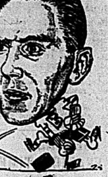
Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival



"HE FOLLOWS IT IN"

In a recent clash between the Boston Bruins and the Toronto Maple Leafs, Leo Labine of the Boston club made a play that I wish every young hockey player in Canada could have seen. This play not only scored a goal for Labine but demonstrated a lesson that will mean more goals for anyone willing to learn and apply it.

In this play Labine took a pass from Bronco Horvath about halfway between the blue line and the Leaf goal. Cutting in quickly from the side he shot from about 30' out. As he shot Labine followed in. The shot was blocked by Bower, the puck hitting his pads and coming back out. Labine, who was now on top of the play again, got the puck, ducked a Leaf player by moving back out a few feet and fired quickly at Bower. This time his low shot hit Bower's stick and came out a few feet. Labine in again after the puck, got the puck and flipped it in the goal to score. Three times Labine got his own rebound.

If Labine had followed the procedure of most young players he would not have scored. In such a situation most players would have shot the first time, watched the puck go in at the goal and, when it was stopped, would have let themselves become momentarily upset at the missed chance. The smart thing to do is to shoot and then follow that puck in as fast as you can — always expect the first one to be stopped and drive in for the rebound. Chase that puck in when you shoot or when a teammate lets one go — don't stand around and watch the results of any shot. For more goal scoring hints get my bulletin "Horvath Has The Touch" by sending 10c and stamped, self-addressed envelope to Hockey Hints 80, King St. W., Toronto.

Alouettes Boss Admits

"Rifle", Larks Had Private Deal

MONTREAL (CP)—Ted Workman, owner of the Montreal Alouettes, confirmed Wednesday that quarterback Sam Etcheverry had a private agreement with the club that he would not be traded without his consent.

However, Workman said he does not know whether the breaching of this clause gave Etcheverry the legal right to sign with St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League.

The deal last November traded Montreal's Etcheverry and Hal Patterson to Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Workman said he made a mistake in the way he handled the trade. But he insisted the deal was good for the Alouettes.

If Etcheverry doesn't go to Hamilton, Workman said in an interview with Elmer Ferguson, of the Montreal Star, Tiger-Cats will retain possession of quarterback Bernie Faloney, whom they traded for Sam.

The situation has confused Faloney himself so much he has asked the Supreme Court of Ontario to clarify his status.

The other half of the trade, which sent end Patterson to Hamilton for defensive end Don Paquette, has gone relatively smoothly and Patterson has signed with Ticats.

"I shoulder all the responsibility, personally, for the trade," Workman said. "I admit I made a mistake, as who doesn't?

"The mistake I made was in not consulting Sam and Hal before I announced the trade. I have since given it a great deal of thought and I'm convinced that if I had talked it over, particularly with Sam, as I should have done, he would have agreed with me, and would willingly have gone to the Hamilton club."

Jap Team To Pay Sox For Player

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's baseball commissioner has ordered Nankai Hawks to pay Chicago White Sox for pitcher Joe Stanka.

Commissioner Noboru Inoue declined, however, to say Wednesday what he thought the 29 - year - old righthander who jumped to Japanese baseball is worth. But he said the payment should be in cash, not players.

The Japanese baseball head made no bones about his personal feelings that the Osaka team legally didn't owe the American League team a dime for the pitcher for whom the White Sox shelled out some $30,000 in 1959 when he was purchased from Sacramento.

"I feel Nankai has no obligation to send players or make a cash payment for Stanka," Inoue said. "But relations between the two baseball circles should not be damaged by this incident."

Ford Frick, Inoue's counterpart in the United States, had declared that Stanka was still White Sox property and unless satisfaction was received, Japanese tours by U.S. teams might be banned.

Inoue instructed Nankai officials to negotiate with White Sox president Bill Veeck and settle the matter "only with money."

Stanka contended the White Sox were using him to pry some Japanese stars from Nankai, runnerup last year in the Pacific League. Stanka claimed he was placed on the White Sox voluntary retired list after the 1959 season, then got a Japanese offer for 1960 and received a rise for 1961. He had a 17-12 won-lost record last year and an earned run average of 2.48.

Diver Blast Surprises Team Manager

MONTREAL (CP)—John Gillanders, manager of the Canadian gymnastic team in the Rome Olympics, said Wednesday night he is hurt that diver Irene Macdonald criticized the team's performance.

He said he is surprised that any Olympic athlete, particularly one of Miss Macdonald's calibre, should denigrate members of another team.

Miss Macdonald said in Victoria that the gymnastic team Canada sent to the Olympics was "terrible, right out of their class." Yet, she added, one of Canada's fastest free - style swimmers had been left behind for lack of space on the swimming team.

She suggested that Canada should not enter events which it had no chance to win and should increase representation in sports Canadians could win.

Mr. Gillanders said the three-member gymnastic team did better than gymnasts from any other Commonwealth country.

Ernestine Russell, 23, top Canadian gymnast, had won the Canadian championship six times and the U.S. championship three times.

Canadian gymnasts had won four medals in the last Pan-American Games.

Twas 3-3 Overtime Thriller

Macs Tie Frontenacs

A little less foemen goalie and a little more shooting accuracy and the McFarlands would have clinched second place in Eastern junior "B" circles last night.

Instead they survived a foolish last - minute bench penalty to split the points in a 3-3 overtime thriller with the Kingston Frontenacs.

As matters stand now the Macs are tied with Whitby for second slot since the Rockets blasted off the league-leading Petes by a 3-0 score last night.

But the Macs should take it. They have two games to play, both with Picton, one tonight in the Prince Edward town. Whitby has a game left, that with the high-flying Frontenacs.

The McFarlands should have taken last night's thrill battle. Actually back-to-back penalties in the third period cost them the win. They were leading 3-2 midway through the heat when Mavety and Kellar were thumbed within a minute of each other.

The Frontenacs surged to the power attack and Ball pushed the rubber past Moxon for the equalizer.

The Macs spotted the Kingston crew two goals in the first period when they seemed to have difficulty getting untracked. But they roared back in the second frame to score two goals in 73 seconds to knot the count.

Mavety shot them into a goal lead after 1.40 of the third period; then came the dual sentences and the Frontenacs' Ball halved the hole.

They should have tucked away the win in the rocketing overtime session. For about a minute they literally poured rubber in the general direction of the Kingston net, the greater part going wide, the rest taken care of by Peter Cain, the Kingston goalie who was a little short of sensational throughout the entire game.

The game was rugged but not boisterous, referees Vern Goyer and Ted Hurst handing out 15 penalties, nine to the Macs. Hunter and Mantrop drew majors for the only fisticuffing of the game.

Peter Ford and Curran gave Kingston their first period two-goal lead assists going to O'Donnell, Brown and Aylesworth. Gary Goyer hit paydirt twice for the Macs in the second frame, Titterson getting two assists and R. Hull one.

Mavety with Smith and Ball looked after the third period scoring.

The bench penalty came with three minutes to go in the overtime period when the Macs were charged with having too many men on the ice. The Frontenacs went into their power play act, but Moxon and company held the fort until time ran out.

Moxon played an outstanding game in the nets for the Macs, he never had a chance on the pucks that beat him.

The Frontenacs stretched their unbeaten string to six, winning three of them. The Macs outshot the Frontenacs 38-33.

'Play Me Or Trade Me' Says Player

DETROIT (AP) — Burned by outfielder Charlie Maxwell's "play me or trade me" edict, Detroit Tigers are parrying with a counter-attack of sweet talk.

"We're not trying to trade Maxwell," said Rick Ferrell, vice-president of the American League Tigers. "We're depending on him. We like him."

Maxwell issued his ultimatum Wednesday.

"They can play me or trade me, it doesn't make much difference which," said Maxwell from his Paw Paw, Mich., home. "But I'm getting sick of being listed as the fourth outfielder and the fourth first baseman in their early plans for this season."

Manager Bob Scheffing has announced he plans to use Al Kaline in right field, Rocky Colavito in left and newly acquired Bill Bruton in centre.

Maxwell batted only .237 last season but had 24 homers.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Athletics bolstered their catching department Wednesday by the purchase of Joe Pignatano from Los Angeles Dodgers. The purchase price, with no other players involved, was reported to be $50,000. Pignatano batted .237 for the Dodgers in 1959 and .233 last year.

Quebec Bonspiel

Four Rinks Unbeaten

By JOHN YORSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—After a night of banqueting, competitors approached the showdown stage today at the Quebec International Bonspiel.

Sixteen rinks—four of them undefeated—were to play the second round of the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy starting at 11:45 a.m. EST. Tonight, the semi - finals in the Chateau, Omega and Francois Jobin trophies were to be played.

Some 600 curlers and officials took Wednesday night off to attend the annual grand curlers' banquet, a fixture of the week-long bonspiel.

Three rinks from Weston, Ont. moved into the lieutenant-governor's second round Wednesday. Two of them were among the four undefeated teams of the 128 rinks that started Monday.

Jack Burgess, Weston's winner of the governor's and grand aggregate bowl for the best won-lost record last year, edged Bob Morris of Sept-Iles, Que., 11-10. The other undefeated Weston rink was Ted Slatcher's, whic hdowned Rene Matteau of Trois-Rivieres, Que., 11-8.

BATHURST UNDEFEATED

Bruce St. John of Gravenhurst nipped Jake Creighton of Dartmouth, N.S., 8-7 to remain unbeaten, while Quebec's Joe Thomas thumped Toronto's Malcolm Moysey 13-8. The four unbeaten rinks have 5-0, won-lost records.

The third Weston rink, skipped by H. W. Muter, beat Oscar Parker of Oshawa 10-8 to advance in the governor's play. Six Weston rinks—the largest single club entry from outside the province—are playing in the 'spiel.

Others advancing to the governor's second round were George Moore of Sudbury, Ernie Sokol of Newmarket, and Rene Giguere of Quebec.

Already in the second round by virtue of reaching the quarter-finals of the Francois Jobin gold cup competition were Colin Caswell of Sudbury; Len Gillis, Kirkland Lake, Gerry Jobin, Quebec; Hugh Little, Halifax; Gerry Wright, Orillia; and Bob Monast, Quebec.

Caswell, Jobin, Wright and Bate made the Jobin semi-finals Wednesday with victories in the quarter-finals.

Minor Hockey Dad

GOALIE ON BOYS' TEAM — Peggy Oja, 11, is the regular goaltender on a boys' hockey team at the Northern Ontario mining town of Copper Cliff. She's the first girl ever to play in the four-team peewee league. (CP Photo).

He Couldn't Take a Son So He Took His Daughter

COPPER CLIFF, Ont. (CP)—The slogan for Minor Hockey Week in Canada was "Don't send — take your boy to the arena." It didn't quite apply to Eli Oja.

He didn't have a son to take to the rink. In his case it was a daughter, 11-year-old Peggy Oja, goaltender in an otherwise all-boys' hockey league in this Northern Ontario mining town.

From her performance in her first three games it would appear Peggy is no ordinary goalie. Her average of one goal a game, including a shutout, helped get her team into first place.

"She's had a lot of shots to handle, too," said Jay McCarthy, local hockey official. "She's the first girl ever to play in the league but she sure knows how to play."

There are four teams in the league, each named after a National Hockey League club, and Peggy minds the nets for Toronto Maple Leafs.

GAVE UP DOLLS

"She has always wanted to play hockey," her father says. "She's been out on the backyard rinks for the past three years and she would often be playing with some of the players in the peewee league.

"Some of the kids told their coach, Roy Bane, about Peggy and pretty soon she had her chance to play in the nets with the boys."

Peggy may have come by her hockey skill from her mother who used to play on a girls' team around Skead, Ont.

"I got my goalie pads for Christmas," said the chubby, curly - haired youngster. "And I'm using them a lot more than I would any dolls, too. I've given all of my dolls to my little sister, Kathy, who is five."

Peggy, a grade V student at Copper Cliff public school, is an all - round athlete. In summer she plays baseball with a boys' team and in the fall moves over to football.

Since joining the hockey league, she has been given a private dressing room at Stanley Stadium.

She is a close follower of hockey generally. Glenn Hall of Chicago Black Hawks is her favorite NHL goalie and she also likes Bobby Hull, Hawk's forward, and Toronto's Frank Mahovlich.

Senior Hockey

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons moved into a tie for second place with Galt Terriers in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior Hockey League Wednesday night as they scored a 6-3 win over Stratford Indians.

Joe Malo led the Maroon attack with three goals, while Ernie Dick scored a pair and George Montague added one. Maroons playing coach Ted Power assisted on three of the goals.

Billy Flick, Jack McIlwain and Neal Cockburn were the Stratford scorers.

The win gives Maroons 34 points in their tie with Terriers. The two teams are seven points behind league leading Windsor Bulldogs, and three ahead of the Indians.

Maroon goalie Al Bennett blocked 22 Stratford shots in the game, while Ron Salter in the Stratford nets made 20 saves. Bennett also picked up an assist on Maroons fourth goal.

AT THE PARK — Packed with Technicolor thrills, James Stewart stars with Janet Leigh in MGM's "The Naked Spur" showing Friday and Saturday at the Park Theatre. On the same program also, in Technicolor "Tarzan and the Lost Safari", starring Gordon Scott.

Yankee Management

Wants No Segregation

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees moved Wednesday to crack the segregation barrier at their St. Petersburg, Fla., baseball training camp and put all their players "under-one roof."

Howard, Lopez and Gonder mean as much to our ball club as any other ball players," said Dan Topping, Yankee president, "and we would like very much to have the whole team under one roof."

The references were to the Negro players on the New York roster—catcher Elston Howard, outfielder Hector Lopez and rookie catcher Jesse Gonder.

Topping's statement came after a leading St. Petersburg Negro, Dr. Ralph Wimbish, had urged the Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals to help end segregation in hotels and restaurants in the Florida city.

Wimbish, chapter president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said "it is time the management of the clubs takes a hand in bringing an end to discrimination against Negro players."

In St. Louis, Bing Devine, the Cards' general manager, said, "we have a problem there. We recognize that it is highly desirable for all players to stay together, but we don't make the rules and regulations for the various localities."

Many Negro major league players are reported to be unhappy over conditions in Florida where they are barred from certain hotels and restaurants.

Last season, all but four teams in the National and American Leagues—San Francisco Giants, Cleveland Indians, Chicago Cubs and Boston Red Sox — trained in Florida. The others do their preliminary warmups in Arizona.

Bill Veeck, president of Chicago White Sox, is one of the pioneers in the movement to break the baseball color line in the spring sites, Gross said.

He has insisted that all his players, white and colored, be permitted to stay at the same hotel. A similar demand is said to have been made by the Orioles, who shifted from the west to Miami last year.

Would Play With TiCats if- - -

The "Rifle" Has His Say

CORNWALL (CP) — Sam Etcheverry, whose attempted trade to Hamilton Tiger-Cats set the Canadian football world humming, said Wednesday he wouldn't mind playing with the Ticats if his deal with St. Louis Cardinals doesn't pan out.

The former Montreal Alouette quarterback, here to make a presentation, also had a few words to say about the officials of the Montreal Big Four club.

"If my contract with St. Louis Cardinals is not upheld — and I'm pretty sure it will be — then I wouldn't mind going to the Ticats if something could be arranged," Etcheverry said in an interview.

"However, when I signed with the Cardinals I did so with the understanding that my contract would be accepted with the league."

Etcheverry said legal advisers have told him the Alouettes broke a no-cut clause in his contract when they attempted to trade him and Hal Patterson to Hamilton. Pete Rozelle, National Football League commissioner, has yet to rule on whether his contract with St. Louis is good.

The star quarterback, noted for his passing, said he would not return to the Alouettes under the present administration. But he added he would return if the setup was different.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Punch Imlach is regarded in National Hockey League circles as a miracle worker and if anyone needs proof, Imlach admirers mention the names of Red Kelly, Allen Stanley, Johnny Bower and Bert Olmstead. The Toronto Maple Leafs coach has done wonders.

Leafs were floundering around in last place when Punch, a non-stop talker, took over from Billy Reay in November, 1958. Since then, there has been a drastic change in Leaf fortunes and Punch has done it with a bunch of old pros.

Everybody knows the 1958-59 Leafs took the last playoff spot on the last day of Imlach's first season and lost to the powerful Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup final. They reached the final in the 1959-60 season and right now are tied with Canadiens at the top of the six-team league.

CREDIT THE OLDSTERS

Put it down to Imlach and his veterans. The combined ages of Kelly, Stanley, Bower and Olmstead total 138 years but these fellows have been acting like youngsters since joining the Leafs.

The 33-year-old Kelly, for instance, wasn't a standout with Detroit Red Wings when manager Jack Adams peddled him off during the 1959-60 season. As a Leaf, he has scored 15 goals and assisted on 37 others in 50 games this season for 52 points.

The redhead needs only three more points in the next 20 games to beat his all-time NHL best of 54 established with Detroit in the 1950-51 season. More than this, Kelly has been a steadying influence on the club, particularly with 23 - year - old Frank Mahovlich, the league's leading scorer with 40 goals.

Stanley, [illegible] celebrates his 35th birthday March 1, is the hard rock on the Leaf defence. Ranger fans in New York booed him out of Madison Square Garden in the 1954-55 season and he was just another rearguard with Chicago and Boston until the Leafs picked him up at the start of the 1958 campaign.

The 34-year-old Olmstead, a Montreal Canadiens castoff after the 1957-58 season, is one of the hardest-working Leafs. His all-time NHL scoring high was 18 goals in 1950-51 with Chicago and Montreal and in 49 games this year he has scored 14. Not bad for an old guy whose biggest asset is fishing the puck out of the corners to set up goals for his linemates.

Then, there is Bower. The book lists him as 36 and he puts his age "between 35 and 40."

He has been knocking around in pro ranks since 1945 and "stole" the Leafs' goalkeeping job from Ed Cnadwick during the 1958-59 season. Johnny was the man who kept Leafs alive in their stretch run to the Stanley Cup final in 1959.

Captain George Armstrong best expressed the team's sentiments towards Imlach at a party following the 1959 Cup playoffs: "Here's to Punch Imlach, the man who got us off the floor and put money in our pockets."

Perry Como Show Always Entertaining, in Good Taste

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the mysteries of television is the way, week after week, Perry Como and his staff manage to turn out a smooth, tuneful and imaginative program. Almost any Wednesday the Como program proves more entertaining and better organized than the highly exploited special one-shot variety shows.

Wednesday night's Como show was no exception. His guests were singer Harry Belafonte and comedian Buddy Hackett. Each is a talented performer in his field, yet they are a difficult pair to blend into a well knit show. But Como pulled it off.

Perhaps one of the secrets is that each program is based on an idea—often a fairly fragile one—but enough to give the hour form any substance. Wednesday night's, for instance, was a "stag show"—no women.

But the stars didn't start to work over the charming idiosyncrasies of the fair sex in jokes and sketches until Belafonte had sung two solo folk songs in a handsome setting and Hackett occupied the screen alone with a comedy monologue.

The camera work is always fine. Wednesday night's shots of Belafonte singing were so close one could see the pores of his skin and it was most effective. The sets are always clean and beautifully designed. Como sets a pleasant, even pace. And the program is always in good taste.

Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll, for years the voices of radio's classic Amos 'n' Andy, will be heard again in a fall cartoon series scheduled for the ABC lineup. Instead of playing the well-known human characters, Gosden and Correll will be the voices of a bear and a fox in Calvin and the Colonel.

Marlon Brando Is Friendly But Not Chummy With Cast

By BOB THOMAS

PAPEETE (AP)—How does Marlon Brando live in Tahiti? The same as he does in Hollywood—by his lonesome.

Brando is one of the noted individualists of our time, and he is maintaining that reputation here in the South Seas.

He lives a few miles out of town in a thatched house, open to the elements like most dwellings on the island. Nearby is another house where lives Bob Hoskins, Brando's friend since childhood and dialogue director for Mutiny on the Bounty.

He is friendly but not chummy with the largely English cast for the Bounty saga.

He reads. "I could have financed a small picture company with the cost of bringing my books out here by air."

READS IN RIGGING

He reads much poetry aloud. Ashore, he will stray off from the film company and stroll down the beach, declaiming the poems with gestures. Or he may be found reading poetry in the rigging 85 feet above the deck of the Bounty.

He keeps up with world news by having the Sunday New York Times (30 cents) air-mailed to him for $28 a copy.

He is never at a loss for female companionship.

On New Year's Eve, for example, he hired one of the island's rattle - trap buses and filled it with 15 of the native girls who dance in the movie. They circled the island singing Tahitian songs.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, February 3, 1961.

General Tendencies: Opportunities are all over the placet for you to take the best from your background of experience and cherished ideas, to add some new formula or method and to get a result which can bring you the practical benefits for which you have been waiting. The evening is a time for getting your surroundings in better condition.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) By being so efficient in your tasks today so that you make a fine impression upon powerful individuals, you make great headway now. Evening is then fine for relaxation and concentrating upon a more affluent future.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Follow through on those inspired thoughts that occur to you today that will bring you closer to your goals, particularly in the field of art and dramatics. Make the evening very productive, too, as you also indulge in recreation.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Concentrate upon those tasks that will bring greater pleasure and happiness to loved ones now. Then if you get together with authorities and ask for suggestions you will be able to put ideas into operation that will bring greater abundance.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Now is your chance to get out with powerful individuals who can help you to garner the data you need as well as get new system or ideas in motion. Then get out tonight with good friends and have a very good time. Be happy.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have every opportunity now to put into operation new methods that will insure you a far greater income than you have had ere this. However, it is important you are most practical in your approach, especially with influential parties.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have every chance now to impress others with your particular charm and dynamism so that everyone will have an enjoyable time and you become a leader. Be sure you do everything you can to assist the very young.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) By having a friendly and intimate talk with closest of kin, you find out what must be done to increase happiness and prosperity in that realm of your life. P.M. invite guests in for fun and frolic.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Every opportunity is yours now to show devotion to friends and give helping hand where needed. Increase rapport. Plan any trip that is necessary or write to those with whom you have any business or personal interests. Be firm.

Sagittarius Nov. 22 to Dec. A good day to contact those in financial or business circles who can give you the right advice so that you can increase your income. Evening is then fine for taking any necessary health treatments. Keep throat clear.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Fine opportunities are about you to expand, but it requires that your level of consciousness be raised proportionately. Be sure you make the right new contacts and act most cordially though being businesslike. Expand.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) The right day to contact good personal or business advisors so that you may increase income appreciably and have more personal happiness. Be efficient. The evening is then ideal for any romantic notions you may have.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) This is one of those fine days when good associates or close friends will bring prosperity right within your orbit by some generous and wise suggestion, particularly those who are older or more experienced than you. Follow through.

If your child is born today .. he, or she, will be of that genre of people who appear very serious and painstaking and will want everything in its place. But, you must teach your youngster early to look into any project carefully before getting lost in the details thereof, since others may have an ulterior motive. Also, never to lose sight of the original and important plans. Educate well.

INDIGESTION; HEADACHES . . . TELLS OF GRAND RELIEF

Convincing proof of the good results obtained by taking Syntona Herbal Compound is found in reports from men and women who have used this medicine. Recently Mrs. Gladys Bradford, 216 Main Street W., Hamilton, Ontario, said:

Rundown, Tired-Out

"I was tired all the time from the time I got up in the mornings until I went to bed", said Mrs. Bradford. "I couldn't get my proper sleep at night. Also I was subject to throbbing headaches and food that I ate gave me indigestion, awful gas and full, heavy feeling in my stomach.

"Some years ago I had taken Syntona and I remembered how it had helped me, so I decided to try it again. Now, after taking it a few weeks I am feeling fine. It relieved the troubles with my indigestion and constipation, so now my nerves are calmed down and my sleep is more sound and restful. As a result that tired-out, rundown feeling is gone.

Syntona is sold recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

NEW! Syntona Tablets

Specially developed for rundown conditions due to iron-poor blood (or borderline anemia) and as an aid to digestion and nutrition. A totally new kind of Tonic Tablet containing valuable Herbs, and Iron PLUS Vitamins (B1 and B12).

First step to more egg income

Buying the right flock replacements is the first step toward higher egg income. You can be sure of that important first step when you buy the J. J. Warren Sex-Sal-Link from your Swift's Hatchery.

We believe—and we think the records prove—that the Sex-Sal-Link is the most outstanding brown egg layer on the market today, and the equal of any white egg layer. It averages 240 to 255 eggs per bird housed for a full year of lay, has good feed efficiency and egg size with low mortality.

This year, head for higher egg income with the famous J. J. Warren Sex-Sal-Link from your Swift's Hatchery. Order from us soon.

SWIFT'S HATCHERY

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Ready-to-serve foods and left-overs, hot and cold workers, school lunches and eyesight.

TO THE ICE BOX

It's best to pop your left-overs into the refrigerator as soon as possible, hot or not, researchers report. Notions that the food should cool first are false.

The idea probably came from days when ice was used to cool the ice box and hot foods raised the temperature of the box and melted the ice.

New studies show that disease-producing bacteria can grow in food from 44 degrees to 114 degrees fahrenheit. Cooking above 116 degrees kills the germs, and cooling to 42 degrees inhibits germ growth. Keeping foods, including pre-cooked, ready-to-serve types and vending machine foods, in the growth temperatures should be avoided.

SCHOOL LUNCH

How important is an adequate diet? A school lunch program offered by U.S. researchers in the highlands of Peru offers a clue:

After several years of adding up to 1,000 calories a day and needed vitamins to the almost completely vegeterian diet, researchers report weight gains double what they were at the beginning of the study.

HOT OR COLD

If you are a long-time southerner, you'll get used to hot spells quicker — and you'll sweat less and stay cooler in hot weather than a visiting northerner.

Scientists found this difference with young college students from New England and southern Florida. Life in the southern climate seems to equip southerners with better heat-regulating mechanisms.

MOSTLY CIGARS

One of the little known dangers of smoking for susceptible people is tobacco amblyopia, a U.S. doctor reports. Long-term cigar smokers are most often affected.

Some women smokers develop

Some victims have sudden blackouts of vision, probably due to spasms of cerebral blood vessels. Other possibilities: Weakened vision, loss of perception of red and green. Some women smokers develop dull headaches and weakened vision—then far-sightedness.

Symptoms disappear when smoking is stopped, says Dr. H. S. Hedges in the Virginia Medical Monthly.

BUYS LAND

HAMILTON (CP) — Pigott Realties Ltd. announces that it has purchased a 126-acre tract of land in Etobicoke in Metropolitan Toronto, and plans to turn it into an industrial park. It is expected, the company states, that modern plants employing about 8,000 workers, will eventually be built on the site.

Good Salesman At Wrong Time And Place

LONDON (AP) — Michael Murrell, 19, was sent to reform school Tuesday for being too good a salesman at the wrong time and place.

Police said Murrell broke into a sporting goods store where he formerly worked after it had closed for the night, hung out the "open" sign and started peddling goods.

In a week of nocturnal salesmanship, he got rid of 102 golf clubs and 1,020 golf balls, worth in all £620.

Sending Murrell away for an indeterminate term of corrective training, the judge commented:

"You are clearly a young man of some ability, considerable initiative and boldness."

Canada Makes Big Wheat Sale To Red China

Second Within Week To Communist Bloc

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has completed its second wheat sale within a week to the Communist bloc and a third is pending.

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton announced Thursday that 28,000,000 bushels of wheat and 12,133,000 bushels of barley valued in all at $60,000,000 have been sold to Red China, now faced with famine due to crop failures.

(Red China has also ordered 1,000,000 tons of wheat from Australia, worth some $60,500,000, Reuters news agency reported from Melbourne Thursday. This includes 300,000 tons bought last December.)

Earlier this week 7,300,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were sold to Russia. Negotiations now are in progress for selling a third lot of grain to Czechoslovakia. The deal is expected to be concluded this weekend but the quantity involved is not known.

SALE IS CASH

The latest sale of the Peking government's state trading agency in the British Crown colony of Hong Kong is for cash at existing market prices on the west coast, where China will take delivery of the estimated 100 shiploads of grain.

Canada's sales involve mostly high quality grades of wheat which the other major wheat-exporting nations of the West are unable to offer. However, both the United States and Australia—with its own grain sale to China—have been informed of the Canadian negotiations.

Sales to the Communist bloc come at a time when prospects for increasing Canadian wheat exports have been dim. In addition to world surpluses and lack of growth in domestic consumption, Canada has been losing ground in some of its traditional European markets.

Mr. Hamilton told Commons Thursday that the sale to Red China constitutes one of the largest single sales ever consummated by Canada in the commercial field, and added that it is part of the government's policy of "accelerated" wheat sales.

NOT YET ENDED

Outside the House, he told reporters:

"We're not finished with this business with new countries yet. We're looking literally every place for sales. No one is sitting here waiting for business. We're out hustling for it."

Canadian wheat exports in the last crop year, which ended July 31 last, dropped to 278,000,000 bushels from 294,000,000 in 1958-59 and 316,000,000 in 1957-58. Government experts have said the maximum in forthcoming years would be around 300,000,000 bushels.

Mr. Hamilton reiterated Thursday his forecast that the Prime Minister Leaves French In the Lurch

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker moved so fast Thorsday he left his French in the lurch.

The prime minister turned up at a meeting with trade union leaders from Quebec province.

He promptly apologized for not being able to welcome them in French—his French speech was still in his office where he had left it in a pell-mell rush from the Commons.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he didn't dare try to speak in French off the cuff.

The last time he tried that, he said, was when he was touring the Gaspe Peninsula. He launched proudly into an extemporaneous address in French — which lasted less than two minutes.

Then he was stumped when he tried to express his feelings about the beauties of the Gaspe.

The loudspeaker system into which he was speaking relayed his dismay to his audience when he turned to the local mayor, and said:

"What the heck is the word for panorama in French?"

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton announced Canada's sale to Communist China of 28,000,000 bushels of wheat and 12,133,000 bushels of barley in an agreement valued at $60,000,000.

Paul Martin (L—Essex East) welcomed the announcement, saying it would be "very well received" by the Canadian public.

CCF Leader Argue said the government, recognizing the Red government as one it could do business with, should extend that recognition to the diplomatic field.

Finance Minister Fleming, in debate on customs tariff regulations, accused the former Liberal government of neglecting Canadian industry.

Liberal spokesmen accused the Conservatives of trying to suppress the courts in tariff matters and of seeking to take on unprecedented arbitrary powers.

Finance Minister Fleming said he has been forced by correspondence with Premier Bennett to doubt British Columbia's willingness to proceed quickly with Columbia River development.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said he hopes to meet President Kennedy before the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference opening March 8 in London.

The Commons meets at 11 a.m. EST to debate budget resolutions; The Senate is adjourned until 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Synopsis:—Development of a new storm centre over Tennessee Thursday which has since moved northward into Ohio threatens Southern Ontario with snowfalls ranging from three inches to as much as six to ten inches in exposed areas along the northwest shores of Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. FAREWELL TO SANTA MARIA — Passengers from the hijacked Portuguese liner Santa Maria ride tugboat to dock at Recife, Brazil, as the vessel rides at anchor in background. Pirate Captain Gives up Hope of Sailing Captured Vessel Out of Brazilian Port

RECIFE (Reuters) — Rebel Portuguese Captain Henrique Galvao gave up hope today of sailing the captured cruise liner Santa Maria out to sea again.

Galvao and his band of opponents to the regime of Portuguese Premier Antonio Salazar were still aboard the Santa Maria, anchored just inside the breakwater of this Brazilian harbor.

But, Galvao told reporters; "It would be foolish to sail this unarmed vessel out against the naval units now concentrated against us."

"We are few," he said. "We cannot possibly continue our voyage. The ship cannot be moved out of here."

Two Portuguese destroyers, a Spanish cruiser and four Brazilian frigates were reported to be lying off Recife, waiting to intercept the Santa Maria should Galvao try to put to sea again.

The rebel leader spoke to reporters aboard the ship a few hours after the 560 passengers and 360 crew members of the hijacked liner had been brought ashore by tugs Thursday.

Galvao did not disclose his plans for himself and the band of 70 men who seized the liner 12 days ago after slipping aboard as passengers. They were expected, however, to ask for political asylum in Brazil.

Tugs had chugged back and forth across the muddy harbor for several hours, bringing the passengers ashore. The first taken off were elderly passengers, mothers-to-be and children.

Their main emotion was one of relief coupled with a measure of disbelief that their 11-day ordeal as captives aboard the liner was over.

Galvao told reporters the reason he put in at Recife was "to save the life of a man who had

R.B. BENNETT'S GHOST STALKS HOUSE DEBATE

PC's Deny Remarks Made by Opposition

OTTAWA (CP)—The ghost of R. B. Bennett seemed to stalk the dusky Commons chamber Thursday as MPs talked about such things as trade and protectionism.

The name of the late Conservative prime minister floated time and again into debate on a resolution calling for changes in the customs tariff to plug loopholes which the government says exist.

Liberal and CCF members claimed that the proposed changes point the way to a return to the protectionist policies pursued by Mr. Bennett in the early years of the great depression.

Government speakers, led by Finance Minister Fleming and Revenue Minister Nowlan, denied it.

"We are not going back to the days of R. B. Bennett," declared Mr. Nowlan. "We are simply going back to practices which were pursued, and I think properly, by the government of Mackenzie King and those asso-

Water Trucks on Ont. Roads As Common as Oil Tankers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

On the dry, frost-encrusted roads of Southern Ontario water trucks are becoming almost as common as oil tankers.

A dry autumn, heavy ground-penetrating frosts without insulating snow cover, and a cyclical lowering of the water table have caused scores of rural wells to peter out from Lake St. Clair to the Ottawa Valley.

The shallow "dug" wells have been causing most trouble but even some deep-drilled wells are running dry.

Some have trouble at eight feet and others at 60 feet, says A. K. Watt, supervisor of the Ontario Water Resources Commission's ground water branch.

"It's a variable situation all over the province, but water level is lower than average for these areas," he said.

Optimism is hard to find.

Dr. E. A. Berry, general manager of the commission, says the commission is doing all it can to help, but agricultural representatives in most counties see little relief in sight before the spring thaw.

Even a thaw won't help much unless there is a heavy snowfall first, says Craig Lauty, agricultural engineer at Galt for the provincial department of planning and development.

Mr. Lauty's view is that in the earth's present deep-frozen condition, melting ice and rain would just run off. A snow blanket, however, would provide insulating cover and allow natural heat in the earth to drive the frost up and out.

Mr. Lauty says the water table—the level of sub-surface moisture—is at one of the lows

Forecasts Indicate Cold Wave May Be Replaced by Snow

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The icy grip of winter seems to be loosening.

A moderating trend has begun in the Prairies and is gradually heading east, shaking loose the bone-chilling grasp of deep sub-zero temperatures that has fastened on most of Canada except British Columbia for at least two weeks.

Forecasts indicate the cold in Eastern Canada may be replaced by snow.

Southern Ontario was expected to have wind-blown snow all day.

Light snow is predicted for Quebec and possibly Nova Scotia.

Overnight temperatures were cold, but not as severe as Thursdan ight when two records were set in the east.

In Chatham, Ont., early Thursday, the temperature was 13 below, lowest in the area since weather records began Feb. 2, 1904. At Truro, N.S., the mercury plunged to -30, lowest ever recorded.

Weather-conscious residents in Eastern Canada watched for the groundhog which every Feb. 2 becomes a weather prophet looking for its shadow. The animal was seen to emerge in the cold, look at its shadow and quickly disappear. According to superstitution, this indicates six more weeks of winter.

Thursday's overnight low of nine below in Toronto was the city's coldest day of the year and the coldest Feb. 2 since 1881 when the thermometer dropped to 15 below. It was the coldest winter day since Jan. 14, 1957, when it was 10 below. Unofficial readings from outlying areas pushed the temperature as low as 23 below.

The mercury has dipped below zero in Quebec City for 21 days and in Montreal for 17.

But temperatures are expected to rise to the seasonal average within a day or two.

While easterners grabbed for their earmuffs, British Columbia enjoyed a mild spell that extended into Alberta, parts of Saskatchewan and was expected to warm up Manitoba today and Saturday.

Labor, Management Urged To Tackle Jobless Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Starr urged labor and management Thursday to launch a joint, factory-by-factory attack on the causes of unemployment.

"The government has acted," he said. "Now is the time for labor and management to act."

He made the plea in reply to a brief from the 1,100,000-member Canadian Labor Congress calling for a massive spending drive by government to rescue Canada's lagging economy and to rejuvenate employment.

He elaborated on it a few hours later when he replied to a similar brief from the Confederation of National Trade Unions, 90,000-member central body of Quebec's labor syndicates.

CLC President Claude Jodoin argued that no matter how well labor and management get along together, they cannot solve the basic ills of the present economy — that must be done by government.

The two labor bodies met Prime Minister Diefenbaker and members of his cabinet for their annual presentation of trade union views on domestic and foreign issues. Unemployment dominated the day.

Mr. Starr said labor and management must bridge the chasm

ONTARIO BUDGET WILL BE DELAYED STATES PREMIER

Will Not Come Until After Conference

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Wintermeyer charged Premier Frost Thursday with failing to live up to his responsibility as leader of the government by not finding the tax money for Ontario's development.

His remarks came after a statement by Mr. Frost that the introduction of the budget will be delayed until after the federal - provincial fiscal conference, tentatively scheduled for Feb. 23-24.

The premier said the federal government has made no "firm proposal" to Ontario's request for a larger share of the direct tax fields.

Mr. Wintermeyer said the government has the right to levy taxes necessary to fulfill its duties.

"You'd pull the plug out of the good ship Ontario," Mr. Frost replied.

FISCAL DELAYS

The premier hoped to introduce the budget about Feb. 14 but resumption of the fiscal conference which adjourned last October caused the delay. Ontario must have an idea of its future share of revenue before it can establish a budget.

Ontario wants an equal share of the personal income tax and corporation profits in the province. Mr. Frost said a new 50-50 tax sharing arrangement would not have to come into effect at the expiration of the present plan March 31, 1962.

He proposes a start at once and adjustment towards equal participation be progressively achieved over the next five years.

Ontario collects 11 per cent of the corporation profits and is rebated 13 per cent of the personal income tax collected in the province.

GRANTS A PROBLEM

Mr. Frost said a major problem was provincial grants to municipalities and boards of education. The government would notify school boards and municipalites "to proceed upon the basis of grants applicable this year."

"As the matter now stands, we shall have to wait until Feb. 23 and 24 to see what emerges from these meetings. . . . I do not think it is necessary to discuss the various alternatives which might be taken at that time."

One alternative is believed to be a sales tax.

He said he would study alternative measures immediately after the conference, if necessary.

DEATH SADDENS

The legislature was saddened by the death of Dr. William J. Dunlop, 79, former minister of education. Mr. Frost adjourned

Father, Another Child Burned, House Destroyed

Mother at Relative's Home When Fire Starts

BANCROFT — Two small children were burned to death, and the father and his four-year-old daughter are in hospital with severe burns to the face and hands, following an early morning fire which destroyed their home near Baptiste Lake, nine miles northwest of Bancroft.

Dead are Karen Brethour, aged two, and her ten-months'-old sister Sondra.

In the Red Cross Hospital at Bancroft is the father, Garnet Brethour. His four-year-old daughter, Elaine, has been taken to Peterborough Civic Hospital.

The fire which destroyed the Brethour home at Mud Creek, occurred about nine o'clock this morning, according to provincial police at Bancroft.

The mother had prepared breakfast for the other members of the family and then had gone to the home of her father-in-law, John Henry Brethour. The fire started after she left the house.

Either screaming of the children or the smoke and noise of the fire awakened Mr. Brethour who was sleeping upstairs.

He either fell or jumped downstairs and grabbing four-year-old Elaine ran out of the burning house into sub-zero temperature. Flames prevented his re-entry into the burning building in an effort to save the two other children.

The father and daughter were taken to Bancroft hospital by a neighbor, Mr. Matt Peever.

Mr. Brethour was stated to have suffered serious burns to his hands and face as he raced to safety with his daughter.

Elaine was also seriously burned and accompanied by her mother has been taken to hospital at Peterborough.

At noon today provincial police at Bancroft were still investigating the fire.

HELD FOR WAR CRIMES

NUERNBERG (AP)—A former German police captain was held here today on charges of helping murder 1,200 Russian Jewish children and invalids during the war. Helmut Saur, now employed as an office clerk in Fuerth, Bavaria, was arrested earlier this week, a spokesman for a local court announced. Saur and his special police unit combed the ghetto at Pins, in the Soviet Union, in November 1942 for children and sick persons, the spokesmas said.

Captain of Santa Maria Tells How Pirates Took Cruise Ship

What happened that night in the Caribbean when the Liner Santa Maria was seized by Portuguese rebels? Here is the story as told by the ship's captain to Morris W. Rosenberg of The Associated Press.

By Capt. Mario Simoes Maia

RECIFE (AP) — At approximately 1:30 a.m. on Jan. 22, a frightened sailor of my ship came running to my cabin to report that some passengers were taking hostile action on the bridge.

He said they had apparently seriously wounded the third officer, who was the pilot on the bridge at the time, and an apprentice officer with him.

I went up toward the bridge. When my eyes reached the level of the bridge floor I saw a man standing in the door across the bridge aiming a machine-gun at me.

I quickly dropped down the steps and ran into my cabin. Locking the door and cutting off the lights, I called the engine room to halt the engines.

I started to leave by a side door of my cabin when I saw through the glass door an officer lying on the deck covered with blood. I thought he was dead until I noticed a leg moving.

When I started out the door to try to pull him into the cabin, I saw a man aiming a rifle at me. I locked myself in the cabin and in the dark, by counting the holes of my telephone, tried to telephone the crew to have them armed with bars or anything for weapons.

None answered in the crew rooms because at that time they all were lying on the decks with guns pointed at their heads.

In another section, the officers' quarters, a man armed with a machine-gun knocked on an officer's door. When the officer opened the door, the man fired a machine-gun burst at him but by a miracle missed.

The officer kicked the door shut.

In all, one officer was killed and three wounded—one with a shot in the back, two with shots in the lungs.

In my cabin at the time, after failing to get through a telephone call, I overheard on the communication system someone trying to call another point on the ship.

"Who is talking there?" I

SPORTS

The noon hour schedules for the gyms are usually fairly full, but time was arranged this week for two new activities. Last Monday the boys' gym was a scene of keen competition as the various grades competed within themselves in a "foul" shooting contest. The boys managed to chalk up some impressive scores with the highest made by Martin Baker of 10E with 22 baskets out of 30.

Meanwhile, in the girls' gym the new activity takes the form of a Tumbling Club. Each Tuesday noon, under the leadership of Miss Martinson, the girls gather for some fun and instruction in the art of "tumbling."

Last fall, at an all-star floor hockey game, Mr. Floor Hockey of 1961 was chosen by the spectators. The title this year went to Murray Hunter, of 12F, who received his official trophy during Wednesday's assembly. This interform sport, requiring both speed the skill, is a popular one in the school.

GENTLEMAN'S DAY

February 15 is a day both anticipated and dreaded at the Collegiate. These adjectives may be applied to the girls and boys respectively, for that is the day when the Keyettes sponsor their annual Gentleman's Day. For one day of the school year, the masculine set is challenged to dress and act accordingly. Although this event has drawn many varied comments, the custom persists. So, Gentlemen — "Be Prepared!"

OUR TOWN

The Drama Club's presentation of "Our Town" last week was very successful. Written by Thornton Wilder, it concerns life in a small New Hampshire town, at the turn of the century. This type of play employs little scenery and requires a well-cast group for effective presentation. The Drama Club succeeded in hurdling this obstacle, and the play was produced with an almost professional touch. A great deal of credit must go to all those who assisted in the production, but most of all one must acknowledge the splendid performance of the cast, and the excellent direction by Miss Morrison and Miss Lampros.

QUINTE HIGH SCHOOL

By BARBARA MALLORY

Quinte now has another first! The skating rink, although discouraging in its earlier stages when the weather seemed unco-operative, has at last been completed and is in top condition. It has encouraged Quinte's Snow Carnival, which included a queer form of hockey as played by Grade 13 girls, and as queer a form played by teachers against students. The Key Club also challenged the Keyettes to a game and you can guess who won. Students are still enjoying skating at noon and after school so this has proved a worthwhile project.

We congratulate Anna Judd of 12A for coming first in the public speaking contest for the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, held in Batawa last week. Runner-up, Wayne Sobie from BCI, is a former Quinte student, too.

This past week at Quinte we have observed as our annual Air Cadet Week. Excellent displays set up by the Cadets included a manekin fully dressed and prepared for parachuting, plus a number of pieces of lifesaving equipment. This week's activities included hockey games among the flights and the Father and Son Banquet on Tuesday night. Held in the cafeteria the banquet had Air Commodore F. S. Carpenter, Air Officer Commanding Air Transport Command at Trenton, as guest speaker. In the father and son rifle competition, Mr. McMullen and Ron won superior scores.

Wednesday was Cadet Assembly. The cadets took their pledge and award-winning cadets were given presentations. Sergeant Glydon from the Parachute Rescue Unit at Station Trenton addressed us with a very vivid and interesting picture of his work.

Cadet Week was climaxed on Thursday with the Blue and Grey Ball, the annual formal sponsored by our 608 RCAC squadron, and Students' Parliament. The theme for the gala even was Hawaii. Our squadron, under its leader, Squadron Leader Craighead, has lived up to its fame with a very successful Cadet Week.

Diligent work is still being done for "The Boy Friend." This is now a sure success and everyone is anxious to see the finished product. Get your tickets now for this Quint spectacular, for they are going fast.

God-Fearing Fathers Needed By Youth

TRENTON — Rev. Ronald Reid and members of the congregation of Bethel Temple are hosts to 65 delegates from Eastern Ontario Pentecostal assemblies at a prayer convention this week.

Rev. D. F. Feltmate, district director of Sunday Schools and men's fellowship groups, was the guest speaker at a dinner last night.

He said that the answer to today's problems would be the presence of a "good old-fashioned, God-fearing father in the home."

He said that modern men hesitate to take the lead in the home today.

"Young people need help," said Mr. Feltmate. "A Christian father has more responsibility than to bring home the weekly pay cheque. He needs to show his children, by example, the way to the Christian life."

He said that on a recent visit to New York he had learned that last year more than 600 students had been expelled from high schools there. He said that he had seen weapons used in gang wars and that these included knives, guns and chains.

"Juvenile delinquency is a serious problem in Canada and the United States," he said. "Only a return to the Christian religion can save the youth of today, and it is the duty of the father in the home to lead his family back to God."

Rev. Tom Johnstone, who is conducting the evening prayer services, urged the men in the congregation to get behind the men's fellowship movement. He said that only the Gospel of Christ met the needs of the human heart.

Other leaders of the movement attending the convention are Rev. W. B. Greenwood, district superintendent for Eastern Ontario and Quebec; Rev. Roy Upton, director of the Christ's Ambassadors group for Metropolitan Toronto; Rev. D. Ellis, pastor of Cobourg Church and presbyter of section 2; Rev. M. Hornby, pastor of the Campbellford church and presbyter of section 3.

Davis Says

Not in Public's Interest to Name Welfare Figures

TRENTON — Welfare Administrator A. Gordon Davis said yesterday that the number of persons in town receiving welfare was considerably higher than in recent years. He said he did not think the public interest would be served by releasing figures pointing up the exact number of welfare recipients.

Food and assistance with rental are two of the largest items considered by the welfare department. Mr. Davis said that he had an adequate supply of clothing at his disposal for distribution to needy adults and children but that he lacked the time to make a comprehensive survey of the immediate needs of families which might be in need of assistance. He said that he had been giving consideration to asking service clubs to help.

Mr. Davis said that plans for the erection of a senior citizens' apartment were at a standstill because of the inability of his department to find a suitable site for the building.

Heads Association

TRENTON — Fire Chief Cecil Ellis of Trenton has been elected president of the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Association. He succeeds Fire Chief John Aquino of Batawa. Fire Chief Fred Clark of Point Anne was elected vice-president at a meeting held Wednesday night at Point Anne.

Ill at Home, Infant Dies In Hospital

TRENTON — Eleven-month-old Kim Kearney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kearney, Carrying Place Road, died in hospital Thursday night shortly after she was found ill in her crib at home.

Police said Mrs. Kearney had put her daughter to bed and a short while later looked in on her and found her face had turned blue. The infant was said to have had the sniffles before going to bed.

The fire department and an ambulance were called and the infant was given oxygen on the way to hospital in the ambulance.

Mothers Raise $2,700 for Fund

TRENTON — Miss Eva Morrison chairman of the March of Dimes campaign, reports that $2,742.05 was collected by the Marching Mothers in Trenton, Brighton, Batawa and Frankford during last Monday's door-to-door canvass for funds. Of this, Trenton residents contributed $2,108.05; Brighton $378, Frankford $148, and Batawa $108.

Miss Morrison, president of the Quinte Disabled Persons Club, said that she was pleased with the results of the canvass. This is the first year that she has assumed the chairmanship of the local March of Dimes committee. The money raised will be used in rehabilitation work with crippled persons.

Minor Damage

TRENTON — Firemen were called to Greene's Service Station on Dundas Street, East at 7 p.m. Thursday when the flooding of a large oil furnace caused heavy, billowing clouds of smoke to fill the repair shop where a number of vehicles were parked. Damage was minor.

Found Dead

TRENTON — An RCAF serviceman, who had been ill for several months, was found dead in a hotel bed here Thursday, a bullet wound in his throat and a .22-calibre rifle lying nearby.

Police identified him as LAC Patrick Joseph Morrissey, 41, whose only known relative is a brother in Ireland.

Police said Morrissey was on sick leave from the RCAF.

LABOR

that divides them and sit down together on an equal basis to deal with such problems as productivity, automation, technical retraining, world competition, the whole field of labor-management relations.

"Only in this way can we bring about a marshalling of our productive and distributive capacity in order to make Canadian industry competitive," he said.

"The government cannot do this because this would imply coercion—and this is not a government of coercion."

WANTS NEW MONEY

The CLC's suggested remedy is a powerful injection of a new money from the federal treasury—even if it means a deficit—so that socially desirable projects can be undertaken immediately, thus providing jobs to counter rising unemployment.

Mr. Starr contended that Parliament has approved and is considering right now "the most massive social and economic program ever introduced in Canada."

His remarks did not deter 50 flying squads of union workers who swept into Parliament in a mass lobby drive to find out MPs' views on how best to beat unemployment, which the CLC says will hit about 750,000 at its peak this winter. Mid-December unemployment involved 528,000 workers.

Will Continue Investigation Toward Setting up Airport

Augmented by representatives from the Belleville city council and possibly from Hastings county council, the Airport Committee of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce will continue its investigation toward setting up of an airport to serve the Belleville district.

This was the decision reached at a meeting Wednesday evening by the Chamber committee with members of city council.

The advantages of having an airport to serve the Belleville area was fully discussed at the meeting. The feeling, however, was that the Chamber of Commerce committee had already broken ground in the matter and would be the ideal committee to carry on.

Accordingly the committee will meet in the near future to set out terms of reference and to plan the course to be taken. Wednesday evening's meeting was chaired by Chamber of Commerce president Gerry Wishart and Mayor A. McLean Haig.

WILL MAKE EVERY EFFORT

Every possibility toward establishing an airstrip to serve the Bellevilel area will be investigated by the committee.

Possibilities to be investigated will range all the way from acquiring a small landing strip for the accommodation of executive type planes to the taking over of the now little used Deseronto airport.

Wednesday night's meeting saw one decision agreed upon—that, for safety reasons, there will be no effort made to have Trenton Air Station opened for use by a commercial airline to serve the Belleville-Trenton district.

Members of the Chamber Airport Committee are James Marker, chairman, with members Nelson McKibbon and Frank Foley.

Carnegie Tests Will Be Given Grade 10 Pupils

From February 6-10, the second of this year's Carnegie tests will be given to Grade X students in the local secondary schools. This will be followed later, in the year by achievement tests in English, Mathematics and French.

The Carnegie program was started in 1959 and will follow all students who entered Secondary Schools in Ontario at that time, for five successive years. This project of the Department of Educational Research, is a study of identification and utilization of talent in High School and College.

The Department of Educational Research is also carrying out this year a continuation of the Grade XII departmental testing program. During the year, all students who expect to qualify for a Secondary School Graduation Diploma will write a scholastic aptitude test together with achievement tests in World History II, Latin, Algebra, History and Elements of Economics. It is expected that the results will supplement the information and marks normally available at promotion time and assist teachers in determining the readiness of candidates, who are border-line pupils, for promotion. The result will also enable the school to place the class in perspective with all classes in the same course throughout the province.

Driving Club Picks Racing Dates for Year

Quinte Driving and Riding Club officers for 1961 are as follows:

President, Cameron Bunnett; secretary, Mrs. Gilbert Zebedee; vice-president, Herman Lucas; second vice-president, Fire Chief Gerald Vance; acting treasurer, Phil Stewart.

Night racing, as everyone knows is possible now. This could mean an increase in attendance and as Belleville race track already has floodlights, which were installed about ten years ago for baseball, and, with a few more lights added, night racing could proceed. This was one subject highly discussed.

Five race dates, May 27, June 10, June 24, July 15, August 5, were picked. Members are working hard for this club and that is what is keeping harness racing alive in Belleville. The club fared well last year, doing much better than other harness racing clubs at the one-day meets. This year the Driving Club hopes to have a better year with larger purses.

Store Closed After Chimney Is Blocked

And the soot came tumbling down!

The Front Street Jewellery store of Paul Mercier is closed for the next day or so while cleaners clean-up and re-decorate following an unusual chimney mishap Wednesday evening.

A crew of wreckers this week have been tearing down the old stone building adjacent to the Bank of Montreal, preparatory to the construction of a new bank building.

Vibration set up during the wreckage of the 100 year old structure is believed to have dislodged soot and mortar in a nearby chimney serving the Paul Mercier furnace with result that the chimney was plugged and backfiring of the furnace filled the store with black soot.

Yesterday and for the next day or so cleaners will be busy cleaning up the mess and putting the store back to rights.

In the meantime the chimney and furance have been cleaned out.

It is understood that the building wreckers have insurance coverage for just such mishaps.

Winslow, with Alf Hill skip, from the Peterborough Country Club, in the first round of the Brier playdowns, played at the Cobourg Curling Club this Friday morning.

In other games in the draw the Peterborough Curling Club with Bert Harrison as skip won from Bicroft Curling Club by default, Bill Lewis of the RCAF Curling Club, Trenton, defeated J. Cooper of the Bancroft Curling Club, 10-3, while John Roy of the Cobourg Curling Club defeated Dr. Hallett of the Trenton Curling Club, 9-6.

In the afternoon draw the Belleville rink will meet the Cobourg Curling Club, while the RCAF Trenton rink will play the Peterborough Curling Club, with the winners of these two games meeting in the final game for the right to advance to the second round of the playdowns leading to the Ontario championship for single rinks. The winner of the Ontario playdowns will take part in the Canadian championship to be played in the west this year.

Mac White broke on top against the Peterborough club but ran into difficulty in the middle ends and ended the twelve ends in an 8-8 tie. In the first extra end White had last rock and had an open 'house' to draw to for shot but was a little light. In the second extra end he made the draw that won the game. Morris Booth of Cobourg was the umpire for the games.

Varied and New Programs Needed for Fairs' Success Association Delegates Told

Those who work on agricultural societies and fair boards are making a contribution to the greatest industry on earth—agriculture, Floyd Lashley, superintendent of fairs for Ontario, told close to 100 delegates at the annual meeting of District No. 3 of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies held at the Kiwanis Centre yesterday afternoon.

Fairs have been operating since before 1830 in Ontario and they have a great background and tradition of service to the community in which they are held. They provide an annual showcase for the products and people of the community and every dollar made by a fair goes back into agriculture in some fashion or other and is thus never lost, continued Mr. Lashley.

Fair boards would be well advised to always make sure that there is something new in the program for each coming year, said the speaker, noting that people often fail to take advantage of new ideas and to make the fullest possible use of the facilities which are available to make the fair a better known event. A gimmick or some controversial point to stir up community interest in the fair is always a good idea, he added.

PANEL SESSION HELD

A lively panel session was also held during the afternoon session of the meeting. Conducted by Phil Dodds of Picton, a number of interesting points such as uniform admission prices in the district; the use of passes, obtaining larger grants, were discussed. Much discussion centred on the suggestion of setting down a standard minimal admission price and the proposal was talked down by those who felt that it was up to the individual fair board to determine what admission they should charge.

The dates for the fairs within the district were arranged and have been set down as:

Cancer Statistics

Cancer is taking an increasingly heavy toll of lives in Canada, and indeed, in many other countries where advanced medical techniques have reduced the incidence of deaths from other causes.

For this reason alone, the twenty-fourth annual statistical report on cancer in Ontario will be of interest to many.

We are fully aware that there are inherent dangers in a layman attempting to interpret the meaning of the statistical tables, even with the help of some four pages of text preceding them. Nevertheless, with the reservation that nothing we say should be taken as an authoritative analysis, we shall briefly present some figures from the report and suggest possible, or probable, significances.

Whereas in 1934, cancer accounted for 10.5 per cent of the deaths amongst males and 13.5 per cent of the deaths amongst females in this province, in 1958 the toll was 15 per cent of the deaths among males and 17.7 per cent of the deaths among females. . This, though, tells only part of the story. Population aging has to be taken into consideration and, the report says, when this is done "it seems likely that there has been a true increase in recorded cancer mortality for males and a decrease for females, whether the differences be due to changes in diagnosis or death certification, to incidence, environment or treatment."

Later in the report it is noted that: "Since 1953 . . . . steady year-to-year increases have been noted in the proportion of deaths (of people with cancer) ascribed to some cause other than cancer (5.3 per cent in 1953 to 8.44 per cent in 1959)." This certainly confuses the issue. But, with this in mind, it is interesting to note that the number of death per 100,000 males of all ages has risen from 109 in 1934 to 143 in 1958, while after an adjustment for age based on the 1941 census the increase was from 123 per 100,000 to 143. For females, the crude, or unadjusted, rate rose from 127 per 100,000 to 128 (but touched a high of 148 in 1948), while the adjusted rate declined, from 137 in 1934 to 126 in 1958.

We are not at all sure what conclusions should be drawn from a table showing new cases treated and deaths from cancer by counties. Aside from York County (Toronto), Wentworth (Hamilton), Essex (Windsor), Carleton (Ottawa) and Middlesex (London), Hastings was second only to Frontenac in the number of new cases, 143. But the number of deaths in Hastings, 112, was exceeded by the number of deaths in several other counties. The three counties with the highest ratio of new cases to deaths, (or to put it another way, the lowest ratio of deaths to new cases), were all in this area, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington and Hastings, in that order. Whether this should be regarded as encouraging, indicating a high ratio of success in treatment, or whether it should be considered as indicating an upward trend in new cancer cases in this district we do not know.

Also defying interpretation by a layman are statistics regarding the site of the disease, which show that 19.3 per cent of the deaths of males from cancer in 1958 were the result of cancer of the lung, bronchus and trachea, while only three per cent of the cancer deaths of females were caused by cancer in this area. At one time this might have been suggested to conform with the prevalent theory that smoking is a cause of many lung cancers, but today smoking is almost as prevalent amongst women as amongst men.

Blood Donors Needed

No self-respecting person wants to be a parasite. The same holds true for communities. Yet, in the past couple of years, Belleville has been parasitic in respect to the amount of blood it has supplied to, and received from, the Canadian Red Cross Society.

Last year blood donors here gave 1,047 bottles of blood. The Belleville General Hospital received 1,849 bottles of blood from the Red Cross. In other words 42 per cent of the blood required to treat patients in our hospital came from donors elsewhere. If all Ontario centres did no better than Belleville, only six out of every ten Ontario patients who needed life-giving blood would be able to receive it.

About the only encouraging thing one can say about last year's record is that it was better than in 1959. That year bottles of blood donated numbered 866, while 1,800 bottles of blood were used at the hospital, meaning that 52 per cent of our needs were supplied by others.

The Belleville branch of the Red Cross Society is holding another clinic at the Kiwanis Centre on Dundas Street East on Monday, from 2.30 p.m. to 5 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Those who would like Belleville to stand on its own feet can help in reaching this objective by arranging to donate blood at this, and future, clinics.

Be Ethically Ethnical

Toronto Globe and Mail

Most Canadians, we suspect, will find something very humiliating in the way the Canadian Government has given way under pressure on the subject of ethnic origins.

In the 1961 census, the Government proposed to use a form in which individuals could answer the question about national origin by filling in the word "Canadian"; if they wished to they were free to list themselves as English, French, German and so forth. The move was welcomed by a great many people who were proud to call themselves Canadians and resented being forced to identify themselves as something else on the basis of their ancestors' country of origin. A storm of protest was raised, however, by Quebec nationalists and other ethnic organizations. A group of Members of Parliament, led by former Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier, raised the issue in the House of Commons. They argued that "Canadian" designated a nationality, not an ethnic origin.

This week the Government buckled under the pressure. It recalled some seven million census forms already printed and announced that new ones would be issued. Each would contain this question: "To what ethnic or cultural group did you or your ancestor—on the male side—belong on coming to this continent?" To answer that one, each person — Indians and Eskims excepted — will have to rummage back in his family history and indicate what part of Europe his ancestors came from even if they crossed the ocean two or three centuries ago.

The debate which produced this result had its ludicrous side. The Quebec MPs who led the battle against the recognition of Canadian as an ethnic origin are among those who have campaigned for a national flag and a national anthem. Why are these things of any importance if there is no Canadian nation? CCF Leader Hazen Argue expressed satisfaction with the Government's action and hoped it would be accepted by all Canadians. How can it be, if three are no such people?

In its implications, however, the Government's surrender is tragic rather than comic. The people of Canada are made up, certainly, of many racial stocks; so indeed, are all existing peoples. Generations of shared experience and tradition, however, have welded the minto a nation, and one recognized as such throughout the world. Surely the time has come when its citizens have the right to call themselves Canadians and nothing more, just as Englishmen, for example, are permitted to identify themselves as such without specifying whether their ancestors were Saxons or Celts or Normans. By this minute classification of its people according to their racial origins, by forcing them to declare themselves English or French, or Ukranian or Hungarian, the Government has undermined national unity and impeded the work of nation-building.

Meanwhile, we hope that the leaders responsible for retaining the ethnic origin question will do their full duty when census time rolls around. It should not be enough for Mr. Chevreir to declare his origin as French. France had not taken its present form when the ancestors of our French-speaking population settled in Quebec. Mr. Chevrier should state whether his ancestors were Franks or Burgundians or Gallo-Romans. Similarly, Prime Minister John Diefenbaker cannot be permitted to give his origin as German; after all, Germany was established in 1871, four years after our Confederation. We want to know if he is a Prussian, a Bavarian, a Hessian or a Hanoverian. Since ethnic origin is so terribly important, let us be properly ethnical and historical about it.

Laos Govt. Cried 'Wolf'

Montreal Star

The government of Laos has made a very unusual statement, one which will not add to its reputation although it may make a negotiated settlement in the country easier.

At a press conference, the pro-Western government declared that when it appealed to outside countries and organizations for help, such as the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, it did not really want help. The reason for making the appeals was apparently to reassure the Laos population that it had friends abroad, so as to increase its confidence in the government.

The minister of Education stated at the conference that "if SEATO really came in there would be international war and this country would be the battleground. Nobody really wants that." No doubt the government also had in mind the possibility that its appeals would bring it material aid, and might frighten its opponents.

Unfortunately, the admission that the situation was rather exaggerated will cause Western countries to look with great skepticism upon future appeals, even if those appeals should be wholly genuine.

More hopefully, this statement may make it easier to bring some stability to Laos through negotiation. But stability will still require the cooperation of the United States and the Soviet Union. Both countries are now committed, to some extent, to help one side or the other. Only they, by agreeing to regard the country as a neutral, buffer state, can apply the pressure that could end the civil war.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

Here it is weeks and weeks from examination time. Yet every day at four o'clock we see the young ladies from high school and ladies' colleges swaying resolutely homeward with from twelve to twenty pounds of school books balanced on their tummies, their hands clasped below.

What are they going to do, day after day, night after night with all those books? Not four books or six books, but ten or even fifteen books! Whole libraries of learning being portaged home every evening and portaged back down to school next day. Could it be there is no room for the books in our crowded schools? Has it come to this?

Is anybody trying to tell me that the young ladies read all the books when they get home? With the TV on? With the telephone sitting right there, idle?

It could be, perhaps, part of the physical education of Canadian young ladies. Maybe totling all those books backwards and forwards is the counterpart in Canada of what we see on TV during the big American bowl games, when hundreds and hundreds of college girls, dressed in ballet costumes, come out at half time and cavort over the field like drilled marionettes. In American culture, it is majoring in majorettes. In Canadian, it is majoring in muscling books.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HOW DO YOU RATE?

What does it mean to be up-to-date?

Certain politicians and scientists who have given the impression that they were looking backwards rather than forwards have been described as persons who were dragged screaming into the twentieth century. There is a disposition in all of us when we confront a new and novel idea to dig our heels into the ground and declare petulantly that we will not budge.

To keep up-to-date does not mean to accept every new thing, but it does mean to examine every new thing. One out of every ten new ideas may constitute a real advance in thinking. Perhpas one out of every five. Perhaps half the new ideas we confront constitute advancement over old ideas.

The percentage does not matter so much as does out attitude. Are we willing to pick up every new thing, examine it, judge it impartially, and give it an honest appraisal? If we are, then we are up-to-date. Half the people who breezily announce that they are up-to-date, ahead of their age, are nothing but superficial thinkers who consider everything new an improvement over everything old. This type of "liberal" is a millstone about humanity's neck. He is his own worst enemy.

Your disposition to give every idea a fair chance to prove its worth indicates whether you are up-to-date or behind-the-times.

Letter To The Editor

Hillcrest Mother Pleads for Water

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

In reading the letter in your Saturday night paper from the Citizens of Hillcrest I decided I would write my own letter and put in some of the facts which they forgot to put in.

The first thing, for instance, is the situation in our school. The school is the most important place in Hillcrest and yet it goes without water for sometimes a week, or the water is not fit for the children to drink. It is the same situation in our homes. Many times the children have to go without a drink of water because there isn't any. If we were to leave the children and walk for the water which is needed one or two of them might be dead when we returned or we could try to carry water with the children, but did any member of city council ever try to take four children about a half mile down the road and bring back a pail of water? But why isn't there any water in Hillcrest? Is it only because city hall won't give it to us or is it because of us? We have fought for re-zoning and for buses, but have we really fought hard enough for water? I don't know what your answer would be, but I say "No."

There is no law which says we can't fight, city hall, and there is no law which says we can't have water. The other citizens in the city seem to stick together and get what they need and I think we can do the same if we try hard enough. Remember, we are fighting for the health and protection against disease which our children seem to be getting. Don't wait till one of us has lost a child to fight for healthy water. We helped the city of Belleville to pay the debt which accumulated over a hockey team, so please help us get the most important thing in the household, which is water.

"A mother who is trying to protect our children in Hillcrest."

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON WASTED ENERGY

When I witness a person losing his or her temper, which means losing his or her self-control, that one sets a bad example for those who witness the tirade.

A person in constant control of his emotions, keeps conserving his abundance of common sense and rest energy to keep his heart fires warm and to keep his stockpile ever ready for instant use. If you are lacking in self control you go your way never ready for every command issued to your hidden forces for instant action.

We are wise to live in a state of readiness. John Galsworthy once wrote.

"Death is such a waste of me."

We ought to so live that Death could well be a waste for anyone. For this reason war is such a waste of power of human kind, and everything precious and beautiful.

Why should we plan to kill? The most wonderful specimen of God's creation is man. Why destroy this marvel of marvels? God in the human heart is God's greatest creation. What a waste of created energy.

No Manufactured Substitute For Whole Blood Available

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

The following letter disturbed me. I've decided to answer it rather than risk letting the idea be bandied around unchallenged.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is your candid opinion of blood transfusions? With all the hidden dangers of transfusions, why are they permitted when there is now on the market a manufactured substitute which gives the same results but without ill after effects or any danger?

"All that is known to date is that blood must be of a certain type, but nothing is known of what serious outbreaks might come later. — J. S."

Too many campaigns of this type are based on some knowledge of what is involved, but not all.

True, there is an element of risk in blood transfusions. Transfusions should not be given casually or without good reason. The risk involved is small, and is becoming smaller day by day, but the presence of any risk is sufficient to warrant the use of transfusions only for adequate reasons.

The same is true of surgery. Every operation potentially carries some risk. But the risk of not operating is so much greater that there is no question as to what to do. Operate when necessary.

The same, indeed, is true of any medication. Don't give any without a good reason. But always accept the small risk for the purpose of avoiding the greater one.

It decidedly is not true that a "manufactured substitute" for whole blood is available. "J. S." is referring to what is known as plasma expander, which is used primarily when a patient is in shock. It is not, as "J. S." mistakenly believes given without risk. Although, again, the risk is small.

Plasma expander is not a substitute for a transfusion of whole blood. The latter contains red cells by which the body transports oxygen, which is desperately needed when blood has to be given for certain anemia states.

Whole blood provides albumin. It provides needed electrolytes — mineral in solution. It even provides some immediate nourishment from the modicum of blood sugar it contains.

These are absent from plasma expander.

In view of all this, I hope "J. S." will change his mind right away. But if any further argument is needed, all he has to do is weigh the one-in-a-thousand cases of risk against the thousands-upon-thousands of lives which, in the last few years, would have been immediately forfeited without transfusions.

Indeed, by the same argument he uses we would abandon a great many things which involve risk and can be shown to have caused injury and death: automobiles, stairways, curbstones, bathtubs, chicken bones, airplanes, railroad trains, horses, rugs on the floor, kitchen knives, lawn mowers. You name it.

I'm afraid this is another home remedy that doesn't have much if any effect. Go to your doctor. He can use antibiotics. Drinking a lot of water whether it has cranberry juice, lemon, or anything else, or nothing else in it — it important in clearing up bladder infections.

It's Clouded Joy Dancing With Your Daughter

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

As a man slopes into his middle 40s, the landmarks of his life rush toward him with alarming speed and frequency. I passed such a landmark last week — and it made me feel incredibly old and fantastically young at the same time.

I took Carolyn out dancing for the first time, to a sleek supper club on the roof of a hotel overlooking Los Angeles. I was her date, in a city where it is not uncommon for middle-aged men to be seen escorting nubile girls still in their teens.

She was wearing all the new clothes we had bought the day before; the thin string of fake pearls, the sheath gown, the sheer stockings, the spike-heel shoes. She looked several years more than the 17 she actually is.

As we entered the room, the head-waiter gave me a look compounded of amusement, irony and contempt. But when I ordered a drink for myself, "and a fruit-punch for my daughter," his face relaxed into lines of friendship. Sugar-daddy had turned into plain old Daddy. "I've got a teen-age daughter myself," he confided, "and I wish I had time to take her dancing."

A parent doesn't realize how quickly a child grows up until the little girl who yesterday (it seems) had been playing with dolls is now drifting in his arms across a dance floor. The other couples looked at us curiously, and I was both embarrassed and pleased.

"Let them think what they will," I said to myself. "Is this town so evil-minded that they can't believe a man would go dancing with his own daughter?"

The orchestra played the old Gus Arneim-Isham Jones tunes I used to dance to in the 1930s, and Carolyn was enormously impressed with my remembrance of most of the lyrics. "Say, you're really with it," she exclaimed, as we shuffled along to "Embraceable You."

This child-woman in my arms was almost a strange creature, an odd blend of naivete and sophistication, frankness and secrecy, light and darkness. We were close, but there is a part of her that cannot be touched by anyone of my generation. She has become a person, with a private inner life that must remain inviolate to her parents.

As for men, a man can never feel quite young again after he takes his grown-up daughter dancing; and yet, in a way the evening made me feel more buoyant and youthful than anything I had done in years. This is the paradox of growing older: that we can see life through the shining eyes of our children, and relive it through them.

Shoes Featured in Fashion Show

About 150 invited guests attended a pre-view of Spring fashions held Thursday night by the Bata Shoe Company of Canada with the accent on shoes but also including Spring Fashions for gowns, dress, casual and sportswear. The function was held in the Quinte Hotel where both the Pinnacle Room and the Club were used. A social period held in the Pinnacle Room preceded the fashion parade which was directed by Mr. George Burgess, purchasing manager for the Bata Retail Division. The event also provided an opportunity of renewing old friendships.

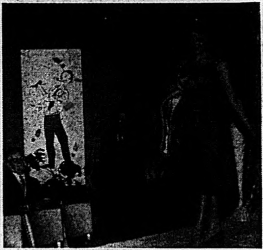
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Bata, who recently arrived from London, were glad to meet many friends of the Quinte district.

Included in the display were gowns and garments of various types from J. A. McNabb Limited, Ladies Wear; children's garments from Children's Shop of Belleville; furs from the Woodley Furriers; men's suits and casual wear from Dovers Limited, and jewels from O'Connor's Jewel Box. Floral designs were the creation of Barbers Flower Shop.

Models were all members of the Bata office staff or residents of the village and included: Mrs. Marjorie Hewitson, Mrs. Linda McCormack, Mrs. Helen Hollmann, Diane Richardson, Miss Marion Donato, Miss Patricia Beattie, Mr. Karel Ruprecht and the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Newell of Batawa made a tremendous hit with the audience as they displayed fine modelling talent.

Sharing the microphone in the duties of commentators were Mr. Phil Flagler, radio announcer of CJBQ, and Mrs. Thomas Bata whose technical knowledge of designing enabled her to give a very concise description of the many new and attractive shoe styles for the coming Spring season.

Twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Newell of Batawa, captured the hearts of the audience at the Bata Spring Fashion Show. Here Ricky and Vicky Newell are displaying the latest in Spring wear for children.



Mrs. Hewitson is shown on the parade ramp at the Spring Fashion show held at the Hotel Quinte last night. In the background are Mrs. Thomas J. Bata who acted as one of the two commentators, and Arthur Duncan, director of publicity for the Bata Shoe Company.

that occur about every 10 years. On top of that, there was a scarcity of rain last autumn at a time when the ground usually soaks up a goodly amount of water.

REAP HARVEST

As the frozen drought continues, well drillers and water haulers are reaping dividends at the expense of farmers—they pay anywhere from $5 to $15 for 1,000 gallons in Western Ontario.

Driller Charles Hatherton of Elmira says half his calls this winter have been for deepening existing wells. There also is a rush for newly-drilled wells.

Farmers with access to lakes and ponds haul their own water, using milk cans or any other serviceable containers. Trucker William McLelland, of London charges $8 for 1,000 gallons plus 59 cents a mile and has carried water as far as Centralia, 25 miles away.

Brantford public utilities commission last month reported about 10,000 gallons being sought daily by farmers and truckers. The Burtch Industrial Farm, also at Brantford, last month began supplying water free to farmers and to Brantford Township fire department, which carried thousands of gallons from its own wells to township residents.

The fire department has pitched in as well as Port Rowan in Norfolk County. It hauls some 15,000 gallons a day to area farmers.

SITUATION SERIOUS

In Perth and Huron counties the situation is regarded as serious although drilled wells, 100 to 300 feet deep, still are producing. Renfrew County in the Ottawa Valley reports about one-third of its farmers affected, F. Q. Dench, county agricultural representative, says the situation is "steadily growing worse."

In York, Peel and Halton counties around Metropolitan Toronto and in the Oshawa and Burlington areas farmers have also been forced to buy water from tank truckers.

A Trafalgar trucker, Transley Barnes, said his tank truck rolls 14 to 16 hours a day, seven days a week to keep up with the demand.

However, this combined with the expected domestic consumption of between 150,000,000 and 160,000,000 bushels of wheat would have little or no effect on the Canadian wheat stockpile. The 1960 crop was nearly 490,000,000 bushels.

WELCOMES IT

Paul Martin (L—Essex East) welcomed the announcement of the sale to China. It would be "very well received" by the Canadian public and would add to farm income.

CCF Leader Argue saw in the announcement "an indication that in an economic sense the government recognizes the existence of the government of China."

He also hoped it would be "a prelude to a continuing expansion of sales of Canadian grain in markets where we have been selling relatively small quantities in recent years." He suggested specifically that the government explore the market in India.

The wheat involved in the latest sale is mostly No. 2 Manitoba Northern—Canada's predominant grade — which now sells at Vancouver for $1.70⅛ a bushel. Also involved is a small amount of No. 8 Manitoba Northern now priced at $1.68⅛ a bushel. The barley now fetches 94 cents a bushel at Vancouver. The prices change only fractionally from month to month.

The Key to Successful Reading

The secret of successful reading lies not merely in repetition.

Successful reading must have aim and organization.

We touched on that once before. Let's go a bit further and look at some helpful ways of reading in various fields of study.

Since the formula that works for reading about one subject does not always work in reading about another, we will discuss groups of subjects separately.

Books on economics and related courses scare most students stiff, so let's talk about that area first.

Let's suppose you have been assigned a chapter for tomorrow's class. Follow these steps.

1. Pick up the book. Break it open to the table of contents. Find the chapter and turn to it.

2. Skim. Read the first paragraph. Leaf through and glance at subtitles. Read the concluding paragraph. This should give you an idea of the big idea of the chapter.

3. With this idea in mind, read the chapter. At the end of each paragraph or two pause and ask yourself:

"What was said?"

"How does it fit in the general pattern?"

If you can't answer these questions, it means that you went through the process of reading words without absorbing the ideas. Speed up your reading of the remaining paragraphs, remembering an axiom mentioned previously — that speed and accuracy go together. When you get to the point where you can recite back the main idea of the paragraph you have just read, you have reached an efficient speed. Maintain that speed.

4. Finish the chapter, then reread it with the aim of refining the material. Read now with the continuous question in mind:

"Exactly what is said here?"

MAKE AN OUTLINE

Get the precise meaning. Relate it to some part of the big idea. This is the real key to success in the study of economics, marketing and related subjects.

Make some sort of outline, in your own words, of what you have learned so you can review it.

Write it in a notebook, write it in the margin of the book, but write it clearly and in an orderly manner somewhere so you can refresh your mind before exam time.

The techniques for reading for review before an exam, however, involve some other factors. We'll talk about them later in a chapter on getting ready for examinations.

The above suggestions may sound time-consuming rather than time-saving. But if you will have faith and give them a fair trial, you will find that they do work and that they do save time.

Tom came to us with a familiar tale of woe. He told us it was his habit to read his economics lesson three or four times. He went through and underlined what he thought were the most important sentences. Just before tests, he outlined the materials in each chapter. The results of all this work was a grade no higher than "C." We agreed that it wasn't enough reward for so big an effort.

Tom's trouble was that his readings followed an identical process that brought nothing new to light. His underlinings left the author's ideas in the author's own words, robbing Tom of the illuminating experience of expressing the idea for himself.

We suggested certain improvements in reading habits: Read to get the big picture; read again to fit the picture together; read again for minute detail. And we asked:

"Tom, do you ever talk to yourself?"

"Oh, no sir," said Tom.

"You need to start talking to yourself — and answering yourself."

MAKING THE BRAIN WORK

It's a popular notion that someone who talks with himself is off his rocker. Actually, it's a habit which, consciously and purposefully employed, can help you clarify your thoughts. Talking to yourself forces the brain to digest an idea. If you cannot put it into words, you don't understand it — or at least you won't be able to prove to the professor that you understand it. Verbal expression is the test of fire.

Tom, incidentally, burned his way up to an "A".

Courses such as physiology and anatomy require slightly different approaches from those used in reading economics.

Psychology, anatomy and science call for the learning of many names. The wise student works out a memory system. There are several good ones. We recommend a system by which you call up a mind picture when a word is heard or read.

Let's take an example. Suppose the word is aardvark. As words to, that one hasn't much to recommend it. Most of us would just as soon forget it. But if you are a student and your biology teacher asks you to tell what an aardvark is, it suddenly becomes an important thing to remember.

One way to remember an aardvark is to form an exaggerated or caricatured picture of one. Johnny Hart, who draws the comic strip "B.C.," frequently features an aardvark — an introverted, sad-eyed, long-nosed creature, called an ant-eater, whose long extensive tongue goes "Zot" as he laps up an insect.

You get the idea. Draw a mental picture of the word, and it will stay with you.

How can you ever forget aardvark after this?

"What a lot of groceries!" Harry put the last package on the table, and picked out the check from the bottom of the bag. "D'you need this?"

"I don't think so," replied his wife. "But now you can see where your money goes."

Harry glanced at the check. "Ten dollars eighty-eight," he commented. "But it's quite a funny list. Each item on it is one cent more than the item before."

"You and your figures!" Ann laughed. "Anyway the first is a little tidbit for you."

What did that tidbit cost?

Thanks for an idea, to:

Women's Activities

BRIDGE ST. UNITED W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of Bridge St. WMS was held on Thursday. The president, Mrs. H. Davis, opened the meeting with Mrs. K. Bird at the piano.

An executive meeting, held at the parsonage on January 10, had arranged for the program for the year. Later in March the family party will be held with Mrs. H. Mullet, a returned missionary from China, as the guest speaker. In April a "Dessert" luncheon will have Dr. Forrest, editor of the "Observer" as guest speaker.

Donations were voted to the CGIT and the Mission Band, and some six new books will be added to the literature department.

The World Day of Prayer is on February 17 at St. Thomas' Anglican Church at 3.00 p.m. The Belleville Presbyterial will meet in Stirling on Feb. 21 and 22 with Mrs. G. Moore and Mrs. Don Williams appointed as delegates.

A cabinet meeting of WMS will be held on Tuesday at 8.00 p.m. The stewardship secretary, Mrs. Don Williams, expressed to the society grateful thanks for reaching their allocation and also some extra for the building fund.

The new year means new opportunities and new obligations. The new missionary for prayer is Miss Helen Manning, in Manitoba.

Mrs. Williams requested a 5c increase per member per month in order to increase the missionaries' salaries.

The Christian citizenship secretary, Mrs. H. Meyers, reported on the youth conference held in Toronto at which 226 teen-agers attended. These delegates brought back to their home communities encouraging reports.

Mrs. J. C. Anderson and Mrs. Morton and their group had charge of the program. Mrs. W. Broad led in the devotional, the subject was Angola, Portuguese and West Africa, and the refugees who need to be clothed and fed by the "home" front.

Matthew 25 was read by Mrs. Wishart. Mrs. Broad quoted from a letter from Dr. Allan Knight, an agricultural missionary in Africa, who told of the advancement, but there is still poverty and lack of security, food, health care, clothes and education. Her prayer was that the WMS might share its abundance with needy brothers.

Mrs. Anderson read the names of the members of their group and Mrs. Morton spoke of the homeless and stateless refugees. She referred to Hong Kong, Korea and Austria who needed help.

FILM SHOWN

A film, "The Long Stride," depicted the destitute, weary and homeless refugees, many living in exile and how many steps must be taken to cross the border. One million in Hong Kong spills over the countryside. As a society members were touched by the great need for help and for the relief work of the United Nations to be far more reaching so that all may do all in their power to relieve those in need.

A donation box was placed at the entrance to the tea room for contributions.

A social hour was spent with Mrs. Fetterly pouring tea.

Rapt Audience Sees Splendors Of Persia at BCI Auditorium

Last evening a host of rapt adventure lovers boarded the space age 'Magic Carpet' — a jet liner, under the expert navigator, Clifford J. Kamen, and sliced through the blue at 600 miles per hour to the fabulous land of Persia, once the most powerful empire on earth.

Today Persia is about to become a strategical and important nation, now known as Iran. It is bordered on the north by Russia, and the Caspian Sea and Central Asia; on the east by Afghanistan and Baluchistan, on the south by the Persian Gulf, and on the west by Turkey, from north to south it is 700 miles in length and 900 miles from east to west with Tehran as the capital. A great desert takes up one-seventh of the area, with a narrow strip of wooded land bordering the Caspian Sea.

Persepolis, a city of great antiquity is noted for its magnificent ruins, supposedly founded by Cyrus the Great, and the place for burial of many monarchs. Darius III resided here. The remains of the royal palaces, with their beautiful portals, vividly depict past splendors. The walls are literally covered with art work. Every thing that could be ornamented bore the touch of an artistic generation.

Among the seven wonders of Persia as shown were the "Peacock Throne" of past grandeur, inlaid with precious stones, which are chosen for their size color and beauty, rounded in shape, without the facets so much in vogue in the western countries; and the crown jewels housed in long halls, behind steel-clad doors; fabulous in number and beauty; great trays of pearls, emeralds, rubies and the blue turquoise, collected from 25,000 years of conquest. Among the most precious was the pink diamond set in a gold frame. Two crowns were shown, each one more like a fairy table in splendor, massed with precious stones and pearls, the smaller of the two showed more pearls than the larger, possibly belonging to the son of the reigning monarch.

A museum, once a palace, had a dome of cut glass mirrors, which glinted and sparkled in the light. Some stones are crushed by means of a huge stone wheel turned by a blind-folded camel and the resulting powder used for pigment.

Crossing the vast deserts the rich oil fields were seen; oil oozing from the sand, and the natural gas blazing in the mountain ridges. Persia is the richest country on earth in its oil deposits; many wells are kept sealed for future use. The largest oil refinery is at Abadan.

In speaking of the Persian family life, the narrator mentioned that family life was a close unit; the homes, from the outside appearance, belied the magnificence to be found inside, with their wonderful gardens and pools, magnificent flowers, some with conservatories banked with all manner of blooms. The poor outside appearance was a blind to protect the owners from being dispossessed. Some streets leading to these hidden palatial homes are in bad condition for the same reason. The people, as a whole, are medium in stature, and dress in western garb, since the native dress has more or less been banned. The better-class women do not work. There are also several tribes, including the Turkomen.

At Isfahan wonderful blue graceful minarets were seen, majestic mosques, and peaceful gardens with beautiful flower beds in geometric design; such was the garden where Omar Khayam rested beneath the bow, and composed his famous "Rubiayat." In the desert the nomads were shown making a sort of bread from an insect which has a sweet taste, resembling the manna of Biblical times. After the 'dough' was mixed, it was rolled out by a round small branch, into a circular form, and much like a pancake, and baked.

The most beautiful mountain with its cap of snow was Mount Demavine, 20,000 feet high.

The industries of the country, besides the oil, include fishing the sturgeon for the eggs which are sold as caviar; rice is also grown along the sea shore. There is some dairying, and herds of cattle and camels, which are driven to feeding grounds either in the valleys or on the mountain pastures, depending on the season.

Another interesting city was Mecca, the birthplace of Mohammed, who was born 1200 years ago. Many other lovely pictures were shown, all equally interesting.

Mr. Kamen was introduced by the director of the Kiwanis Club, Mr. R. Freestone.

St. Columba Church Forms Children's Club

St. Columba Presbyterian Church, Farley Avenue, has expanded its activities to include a Children of the Church program for primary children.

The C.O.C. program provides opportunities for children of ages six to eight to learn more about the Bible, to develop Christian attitudes and to use their creative instincts to further their Christian knowledge.

Meetings are being held every second Saturday from 10 to 11 a.m. in the church school building of St. Columba Presbyterian Church. Each class consists of activities such as Bible stories, handicraft projects, games, singing and a concluding prayer. Leaders of the C.O.C. program are: Mrs. J. Olaveson, Mrs. W. Bowles and Mrs. R. Newman.

The Children of the Church class is only one of many church organizations for children and adolescents in the Presbyterian Church in Canada. The C.O.C. and the organizations listed below only supplement the Christian education program of the weekly Sunday schools of the Presbyterian church.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

The Presbyterian Christian education program for young people is as follows: (1) C.O.C. boys and girls 6-8 years; (2) Explorers boys and girls 9-11; (3) C.G.I.T. for girls 12-16; (4) Sigma C for boys 12-16; (5) Teenage Fellowship boys and girls 15-18; and (6) Young People's Society 18-25.

In many instances the Brownies, Girl Guides, Cubs and Boy Scouts and other similar organizations of young people will affiliate with churches primarily for the purpose of having suitable meeting quarters.

A warm welcome awaits other children who are sent to the next meeting of the St. Columba C.O.C. on Saturday at 10 a.m.

Club Activities

KEEN AGE CLUB

The Keen Age Club of Tabernacle United Church met for its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday evening in the church parlor, following the annual supper, with the president, Miss Marion Salisbury, presiding.

Some business was discussed which dealt with several caterings coming up.

The devotional was led by Mrs. Kit Cornish, under the theme, "Christ with Martha and Mary," by Hendrik Siemeradski, containing two poems which were read by Mrs. Stella Burley and Mrs. Lillian Wyllie.

After the meeting closed, a social cup of tea, with cake and cookies, was served.

McDONALD — PEOPLES

Baskets of white 'mums, evergreens and blue tinted lights adorned St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, for a recent lovely winter wedding when Lynda Audrey Peoples of Belleville was united in marriage by Rev. R. D. MacLean, pastor of the church, to Jack Stuart McDonald, of Belleville. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack S. Peoples and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. McDonald, all of Belleville.

Mr. W. P. Youdale, of Belleville, guest organist, provided the wedding music which included the following instrumental selections: "For You Alone," "Until," "I'll Walk Beside You," "Because," "Your Voice," "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Jack S. Peoples, the bride was radiantly lovely in a white brocaded suit-dress with purple and mauve accessories, hat of braided net in graduating shades of deep mauve to purple, and corsage of white orchid with purple throat.

Her only attendant was Miss Jean Muirhead of Belleville, a cousin of the bride, who wore a beige brocaded suit-dress with coffee-colored accessories, and corsage of bronze 'mums.

Mr. Dawson Catton attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Bruce Dobbs and Mr. John Peoples, brother of the bride, all of Belleville, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at Club Canara, Belleville, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a green brocaded suit-dress with beige accessories, and corsage of white 'mums. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in fire-toned flowered jersey with purple and black accessories and corsage of yellow 'mums.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and flanked about the base with pink tulle and scattered Sweetheart pink roses. Tall white candles in silver holders completed the pretty setting.

For the wedding trip to Georgian Bay and the ski area, the bride chose a purple suit with black accessories.

Guests were present from Hornepayne, Kitchener, Toronto, Ottawa, Kingston and Trenton.

Previous to her marriage the bride was the honored guest at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. C. E. Flindall of Belleville; also at a presentation of an electric toaster by her classmates of the Peterborough Teachers' College, and at a presentation held by the members of St. Columba Presbyterian Church, when she was the recipient of a lovely Bible, commemorating the first marriage of a member of the new church.

Mr. and Mrs. McDonald are residing at 1459 Westbrook Dr., Peterborough.

12 Outport Areas in Nfld. Without Medical Service

By JOE DUPUIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundland's standard of health services is a far cry from the days when entire families boarded cramped, rickety schooners at St. John's to ply the fishery on the northern coasts.

Many died from simple diseases for lack of medical care. And although the hazard of isolation has been greatly reduced, there are 12 outport areas in Newfoundland, designated by the government as nursing districts, without medical service this winter.

Health Minister Dr. James McGrath says his department wants to establish 20 more of these districts but there are not enough nurses to go around There now are only 16 nurses, three working part-time, serving the 27 districts. Another 21 are needed to fill vacancies.

The ideal arrangement, says Dr. McGrath, would be two nurses in each district. But this goal doesn't appear likely to be fulfilled in the foreseeable future.

FEW VOLUNTEERS

Thirty-six nurses are required for cottage hospitals, improved versions of modern first aid stations. Of the 148 nurses who graduated in Newfoundland last year only nine volunteered for these establishments. Eight others returned to their outport homes and became district nurses. Eight cottage hospitals are empty for lack of staff.

The government had to allocate what nurses it could in a way as to serve the largest number of people.

"We decided it was better to have the butter spread thin than to have one piece of bread buttered and the other piece not buttered at all," says Dr. McGrath.

Nurses graduating today preferred large towns or city hospitals to facing the hardships of lonely outports. District nurses earn $3,600 a year and work long hours.

MUST IMPORT NURSES

Dr. F. W. Rowe, whose district of White Bay is one of the medically poor areas, calls the lack of nurses ready to serve in outport communities "an indictment of the character of our Newfoundland people, and it's a problem no government can solve."

Dr. Rowe, the highways minister and a former school principal, says not one Newfoundland-born nurse in the last 10 years has volunteered to serve outside major populated areas. The government had to import European and American nurses who serve only a few years.

Premier Smallwood calls it "the most serious problem facing this government today."

The province could use 75 more doctors in the outports where 116 now serve. Urgent vacancies have been filled, says Dr. McGrath, but "our problem now is that we can't expand."

Large areas are without dentists "and I'm afraid this situation will get even worse," he says, because dentists find it difficult to operate with any financial success in areas where the population is widely scattered.

Will Hold Induction Service

STIRLING — The Rev. P. J. Hommersen, B.A. B.D. is expected to arrive in Stirling, on Wednesday from St. John's Newfoundland, where he has served for the past five years as a minister of St. John's United Church, in the St. John's Presbytery of Newfoundland Conference. He served at Brighton before going to the coast. He is married and has a family of four. His wife will accompany him to Stirling.

The induction is to be held Friday, February 3rd, with the Rev. Harry Davis, pastor of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville and also chairman of the Belleville Presbytery, will be in charge of the service with other ministers assisting.

WAR AND PEACE

Since 3600 BC there have been 14,531 wars, in which 3,640,000,000 persons have been killed, and 292 years of peace.

Dear friends,

We believe every reader will agree with us that poor service in the funeral directing profession is dear at any price. You want, above all, service of the highest type. Cost is secondary.

On the other hand, you want the price to be fair. And in that connection, we are perfectly willing that our prices be compared with any other establishment giving the same type of service.

GLOVES WERE WORN IN HOMER'S TIME

The custom of wearing gloves has come down to us through the ages. The earliest mention of them, I believe, is in the Odyssey of Homer. He refers to them as being worn to protect the hands from thorns. The mailed fist and the gloved hand were known in the days of the Persians, before Christ was born. It is said that glovemakers first came to this country during the eighteenth century.

Our male ancestors wore jeweled, furred and embroidered gloves. While their original purpose was to protect the hands, they were made to conform with the clothes and cutoms of the times. Following this same procedure, gloves worn by men today are designed to blend with the fashions of our time.

Today, the correct glove to be worn with a business suit is of a conservative color that blends well with topcoat and hat. The cutaway and striped trousers, known as formal daytime dress, call for gloves of mocha color, or light gray. With the tuxedo, when wearing an overcoat, the same type gloves are correct. Full dress evening clothes, or "white tie and tails" as they are so often referred to, call for white kid gloves, although today nylon gloves are acceptable.

There are times when it is brought home rather forcibly how awkward some of our older customs can become. As a case in point, the old tradition that a man should always remove his glove when shaking hands with a lady, while out walking. The following story may explain what I mean!

Last Sunday I was returning home from a walk with my dog, and, on the way, met Mr. Inexperienced. He had obviously been attending church. His attire was meticulous to the last detail. Looking very pleased with himself, he was walking along swinging his cane and puffing on a cigaret. When he stopped to greet me, I was amused at his clumsy efforts to conduct himself in the manner he considered proper.

He dropped his cigaret, took his hat off with one hand and then endeavored to hold onto his cane and take his right-hand glove off, all at the same time.

During the process he dropped the cane and the glove, and finally managed to offer me a rather red-faced greeting.

I grant that the poor man was trying to conform with old custom, but isn't it better to use common sense in a situation like this? In years gone by it was considered a "must" that a man remove his glove when greeting a lady. Today, however, it is perfectly proper, and certainly more sensible, that he not do so.

UNBAKED CHOCOLATE MALLOW ROLL

Melt 2 squares unsweetened chocolate in a double boiler. Put in 1 can condensed (not evaporated) milk and cook until thick. Remove from stove and stir in 2 cups fine graham wafer crumbs. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1-2 cup finely crushed walnuts. Mix well. Divide mixture into 2 parts and put on waxed paper covered with very fine cocoanut. Roll or flatten to about 4" by 8". Then place a row of marshmallows standing up in centre, pressed tightly together. Roll up from both sides of paper and leave in paper and roll it gently back and forth to join the 2 sides. Put in frig and slice when you use it . . . Mrs. E. P.

Answer: Thank you so much for another version of this popular recipe.

Question: Would you be kind enough to send me any recipe you may have for a cold souffle suitable for dessert? . . . Mrs. J.

Answer: The definition of souffle is this: A combination of eggs (whites alone or whole egg), sugar and flavoring. Sometimes milk is used, sometimes a little flour —a very little. These are baked and served hot, or (rarely) cooked before egg whites are added, and served cold. So you see there is such a thing as you have requested but I have never made one. The ingredients for what would be a cold souffle are all the same as in a Spanish Cream except for the addition of gelatine. Would you mind trying this recipe and see if it is the type of thing you are seeking?

SPANISH CREAM

1 tablespoon plain gelatine, 1-4 cup cold water, 3 cups milk, 1-3 to 1-2 cup sugar, 3 eggs, separated, 1-4 to 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Soften gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes. Scald milk in top of double boiler. Add sugar and gelatine and stir until dissolved. Stir a small amount of mixture into the slightly beaten yolks, return to double boiler and cook and stir over hot water until mixture coats a spoon. Remove from heat, add salt and vanilla and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites lightly but thoroughly. Pour into mould that has been rinsed in cold water. Chill until firm.

I have a commercial recipe for a Cold Lemon Souffle but I have not tried it. Write again if you would like a copy.

Congregational Meeting

UNITED CHURCH

WEST HUNTINGDON—The Quarterly Official Board of the Thomasburg circuit met at the church, and the West Huntingdon Orange hall for its annual meeting on January 25th, following the supper in the Orange hall.

The members assembled in the church for the annual meeting. Mr. George Dyson was chairman and also conducted the worship period. Mr. Arthur Wilson was the recording steward and he read the minutes of the October meeting. Correspondence was read and dealt with. The reports from the various officers were received and adopted.

Officers for 1961 were elected as follows:

M. and M. chairman, Mrs. Wm. Grant; recording steward and central treasurer, Arthur Wilson; assistant recording steward, Mr. Everett Prindle; auditors, Don McInroy and Wes Farrell.

W.I. Holds 'Family Night'

STIRLING — On the evening of January 27th, approximately 95 men, women and children from the River Valley area, enjoyed an appetizing potluck supper in the IOOF banquet hall, in Stirling. The tables were laden with an abundance of food and everyone did justice to the meal. Several others arrived in time for the program. The conveners, Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh and Mrs. Roy Bush and their assistants, served the hot food. The event was sponsored by River Valley W.I.

Mr. Harry Morrow was the chairman and the program opened with a singsong led by Jack Bush with Mrs. Philip Conley as pianist.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kane, who were celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary on the Sunday were given special seats of honor and all sang "Happy Anniversary." John paid tribute to the River Valley folk and said how much he enjoyed living in the community.

The chairman spoke briefly and voiced appreciative thanks for all the kindness which he received during his sojourn in the Belleville General Hospital. He gave a few reminiscences of his gift parcels which were opened "one-a-day." Mr. George Heasman also expressed thanks for all the cards and letters which Elva had received while she was a patient in a Toronto hospital.

Mrs. Roy Bush read a special article which she had prepared on the theme "Our Friendly Neighborhood." Glenn Morrow delighted with violin music with Mrs. Conley accompanist at the piano. The Morrow sisters contributed three selections, one of which was "My Blue Heaven." Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave two humorous readings which she dedicated to the anniversary couple. Several of the school children sang "Waltzing Matilda," with Miss Marilyn Conley as accompanist. Miss Linda Ann Morrow contributed two vocal selections with her mother at the piano, Mrs. Percy Utman read an interesting story entitled "A Sleigh-Riding Party with the Children." Mr. and Mrs. Jack McCaughen sang two selections with guitar accompaniment. Mrs. Ernest Carr read two humorous selections, one of which was "Uncle Jack's Melons," following this, Jack Bush and daughters, Jane and Susan, contributed three vocal selections.

Mrs. Jack Bush was in charge of a few stunts. The winners of the mince pie-eating contest were Stanley Morrow and Willie Wilhelm.

The proceeds of the evening, clear of expenses, was $15.50. Mrs. S. McIntosh expressed appreciation and thanks to the musicians, to all who assisted with the program, and also to her co-convener and the committee.

Dancing was enjoyed with Glenn Bush as floor manager, and Harold Morgan called for the square dances. The musicians were Mr. and Mrs. Jack McCaughen and son Wayne, Mrs. Philip Conley, and Messrs Glenn Morrow and Phil Beudrie.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

William H. — I won a cruise for two, but my wife won't come along.

Adeline H. — I've been on cruises and I hate them.

William H. — I've just won a drawing on a South American luxury cruise for two, but my wife doesn't want to go. I hate going alone and I certainly can't invite another woman. Taking my brother-in-law doesn't appeal to me either.

Addie tells me to sell the ticktes and use the money to see more of our own country. She has a fear of boats and water, and a dislike of cruises ever since an eight-day trip we took 10 years ago. She spent the whole time, then, being seasick in the cabin, and checking off the days until debarkation.

I'm trying to persuade her to come. I found out that the cash we'd get in exchange for the reservations would be only a small per cent of the value, and wouldn't get us further than the next town. As for her comfort, there are good seasick pills and tranquilizers these days.

It's a shame to waste my lucky number. How can I make Addie change her mind?

Adeline H. — That may have been a lucky number for Bill, but it's an unlucky one for me. The only part of a cruise I like is getting off the boat!

Oceans look awfully good to me from a beach chair — that is, from terra firma. I can't see any pleasure in having the ground beneath your feet rocking back and forth for three weeks, and a ship's motor chugging in your ears all the time.

Besides, there are those "cruise activities!" Most of the passengers get the ground rolling beneath them before sailing-time, what with all the drinking. And the clothes! I don't feel like stocking up with dresses for the Captain's Dinner and the stateroom cocktail parties. Yet without them I'd look like a hick.

The Council — Bill should go — preferably with Adeline. But her refusal shouldn't deter him.

He has a chance for a memorable experience. He and Adeline aren't the first couple who, though devoted and loyal, still retain individual ideas about "what's fun." On dry land, perhaps, they're inseparable. For this cruise, let's pronounce them "separable."

Nevertheless, we urge Adeline to reconsider. Her reasons are subject to doubt or, if valid, to remedy. While she disagrees with the shipping line's slogan, "Getting there is half the fun," she might agree that the other half — being with her husband — makes the rest bearable. Since she's eager to see new places with him, she might keep in mind the half-dozen stopovers these cruises offer in exotic, rock-bottom, non-rocking ports!

Also, it takes all kinds to make up a passenger list, and the chances are that Adeline will find several kindred souls in the catchall. There'll be the non-drinkers and the non-dresser-uppers, as well as the playboys. There'll be the hard-workers and deepthinkers, as well as the professional escapists, and most of the bores find other bores to buttonhole the first day out.

But if his wife still refuses to pack a few tablets to ward off motion-sickness and step aboard Bill has several alternatives. He could invite a relative or friend either a bachelor or one whose wife wouldn't mind. There are such. Or, he might take no one and enjoy spreading out in a two-cabin stateroom all by himself. Finally, he might accept cash for the unused half, and risk having a stranger share his quarters, although this is the least desirable solution.

All we can say to Adeline if she chooses to stay behind, is what the audience used to yell to contestants on "Take It or Leave It": "You'll be sorry!" She's passing up some technicolor memories.

MOUNT PLEASANT-RAWDON W. A.

RAWDON — The January meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon W. A. was held at the church hall, recently. A pot-luck dinner was served at noon to 100 men, women and children and this included the teachers and pupils of the two public schools Allen and Williams.

The new president, Mrs. Raymond McConnell, spoke briefly and presided over the meeting. The devotional was in charge of Mrs. Robert H. Hoard and Mrs. Clarence Scott. Mrs. William McAdam contributed a vocal solo. Mrs. Herbert Smith gave the meditation and prayer.

Several items of business were discussed and plans made for the year. Committees were appointed for various duties and a new set of rules and regulations was also put into force in regards to rentals. Two readings were given; one by Mrs. Ernest Spencer and the other by Miss Gail Scott. The conveners conducted a contest.

The dishes which were recently purchased, were on display and were quite attractive in four pastel shades.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"That is some proof, at least," the man said, "that our good Canadian blood hasn't been completely thinned down by this modern age of push-button living."

We were watching some hundreds of people of all ages, the fog of their breath pluming over shoulders, as they skated over the twelve-inch thickness of ice that is Jack Goyer's open-air arena.

Nostalgia descended in a warm mantle over the man. His voice came low and gentle. "We had no pre-heated leather-cushioned arenas in my day. We fastened on spring skates with half-frozen fingers and took to pond, creek, river and lake and sometimes the marshes."

"When the ice was glare and white on the lake, and black as coal in the creeks that wound through the marshes, we skated toque-topped and heavily scarved with the wind whistling about us and sending powdered snow diamonds scudding in feathery clouds over the surface."

"When the ice was snow-free we took small sails in hand and drifted along at varying speeds. We played hockey with crude sticks, round nubbins of wood for pucks and mukluks for goal-posts.

"We laughed and sang during the moonlight sleigh-rides behind steam-breathing horses and the jingle of harness bells. We wound up in somebody's parlor drinking sweet cider or hot cocoa with molasses cookies and listening to the phonograph playing "Down by the Old Cherry Orchard," "Turkey in the Straw" and the "Irish Washerwoman."

"And we got up in the morning healthy, happy and hungry to trudge two or three miles over snowy roads to the little red schoolhouse and the three R's."

"Black-leather windbreakers, duck-cut hair-do's, television, convertibles, rock 'n' roll, frozen dinners, space monkeys and all your modern fal-de-rals have not completely wiped out the yen for the good outdoors," he said.

And Jack Goyer agrees. In fact his experience with his 400 by 300 feet open-air rink on the harbor front near the yacht club proves it.

Goyer's belief that open-air skating would bring public response has been more than justified. On Sundays some 500 to 600 people enjoy the outdoor pastime. There is no age limit except nine to ninety. And any age below nine is eligible.

Every night, weather permitting from 75 to 150 enjoy the facilities of the Goyer arena. There is no admission charge.

On the site of Mr. Goyer's proposed new Marina the "Belhar", scheduled to open later, there is a building that includes a special room for skaters. It is heated and can accommodate up to 85 seated.

There is a fine canteen that offers hotdogs, hamburgs, chips, coffee, soft drinks, etc. The only revenue from the project comes for this source.

Goyer floods his arena by pumping water from the harbor. He cleans the surface through the media of jeep and snowplow. He has it ready at all times. You pay for the refreshments; the skating is "on the house." Hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Goyer's brand new Marina, the "Bel-har" is now in the process of construction. He wants to have it ready for spring opening. It will be housed in a building 51 by 31 and will contain facilities for all Marina services, showrooms and a spacious lounge.

But so successful has the open-air arena project proved that he intends to operate two large rinks next winter. These, he said, will be lighted and large enough to take care of the crowds.

"Open-air skating has proved a tremendous success," he said, "and with this in mind I intend building a large addition to the new Marina for the accommodation of skaters next winter. This will be heated and will contain all facilities necessary.

"If you want evidence of the popularity of outdoor skating," Goyer said, "here it is. A week ago last Sunday after that eight-inch snowfall, I got the jeep and plow out to clean the surface. By the time I had the job half-done some 200 skaters were out skating on the cleaned part of the surface. When I finished some 500 skaters took to the ice."

Hawks, Bruins Play 2-2 Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Frank Mahovlich started it and Johnny Bower finished it Thursday night as Toronto Maple Leafs shut out Detroit Red Wings 5-0. But the Leafs couldn't vault over Montreal Canadiens into sole possession of first place in the National Hockey League.

The Canadiens got two goals each from Bernie Geoffrion, Dickie Moore and Claude Provost as they free-wheeled to a 7-5 win over New York Rangers to stay in a first-place tie with the Leafs.

It marked the first appearance of Geoffrion, the league's leading point getter, since he was injured Jan. 14.

In th other NHL action, Ron Murphy got both goals for Chicago as the Black Hawks battled Boston Bruins to a 2-2 tie.

Bower stopped 35 shots as he picked up his first shut out of this season.

BIG M SCORED

Mahovlich opened the scoring before the game was five minutes old, getting his 41st goal of the season.

Dick Duff, Dave Keon, Red Kelly and George Armstrong potted the other Leaf goals.

The Red Wings were booed repeatedly by the crowd of 13,630 and the game had to be stopped after the last three Toronto goals so the ice could be cleared of litter thrown by the disgruntled fans.

Terry Sawchuk handled 27 shots by the Leafs.

The Canadiens packed all their scoring in the last half of the game, exploding for five goals in less than 10 minutes in the second period after Johnny Wilson gave the Rangers a 1-0 lead in the first.

Marcel Bonin opened the flood gates at 11:18 of the second, deflecting Geoffrion's long drive behind Gump Worsley in the Ranger net.

GOALS CAME QUICKLY

Then in quick succession came goals by Provost, Moore, Geoffion and Moore again. The Canadiens plastered Worsley with 19 shots in that period.

Brian Cullen made it 5-2 before the period ended and the Rangers came out in the third as though they hoped to win.

Goals by Dean Prentice at 2:10 and Camille Henryone of two he scored during the night—at 3:27 cut the Canadiens lead to 5-4.

But then Geoffrion and Provost both scored again to put th game away. Henry completed the scoring at 17:17.

The action marked the first time in several weeks that the Canadiens were at full strength. Defenceman Doug Harvey returned to full-time action for the first time in six outings and played a strong game.

Worsley had a rough workout in the Ranger net, stopping 42 shots. Charlie Hodge in the Montreal net stopped 29.

In the Chicago-Boston game, Jimmy Bartlett and Don McKenney scored in the first period for Boston while Murphy got his first of the night.

Referee Frank Udvari called a total of 23 penalties, including majors to Jerry Toppazzini and Dallas Smith of Boston and Bobby Hull and Ab McDonald of Chicago.

Soo, Beavers Play 3-3 Tie, Hull Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A goal by Dennis Olson with only 14 seconds left in the game gave Kitchener-Waterloo Beavers a 3-3 tie in Sault Ste. Marie Thursday night in the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

The Thunderbirds retained their three-point gap over the third place Beavers and fell 16 points behind the high - flying Hull - Ottawa Canadiens, who had their troubles in picking up a 3-2 victory over Montreal Royals at Hull in the night's other game.

The last-place Royals recovered from a 1-0 deficit and went into the lead on goals by Gary Mork and Reggie Grigg, but Terry Gray's rebound shot and a solo by Billy Carter put things on ice for the league leaders.

Bobby Ellett opened the scoring before a Hull crowd of 4,636 on a pass from playing coach Glen Skov. It hit the crossbar behind Jacques Plante and dropped over the line.

PULLED PLANTE

Royals coach Floyd Curry pulled Plante for the last 10 seconds but the six Montreal forwards made no headway around the closely-guarded Habs net.

The 1,916 Sault fans saw the T-Birds lead 2-0 at the end of the first period on goals by Fred Hilts and Cliff Schmautz. Ed Hoekstra and Mel Pearson put the Beavers into the game and Ed Kachur restored the Sault lead at 13:03 of the third frame, setting the stage for Olson's tying marker.

The Kitchener-Waterloo squad continues its northern tour tonight in Sudbury, where the fifth-place Wolves are anxious to put a little more daylight into the two-point lead they hold over Montreal.

Montreal's Bernie Geoffrion picked up where he left off Thursday night when a bad knee forced him out of action nine days ago, scoring two goals — including the winner—and assisting on another in Canadiens' 7-5 victory over New York Rangers.

The three points enabled the hard-shooting right winger to consolidate his hold on first place in the race for National Hockey League scoring honors.

Geoffrion now has 29 goals and 36 assists for 65 points, four better than second place Frank Mahovlich of Toronto who had a goal and an assist Thursday night.

Mahovlich's record consists of 41 goals—tops in the league—and 20 assists for 61 points.

January Wields Golden Club

Golfer Hits $50,000 Ace Jackpot

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) Al Mengert of Spokane, Wash., held a slim and surprising lead today going into the third round of the $50,000 Palm Springs golf classic.

But the unrivalled conversation piece here was an even bigger surprise — a hole-in-one that could turn into a $50,000 stroke of luck for Don January.

January, 31-year-old star from Dallas, Tex., who played golf for 24 years without scoring an ace, hit the jackpot Thursday at the 148-yard 15th hole of the Indian Wells Country Club course.

Sponsors of the 90-hole event have offered $50,000 to any professional scoring an ace. If no one else makes it before Sunday night, January will have the prize to himself.

Mengert, 31, and playing out of Phoenix, Ariz., shot a six-under-par 65 at the Thunderbird course Thursday and came in with a two-day score of 133. He was one stroke in front of Bob Rosburg and Art Wall Jr., and two strokes ahead of Fred Hawkins, Jay Hebert, George Bayer and Dave Marr. Bayer fired a 63, the day's hottest round for the 127 pros.

Ken Venturi, Eric Monti, Charlie Sifford and Don Whitt were tied at 136.

In the Canadian continent, Al Balding of Toronto took 70 for a total of 138, Vancouver's Stan Leonard was home in 69 for 140, Jerry Magee of Toronto had 74 for 146 and George Knudson of Toronto carded 74 for a total of 151.

The tournament is played on five courses in the area. Bermuda Dunes, Indian Wells, Thunderbird and Eldorado are the sites for the first four rounds. Tamarisk is the setting for the windup.

January fired his hole-in-one with a No. 8 iron. He at first thought the ball had stuck in a tree.

"Thire's a palm tree at the back of the green," he said. "after I hit the ball I heard a nose. I thought it was my ball landing in the tree.

"When we got down to the green I started looking around in the tree. One of my partners, Bill Thompson, looked in the hole. When he told me what he found I said, 'You're kidding.' I looked in and there it was."

January scored a 65 but his first-round 76 gave him 141 for two days and left him eight strokes back of Mengert.

There was a second ace Thursday. It was scored by Sa mTobias of Bakersfield, Calif., on the 217-yard 12th at Eldorado, but Tobias is an amateur and all he gets is a fancy $1,000 golf cart.

Yankees, Cards Get Ultimatum

No Negroes Allowed

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) A spokesman for the hotels which serve as spring training headquarters for two major league baseball teams served notice Thursday night that Negro players will have to find quarters elsewhere.

C. H. Alberding, president of the firm which operates the two St. Petersburg hotels, issued a statement on the integration issue. It said:

"We have been happy to entertain the (New York) Yankees at the Soreno and will be happy to continue on the same basis. At the Vonoy Park, we are happy to entertain the (St. Louis) Cardinals as per our original agreement.

"But when either the Yankees or the Cardinals or both feel the situation has developed so they must insist on housing all their personnel in the same hotel, then the Yankees and the Cardinals should look for other hotels."

The custom of providing separate housing for Negro players became an issue last week when a writer for the Chicago American charged that Negro players are made to feel like second-class citizens during spring training in Florla.

Davis Cup Action

Wants Stars Rebuked

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Amateur rules committee of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association recommended Thursday that the suspension of Charles McKinley, Davis Cup star, be extended to May 1 and that Dennis Ralston, another Davis Cup team member, be placed on probation for the duration of this year.

The recommendation goes to the executive committee for action tonight.

McKinley, of St. Louis, has been under temporary suspension for tossing a racquet into the stands in the inter-zone finals last December at Perth, Australia.

No action against Ralston, 18, co-doubles champion of Wimbledon, had been taken until Thursday. Don Hobart, chairman of the amateur rules committee, said "we had several complaints against Ralston's deportment in tournaments at Chicago, Kalamazoo, Mich., San Francisco, Sydney and Melbourne."

McKinley and Ralston are top candidates for the U.S. Davis Cup team of 1961, now that Barry McKay and Earl (Butch) Buchholz have turned professional.

The rules committee indicated that similar measures might have been taken against MacKay and Buchholz if they were still under USLTA jurisdiction. Members of the U.S. Davis Cup team were sharply criticized for so-called unsportsmanlike conduct during the recent campaign in Australia.

All-Out TV NHL Hockey Is Doubtful

OTTAWA (CP)—There is no immediate prospect of lengthening the CBC's Saturday night telecasts of National Hockey League games, a corporation spokesman said Thursday night.

He was commenting on two telegrams from St. John's, Nfld, one bearing 6,000 signatures and the other 5,700, asking that the CBC broadcast the entire games on TV instead of the second and third periods as at present.

Similar requests have been received periodically from other parts of Canada but the corporation still believes that the petitioners are in the minority among TV viewers, the official said.

It was this conviction—rather than any economic problems surrounding game sponsorship—that prevented any immediate change in the existing practice of carrying 1¼ to 1½ hours of hockey on Saturday nights.

The CBC feels that more exposure to hockey would bring protests from the majority of viewers. The CBC spokesman noted that important games in the NHL semi-finals and all the final games are telecast in full.

Goalie Kept Score Down

Smoke Eaters Blanked By Sweden

STOCKHOLM (CP)—You can credit goalkeeper Seth Martin for keeping the score as low as 4-0 in Trail Smoke Eaters' unpromising outing against Sweden in an exhibition hockey game Thursday night.

Martin, whose job in private life is putting out fires, did just that in standing almost alone at times against the Swedes.

His defencemen were often slow in matching the opposing forwards and Martin was under constant fire.

There was only one really dangerous Smoke Eater attack. That probably would have resulted in a goal had not Swedish forward Lundvall hooked at centre Adolph Tambellini from behind when the 24-year-old Trail office worker was racing away from the Swedish defence.

Only 2,000 hardy fans turned out for the game, played in rain and sleet after a heavy snowfall. The Canadians obviously felt uncomfortable in the open-air conditions. Some Swedish experts described the Trail side as one of the weakest ever sent to a world tournament.

SWEDEN STARTED IT

Sweden opened the scoring after 11 minutes of play when Ulf Sterner fired from close range. Four minuts later Sven (Tumba) Johansson netted the first of his two goals to make the first-period score 2-0.

In the middle frame, Sweden failed to increase its lead even when Tambellini and defenceman Harry Smith were sent off together for rough play.

Sweden monopolized the closing minutes of the game. Carl Goeran Oebert connected with a long shot in th 16th minute and Johansson fired his second goal a minute later.

The game marked Sweden's first victory over Canada in an official international meet. The Trail squad, playing 18 warm-up games in advance of the world championships in Switzerland next month, now has one victory and one loss. It beat Norway 8-3 Tuesday night.

Macs 7-Picton 2

After The Brawl Was Over

Trailing 2-0 early in the second period, Belleville McFarlands rallied for seven straight goals to down Picton Merchants 7-2 in a wild, penalty-riddled OHA Eastern Junior "B" tilt in Picton last night.

The victory hoisted the Macs back into sole possession of second place in the league standing, with one game to play, two points ahead of Whitby Hillcrests. The Hillcrests have three remaining games. The Macs wind up their part of the schedule against Picton here Wednesday.

Referees Vern Goyer and "Red" Lachambre handed out a total of 33 penalties totalling 103 minutes. Belleville drew down 21 of the total with each club picking up two misconducts and a major along with the bagful of minors. The officials started waving their thumbs in the game's opening minutes and never quit until 19.06 of the third.

Somehow the boys took time out from the "high sticking, slashing, elbowing, etc. long enough to score seven goals, thus claiming an important win in their battle for second with Whitby.

Picton's youngsters scored the only goal of the first frame before their rabid hometown fans and made it 2-0 in the initial minute of the middle heat.

Ronnie Hull, the Macs' scoring ace for the night got his club on the comeback trail at 5.49 of the period. Moe Hunter tied it at 10.33 and Pat Asselstine gave his club a 3-2 lead before the end of the period.

It was all Belleville in the third with Gary Hull, Hunter and Ron Hull twice more, all scoring in a matter of five minutes just after the frame's halfway mark. That sewed it up.

Ron Hull triggered three Belleville goals while Moe Hunter scored twice and helped on two more. Pat Asselstine had one goal and two assists and Gary Hull the other goal. Larry Mavety drew three assists, Gary Goyer two and Bucky Ethier one.

Bob Kennedy, with a goal and assist, and Larry Tracey, were the Merchant marksmen. Jim Ellis drew two assists and Don Shortt a single.

Goalers Bill Moxon and Les Pendleton spent a busy evening with the Macs' Moxon kicking out 30 shots while Pendleton stopped 34 of 41.

Bill Waddling and Don Forsythe tangled at 9.22 of the second period and earned fighting majors with Forsythe having a minor tacked on. Billy McGuire of Belleville drew a bench misconduct at 14.25 of the second while Beatty got ten for Picton at 16.32. Barry Titterson and Bob Kennedy engaged in a slashing duel that also earned them misconducts at 15.25 of the third.

Golf Open Has Purse Of $30,000

MONTREAL (CP)—The 1961 Canadian open golf championship will carry a record $30,000 in prize money, the Royal Canadian Golf Association announced today at its annual meeting.

The total prize money for the 1961 open is an increase of $5,000 over last year's total.

The association did not disclose how the prize money will be divided.

The 1961 open is to be held July 12-15 at Winnipeg's Niakwa Golf Club.

Hilliard C. Lyle of Vancouver was elected 1961 president of the RCGA, succeeding V. C. Holroyd of Toronto.

Olympics Girl Star Says

Our Athletes Terrible

VANCOUVER (CP) — Diver Irene MacDonald said Thursday many athletes Canada sends to the Olympic Games "don't stand a chance" and should stay home.

Miss MacDonald, who has represented Canada in two Olympic, two British Empire and two Pan-American Games, cited the Rome Olympics of 1960, where she was sixth in diving, in her criticism.

"We took a team of gymnasts with us when everyone knew we didn't have a chance. Quite frankly, they were terrible."

She charged some of Canada's fastest freestyle swimmers had to be left at home, because the swimming team is limited to 10, including two divers.

"And in swimming our chances were fairly good."

Canada's top gymnast, Ernestine Russell Carter, was 76th out of 124 competitors in the Rome Olympics. Louise Parker of north Vancouver was 120th. In the men's competition, Richard Montpetit finished 85th out of 130 competitors.

Miss MacDonald had two suggestions for improving Canada's chances in the Tokyo Olympics in 1964: Set a standard for each sport that teams must meet before entry in the Games; increase the swimming team to a minimum of 10 plus four divers and set up a central training centre with a 50-metre pool and diving tank on each coast.

Allan Cup Playdowns

Would Bar U.S. Clubs

WINNIPEG (CP) — Gordon Juckes of Melville, Sask., secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, says regulations allowing United States teams to compete for the Allan Cup possibly should be changed.

He made the suggestion in a television interview here Thursday night. He said "We would be very sorry to see an American team win our Allan Cup and quite possibly the regulations should be changed."

The point arose in connection with the possibility that a Minnesota Club, Warroad Lakers, could win the trophy, emblematic of senior hockey supremacy in Canada. The Lakers play in the intermediate Ontario-Minnesota Hockey League with three Ontario clubs.

A U.S. club, Spokane of the Western International League, went all the way in the final four years ago before losing to Whitby Dunlops of The Ontario Hockey Association.

Same Club, Same Hole, Same Ace

SEA ISLAND, Ga. (AP)—An almost-unheard-of feat of duplicating a hole-in-one was achieved on the Sea Island golf course by Mrs. Yvonne Leslie.

On Jan. 4 she holed her drive on the 112 - yard seventh hole, using a No. 4 iron.

Mrs. Leslie returned to the same par 3 hole Wednesday, chose the same iron, and drove the ball neatly into the cup again.

MATH WAS BAD

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Ingemar Johansson said Thursday Ring magazine used "bad arithmetic" in naming Sonny Liston as the No. 1 contender for Floyd Patterson's heavyweight boxing crown.

Quinte COSSA Basketball

By PETER CARVER

Belleville Collegiate Institute teams chalked another triple win over Napanee District Collegiate teams here last night in COSSA basketball. The BCI bantams took their sixth consecutive win against no losses as they captured an easy 47-20 victory.

The junior game was by far the best of the night, as BCI eked out a close 28-25 win. The Napanee seniors were completely outclassed 58-25 by a hot BCI squad in a very one-sided tilt.

BANTAM GAME

The first half was fairly evenly fought as BCI held a 14-10 edge at half time. The winners really cut loose in the final stanza outscoring their opponents 33-10 as their passing and driving was excellent.

Murray Swan, as usual, was the best in the winning cause hitting for 16 points. Pete Carver scored 10 and Allan Mott nine.

Maurice Gray was the best for Napanee scoring 6 points while Derek Martin and Jack McCutcheon each collected four points.

LINEUPS:

BCI — Swan (16), Anderson (3), Thompson (6), Athey, White, Dolan, Morton (1), McCormack (1), Hurst (1), Hobbs, Williams, Desaulniers, Mott (9), Carver (10).

NAPANEE — Martin (4), Rhyndress (2), Gray (6), McCutcheon (4), Rigby, Stinson (2), Fox (2), Seran.

JUNIOR GAME

Both teams battled out the first half on fairly equal terms as BCI held onto a slim 15-12 lead at half-time. The second half was also very close as the checking was very close and the pace quite fast. BCI took the lead in final minutes and held on to take the victory.

Jim Muir again was top man for BCI as he swished in 10 points. Dave Blakely also played well, hitting for eight points.

Larry Pringle and Dick Thurlow scored 11 and 10 points respectively in the losing cause.

Lineups:

BCI: Adams 3, Bakker, Blakely 8, Burr 4, Deacon 1, McKibbon, Muir 10, Soule 2, Purdy, Rose, Follwell, Yorke.

Napanee: Thurlow 10, Pringle 11, Young 1, Anderson, Paul 3, Cothrup, McAllister.

SENIOR GAME

BCI got off to a very fast start, taking a 23-11 lead at half-time. The winners couldn't seem to miss in the final half as their excellent ball handling, shooting and rebounding had their opponenets tied up in knots.

Brian McKenzie scored 19 points for BCI, the majority on set shots from behind the key. Pete Annis also played a fine game hitting for 18 points.

Don Johnstone, the league's leading scorer, led Napanee with 11 points while Bob Holmes hit for 11.

Lineups:

BCI; Annis 18, McKenzie 19, Banting 5, Campbell 6, McDonald 4, Clarke, Roberts, Regensburg 4, Parker, MacFarlane 2.

Napanee: Johnstone 11, Osborne 6, Myatt, Fhyphe, Holmes 7, Hart 1, Templeton, Kirkham.

By BOB THOMAS

OFF TAHITI (AP) — Does Marlon Brando mind following in Clark Gable's footsteps? Not a bit.

Brando is starring as Fletcher Christian in a movie remake of Mutiny on the Bounty, a role Clark Gable played originally with immense success. It's his first remake.

This is what he says of the first Mutiny.

"I saw the old picture recently. It's a bore. Nobody remembers Gable in it. People remember him for other films, like Gone With the Wind.

"The actor people remember in Mutiny on the Bounty is Charles Laughton. He moved right in and took over."

Why did Brando undertake the film?

"Because the theme of the story intrigued me," he said. "Here was a group of men who had one great moment of glory, when they rose and conquered tyranny.

"Then they had the greatest opportunity to achieve happiness. They went to a place (Pitcairn's Island) where the natives were friendly, where living was incredibly easy. And what happened? Within two year they were dead. They had killed each other.

"It seemed to me that this presented a microcosm of man's situation throughout history: The struggle of the urge to create and the urge to destroy. If man cannot find happiness on an island paradise, where can he find it?"

Brando left the question unanswered.

Astrological Forecast

Saturday, February 4

By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: The morning is fine for winding up whatever details have been left undone by you. Then through tonight you are able to really get in trouble if you try to force anything. Be sure to remain kind and considerate and to think out new plans under which to operate. Keep your attention alert to more cooperation with allies.

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—Morning is best spent putting surroundings in order, taking care of pets, flowers, etc. Later, make it a point to do whatever is necessary to bring greater accord between yourself and associates. Be loyal or you may cause a rift.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—During A.M. is fine for improving your appearance and then making plans for any amusements later. Later in the day, take care no arguments start with partners or there can be hard feelings. Wear a lovely smile and dispel tension.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—Get abode in very fine order during A.M., as well as sparkling clean. Later and in P.M. is ideal for having an amusing time, but be sure you do not become extravagant in the process. Also, don't get into any petty arguments.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21)—A fine morning to shop, fill out reports, have meetings and decide on future policy. Later, go on that little jaunt that is important right now. P.M. be most kind with family or an argument can start that would be unfortunate.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21)—You are inspired this A.M. exactly how to handle your financial affairs so that you have a greater abundance in the future. Also, do whatever you can to make others happy within your immediate orbit. Drive carefully, don't argue.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—During A.M. you are able to understand the ideas and thoughts of others and turn them to your advantage. You can then get your appearance and health improved — go to experts. P.M. fine for going out, but do not spend too much money.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Morning is ideal for ridding yourself of that myriad of little tasks that are nonetheless important. Later, get away from tension at home and go out for good, wholesome fun. Be happy.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—There is every opportunity for you to take big strides forward if you talk over your ideas with good friends. The remainder of the day is fine for research and investigation, but be sure you are not critical of others.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Civic or business affairs away from home are best to concentrate upon until lunch time. Also, get your credit rating higher. Later, you can have an excellent opportunity to advance through a kind friend, provided you are not tempted by greed.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Be sure to impress important people with your efficiency and ability to understand the most modern methods of operating. Be careful later in the day that you act circumspectly and safeguard your reputation. Talk little.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Be alert in A.M. to fine ideas of others that will open up a new method of handling your affairs more efficiently and expeditely. Stay at home in P.M. and steer clear of that overly-dynamic individual you just met. Be wise.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)—During A.M. you can reach a true meeting of minds with any associates that are important to you now. Be careful later that you do not follow that inaccurate intuition that could lead you to have a rift with persons who are loyal.

If your child is born today . . he, or she, will be the type of person who will want everything about as scrupulously clean and orderly as possible. Later, there is a great desire to be popular with others, but be sure your child does not become so eager to companionship that pride will be sacrificed, or forcefulness used to get his, or her way. A fine chart for the entertainer or salesperson of note.

FORECASTS

West of Winnipeg, which marked five above, temperatures Thursday gradually increased to the coast: Regina 13, Saskatoon 27, Edmonton 44, Calgary 54 and Vancouver 52.

The Edmonton weather office reported January, 1961, was one of the mildest and sunniest in 70 years.

The cold took its toll—250 outdoor workers in Port Arthur have been laid off until warmer weather returns. A man in Winnipeg will have his hands and feet amputated because of severe frostbite.

In Toronto Thursday about 2,000 car owners called the Ontario Motor League for assistance, giving the league its busiest day this year. Hundreds of other cars were pushed by garage owners and private motorists.

only a 10-per-cent chance of living." The man, a member of the crew, was taken off by a Brazilian launch before the passengers and taken to a Recife hospital suffering from advanced cancer.

Galvao emphasized that he was not a Communist nor a Communist sympathizer.

"We have no affiliation with Castro, the Cuban prime minister, and no Cuban has joined us," he said.

Despite a court order here ordering the Santa Maria to be handed over to her owners or agents Galvao said he would not concede "even as a hypothesis, that Brazil wants to take this ship by force."

TELL OF BATTLE

Meanwhile, passengers told of battles aboard the ship in the last two days as the regular crew tried to stage a counter-takeover against the rebels.

On the whole, the passengers said they had been well treated, but Dutch detective John Remee said life aboard the liner was "terrible," with little or no water and little food.

"Galvao ought to be hanged," he said. "Give me a rope and I'll do it myself."

Mrs. Henry A. Bates of Washington, D.C., said the rebels "mostly seemed cultured" and "one played Chopin brilliantly."

Mayor Phillips To Hoist Anchor On Boat Show

TORONTO — His Worship Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto will hoist the anchor and officially launch the third annual presentation of the Canadian Boat Show in the Automotive Building here on Friday evening, February 3.

It will feature the greatest armada of boats and watercraft ever seen in any city in Canada, as 150 exhibitors will display 500 boats of various sizes and styles and others will show various marine products and equipment, all designed for boating pleasure.

The 1961 Canadian Boat Show will be an operation of the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show and will be presented as a public service, in co-operation with the Canadian Boating Federation and the Allied Boating Association of Canada. Proceeds will be in aid of conservation of Canada's natural resources and wildlife of forest, field and stream.

A colorful opening ceremony has been planned to launch the big "boatarama", with Ruth Jean Kearsey of Toronto, named "Miss Boating" for 1961 and Frank H. Kortright, President, assisting His Worship Mayor Phillips.

On the opening evening, too, the Shellbacks Club, a unique organization of boating enthusiasts, will have a dinner meeting in the Automotive Building. The guest speaker will be George O'Day, a member of the U.S. Olympic sailing team.

The show will be held for eight days, concluding February 11.

NORSTAD STAYS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy announced in a roundabout way Thursday that Gen. Lauris Norstad, who called on him Thursday, is being retained as supreme commander of NATO forces.

W.J. Dunlop Controversial Educationist, Dies at 79

TORONTO (CP)— William James Dunlop, 79, perhaps the most controversial education minister in Ontario's history, died Thursday in hospital after a long illness.

Ill health had forced his resignation from the provincial cabinet last November. After his resignation as education minister December 16, 1959, he had continued in the cabinet as a minister without portfolio.

During the eigth years he held one of Ontario's heaviest, most important and fastest-growing portfolios he found himself engaged in a long series of feuds with educationists, politicians and segments of the public.

He provoked one storm of protest when he said the "little red schoolhouse" was better suited to rural areas than modern schools and outraged teachers' federations when he denied Ontario had a teacher shortage.

A foe of frills in education, he declared in 1958 the province's intention "To improve our educational system . . . . until the last shreds of this so-called progressive education are gone."

He was also a champion of the status quo.

"We do not need to copy the educational system of any other country," he once told the legislature. "Ontario's educational system is the best in the world."

One of his first acts on becoming education minister was to announce the department would pay half the cost of supplying extra milk to children in elementary schools.

Possibly his most controversial act was the creation of short courses for teachers as a means of easing the teacher shortage. The plan allows junior matriculants and university graduates to teach after a six or 10-week summer course instead of a full year's teacher-training course.

To claims that the short courses would produce an inferior brand of teacher, Dr. Dunlop declared: "At least there will be a teacher in every classroom when school opens this year."

His strong philosophies on life, education and good humor probably dated to his early childhood in his native Durham, Ont., where he was born the eldest of nine children to a clergyman.

He later attended public school at Stayner, Ont., and high school in nearby Collingwood. He commuted from the Dunlop family home in Stayner to Collingwood by helping pump a railway handcar.

TAUGHT RURALLY

On graduating from Collingwood Collegiate he obtained a third-class teaching certificate from the Clinton, Ont., Model School. He taught for a year at a rural school in Hullett Township before deciding to enter the University of Toronto.

Forced by financial circumstances to leave university after two years, he returned to teaching. He earned his first-class teaching certificate at Hamilton Normal School and became principal of Tavistock Public and Continuation School.

After positions as principal of King Edward Public and Queen Alexandra model schools in Peterborough in December, 1910, he joined the University of Toronto Schools.

He served in the First World War as a lieutenant-instructor in the Canadian Officers' Training Corps and after the war became a lecturer in school management in the University of Toronto's faculty of education.

At 39 he was appointed director of the university's extension courses—a post he held 31 years until he retired in July, 1951.

His life in "retirement" lasted but three months. On October 2, 1951, he was appointed minister of education and in the general election the following month he won a record majority in Toronto-Eglinton riding.

Premier Frost, who announced Dr. Dunlop's death in the legislature, said Ontario has lost "a great warrior, a good friend of people big and little."

Liberal Leader Wintermeyer said Dr. Dunlop served as education minister "at a time when education was a challenge for all of us; he was a minister of the Crown, but a friend to all."

CCF Leader MacDonald said the former minister, even in the heat of political battle, "always remained the kindly man he was."

His first wife, the former Mary Gillespie, died in 1942. He is survived by his second wife, the former Evaleen Kilby, whom he married in 1943

Funeral services will be held Friday at St. Paul's Anglican Church.

CAPTAIN

asked. A voice responded:

"Who is calling?"

"This is the commander."

"Ah, senor commander, this is the doctor of the Portuguese immigration service speaking. I am badly wounded, Galvao (Portuguese exile Henrique Galvao) and his followers have taken over the boat."

I tried again to telephone the bridge to see if anyone would answer. A strange voice, with an authoritative air, replied:

"This is Capt. Galvao, who in the name of Gen. Humberto Delgado has just taken your ship by assault. You must not try any kind of resistance because it will be violently repressed. Surrender will bring you benefits."

DECIDE ON SURRENDER

I replied I could surrender only after meeting with my officers and principal members of the crew. This was arranged. We came to the sad reality that there was nothing we could do.

We were cut off and, only because of the force of arms, we submitted to Galvao.

I told him we were surrendering because the crew was unarmed and vital points of the ship had been captured by him and we thought this was the best way to defend the lives of the passengers and the ship itself.

We declared we would continue to work only under the force of guns. That is the way we worked until Thursday.

Any movement of ours was watched by armed men at all times.

I went to the bridge a few times near the coast of Brazil. Each time I heard guns being cocked.

Once in here under the protection of Brazilian authorities I told Capt. Galvao that all officers and crew had reached a decision: Since the ship was now in a Brazilian port, we would all prefer to die together than sail out again with him and his men.

We had already had noisy demonstrations among the passengers near Recife protesting the situation. During one demonstration, one of the passengers was hit and thrown against a window, breaking the glass.

The decision of the ship's crew disoriented Galvao's force completely. Although they wanted to use force against the crew they did not because Brazilian authorities, including the captain of the port and Admiral Dias Fernandes himself were aboard.

Thanks to the conversations of the two admirals (Brazilian and American) Galvao had to face the evidence of facts and permit total disembarkation.

I admire and am profoundly grateful to the passengers. They declared—the Americans in particular—that they would not disembark from the ship if the crew did not also disembark.

I also want to thank . . . the U.S. Navy for everything they did for us.

We could never count with certain the number of Galvao's followers aboard. Galvao claimed about 100 but we could only count about 60, including five members of the crew—four men and a 15-year-old boy. The rest of the crew maintained a loyalty which I have rarely had the privilege of seeing.

This was an authentic case of piracy.

ciated with him up to at least 1930."

LEGISLATION FORECAST

The legislation for which the resolution paves the way was forecast in the speech from the throne read at the opening of Parliament last November.

It will define for the first time imports of a class or kind made in Canada — which are subject to higher tariff rates than goods not made in Canada. In addition, custom-made imports would no longer qualify for lower tariff rates if Canada has adequate facilities for economical production of such goods within a reasonable time.

The minister of national revenue would be invested with discretionary powers in determining certain matters, such as whether "adequate facilities" exist in Canada for custom-made manufactures.

The opposition objects not only to the definition of "class or kind"—maintaining that it will greatly expand the scope of the present tariff schedule—but also to the granting of discretionary powers.

CLAIMS ARBITRARY

Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier) claimed for instance that the government was giving the revenue minister "arbitrary powers to determine the whole ambit of Canadian trade, without appeal to anybody."

"No more arbitrary power over the economy of a country has ever been requested in any document that I have ever seen placed before parliament than the minister is proposing to put in this legislation," said Mr. Chevrier. It gave the minister power of life and death over the income of "a very large proportion of the Canadian people," and infringed the rights of Parliament.

Mr. Fleming categorically denied the assertion: "The suggestion that sweeping, arbitrary powers are supposed to be conferred upon the minister of national revenue is totally erroneous."

The power of the revenue minister to make decisions was confined to "a narrow and proper field," and appeal rights were preserved.

Murdo Martin (CCF — Timmins) said it marked a return to the high tariffs and "economic isolation" of the Bennett era.

During the debate charges flew back and forth on the distressed state of the textile industry at Cornwall.

ACCUSES PCS

Mr. Chevrier accused the Conservatives of failing to fulfil election promises to halt the "dumping" of U.S. textiles, and said that in the last three years three industries at Cornwall, employing some 2,000 people, had been forced to close.

Mr. Fleming attributed the plight of the Cornwall textile industry to "neglect" by the former Liberal government.

The member in whose riding Cornwall is situated, Grant Campbell (PC—Stormont), said the city was left "stranded high and dry like a gasping whale on a rocky shore" by the Liberals, but thanks to Conservative legislation, was now once again afloat.

LEG AMPUTATED

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Mrs. Margaret Carr in hospital since Oct. 14 with a shattered right knee caused by a shotgun blast, Thursday had the leg amputated at mid-thigh. Her husband, Luther Carr, a Canadian customs officer at Niagara Falls, Ont., has been charged with wounding her. His trial is scheduled for the June jury sessions of Elgin County court. He is free on $3,000 bail.

Sunday School Lesson

Doing the Work of God

By ROY L. SMITH

This lesson raises one of the most serious, and at the same time one of the most complicated, questions with which the individual Christian or the Christian Church ever deals.

"What must we do to be doing the work of God?"

It is a question every honest man ought to face at least once every day, and it is also the question every church board ought to face at the beginning of every official meeting.

MAKE STRANGE EFFORTS

An aging man who had given his entire life to a skillful performance of a highly important and professional task in our town, was driving down the paved highway with a friend, when they overtook a bearded man and his severely plain wife riding in an antiquated buggy hauled by a beautiful horse. They were members of a religious sect somewhat common in the county.

"These people always set me thinking," the professional man said. "I know their sect rather well, and for their integrity and good citizenship in most matters I hold them in great respect. But they always leave me with the feeling that surely God does not expect us to be strange in order to please Him. I am sure they think they are doing the will of God, but I would feel a lot better about them if we could persuade them to help us in this county in our efforts to better our public health program and improve our schools.

WE RESTRICT GOD

In another community a desperate war was being waged with certain vice interests which were corrupting the youth, demoralizing the police force, and defying the law. In an effort to do something practical about the situation a group of Christian laymen organized a committee and undertook to give battle to the evildoers. Attempting to get the facts before the public they trained a group of lay speakers, and tried to book them for speeches in clubs, Sunday School classes, and other gatherings.

When the request that one of their speakers be heard by the largest men's Bible class of the city, they were told that "we have an extremely important lesson for next Sunday, and we cannot allow anyone to interrupt us. We are studying the wheels of Ezekiel." As if God were more highly honored, and better served, by an hour with Ezekiel's imagery than by a consideration of the city's need!

GOD IS AT WORK

In a certain major American city there were two powerful churches, each with a numerous following and each capable of exercising powerful leadership in the community.

At a ministerial meeting one Monday morning the pastor of one of those churches arose to report more than a thousand in Sunday school, an adult Bible class with 200 men in attendance, and various other items which indicated enormous strength.

At the close of the report the pastor of the second church arose to report that somewhat more than 400 of his men and women were soliciting that week in behalf of the community chest, that nearly 50 of them were serving on committees for the Boy Scouts, that more than a hundred were serving as chairmen of committees for the YMCA, the YWCA, the library board, the hospital board, and other public service institutions. "We believe it is our business," the pastor said, "to inspire Christian men and women to give themselves in service to this community, and to serve with all the skill they are able to achieve."

All of which raises the very serious question: "Just when is a church doing the work of God?" If we really think God is working inside the life of a city, moving inside the life of a city, moving upon the lives of citizens in matters of decency, morals, responsibility, and justice, it is not the business of the church to furnish inspired leaders and workers for community enterprises?

When Jesus said, "My Father has been working up to this time, and I am now working with Him," He described the pattern of service for all Christians. A very great deal of the will of God can be done outside of church walls.

Outlook, Sask., Does Not Want to Become Boom Town

By GRAHAM COX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OUTLOOK, Sask (CP)—Outlook is a sleepy, dusty town in central Saskatchewan a few miles from the site of the South Saskatchewan River Dam.

It's a growing community but despite the dam project it hasn't become a boom town and the people who live there don't want it to be.

"We're looking for steady solid growth in the town, not a boom," said Mayor J. C. Carter. "We don't want it. We're trying not to allow it."

Outlook has always been a centre for farm and rural commerce. Civic leaders hope it will stay that way, despite the influx of workers for the dam and the flow of money from the $10,000,000 already spent on the project.

However, its people are ready for any growth and development that happens to result from the dam, as long as it is orderly.

HAS NEW HOSPITAL

The 1956 census showed Outlook's population to be about 1,000. An unofficial estimate now places it at about 1,500.

And there are new houses, new stores and shopping blocks, new cafes and, of course, new people.

The new people have necessitated construction of a hospital of 30 beds at a cost of about $400,000 and a new high school for $200,000 which is already showing signs of overcrowding although open less than a year.

The RCMP and federal government have had to consider building a new police headquarters, barracks and jail and adding to the three-man force.

And, where in 1955 the town assessment was less than $578,000, today it stands at $1,444,000 — the result of almost $1,500,000 of construction within the town boundaries since 1958 when the hydro - irrigation project was begun.

BYLAWS STRICT

Mayor Carter, 78, said the town is trying to avoid the disadvantages of a boom by maintaining strict zoning and building bylaws. It requires a prospective builder to take out a permit, then submit plans, prove he owns the property he intends to build on, and sign an agreement guaranteeing completion of construction within a stipulated period of time. If the agreement is not fulfilled the property reverts to the town.

The arrangement so far has kept the quick money out of the town and there has been little speculation.

Both the mayor and Grant MacDonald, president of the Chamber of Commerce, say Outlook's future will continue to depend primarily on farm commerce though industrial development may result from the accessibility of power from the dam.

There have been suggestions of a meat packing plant, and land owned by the CPR has been considered as a possible site for a machinery firm.

However, the mayor doesn't see any real development until the dam, reservoir and power project have been completed, possibly by 1966.

Fleming Gives His Approval To Merger Of Banks

Imperial, Commerce Plan Amalgamation

OTTAWA (CP) — A merger plan by the Canadian Bank of Commerce and the Imperial Bank of Canada — the largest amalgamation in Canadian banking history—has cleared its first hurdle.

Finance Minister Fleming announced his approval Friday, opening the way for the banks to submit an amalgamation agreement to their shareholders.

The new bank to be named the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce will, once the plan goes through, be Canada's second-largest chartered bank with combined assets of more than $4,200,000,000 and 1,220 branches across Canada and abroad.

It will be the country's third bank merger in six years and reduce the number of chartered banks to eight.

SECRET WELL KEPT

Mr. Fleming's announcement in the Commons — first public word of the well-kept secret—was delayed until 5:45 p.m. EST after stock markets had closed.

He said he is of the opinion that the amalgamation "would be in the interests of the Canadian public." He said he has been informed it will not result in any reduction in staff or service and that it is planned that the new bank will expand "quite substantially."

Both of the merging banks "are in a strong financial condition." The proposed amalgamated bank "will be in an even stronger position to provide better and more competitive service to its customers."

A joint statement issued in Toronto by the banks said there will be relatively few places where branches of the two banks might have to be consolidated. Future expansion would mean about two branches opened for each one closed.

Under proposed amalgamation terms, shareholders of the bank of Commerce will receive one share of stock in the new bank for each share held and Imperial Bank shareholders will receive seven new shares for each six held.

N. J. McKinnon, board chairman and president of the Bank of Commerce, will be president and chief executive officer of the new bank.

L. S. Mackersy, board chairman of the Imperial Bank, will be chairman of the new bank. John S. Proctor, Imperial's president, will be executive vice president.

POSITIONS UNCHANGED

J. P. R. Wadsworth, vice-president and general manager of the Bank of Commerce, will hold the same positions in the new bank, and H. W. Thomson, Imperial's general manager, will be joint general manager.

The merger will create a new bank extremely close in asset size to Canada's largest, the Royal Bank of Canada. The merging banks say it will be larger than the Royal in terms of Canadian business.

At the end of the banking year last Nov. 30, the Royal Bank had assets of $4,296,930,000.

U.S. Sounding Out Diplomats On Congo Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States is quietly sounding out UN delegations on a sweeping program to end the Congo crisis, informed sources said today.

While not yet firm policy, informants said, the U.S. plan includes:

1. Freeing The Congo from big-power interference; 2. Forming a government with broader support than that held by President Joseph Kasavubu; 3. Disarming all Congolese troops; 4. Reconvene Parliament; 5. Releasing all political prisoners.

Chief U.S. delegate Adlai Stevenson would have to win the Soviet Union's agreement to stay out of the Congo's affairs. The disarmament proposal would need UN backing.

The rest of the program would depend upon the bitterly feuding Congolese politicians themselves.

Stevenson seems to put high priority on exclusion of big-power interference and low priority on freeing political prisoners, the informants said.

Stevenson probably will take up all the ideas with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin with the suggestion they become the UN program for The Congo, the informants said.

Brazil Hands Santa Maria to Salazar Govt.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

RECIFE (AP) — Capt. Henrique Galvao took up asylum here today after ending his seaborne revolution with surrender of the cruise ship he seized 13 days ago. But the swashbuckling rebel vowed to continue his fight against Portugal's strongman Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar.

Galvao went on the air shortly after setting foot on Brazilian soil and told a radio-TV audience that seizure of the 610-foot Santa Maria with 600 captive passengers and 368 crew was only the beginning of his campaign to oust the Salazar regime.

Later he told reporters he still claimed rights to the Santa Maria.

"We accepted asylum without renouncing our rights to the ship," he said.

The statement appeared to carry little meaning, however. After Galvao yielded the Santa Maria to Brazil, President Janio Quadros quickly handed the vessel over to the Portuguese government. Portuguese diplomats were expected to take charge of the $16,600,000 vessel on behalf of her Portuguese owners, the Colonial Navigation Company.

In turnnig the ship directly over to Portugal, Quadros avoided any jurisdictional dispute between the Brazilian Navy and the vessel's owners.

The ship's owners, meanwhile, sought to bring Galvao into court. They directed the liner's regular captain, Maria Simoes Maia, to file a complaint in a Brazilian court charging Galvao with homicide, robbery, depriving pssengers of their liberty and damage to the multi-million dollar ship.

The third officer of the Santa Maria was slain when the rebels seized the vessel in the Caribbean Jan. 22.

The Brazilian court must decide whether to accept the complaint.

ABEL VOSBURGH SENT FOR TRIAL FOR MURDER

Courtroom Packed To Hear Evidence

SWEETSBURG, Que. (CP)—Abel Vosburgh, charged with a dozen murders, Friday was ordered to trial after a preliminary hearing in which 14 witnesses — relatives, neighbors, policemen, scientists and a veterinarian—testified.

Judge Patrick Delaney said enough evidence was produced at the 4½-hour hearing to warrant trial in criminal court here next October. The 63-year-old laborer is charged with murder in the deaths of his wife, Marjorie, 43, and 11 of his 15 children.

Cause of his wife's death has not been determined, experts testified. The children died of carbon monoxide poisoning in the fire which swept their Noyan, Que., home early Dec. 29.

Vosburgh, dressed neatly in a blue suit and tie and white shirt, sat quietly through the hearing. He nodded negatively at the end when asked if he had any statement to make.

Much of the testimony was given in French, a language Vosburgh — a descendant of Dutch immigrants to the United States—neither speaks nor understands.

CROWD LAUGHS

But a crowd of more than 200 packing the modern court laughed when the crier opened the hearing in English. Residents said this hadn't happened in years.

Seats in the room were filled two hours before the hearing began at 10:30 a.m.

Sweetsburg is 55 miles south of Montreal and a few miles from the site of one of the worst fire tragedies in Quebec history

Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel testified that examination of Mrs. Vosburgh's blood showed she died before the flames reached

Liberal Introduces Bill To Allow Sunday Movies

TORONTO (CP) — The 22-member Liberal party Friday spurred the Ontario government to take a stand on Sunday movies.

The push came from Andrew Thompson (L — Toronto Dovercourt) who introduced a bill in the legislature amending the Lord's Day (Ontario) Act. The party caucus approved the bill.

The Progressive Conservative government has been studying the issue and is expected to introduce legislation this session as the result of recent municipal elections in which 14 out of 18 communities voted in favor of Sunday movies.

Mr. Thompson's bill would authorize municipalities to permit the showing of motion pictures or theatrical performances and concerts on Sunday (by means of the same procedures as now exist for authorizing sports on Sunday.)

The bill would provide for Sunday movies after 1 p.m., with the municipalities being given the authority to regulate and control all matters pertaining to performances, including the closing hour.

Toronto, Windsor, Niagara Falls, Cornwall, Stamford Township, Brantford, Oshawa, Oakville, Kapuskasing, Cochrane, Timmins, Richmond Hill, St. Catharines and Alexandria have voted already in support of Sunday movies.

Newmarket, Kitchener, North Bay and Bradford opposed them.

Phillip Hoffman (PC—Timiskaming), in making his maiden speech to the legislature, called for a complete readjustment of the tax fields and a larger share of revenue for Ontario from the federal government.

He said it was strange that Ontario should be considered the only "have" province, which resulted in it paying most of the equalization payments to the "have not" provinces.

Saskatchewan, under a CCF government, has been able to indulge in all sorts of enterprises, he said.

"It now is proposing to launch a plan of medical care which is something we of Ontario cannot afford at this time . . . of course, the fact that socialist Saskatchewan is carrying on most of these experiments with Ontario's money is something else again."

The leigslature will sit at 4 p.m. Monday, an hour later than usual, to accommodate members who want to attend the funeral of the late Dr. William J. Dunlop, 79, former minister of education. Dr. Dunlop died Thursday.

Blackboards and Skeletons Advocated by Lawyer Panel

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Blackboards and skeletons may serve as useful adjuncts to a lawyer's conduct of personal injury suits and as such should be permitted in the courtroom, a panel at the Ontario midwinter meeting of the Canadian Bar Association agreed Friday.

The panel of two judges and a California lawyer supported use of blackboards by a lawyer in displaying his calculation of special and general damages to the jury. Skeletons, they agreed, might be needed in courtroom demonstrations.

"If a doctor is prepared to say he cannot adequately and effectively explain the nature of an injury without the mechanics of the skeleton, I see no reason why he shouldn't be permitted to use it," said Mr. Justice C. D. Stewart of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

As to the use of blackboards he saw "nothing wrong with it if it helps the jury to remember what we are talking about."

Other members of the panel were Chief Justice C. C. McLaurin of Alberta and lawyer Melvin Belli of San Francisco.

Chief Justice McLaurin reminded the 1,600 delegates to the meeting that the law of Canada "and good sense" both ruled against the awarding of total and complete compensation to complainants in damage suits.

The association's administrative law section passed a recommendation that the Ontario legislature debate at once an interim report of its select committee on administrative and executive problems.

SEES CONFLICT

Maxwell Bruce of Toronto said the report, issued Nov. 17, showed areas of conflicting jurisdiction in provincial administration have been created by recent legislation.

The energy act, he said, creates a new department, yet the inspection of electrical installations remains the responsibility of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

He said there was also a conflict between the Ontario Hospital Insurance Commission and the department of health in allocating grants to hospitals.

Snowstorm Heads for Maritimes Picking up Punch Along Route

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A snowstorm swept out of Ontario early today and headed for the Maritimes, picking up punch as it moved along.

The winter blast struck Southern Ontario with snowfalls of four to seven inches Friday. It was off the coast of Virginia today and storming its way to the Maritimes.

Heavy snow and gale-force winds were forecast for Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and southern New Brunswick. Up to a foot of snow was in prospect.

The western provinces had pleasant weather and more of the same was promised for the weekend.

A few snowflurries and mainly cloudy skies were forecast for Ontario today. The weatherman could see no return of the recent bitter cold which gripped the province. Temperatures were expected to be in or around the 20s in both north and south.

Light snow was forecast for Montreal and Quebec City. For the first time in three weeks the mercury was expected to go above zero in Quebec City. A high of 15 was forecast for Ottawa.

A cold snap which started Jan. 18 ended in the Maritimes Friday when temperatures reached the mid-20s.

Northern British Columbia was in store for sunny weather. Forecasts called for showers over the southern part of the province.

Mild, pleasant weather continued to cover Alberta and western Saskatchewan Friday and no change is expected during the weekend.

A high of 30 was expected at Regina.

Churchill, in northern Manitoba, had a high of 14 Friday, one degree warmer than Winnipeg. Similar conditions extended to northwestern Ontario as White River marked a high of 19.

19 Persons Die Buried in Slag In Belgian Town

MOULIN - sous - FLERON (Reuters) — King Baudouin today watched rescue operations at this Belgian hamlet where at least 19 persons were feared killed Friday night under a noiseless avalanche of slag from a coal-using power plant.

The King and Queen Fabiola drove from Brussels through heavy rain as workers who labored feverishly through the night in search of trapped survivors found only bits of clothing and a teddy-bear.

The bodies of a woman, her 12-year-old daughter and a seven-month-old baby have been recovered.

Police said 16 persons still are missing—12 occupants of houses, three passengers in a truck and a motorcyclist. They apparently were caught by the 300-foot slag heap as it slithered down a hill to engulf streets and houses to a depth of 10 feet.

LIBERALS WILL BITTERLY FIGHT TARIFF CHANGES

Pickersgill, Nowlan Tangle in Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberals in the Commons obviously intend to raise against Finance Minister Fleming's proposed tariff changes the same sort of barrage they aimed last session at Justice Minister Fulton's anti-combines amendments.

Both subjects are complex to the point where some MPs have admitted being baffled. But there still is the opportunity for generalizations on both sides of the political fence. And the Liberals apparently intend to make the most of the chance.

Friday saw the third day of debate on Mr. Fleming's controversial proposals to change the Customs Tariff Act. There was no progress and the proposals remain at the resolution stage. The opposition siege probably will continue when the bills themselves come up.

CAN DECIDE LEVEL

Specifically, under the change the minister of national revenue —George Nowlan, at present—would be able to decide what is the normal level of consumption of Canadian-produced goods when considering whether imports should face a high rate of duty. There would be no appeal from his ruling on that point.

The power would be wielded in determining whether the imported goods are of a closs or kind produced in Canada. If they are, they are subject to higher tariffs. But they would not be deemed to be of a class or kind made in Canada unless at least 10 per cent of "normal Canadian consumption" is supplied by domestic producers.

SAYS ARBITRARY

The gist and tenor of the debate surrounding this proposal can be crystallized in this exchange Friday:

J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista - Twillingate): ". . . In the three years this government has been in office, there has been more arbitrary legislation and more arbitrary conduct on the part of the government of Canada than there ever was in the whole 22 years of Liberal government."

Mr. Nowlan: "The honorable member is making statements which are absolutely without foundation or any semblance of fact. If this were not the Parliament of Canada I would say they are absolutely untrue and would ask him to withdraw them."

Mr. Pickersgill: "The minister had better compose himself."

Mr. Nowlan: "I will not."

Mr. Nowlan—who to some extent has taken the burden of reply off Mr. Fleming's shoulders —later described Mr. Pickersgill's arguments as "arrant nonsense."

There has never been an appeal—of the few appeals that have been made on any ground—on the question of the proportion

Tadeusz Koyer Returns Home

MONTREAL (CP) — Tadeusz Koyer was resting quietly at home today, picking up the threads of his life in Canada interrupted by five months' imprisonment in Poland.

Koyer, 38, returned to Montreal Friday by jetliner after Polish officials unexpectedly released him from prison earlier this week.

He had been held in jail without trial since he was arrested last August while visiting his mother in Poland.

Congolese Troops Seek Cease-Fire After Gun Battle With Nigerians

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Congolese troops appealed for a cease-fire after suffering "heavy casualties" in a day-long gun battle with Nigerian troops of the United Nations at Kindu, a UN spokesman reported today.

One Nigerian officer was killed and four of his men are missing in the clash that grew out of a brawl with drunken Congolese soldiers.

It broke out Thursday night when Congolese troops opened fire on a party of Nigerians at Kindu, a town in Lumumba-controlled Kivu province.

The Nigerians returned the fire and killed six Congolese troops, the UN spokesman said.

Fighting broke out again the next morning when Congolese troops ambushed a Nigerian detachment and killed a Nigerian officer.

The 200 Nigerians in the town then withdrew to their headquarters under the command of a British officer and were besieged by more than 1,500 Congolese troops for the rest of the day.

The Congolese poured mortar fire into the complex of buildings making up the headquarters but the UN said there were no further Nigerian casualties.

The UN spokesman said the Congolese suffered "heavy casualties" but was unable to give details.

Five Of Family Burn To Death At Maniwaki

Baby, Parents Saved From Fire by Passerby

MANIWAKI, Que (CP)—Five members of a family died early today when fire ripped through a frame home in this community 90 miles north of Ottawa.

Killed in the fire were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Aldrem Richard, ranging in ages from 2½ to 26.

The parents are in hospital here after being rescued by a passerby along with one-month-old Josee, youngest member of the family.

Dead are: Paulette, 26, Jean, 8, Christine, 7, Andre, 6, and Line 2½.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Cause of the fire that levelled the frame house in this town, gayly decked out for winter carnival week, was not known.

Neighbor Mrs. Ted Lemieux first spotted the flames about 3 a.m. and ran to the fire station to sound the alarm.

Passerby Aldege Emond dashed into the house, snatched up the baby and led the parents to safety.

First reports were that the baby had died later in hospital but it was later confirmed that the child was still alive.

The parents suffered minor burns.

Billion Dollars Will Be Spent By Quebec Govt.

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec government plans to spend close to $1,000,000,000 in the 1961-62 fiscal year.

Estimates tabled in the legislature Friday by Premier Lesage, who also is finance minister, showed a total of $957,282,978, including federal grants and miscellaneous reimbursements to the provincial treasury.

How Mr. Lesage plans to raise $793,725,844 in provincial revenues to help pay for the record expenditures will be disclosed in his budget speech, scheduled to be delivered after the scheduled federal-provincial conference in Ottawa Feb. 23-24.

Estimates tabled a year ago for the current fiscal year ending March 31 were $317,297,000, a figure boosted by two recent sets of supplementary estimates to $738,460,128.

Mr. Lesage has announced a third group supplementary estimates is to be brought down soon. Presumably it will include sums destined for capital expansion plans of the province's universities, for which the government is to set up a borrowing program at its own expense.

Education and social welfare share a large slice of the 1961-62 estimates. So does a system of new family allowances of $10 a month for each school child between 16 and 18 years inclusively.

Six new joint federal-provincial projects are an important factor in the increase in the estimates. Hospital insurance and Trans-Canada Highway construction are the most costly.

In other business Friday, the legislative assembly's private bills committee completed study of two bills on metropolitan government on Montreal Island. Mr. Lesage said the present situation will remain as is until his government has had the time to study it thoroughly.

Three Soldiers Killed in Crash At Sharbot Lake

SHARBOT LAKE (CP) — Three young apprentice soldiers were killed Friday night in a two-car collision near this community 60 miles southwest of Ottawa.

Dead are: Gordon Lackey, 17, and John Goodbody, 18, both of Perth, and Howard Kinne, 18, of Hopkins Landing, B.C.

All were in training at Camp Borden military camp and were believed heading for a weekend holiday at Perth.

Four others were injured.

D. W. Folster, 16, of Burchell, Sask., is in critical condition in Perth Hospital.

In hospital with lesser injuries are Keith Sherrard, 17, of Carleton Place, Robert Sternberg, 17, of Camp Borden and T. N. Norton, 17, stationed with the RCAF at St. Hubert, Que.

Details of the accident were not immediately available. It was believed Norton was driver of one of the cars and was alone.

District Drama Groups Will Enter Festival

The drama groups from Belleville and Trenton have chosen plays from either end of the dramatic spectrum with which to compete with the twin entries from Peterborough, who have chosen vehicles which belong somewhere between the two extremes. The four plays will be produced on the stage of the Belleville Collegiate during the afternoon and evening of February 11. Curtain times 2 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Two social get-together are also on the agenda of the day. A spaghetti dinner beginning at 5 p.m. will be held in the club room of the Hotel Quinte and an after-the-play celebration at the same hotel's Prince Edward suite. Quinte thespians are hoping one of their respective entries will be the recipient of the toast to the victor.

Belleville's entry, which features Harry Mulhall, Tom Fraser and Margaret Jardine, is a last century farce, complete with long red flannels in honor of the weatherman. Trenton's play, which features Flo Yanover, Nicky Thomas, Jim Alexander and Tom Causey, is of an experimental nature. It is a stark drama that is being handled in an unusual manner, a manner the group is keeping a deep, dark secret.

Belleville's play, "Box and Cox" is paired with the Peterborough Little Theatre's "Pot Luck" during the afternoon. Trenton's "No Exit" and the St. John's Players (Peterborough) production of "Happy Journey" are the evening fare.

Quinte Rink Wins Playdowns At Cobourg

A Quinte Curling Club rink has reached the second round of the Brier playdowns by their win over six other competitors in Cobourg on Friday. The rink of Al McCullam, T. A. Carruthers, Bill Riley and Mac White as skip won three games during the day and were so "hot" they made their last opponents give up before the 12 ends were played. In the morning game they defeated a rink from the Peterborough Country Club, while in the afternoon they beat a rink of W. Rowden, Cliff Carse, Bob Olson with John Roy as skip from the Cobourg Curling Club 11-2, while the Peterborough Curling Club won their game by default from Bicroft and then defeated Bill Lewis of the RCAF Trenton by a score of 10-5.

This brought the rink of Bert Morelock, Dave Gerolamy, E. Poast with Bert Harrison as skip from the Peterborough Curling Club against the Quinte rnik in the final game, which was won by the Belleville rink by a substantial count.

The Quinte rink will now meet a rink from Unionville skipped by Andy Grant with his son Ray Grant playing last stones in Belleville on February 17th in a three-game series, the winning rink going into the round-robin series for the championship of Ontario. In this contest there will be eight rinks from different sections of the province and each rink plays every other rink in the competition. The Quinte rink in winning the match played consistently all day, making the tough ones when they counted and protecting their stones in the rings.

Says Councillor Given $100 Bribe

TORONTO (CP) — Arthur Porter, a real estate broker, testified at the trial of William Graham Friday that it was common knowledge among real estate men that some York Township council members could be bribed.

. Graham, former York Township deputy reeve, is charged with accepting a bribe in 1956 in connection with a permit application by builder Ray Zucchiati. He pleaded not guilty Thursday.

The charge was the result of an investigation in 1959 into township affairs.

He said he gave Graham $100 in an envelope on behalf of Zucchiati.

The trial continues.

Northern Employees Here Are Seeking 35-Hour Week

Hourly-rated employees of Northern Electric Company at Belleville and in Montreal, through their employee associations, are asking for a 35-hour work week.

The present work contract runs out the last of February.

Company officials in Belleville today confirmed that the demand for the 35-hour work week had been made and that the matter was currently in the bargaining stage.

In recent months many Northern employees at Belleville have been working considerable overtime, allowing the company to catch up on production orders.

Policy of the company apparently has been to call workers back for overtime in preference to hiring and training new personnel who might conceivably have to be laid off once the backlog of work orders was caught up.

Many Businessmen Oppose 'Depressed Area' Request

TRENTON — Many businessmen here have said they are strongly opposed to Councillor Lloyd Worrall's request to have Trenton declared a depressed area by the federal government.

They said that although there is some unemployment here the situation is not as severe as at Cornwall, Peterborough or Oshawa. They felt that Councillor Worrall's request to Lee Grills, MP for Hastings South, was an example of an elected official "going off half-cocked without studying the local situation thoroughly."

Other persons here indicated their civic pride would be injured if the town was declared a depressed area. They did not like the ominous sound of the expressions because it smacks too much of the Black Thirties.

Plan No Inquest In Baby's Death

TRENTON — Coroner Dr. J. V. Byrne said Friday that no inquest will be held into the death Thursday night of 11-month-old Kim Kearney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kearney of the Carrying Place road.

Dr. Bryne said that an autopsy examination had been performed by Dr. B. O. Nugent of Trenton, who found that the infant had died of natural causes.

Efforts of town firemen and staff at Trenton Memorial Hospital to save the child after her mother had become alarmed at Kim's "blue" color, and called for assistance, were futile. Kim died shortly after being admitted to hospital.

Team Victory

TRENTON — An RCAF women's curling rink, skipped by Mildred Bowdery, was the high three-game winner in a women's bonspiel against 15 competing rinks from Cobourg, Peterborough, Lindsay, Belleville, Whitby and Trenton, at Cobourg Thursday.

Vice-skip of the winning rink was Mrs. Esther Spruston, second, Mrs. Shirley Smith and lead, Mrs. Fran Barbour.

High School News

By SANDY BROWN

Vive la teachers' convention. This was the song that all high school students in the Bay of Quinte area were singing all week long in anticipation of Friday. It was a very welcome holiday. We hope that the teachers had an enjoyable time in Napanee. Any further conventions automatically meet with the approval of the students.

The semi-finals of the Lions' Club public speaking contest were held in the school on Feb. 2. The winners will proceed to the finals in the school auditorium on the evening of Feb. 10.

The weekly sock hop was cancelled this week, in order to work in the inter-mural games, scheduled for Friday. They will resume next week. (Wednesday as usual.)

The book room was open at noon every day, this week so that the down payment on the "Spotlight' could be collected. This year's school magazine promises to be bigger and better than ever.

An appeal for pictures to fill out the Candid Camera section of the magazine has been made to the student body. The response has been good and the pics should be well worth a second glance.

Scores for the Trenton-Napanee games at Trenton last Friday ran as follows: seniors: Trenton 42, Napanee 33; Bantams: Trenton 35, Napanee 33; Juniors: Napanee 31, Trenton 17. Not bad fellows, but surely you can do better next time.

I guess the groundhog saw his shadow on Feb. 2 all right. That means another six weeks of struggling through snow drifts and bitter cold to school. Ah, well. We have it on good authority that spring is just around the corner . . . so are exams!

So long till next week.

Paper Company Now Gas Fired

TRENTON—Officials at the Hinde and Dauch Paper Company said Friday that workmen had completed converting the plant's fuel system to natural gas, replacing the former method of using pulverized coal. The conversion program was started January 5 and was completed last Wednesday.

The system is so geared that if a temporary shortage of gas should occur at any time, it could be changed back to the original method in a matter of minutes. In fact, the method employing pulverized coal may be reverted to periodically. However the plant now is run by natural gas.

Two million cubic feet of gas a day will be used during the 24 operational hours worked by the plant each day. Formerly, about 100 tons of coal a day were used.

$400 Damage As Car Ends Up in Ditch

BRIGHTON — A Montreal man's hopes of going to Toronto to arrange for his return to British Guiana were interrupted early today when the car in which he was riding went out of control at the Highway 401 cloverleaf north of here and ended up in a ditch with $400 damage.

Murray Colomay and the driver, Roy Seetaram and Mrs. Seetaram were shaken up, but the Seetarams later continued to Toronto by bus. Mr. Colomay, however, went to Trenton to await a bus heading for Montreal.

Police said the accident occurred at 4:45 a.m. when the car slipped on the snow-covered highway at the intersection of Highways 401 and 30 and crashed through guard rails into a ditch.

Mr. Colomay was asleep in the back seat when the accident occurred. He said, when interviewed in Trenton, that the accident would delay his return to British Guiana only momentarily.

The memory of the happy days,
When we were all together.

Nicole Henroit-Schweitzer To Give Recital at Collegiate

Nicole Henroit-Schweitzer, the remarkable and remarkably lovely, young French pianist, who will appear next Monday evening at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium under the auspices of the Belleville Community Concert Association has been acclaimed by the New York Herald Tribune as, "an artist one can enjoy with all the faculties, with the sentiments, with the mind and with the musical ear." Her successes extend from London to New York, from the Near East to the Far West.

Nicole Henroit-Schweitzer was born in Paris and began studying the piano at seven when she entered the Paris Conservatoire. At 15 she made her debut with the Pasdeloup Orchestra. During World War II she was active in the French Resistance and was decorated with the Badge of the Commandos d'Afrique. She was the first French pianist heard in England after World War II.

In January 1958, she became the wife of Jean-Jacques Schweitzer, a nephew of the great humanitarian and musician, Albert Schweitzer, and of the Boston Symphony's illustrious maestro, Charles Munch. Commander Schweitzer was one of France's war heroes and is a holder of the Croix de Guerre.

Nicole Henroit-Schweitzer continued her concert tours and appeared in Amsterdam, the Hague, and North Africa. In 1959 Jean Philippe Schweitzer was born and spent most of his first year in America where his mother played several scheduled recitals and again with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Happily she is continually before the public via her recordings for R.C.A. Victor.

Request of City Council To Purchase Old Shire Hall Turned Down by County

Century-old Shire Hall, recently vacated by county administrative officials as the result of their move into the new county building, will not become a city police station as was the hope of city police officials.

A request this week on the part of the city to procure the old Shire Hall building has been turned down by the county fathers.

Reason given was that the county had already made plans to raze the old structure with the grounds to be turned into a parking lot.

Monday evening at city council a special committee of Alderman Lorne McDougall with Deputy Mayor Robert Temple and Alderman Ross Bailey was named to meet with county officials to discuss the possibility of the city procuring the Shire Hall building, now standing vacant.

Wednesday the committee met with the county finance committee but the city request was turned down.

Acquisition of the old Shire Hall building would have been appreciated by the city police department which is sadly cramped for space in the present building on the market square.

NEEDS NEW QUARTERS

The site would have been central and in the opinion of police officials the building could have been renovated at much less cost than the price of a new building on a new site.

But it is generally agreed the city police department needs new and larger quarters.

The present police station, originally used as a butter market, has been remodelled on a number of occasions in a vain effort to meet the demands of a growing police department.

Records don't show just when the police department moved into its present quarters but the accommodation has been unchanged in size despite the fact that the department personnel has more than tripled in the past half century.

"We are simply just too overcrowded," Police Chief Walter Probert says. "And it is really not worth spending any more money on the old building."

WOULD BE ADEQUATE

He noted that had the old Shire Hall been available it would have been adequate for police purposes for years to come.

Over the years city council on several occasions has given consideration to a new police building.

Even as recent as 1958 a special committee of council was formed to consider the matter.

But before any definite action was taken municipal elections intervened and the committee was never re-appointed.

But the police chief and his department are still living in hopes.

Historic Hotel Near Marmora Lost in Fire

MARMORA — Breen O'Connor, 42, burned out of his historic home yesterday with his wife and 13 children, decided that things can only get so bad and then they have to swing the other way.

He wants to rebuild at the site of the destroyed former O'Connor House Hotel, built in 1882 by his grandfather near the Canadian National Railways station outside this village on No. 7 Highway east of Peterborough.

But he has no regular source of income now. Since being driven out of the 12-room building—the family home since the hotel went out of business in 1913—his family has been spread among the homes of five relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor escaped with their five youngest after a spark from the house's wood stove chimney ignited the shingled roof.

The rest of the children—the three oldest have birthdays this week, reaching 17, 16 and 15 respectively — were at school. The O'Connor household was warned by neighbor William Murphy who spotted the fire.

"You wonder sometimes how people get caught in fires," Mr. O'Connor observed: "It was daytime and we saw the fire. But we were just lucky to get out. You wouldn't believe how fast it was."

While he ran upstairs to rescue 7-year-old Eddie, in bed with a cold, Mrs. O'Connor ushered the four younger girls to the railroad station.

Mr. O'Connor estimated the property's value at $15,000 but said: "I wouldn't have sold it for even a lot more than that."

her. The blood in the children's bodies contained more tan 40-per-cent carbon monoxide, a fatal dose indicating they died in the fire in the 20-by-27-foot Vosburgh home.

ASKS RE ATTACK

Defence lawyer John Gotlieb asked Mr. Roussel whether a heart attack might have caused Mrs. Vosburgh's death.

"An examination of the heart has disclosed no lesions which could have had that effect but I must admit the possibility," the provincial pathologist replied.

He said the heat of the fire "cooked" the blood and left no chance of change in makeup even though the bodies were examined more than a week after the blaze.

The bodies were disinterred from the Anglican cemetery at Noyan after an investigation ebgan Jan. 7. The elder Vosburgh —sole survivor of the blaze—was held criminally responsible for the deaths by a coroner's jury in Bedford, Que., Jan. 17.

Irying Vosburgh, 18, and Allan Vosburgh, 12, neither of whom was home the night of the fire, both testified. Their sisters—Mrs. Gertrude Lockerby, 22, and Mrs. Gladys Maybee, 21—watched.

HEARD FATHER

Irving, who left home 18 months before the tragedy, said his parents fought frequently and he had heard his father say to his mother: "I'll get rid of you sooner or later."

Asked by Mr. Gotlieb if he understood this to be a death threat, Irving replied:

"No, I didn't understand it to mean anything."

Irving also testified that his mother said her ribs had been broken after she was hit by a piece of wood thrown by her husband. The youth said his father once threw a five-gallon can at him.

He said he left home after breaking up a fight between his parents.

Mr. Gotlieb said outside the court he will ask that the trial be held in Montreal rather than Sweetsburg. The Crown prosecutor said he will oppose this on the grounds that newspaper coverage of the case has made Montreal unsuitable.

A change of venue hearing will be held here Monday.

merging banks are about one per cent less at $4,212,980,000. The Canadian Bank of Commerce was third - largest in the country with assets of $3,155,274,000, and the Imperial Bank, at $1,057,706,000, was sixth-largest.

Officials said the amalgamation, if approved, will be retroactive to last Nov. 1.

MUST GIVE NOTICE

Regulations require the banks to give four weeks' notice of special shareholders meetings. The merger plan must be approved by a two-thirds majority of shares. The last step is final approval by the federal cabinet.

Canada's last bank merger was five years ago when the Imperial Bank and Barclays Bank (Canada) amalgamated. A year earlier the Bank of Toronto and the Dominion Bank of Canada joined to form the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

The other chartered banks are the Bank of Montreal, the Bank of Nova Scotia, Provincial Bank of Canada, Canadian National Bank and the Mercantile Bank of Canada.

Mr. Fleming described the chartered banks as "one of the most highly competitive segments of Canadian business."

"The amalgamation will enable a broader use of larger domestic resources and provide a more comprehensive international service through association with the extensive branch banking system of Barclays group of banks."

There was little comment in the Commons on the minister's announcement.

Railwaymen See Diefenbaker

A local man, Bruce Johnston of 366 Bleeker Avenue, was a member of a delegation representing the national legislation committee of railroad unions at a meeting with Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and the federal cabinet yesterday afternoon in Ottawa.

The delegation expressed its attitude towards changes in income tax, the old age pension, the unemployment insurance act regarding seasonal employees and Bill 182 of the Railway Act. The latter bill deals especially with the definition of a closed terminal.

The Prime Minister promised a committee to study this bill said Mr. Johnston, who is vice-chairman of the Ontario legislative committee of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. He commented that the delegation had been most favorably received.

In Foreign Language Study Try Thinking As a Foreigner

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed.D., with HARRY KARNS

Article 5

Now let's talk about how to read literary works and foreign languages.

Literature is written to entertain. tI seems a shame to take it out of the field of entertainment and place it under the head of Scholarship — with a capital S. But that is what comma-hunting English professors have done with it.

Since this is the situation, it only makes good sense to put some system into the analytical reading of literary works. You can at least enjoy making a good grade.

To satisfy an English professor's exacting requirements, you must think of a great deal more than merely how good the story is. Here are some questions to ask yourself when you are reading a novel, a play, a short story:

1. What is the theme?
2. What is the setting?
3. Who is the central character, and how does his life change in the course of the work?
4. Is the dialogue realistic?
5. What is the turning point of the story?
6. Where is the climax—the point where a final decisive action is taken?
7. Is there a particularly vivid description?
8. Does the author have mannerisms that distinguish his style?

English professors are a shifty lot, however. Try to find out what you are supposed to learn from your reading under a certain professor. You may be able to get a ray of intelligence from tests given to previous classes. In any event, you'll find out when he gives your first quiz. Take the hint and study the sort of thing he is intreested in.

POINTERS ON LANGUAGES

Beyond that, keep in mind these points:

1. While reading a literary work keep the author's name and the title of the book in the background of your thinking space.

2. Think of the character as the inventions of the author. Use the author's name and the character's name in the same thought. "Shakespeare did a good job with Othello". "Dickens created an appealing character in Oliver Twist".

3. Picture situations and scenes. Identify the characters with those situations and scenes. And identify all of these things with the author, using both his name and the name of the story.

Before doing the things we have suggested here, we suggest that you do one preliminary thing: Read the book just for the fun of it.

Studying a modern language is something requiring still different techniques.

A lot depends on the way you prepare to study.

If the material to be read is part of an exercise in a textbook, it probably involves new vocabulary, foreign words you never saw before. You should study the vocabulary before trying to read the lesson.

But also a foreign language requires an entirely new point of view.

For real success you must quit thinking in English and think in that foreign language. Do not merely translate from the foreign language. If it's French, you must become a Frenchman; if German, a German; if Rusisan, a Russian — but do not fear, it is only make-believe and you will not be investigated by a congressional committee.

Suggested steps for vocabulary study:

1. Each word in the vocabulary should be pronounced and studied.

2. Keep the word in mind long enough to thoroughly understand it.

3. Call up the appropriate picture. If the word means "chair", bring up a mental picture of a chair, not just the word chair.

4. Look for associations of words, and use each new word in at least one pattern of words and idioms whenever you can. For example, a foreigner studying English would use as often as possible such expressions as, "Thany you very much", "You are welcome", "What time is it please?" and "Turn right at the next corner".

This approach will help you not merely today but in your future use of the language. If you concern yourself primarily with translating today's exercise, you may fall into the trap of simply memorizing equivalent words. You can get the current assignment that way, perhaps, but the words won't stick — and so, what do you do on exam day?

Jane had trouble with high school French. She was able to do the daily translations but got low grades on tests. Her memory for vocabulary held water for two or three weeks at the most. Each assignment required endless reference to the French-English dictionary.

We suggested that she use the mental picture technique, try thinking in French, and attempt her reading in a new way:

1. She was to stop at the end of each page or paragraph and recite the meaning to herself.

2. If the first reading did not produce clear understanding, she was to glance through the material, picking out unfamiliar words.

3. She was to give each of these words the thorough thought process suggested for vocabulary study.

4. Then she was to read a second time for understanding.

5. At points where written translations were required, she was to translate without referring to previous work.

Jane tried it this way with the excellent results you can expect when you apply simple, commonsense principles in solving a problem. Jane learned to learn.

Obviously, there is a bit more to the business of reading than being able to devour rapidly page after page of print. Good reading is an organized undertaking requiring preparation, purpose, discipline and will.

Diefenbaker and Kennedy May Meet Within Month

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and President John Kennedy may hold their first official meeting within a month.

Such a White House conference is indicated by diplomatic developments that seem to cut across Kennedy's desire to get things done on an ambassadorial level and to move slowly and cautiously in negotiating directly with world leaders.

Kennedy has announced he won't be meeting with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain until April 2 and some American newspapers have interpreted this as a "go slow" signal to other heads of state who want to confer with the president.

But while this might be the pattern for the big powers, diplomats representing some of the smaller powers have observed that Kennedy has agreed to meet with Premier Viggo Kampmann of Denmark Feb. 14. Kampmann will stop off in Washington on his way to Chicago to open a Danish art exhibit.

Australian Prime Minister Robert Menzies may be seeing the president in February. Menzies has decided to stop off in Washington for a few days on his way to London to attend the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference. Australian diplomats say no firm meeting has been scheduled between Menzies and Kennedy but they suggest such a meeting is possible.

Diefenbaker is anxious to confer with Kennedy on a variety of issues and expressed his desire by telling Parliament Thursday such a meeting would be beneficial so that the views of the U.S. may be available at the Commonwealth conference opening in London March 8.

Diplomatic informants suggest that such a meeting now is in the works; and that there is some initial mutual understanding the meeting would be characterized by brevity and informality. An exact time has not yet been fixed.

Canadian diplomats lost no time in bringing the Diefenbaker statement to the attention of their American counterparts and to the White House. It might be argued that if it is just a question of bringing American views to the Commonwealth conference, Menzies might have been able to do this.

To this, diplomatic observers suggest it would look odd at the Commonwealth meeting if North American views were transmitted by an Australian while a North American was sitting at the conference table.

Ground School Being Conducted By Flying Club

Whether you want to learn to fly or are simply interested in aviation, you might wish to take advantage of the Prince Edward Flying Club's ground school which is held every Wednesday night at Albert College.

Subjects on curriculum include meteorology, basic navigation, aero engines and airframes, theory of flight, airmanship and air regulations.

Murray Clapp, the club's chief flying instructor who has been heading up the school which next Wednesday night will hold its fourth two-hour session, said attendance during the past three weeks has been surprisingly high with an average of 45 persons showing up.

Idea behind the program is to boost interest in civil aviation in the Quinte district and increase the club's membership. The ground school normally is held at the club's quarters on the Picton airfield.

The school will last more than 10 weeks because an occasional motion picture will be shown to supplement lectures. An opportunity will be available at the completion of the course for students to write Department of Transport examinations. The school is open to both men and women.

of the Canadian market supplied by Canadian producers, the minister said.

Mr. Pickersgill had complained that the right of appeal on the balance of facts in each case would be "complete mockery."

"The moment the minister decides what the normal consumption is in Canada, everything else flows from it as a mathematical formula."

The Liberal MP went on:

"In a case in which someone wishes to appeal, he should have that right of appeal. We are saying that it should not be interfered with in this way, particularly when no valid argument—and indeed virtually no argument at all—is given as to why this change is being made."

At another point Mr. Pickersgill said:

"If I were of a suspicious mind instead of being the naive and innocent person I am, I would suspect that the reason the government is doing this is that an election is approaching and that they feel that if there were an unscrupulous minister he could make these determinations in such a way as to give protection in a lot of cases where 10 per cent of the normal consumption is not being produced in Canada at all.

"All the minister needs to do under this law is to fix the amount of the normal consumption low enough so that whatever little production there may be in Canada is 10 per cent and then the higher duty applies. It just makes a mockery of any determination. . . ."

Scientists' Responsibilities

The scientist, said Sir Robert Watson-Watt in an interview at Toronto Tuesday, has a responsibility for the practical results which may follow his findings.

Sir Robert, the inventor of radar, had other interesting comments to make, but before we consider them it is interesting to speculate whether there is more than co-incidence in his observations coming so close on the heels of a CBC television program which touched on the same problem.

On Moderator Nathan Cohen's program "Fighting Words", last Sunday, four distinguished Canadian educationists started out discussing "test tube babies" and ended by debating the responsibility, or lack of it, which scientists assume for the uses made of their discoveries.

Two members of the panel were scientists, Dr. B. F. Crocker, University of Toronto biochemist, and Dr. Arnold Burgen, McGill University physiologist. The other two were Prof. John Irvine of the University of Toronto and Dr Karl Stern, Montreal psychiatrist. For lack of knowledge of a better word, we shall call them humanists, though we do so with hesitation since this word was once commonly used to distinguish the holders of secular philosophies from the clerical, although today it appears to us that these former adversaries in debate are, more often than not, allied against a new and common foe, the scientists. Dr. Stern would almost certainly enter an additional objection that he is himself a scientist. He made this claim in the course of the debate, but all we can say is that he talked like a humanist and a religious-minded one at that.

The panel started out discussing a statement by "Osservatore Romano," the Vatican newspaper: "The natural conditions under which life is given to human beings cannot be violated without monstrous consequences."

True, said Prof. Irvine and Dr. Stern, both making the same point, that "test tube babies" violate the idea of the dignity of the human person.

Dr. Burgen entered a demurrer—the knowledge which could be gained from such experiments was urgently needed, but for the present could be obtained by experiments on animal embryos, to which nobody would object. Nobody, agreed the panel—except Hindus.

Dr. Crocker dispelled the threat of peace—disastrous for a panel discussion. Was it violating the idea of the dignity of the human person to endeavor to save thousands of lives? This could result from experiments on the human embryo. At present it is impossible to graft an organ from one person onto another, unless the persons are identical twins. The body rejects other organs. The same holds true of animals. But, by injecting a foreign protein into a young animal within a certain period, tolerance to this protein could be induced and future grafts are made possible. The difficulty is that the period during which this tolerance can be induced varies. It is so many days after birth for a dog, a different period for another animal and, for humans, the time limit expires before birth. How long before birth? To discover that, experiments with human embryos are essential. So ran his argument.

But, objected Prof. Irvine and Dr. Stern, dictators of the type we have already seen might use the "test tube babies" in a monstrous fashion. Experiments on animal embryos, to which all members of the panel said they would not object, would provide all the knowledge needed for any scientist worthy of the name to produce "test tube babies," replied Dr. Burgen.

What about nuclear research, asked Dr Crocker. Should that be banned because of the fact it made possible the atomic bomb? He had heard serious proposals for just such a ban, countered Prof. Irvine, and Einstein had told him he would never have written a letter to President Roosevelt, which resulted eventually in the development of the atomic bomb, if he could have foreseen to what it would lead.

Prof. Irvine charged that many scientists take a strictly biological view of human beings and neglect the psychological, social, moral and religious dimensions of humanity.

Here we return to Sir Robert Watson-Watt. The idea that science is ethically neutral is nonsense, heresy and treason, says Sir Robert, because this would mean that scientists are ethically neutral, whereas, in fact, they have a greater moral responsibility than other citizens because of their greater knowledge of the potentialities of their discoveries.

The scientists' knowledge is certainly greater than that of the layman, but is it not still small, do they not still lack any clear vision of what future scientists may build on the foundations they lay? That seems a legitimate question, after Prof. Irvine's reference to the fact that even a giant like Einstein did not see clearly where his research was leading.

Scientists' attitudes toward their responsibilities will vary, but it is interesting to note that it was Dr. Crocker, a scientist, who was deeply concerned about the possibility of saving human lives, now, and the humanists who were fearful of the abuse of scientific knowledge in the future.

Only man can save man from man—and we suspect that the average scientist is as interested in achieving this result as the average humanist.

Freedom From Thought

By I. Norman Smith in the Ottawa Journal

"To most people", said James Bryce, "nothing is more troublesome than the effort of thinking."

In 1961 I suspect we should all take the trouble to think.

Somewhere along the way thinking has lost favor in Canada; the "pale cast of thought" might be all right for older nations who contemplate their navel in the sun, but of what use to hewers of wood and drawers of water? We're too busy to think!

• • •

For thought we substitute opinions. Opinions have a firmer ring to them, sound more masculine and virile. An opinion is much easier to shout than a thought, can be heard above the TV or between the laughs, takes less time.

The anatomy of an opinion is worth thinking about.

An opinion in favor of something demands thought; it's a positive, creative and creating sort of exercise. One has to have some acquaintance with a proposition in order to favor it, one has at least to take the time to say what one favors, perhaps even why.

An opinion against something is simpler; often it represents no more thought than a belch. It is often muscular, not mental. To grunt "no" it is not necessary to take the trouble to put forward an alternative. That's up to them". The world owes us something we can say "yes" to.

Now comes another limiting factor. Somehow we all find it more rewarding to blame a man than to praise one. Vanity enters here: if we praise a man we seem to make ourselves his inferior, if we criticize him it seems to follow that we are superior. Writers know that the article praising a book o a man or a system doesn't get nearly the readers and comment of one that blasts.

Thus the odds are that people as a whole will tend to crab about their leaders and their circumstances rather than to support. If times are going well the crabbing will not be vast or have tidal strength, but if things are going less well then the winds of change rise almost as from their own swirling.

If this assessment is correct then the human animal today tends to have opinions instead of thoughts, opposing opinions rather than supporting, critical views of his society and his leaders rather than a sense of co-operative responsibility.

This, I think is leading us to a kind of Babel-like Gadarene slope (and such a mixed metaphor could come only from someone who pretends to think!).

We the people seem to operate in the face of our leaders and teachers with the noisy recklessnss of the souped-up stock car jalopy on the dirt track. Our main contribution to government seems a self-promoted freedom of screech.

"We pay our taxs, don't we?" That is our admisison ticket and we feel it entitles us to call all the plays.

But how long can this game last?

In the quieter days when the world was safe for democracy and democracy was safe for the world we could afford the luxury of switching pilots in mid-stream whenever we liked. To "throw the blighters out" was a salutary cathartic for the body politic.

But nowadays the peoples of Canada and perhaps of most of the democratic countries are demanding too much of the good things of life from their leaders and their systems. The consequent disappointment and frustration to an anvil chorus of criticism, is playing right into the hands of the Communits leaders who lust for our disintegration.

Political leaders have long realized that "politics is the art of the possible". They made resources and talent and public acquiescences go as far as it could. What we need now is public recognition that democracy is the art of the possible. To recognize that the public must try thinking before shouting.

Public and leaders share the blame for bringing us to this gulf. One demanded and the other promised the impossible. It has been a fattening diet for 15 years or so. The extremism, though, is now more on the public's side.

The United Nations can't solve the Congo so the UN is no good!

Nato hasn't united the Atlantic group so Nato's no good!

The Yanks won't give us control of nuclear bombers so send 'em home!

The Yanks should fly less flags in the North but pay more of the cost!

We should cut off all American development in Canada except their defence of us-

This kind of talk is all opinion and no thought. We have it in our national as well as our international politics.

There was no sense in the extravagant purge of Liberals from the Commons, in the loss to the Commons of such men as Knowles, Coldwell and Bob Winters. There is now no sense in the extravagant blaming of the Conservatives for unemployment and world unrest. Our judgment is by mood rather than thought.

We seem to feel that in this age of "know-how" there must be peace, plenty and short hours of work for all, with low taxes and ever-increasing fringe benefits and allowances. Yet we demand of our leaders that we keep ahead of the hard-working Communists, beat 'em missile for missile, production for production.

If we don't live on easy street and at the same time out-smart the Russians—then throw out the Liberals, throw out Eisenhower! If the Tories don't come through either, then throw them out too; and that young man Kennedy, he better deliver or else!

It can happen to Belgium but it can't happen here!

Business blames labor; labor blames business. Farmers blame city folk; city folk blame farmers. Age blames youth, youth blames age. And everyone blames whoever is in power, whether municipal, provincial or federal.

Opinions are screeches, people speak but do not listen, polls encourage sheepery, prejudice wears a judge's wig, debaters are uninhibited by facts.

The hardest fact is that we are all demanding the impossible at hime, in the country, in the world. We want the moon with jam on it and a rocket too, one of ours, stuck into the side of it; all on a four-day week, nothing down and pay later. "It's a free country, isn't it?"

Like that old fogey Bryce said, "Sure is, Bud, you don't even have to take the trouble to think!"

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A MEANING FOR ALL AGES

The Book of Revelation is a much abused and misused section of the Bible. People either over-emphasize its teachings or neglect them. Those who over-emphasize them keep looking up into heaven expecting a new world to descend upon them shortly. Those who neglect the teachings of the Book of Revelation fail to appreciate the glory and triumph which God has promised the faithful.

This ancient book came out of a great ordeal. It was addressed to churches and persons who had passed through inconceivable tribulations. They had been set upon and persucuted in ways about which we moderns know nothing. The underlying message of the book is that God has the last word. In the end, He and His kingdom of love will triumph. And love is not a weak sentimental matter. Love is God's nature in action. It is God's purposes being fulfilled. It is a power so great that the powers which modern science has released in its atomic experiments are like the striking of a match or the popping of a firecracker as compared with the illimitable power of the God of love pressing on to the triumph of His will.

The destiny which the human race confronts is a destiny of hope. God has made us for triumph, not for defeat. "Eye had not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him."

Letter To The Editor

Should Treat All Industries Same

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

What makes our city tick?

Fourteen responsible men with a strong sense of fairness elected by us, the people of Belleville, carry out the responsibilities and make the decisions for us in our best interests.

A few days ago, approximately $3,500 was voted toward the installation of services for a new building, proposed by Foley Foundry, in an undeveloped area in the Coleman "flats".

During the past summer, a Bell Telephone garage was erected on Wilson Avenue. This, too, was an undeveloped area and the city responded by installing the water and sewer service, at city expense.

We think this subsidization policy that the City Fathers have apparently adopted is an excellent trend. It will make Belleville more attractive to new industries which in turn will employ our citizens, keep our tax rate lower, and make Belleville a more prosperous city.

However, there was another building erected in our city during the past summer. On the adjoining lots to the Bell Telephone garage, L. & W. Automotive service garage was built It is a 100' by 100' structure, built entirely by locally produced materials, erected by local labor, renders its services to the city of Belleville, employs approximately as many people as does Foley Foundry and the Bell Telephone garage, and in the future will add to that figure considerably. In fact it is as big an industry as either Foley or the Bell garage.

But, Mr. Editor, L. & W. Automotive Service had to pay for the water and sewer service themselves, even though the city had already put the services into the Bell garage only 200 feet away from this building. Twice the city has elected not to vote the approximate $2,500 to this new name in Belleville.

Now I ask you Mr. Editor, are our councillors playing fair with the people they supposedly represent in their office? How can they possibly donate to one that which they deny the other? That is what has been done in Belleville by the majority of our aldermen.

I only wish to point out the seriousness of the attitude which some of our councillors are adopting. It does not seem right or fair that you must have a hundred year history in Belleville or be a nationally known firm to get any consideration for aid from our city and yet it appears that that is the situation at this time.

In conclusion we wish to commend the minority of the councillors that fough so hard at the last council meeting to be fair and just, and not blindly turn away from one while you hold out your hand to the other.

Snores, Snorts and Whistles Not Unusual for Sleeping Tots

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a girl, 5, to snore, and whistle in her sleep? She actually sounds like a whistling tea-kettle.

"A doctor has told me that a piece of my daughter's adenoid tissue was left in by the doctor who removed them. Maybe it grew back.

"Do I have cause to worry? — B.R.O."

It's not unusual for small children to snore. They relax so thoroughly as they fall into a deep sleep, and since snoring (and kindred odd noises, even tea-kettles) result from the breath causing soft tissues to flutter in the respiratory tract, the very relaxation of a sleeping child contributes to the sound effects.

At the same time, in the case you describe, and generally similar ones, there's a very good possibility that a small island of adenoid tissue was left in, and that because of repeated subsequent infections, it enlarged.

Secondary removal may be necessary, especially for youngsters who are mouth breathers and are subject to repeated colds.

Secondary removal is not particularly unusual. Neither, I want you to know, does it mean that original operation, "wasn't done right." The reason for removal of adenoids (or tonsils) is to take out infected or overly-enlarged tissue. The two things, infection and enlargement, generally go together.

The purpose of tonsil and adenoid surgery is not just to get rid of these organs. They are useful, and are removed only for a definite purpose. (You might be interested in sending for a copy of my leaflet, "Don't Trifle with Tonsils," which explains this. You can get a copy by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover handling to Dr. Molner, The Chicago, Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dunde, Ill.)

Anyway, that's the reason why surgeons leave some of the tissue in, if it's healthy, so that it can continue to do its useful work. And if another infection happens to attack the remaining tissue — well, it's too bad, but it's no worse than the original situation, so don't be upset.

• • •

"Dear Dr. Molner: My sister recently went in the hospital for removal of a nodular gorwth on the thyroid gland. She is a believer in health foods and has taken quite a few vitamins of various kinds. I am wondering if a surplus of them could cause this type of tumor in the body. — Mrs. D. S."

Nope.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My little girl, now three, had an eye operation at two. It was a cancerous neuroblastoma. Now she is taking X-ray treatments. I would like to know if they will cure it, and also if it will spread to any other part of the body. Also if it is hereditary. — Mrs. J. C."

As you have, of course, been told, this is a serious matter. The cancer will spread unless it is destroyed, and that is the purpose of the X-rays. Fortunately this type of cancer does respond to X-ray treatment.

Only the physicians working with the little girl can make even a guess as to whether they can achieve a cure, but it is being accomplished in more and more cases.

As to heredity, apparently sometimes, yes, and sometimes, no. The condition may appear in children of people who were themselves cured of it. But for most families, having this occur in one child is no sign that it will occur in other children.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE FOLLOW-THROUGH

I am certain that the follow-through idea is one of the greatest basic principles ever expressed.

Take it in athletics, skiing, golf, boxing, tennis, swimming — it's the follow-through that counts more than anything else.

And with a perfect follow-through the minimum of effort is used, though alongside a maximum of concentration!

I have watched the champions in many of the various classes of sports and marveled at the ease with which they perform. Co-operation and co-ordination of muscles and minds, with accuracy, distance, power and smoothness.

Who is the successful man in business? He who follows through — who expresses his wishes simply and with understanding.

It's straight ahead — right for the bull's eye — with all your objectives. Taht's the follow-through.

You can't hesitate, you can't doubt your abilities, you can't take your eye from the aim of your heart, as well as your heart, as well as your head, if you desire to reach anything like perfection in what you do.

No matter what you do, remember to follow through!

Perhaps this day looks dark and discouraging. Never mind. Keep your chin up. "Weather tomorrow: Fair and warmer!"

Follow through today.

And never anticipate, except — happily.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

One of my cronies is what they call very slow pay. There is nothing dishonest about him. He has paid every cent he ever owed in his long life. But he takes his time about it, and often he is dunned.

He will let a fuel bill run up into hundreds of dollars; sometimes his charge account at a department store will rise to startling figures; he might owe for two suits of clothes, or for three months' groceries.

And when he sends his check at last, he always pens a little note to his creditor:

"Think," he writes, "how handy this money comes in now! If I had paid it last month (or last year!) it would be all gone by now."

One of his creditors was not amused. He wrote back:

"I find that the bank interest at 6 per cent on the money I had to borrow in lieu of your payment for the past year comes to $36.40. A further check from you for that amount will come in much handier."

My friend thinks some people have very little sense of humor.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

THE BLIND ONE

Migrations are made mainly when the favorite food of any species fails. For this reason insect eaters, for instance, are unable to winter in Canada. Owls for the most part feed on small birds, mice, and other mammals, available even in a cold climate. Consequently they either do not migrate at all, or move down somewhat from the worst weather of the far north and are termed "partly migratory".

The small boreal owl, which in North America goes by the name Richardson's owl, comes into this latter group. Some breed as far north as it is possible to find a tree in the holes of which they are able to nest; others never breed beyond our northern scattered settlements. In a period of the most bitter weather, occasionally a few fly to southern Canada or even cross over the border into the United States.

This happens so seldom that finding one of these birds is quite an event; nevertheless it can happen throughout most of our cultivated section, and sometimes at an unexpected season. One April a dead Richardson's owl was picked up from the roadside of a Montreal suburb. Maybe it had been killed by striking a nearby building.

EXCEPTIONALLY TAME

For years even bird authorities supposed that Richardson's owls were blinded by the light of day because they had so often been captured in sunlight, allowing anybody to simply lift them off a branch. Eskimos in Alaska call this "the blind one." Now it is generally agreed that these little owls are exceptionally tame — not at all blind.

Certain Indians in the northern part of our Prairie Provinces call this little bird by the Indian word "phillip-piletshch", meaning "water-dripping owl", because of its call which so much resembles the sound of slow dripping water.

In connection with this there is an Indian legend explaining why the bird is so small. The story goes that once upon a time a huge owl with a great voice hearing the sound of a waterfall tried to imitate the noise and at the same time drown it out. But the Great Spirit was so displeased that he transformed the huge bird into a tiny one with a tinkling voice like the sound of water dripping.

Going Places

Across Darkest Chile by Car Is Once-in-a-Lifetime Trip

By Shirley and Bob Sloane

Bariloche, Argentina — In case you've ever wondered where Patagonia is, we're in it (you get everyplace in this business).

But if the strange name has always seemed to you synonymous with the end of the earth, you'll have to change your concept. Bariloche is an oasis, 800 barren miles across the wild pampas from Buenos Aires or a rugged safari over the wildly beautiful Andean lake district of Southern Chile, which we'll be telling you about in a moment.

This corner of Patagonia is the leading mountain resort of southern South America, the Adirondacks of Argentina, set between fine ski slopes and fish-filled Lake Nahuel Huapi, which the recent earthquake turned an incredible emerald green.

Swiss-looking and often Swiss-run chalets dot its slopes. It is the home of one of South America's most famous hotels, the sprawling 200-room, Llao-Llao (pronounced Zsow-Zsow, as in Gabor) perched on a flowered green hill overlooking the lake.

Only the Statue of Liberty would have been a more welcome sight as the Llao-Llao hove into view from the motor launch that brought us across the lake from the Chilean border.

The most sensible way to get here is by jet from B. A. but in an adventurous mood we chose to make it across darkest Chile with goggles and tire iron.

ITS AN EXPERIENCE!

Like being in the war, we wouldn't give a nickel to do it again but wouldn't take a million dollars for the experience. How you might take it depends on how adventurous a tourist you are, but we can tell you there are few places like southern Chile left in the civilized world.

The standard tour begins in Osorno, a colorful commercial resort centre tucked away among the mountains, where German is spoken as widely as Spanish and the souvenir shops feature beer steins and Swiss chocolates.

A popular stop is the vast Puyehue Springs Hotel, an elaborate spa two hours to the east over dirt roads that make one well in need of baths, mineral or otherwise, on arrival.

Despite the incongruous dominance of Mount Osorno, a dead ringer for Fujiyama, the country looks and is much like our Midwest. Cattle graze in fields so thick with wild blackberries they have to be burned out periodically. Yellow Scotch broom and purple-belled cartucho color the landscape, and huasos in broad-brimmed hats and poncho-like mantas tend cattle among herds of geese and goats and flocks of bright green wild parrots.

Doubling back to Osorno amid clouds of dust that seeped through cracks in the car and into the luggage by the handful, we had the first of our flats.

We stopped opposite a rural constabulary — the kind of place Burt Lancaster and Yul Brynner always break down in front of when they're trying to get away with the loot and have to convince the local jefe they're only businessmen on a fishing trip. One wall of the office was covered with the brands of neighboring cattlemen for quick identification of lost, strayed or rustled stock.

VOLCANIC ROCK ROAD

South from Osorno the road is made of crushed black volcanic rock, and the flats come with greater regularity. Sometimes the road narrows to the width and consistency of a fire break as it twists between mountains and gray boulders with strange flowers growing out of them.

Stony dry river beds and gushing white-water rapids pick up the course as the road climbs tortuously through tangled brush and cypress forests to Lake Todos Los Santos.

This is the lake Theodore Roosevelt called the most beautiful in the world. The launch cruises through Alpine tranquility, symmetrical Mount Osorno still looming behind as the setting sun reddens the needle point of Mount Puntiagudo. Landmarking the end of the lake is jagged Mt. Tronador on the Argentine side.

The border lies high across the mountains in Nahuel Huapi National Park, and after still another bus trip and another boat ride across Lake Nahuel Huapi, the sight of Llao-Llao and the manicured slopes and paved roads of Patagonia mark the return to civilization.

We'll never again say Patagonia in the same breath with Timbuctu.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stephen Wilson are shown following their recent marriage in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Sandra Fearn Graves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Graves of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson, of Belleville R.R. 2.

WILSON — GRAVES

St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, January 14, at 2.00 p.m. for a lovely wintertime wedding, when Sandra Fearn Graves of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Jack Graves, was united in marriage by Canon A. S. McConnell, rector of the church to Frank Stephen Wilson, of Belleville R.R. 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson, in a double-ring ceremony, before a beautiful background of carnations and chrysanthemums.

Mr. Donald Davenport, the church organist, provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Elton Ferguson, of Toronto, aunt of the bridegroom, who sang, before the ceremony, "Panis Angelicus," and during the signing of the register "O Perfect Love."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Mr. Jack Graves was charming in her bridal gown of white hand-clipped Chantilly lace over nylon satin, in waltz-length, fashioned with lace accented molded bodice having a Sabrina neckline, and long, sheath-like sleeves v-pointed over the wrists. The full skirt featured an apron effect back of tulle and ruffled lace. She wore a queen's crown headdress studded with seed pearls and finger-tip veil of tulle and matching lace and carried a bouquet of tiny white poms mingled with pink roses.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Meredith Graves, as maid of honor and Miss Claire Wilson, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Margaret Beck of Niagara Falls, N.Y., cousin of the bride, as bridesmaids, who were gowned in red velvet with fitted bodices and full, street-length skirts, with white accessories ,and queen crown headdresses of seed pearls, sequins and silver beads. They carried nosegays of white and red baby 'mums outlined with white lace, and long white satin streamers.

Little Vickie Jane Graves, sister of the bride, as flower girl, was demure in her full-length frock of white velvet with pink satin bows. She wore a crown of pink and white lace with long satin back ribbon streamers and carried a little basket of pink and white poms.

Mr. David Brown, of Belleville, R.R. 6. attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. David Valcamp, of Belleville, R.R. 2, Robert (Duffy) Follwell, of Belleville ushered the guests.

Master Shelly Morris, little cousin of the bride, as ring-bearer, carried the white velvet ring cushion in regal manner.

The reception was held at Club Canara, Belleville, with dance music provided by Mr. Lloyd Morris, Mr. Claude Hunt and Miss Sheila Beck.

The three-tier pillared wedding cake graced the bridal table, its raised misted tulle with scattered Sweetheart rosebuds and flanked by white candles in crystal holders. The bridal bouquets, the ring-bearer's white satin pillow and the flower girl's basket of flowers added the extra nuptial accent.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a pale green brocaded satin in street-length, fashioned with bell-type skirt fitted bodice with Sabrina neckline. Darker green accessories and corsage of pink roses completed her ensemble. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in a street-length gown of purple lace, with matching accessories and corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip, the bride wore a turquoise blue velvet dress with beige nylon fur jacket and beige accessories, with corsage of red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will reside in London, Ontario.

Guests were present from Montreal; London, Ontario; Ottawa; Niagara Falls, N.Y.; St. Catharines; Toronto; Kingston; Trenton and Foxboro.

The bride was the honored guest at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Yorke, given by Misses Elaine Yorke and Susie Musgrove, with Mrs. Yorke and Mrs. Musgrove as co-hostesses.

RIO de JANEIRO, Brazil (CP)—Girls from the college town of Ferro are on strike against local boys. They say the boys only pay attention to them in the summer, when the Teacher's College is closed and the out-of-town girl students have gone home.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

The visit of the Queen and Prince Philip to India and Pakistan and the wonderful welcome accorded them by these countries reminded us that a note had come in January from Dorothy Potts, a former director of nursing at B.G.H. Although her headquarters are in Alexandria, Egypt, this note had been written in an aeroplane.

It said, "Am aloft en route to Karachi and Lahore to conduct a nursing seminar." After some personal observations which made us wish that we, too, could swim in the warm, blue Mediterranean at this time of year, the note continued from Lahore.

"How crisp, dry and cool it is here with lovely warm sunshine during the day. There is a fireplace in our room. (I share it with a Lebanese girl) which makes us feel like queens. Of course it is so nice to be 'home' again with the Pakistanis." (Dorothy was stationed in Dacca, Pakistan, for several of years on her first appointment with World Health Organization).

"Such gentle courteous people! We are eleven nations — more actually nurses from eleven countries of the region are assembled here, from the sophisticated Cypriot to the tribal-scarred Sudanese. This little seminar may do nothing for nursing, but will do a lot for the promotion of good human relationship. The Government of Pakistan has gone to no end to welcome us — the Minister of Health is giving a dinner on Wednesday night; a trip is arranged to the Indus Valley (3,000 B.C. excavations) and many receptions."

All this set us reminiscing, too, of the time spent in New York two years ago with Begum Salima Ahmed of Karachi. Looking back over the columns written at that time recalls events which we had forgotten in connection with this charming young woman — the description of her wedding why she bought saris in New York; the impulsive giving of her beautiful silver hoop ear-rings to a young Japanese-American who admired them.

When Dorothy Potts says, "Such gentle courteous people we are reminded of Salima returning to New York from a weekend in Hamilton, Ontario, where she had been guest speaker for the Business and Professional Women's Club and exclaiming, "Oh, I love your Canadians, they are so polite and kind!"

It is rather gratifying for a peoplue to be thought polite and kind. Would that the majority of use lived up to it.

Here is an excerpt from a letter of dedication which we found on a trip to Kingston over a year ago. Waiting for a meeting to start in the Common Room of Ban Righ Hall, we were looking over some of the books on the shelves, taking a doubtful pleasure in recognizing some that were there too many years ago.

'The Lane That Had No Turning' by Gilbert Parker caught the eye, of course, since the author was of a Belleville family. The second to last paragraph must have impressed us at the time because we had copied it down on the back of an envelope, it seemed a beautiful use of words for a fine thought.

Addressed to The Right Honorable Sir Wilfred Laurier, this paragraph said: "To you, sir, I come with this book, which contains the first things I ever wrote out of the life of the province so dear to you, and the last things also that I shall ever write about it. I beg you to receive it as the loving recreation of one who sympathises with the people of whom you come, and honors their virtues, and who has no fear for the unity and no doubt as to the splendid future of the nation, whose fibre is got of the two great civilizing races of Europe."

The letter was signed "Gilbert Parker" and dated London, S.W. 14 August, 1900.

Sight, A Wonderful Gift

By ALMA MASON

Many years ago a small girl living in a city in eastern Ontario, fell and injured her eyes. Had the accident occurred 20 years later, a delicate operation might have restored her sight, but at that time that particular operation was not being performed.

Often when we humans are deprived physically, we develop marvellous spiritual fortitude and courage. It was so with Margery.

Today she is a vibrant, animated human dynamo of energy and purpose. She takes delight in telling acquaintances that she can successfully carry through any project that might challenge womanhood. She is an ardent student of Braille. With an elfish grin, she boasts about being able to read in the dark. Her "sighted" friends have to admit that this accomplishment would be impossible for them to achieve.

Margery can type, sew, crochet and knit. One night when I had occasion to phone her, she told me she was busy making cookies for a club she belonged to. She sings and accompanies herself on the piano.

Margery's eyes are her "soul windows". When one describes a garden to her, the interior of a building, a beautiful room, Margery's ever alert mind stores away the precision information. In time she weaves it into a tapestry of beauty. When she unrolls the tapestry, spreads it out for observation, it has always taken on an enchanting lustre. The garden has become perfection, a panorama of Grecian beauty. The homey room described to her has assumed the proportions of a room in a palatial mansion. The building has become a palace of gold studded with rubies and emeralds.

NO PATIENCE

Margery has no patience with those who have lost the gift of sight but are possessed of rugged physical health; who are endowed with blessings too numerous to count yet persistently dwell on small sorrows and setbacks.

She says, "There are so many forms of blindness. Selfishness is blindness. Hatred is blindness. Jealousy is blindness."

Physical blindness cannot possibly be as destructive as terrifying as these other forms of blindness. Physical blindness may shut away beauty at times but it also shuts away ugliness. I will never see a tornado in the sky. I will never shrink from a face contorted and twisted by hatred. I will never see the slum districts of large cities, the rotting buildings, the neglected children playing in filth and squalor. Through the windows of my soul I see blue, sunlit skies; faces radiating love and loveliness; happy children playing by rows of contented homes nestling in fragrant gardens.

I am grateful for the gifts of sight, but I have been wondering lately, Margery, about my own particular blind spots. Perhaps I should search for soul windows like yours and shine them up. Perhaps I should search my heart for imperfections and corroding "blind spots."

Oh, yes! I have the gift of sight,
But frequently I find
That deep within my troubled heart
I'm spiritually blind.

CHANGE NECESSARY

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) A senior public school, named the Princess Anne School two months ago, will have to be renamed. The original name was given subject to the approval of Queen Elizabeth, who recently asked that the names of her children not be used until they come of age.

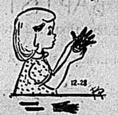
Mother's Helper



A ROUND wooden clothespin stuck in each finger of your child's woolen gloves will keep them from shrinking out of fit. Put the pins in while the gloves are wet, of course, and don't take them out until the gloves are completely dry. Be a bit gentle handling any wet wool—fibers are weakened by water.

Bayside H-S Assoc. Plans Poster Test

The Bayside Home and School Association held its meeting on January 26th with over 60 in attendance. Mrs. Rene Reid of Belcrest, introduced seven visitors from her area.

The Bayside school area has some rather distinguishing features in that it is actually divided into three zones. The furthest east being the Belcrest zone which is cut off by the latest annexed area of West Belleville, then there is the long strip of the Bayside zone which stretches from the Belleville city limits, west to the Quinte View school and the airport; another jump to the west of the Airport, and takes in the zone between the airport and the town limits of Trenton. A further dividing factor is the telephone service which is divided between the Belleville and the Trenton exchanges.

Regardless of these barriers, the people of the entire area have shown marvellous cooperation in all projects.

Three of the mothers of the area have volunteered to judge posters drawn by the pupils of the area, in a safety contest sponsored jointly by the school board and the Home and School Association. These posters are to depict safety-first in school bus travel.

A decision was made to have the speaker at the next meeting on February 23rd before the business portion of the meeting. Mrs. Wallis will speak and show her slides on nature studies. She has done considerable travelling, showing her interesting slides in all parts of Ontario.

Mr. Jack Glydon, last year's president, was presented with a past president's pin by the president, Mr. McAllister, who thanked Jack for his invaluable service, both last year as president and this year as the chairman of the projects committee.

ATTENDANCE PRIZES

Mrs. Fox's class of grades 3 and 4 won the prize for parents' attendance, and all the students in this class will receive their "Dixie" cups of ice cream on the Wednesday preceding the next meeting on February 23rd.

Mr. McAllister introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Gerald Boyce, who, besides being a teacher at Moira Secondary School, is the president of the Quinte Historical Society.

SLIDES SHOWN

Mr. Boyce showed slides of early paintings of the Moira-Trent area. Some of the interesting views were of the county court house in Belleville, just after completion, and its progress to the present. Trenton's old covered bridge showing in the background the thriving lumber and shipping areas; pictures of the damaging flood in Belleville in the 1880's, showing just how dangerous the Moira can become when thick ice, a fast spring thaw, and rain all combine to give it lethal power, and many other pictures too numerous to mention here.

A social half hour was enjoyed by all, while a light lunch was served.

Alcoholism Third Major Health Problem In North America States Dr. Nissen

The January meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the "Y" with Mrs. Fred Cook presiding.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. Hubble. "To worship is to quicken the conscience by the holiness of God; to feed the mind with the truth to God; to open the heart to the love of God, and to devote the will to the purpose of God. Several favorite hymns were sung, after telling the story of the origin of each.

"The Challenge of the Past," was the subject of study conducted by Mrs. Way, with a panel of Mrs. Calmn, Mrs. Johns and Miss Barnum.

The first W.C.T.U. was organized in Owen Sound, 86 years ago by Mrs. R. J. Doyle. The town held hundreds of cottage prayer meetings during the years of stress and strain.

Letitia Yeomans was the next pioneer worker in Ontario. In Picton she organized a group of girls known as the "The Band of Hope". Many of the girls had problems due to in-temperance in their homes, due to poverty and suffering. An educational effort began and soon she was teaching 200 children regarding the harmfulness of liquor, tobacco and bad language. She organized unions in Toronto and Montreal and became first president of the Dominion W.C.T.U.

Following a study of the past, a present day outlook was made by Mrs. E. Farnsworth, who stated that this is a scientific age and a different world of 80 years ago. Great advances are made in the field of science. We are advancing in the material world, but what about the spiritual? Edison said, "I do not pose as a preacher, but let me tell you, we cannot advance much further materially until we catch up spiritually. A great fundamental law of science is that all forms must be kept in balance or there's a smash. We view the world we alarm, today."

At the world's convention of the W.C.T.U. held in Mexico, 1959, the president said that the women of the western world must wake up and make a fuller contribution in solving vital moral problems and must pull a far greater weight than they are, or civilization might easily step back in history. Two-thirds of the people of the world live on the other side of the Suez Canal.

The Asian women are giving remarkable leadership in the question of alcoholism. The use of beverage alcohol is outdated by modern developments and an irresponsible action of one under the influence of alcohol, could set the world aflame.

The Rev. Gordon Hunter said that in the past ten years, 1946 to 1956, alcoholics increased 178 per cent. "If this trend continues, we are unfit to live in the satellite age, and unworthy to stand before the judgment of God.

"We are encouraged by the many conferences held." In 1960 the world's conference was held in Sweden with 500 delegates from 38 countries, for five days scientists, social workers and temperance leaders discussed the complicated problems and it was said, the temperance movement has grown from a simplified program to a co-operative effort of temperance workers.

An institute of alcoholic studies was held last year at McMaster University, in Hamilton—a new venture with a good attendance. Last year an inter-collegiate school of 60 university students from Canada and the United States had intensive study at McMaster University. Dr. Carl Nissen of Ohio State University, said that alcoholism is the third major health problem involving 5,000,000 alcoholics in the United States and 200,000 in Canada.

"Toc Alpha," which stands for "Total Abstinence for Teen Agers," have nearly 2,000 young people actively engaged in temperance work in Ontario under the "Temperance Federation." From Government House, Ottawa, from Governor General Vanier, a letter was sent to the general secretary of the Canadian Temperance Federation.

Dr. Linton expressed pleasure that he will be attending the "World's Congress on Anti-Alcoholism," to be held in Sweden, in 1961. He said "One of the great curses of our civilization is alcoholism. The abuse of alcohol deprives man of his characteristic attitude, namely reason."

The Attorney General of Ontario said "I find half the population of jail individuals are convicted of drunkenness." He said that the government must spend more money on rehabilitation clinics to cope with the problem.

The Primate of the Anglican Church of Canada said: "Canadian Anglicans do not believe total abstinence is always necessary but if the Canadian nation continues to misuse alcohol, it could be called on to become total abstainers in protest against the growing abuse.

The United Church at the General Council last year, recognized some of the members have opposing views on the alcoholic question. There are total abstainers and moderate drinkers. Dr. Mutchmor summed it up as follows: 1. it re-affirmed voluntary total abstinence as the wiser course; 2. an extended system of temperance education, and 3. a continued opposition to the liquor trade.

The report had strong criticism of Canada's wasteful expenditure of 120 billion annually for liquor.

He said the statements were interpreted by the press as marking a new position of tolerance, when in effect, they were a faithful interpretation of Biblical teaching on the use of beverage alcohol.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Thomas B. — Her spinster aunt moved across the street and keeps popping over.

Antoinette B. — We've always been close, and now she's excited about my coming baby.

Thomas B. — Toni and I married late in life. I'm 40 and she's 36, so naturally we're thrilled and excited about the baby we expect in six months.

But there's a third party who wants to share the excitment with us, every step of the way. This is Toni's aunt, who just took an apartment in the building opposite ours. You'd think she was having this child, the way she's reading up on pregnancy and keeping up a blow-by-blow investigation.

I know Aunt Lottie has always felt particularly close to Toni, whose mother is dead. But there comes a time when she must look on and just Love Toni at a distance. I want her to slow up in her interest and enthusiasm.

She must remember that it's our home and our baby. She'll be its great-aunt, not its midwife or proxy-mother!

Antoinette B. — Because my mother was the oldest and Aunt Lottie the youngest of their big family, my aunt and I are only 10 years apart in age. She's always been more like an admiring big sister to me, than a stiff aunt.

Before I married, we shared a small apartment. It was natural for her to want to stay near me, so she found rooms across the street. I understand her elation about my condition, and I wish Tom didn't resent it as an intrusion upon our privacy.

In a way, Aunt Lottie identifies herself with me. And since she will never experience childbirth herself, she's satisfied to have the next best thing — a share of my sensations during the process. It's an exciting, wondrous period, and I'm amazed myself at the miracle of it all. I'm glad to be able to impart some of this awe to Aunt Lottie.

The Council — As long as it's only the "awe" and not the details of their private life that Antoinette imparts, Tom hasn't much of a case. If this is as close as a devoted aunt will ever get to hearing the subjective story of How a Baby is Born, Tom should be proud to be co-author of the confidential expose.

We must assume that Toni is circumspect in her revelations, and that Aunt Lottie's curiosity is not morbid but wholesome and legitimate. Then Tom's objections reveal two natural fears: the invasion of his home by a close (in all senses) relative, and Aunt Lottie's over-involvement in the life of the expected baby.

Toni can allay these fears. Aunt Lottie seems sensible and sensitive enough to respect the sanctity of the new little family, and Toni can "arrange" visiting hours so as not to impinge on Tom's plans and wishes. Also, once the baby arrives, Aunt Lottie's role becomes analagous to that of a good grandmother — i.e., mother's helper, friend or fan, but not usurper! Toni can assure Tom of that.

Our word to Tom, then, is relax. In your great joy, you're in danger of becoming over-possessive, fearing that it may vanish. But in taking Aunt Lotties along as a hitch-hiker on this side-trip she missed, you're giving her — to paraphrase Shakespeare — "that which not subtracts from you, and makes her rich indeed."

THE CASE OF THE OVER-ARDENT HOSTESS

Have you ever answered the telephone and been greeted with a conversation similar to the following?

"Hello? Well, Sue, what are you and Jim doing tonight? Oh, don't you know who this is? It's Mary, and we want you to come over for dinner. . .Oh, you have guests coming? Well, bring them along!. . .You're making spaghetti? Well, stick it in the freezer and have it some other time. We have everything all set, and will expect you at seven . . . Well, I can't see why you won't come. How about next Monday night? . . You can't make it then either? Dear me, suppose you set a night that you can come and we will make plans for it any time you say. You can't be busy every night for the next week or so!"

The over-ardent hostess sometimes can be quite a problem. In this case, poor Sue is in the middle. Short of being extremely rude, she and her husband have no alternative but to pick a night during that "Next-week-or-so" period and go to Mary's for dinner. Whether they want to or not. You just can't be busy every night. If you manage to get by with feeble excuses for a while, the persistent hostess will corner you eventually and either you have to say blunty that you just don't want to come at all (this will end whatever friendship there was in the first place, and cause hard feelings from there on in(or go!

The little lesson is obvious. A would-be hostess, who sincerely and honestly wishes to extend the hospitality of her home to her friends, should carefully guard against overdoing it. If an invitation is refused, accept the regret gracefully, and close the conversation with the hope that you can all get togehter soon. Then drop it for the time being. Perhpas a return invitation will be forthcoming at a later date, from those whom you had invited. If not, and if you do ask them again and get another refusal, it would seem time to take the hint. While it may hurt a little, it should seem obvious by this time that the folks you want to entertain aren't interested — period!

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question — Are there any special rules governing the types of parties that may be held in a private room at a hotel? For example, would it be proper to have a seated dinner of twenty-four in such a room? — Mrs. P. T., Baltimore, Md.

Answer — Certainly. There is no set rule about this, but for large luncheons, dinners or wedding receptions, as a few examples, it is much better to engage a private room. Trying to entertain a large group in a public dining room is very confusing, not only for the hosts, but also for their guests.

THE LADY WITH THE ROSES ON HER HAT

"You ask who are the greatest persons I have met, and I answer: 'Those whom no one knows anything about'!" — Ida Tarbell, famous biographer.

The test of any encounter, is its negotiability as a memory; a golden coin made bright by usage, always there, ready, available. Such is the memory of a chance encounter which occurred, when a matinee curtain lowered upon the last act of Somerset Maughan's play, "Rain."

I had risen quickly, anxious to escape the rush and crowd, only to find my cursory, threaded course, promptly knotted by a small, frail elderly lady, who held up traffic midaisle by halting to put her coat on properly. Eager to be on my way, I helped her into it.

"Why, thank you," she said in pleased surprise with a voice trembly and sweet, quite in keeping with a child-like appeal for guidance through the crushing passageway that led to the door and the corridors beyond. Never had I seen such merry, blue eyes as they peered up at me from under a rose-laden brimmed hat tilted jauntily over curls frankly hennaed. They framed a face blurred with rouged withered cheeks and crinkled crimsoned lips. Why, the dear soul must be on the verge of 90.

Hurry was forgotten. Already, my step matched her slow ones and we began walking side by side. Her wizened fingers, tipped with poppy-tinted nails, curled trustingly on my arm. Fingers, on might add, that flashed with fiery diamonds.

"Maughan is excellent, isn't he? I like the way he shows how trivial people are influenced by their little world, whereas people of character make what they do of benefit to their souls. You know, I was in Pago Pago, the very setting of the play, just last year. . ."

"But, surely, not alone!" I couldn't help but exclaim.

"Why, of course! I go everywhere alone. All over the world; Europe, Asia, Africa, the Americas. After all, why shouldn't an American widow in her late 80s travel? I have no financial worries, thanks to my wonderful, late husband, who was a splendid doctor. But, I treasure God's gift of life greatly, and I have vowed that I would enrich my life rather than allow it to vegetate, I owe Him that much, however alone I may be. One must be a giver in life; a giver of interest, sympathy, love. It keeps you young inside and teaches you to laugh and be gay and not take things too seriously.

"As far as being lonely, I've never the time. When I arrive in a strange city, I locate the nearest lending library and take out a half dozen books. One time, I had to undergo a very serious operation due to a fall I had while in Denmark. The instant I came out of the anesthetic, I asked for the novel I'd been reading right up to the moment I went on the operating table. 'Bring it to me, hurry!' I demanded, 'so as not to keep me in such suspense any longer. I must find out what the hero will do!'

"My dear, I never stay with friends, though I have many all over the world. I always stay at a hotel where I am free to come and go as I wish. You see, one becomes fond of independence. The only exception is if I'm in a city where there is a branch of the sorority I belong to. Then I'll stay at a Soririty House. (Believe it or not, I was one of America's first women college graduates and very proud of it!) I like to keep in touch with young people, everywhere.

where I make it a rule never to have breakfast served in where I amke it a rule never my room. I like to be with others during meal time. I did make an exception in my hotel in Rome. It was delightful to sip coffee on one's balcony hung with wisteria that overlooked a flower-filled court below. Ah me, the guests that used to frequent that hotel. One who had his table next to mine was Marconi and his wife. Another was the Crown Prince of Germany. He had the most engaging habit of wearing his silvery white hair in a different style and parting, according to the time of day!"

By now, we had reached the street. A taxi was called for her, just as a clock somewhere struck five. "That hour reminds me of those elephants in Ceylon, regular time-tellers, with a labor union all their own," she chatted gayly. "When the whistle blows nothing will persuade them to carry the load any farther. Even if they think the whistle might blow before the load could reach its destination, they will flatly refuse to take it."

The taxi came and a tiny claw-like hand pressed my hand briefly, but warmly, and then she sped from sight. We never met again. But the memory is still shining with remembrance of an unfathomable loneliness linked to inexorable old age so beautifully and gallantly defied by a lady who wore roses on her hat.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by Horace B. Powell

THE OLD RUGGED CROSS

On a hill far away stood an old rugged cross,
The emblem of suffering and shame;
And I love that old cross where the dearest and best
For a world of lost sinners was slain.

Oh, that rugged old cross, so despised by the world,
Has a wondrous attraction
for me;
For the dear Lamb of God left
His glory above
To bear it to dark Calvary.

In the old rugged cross, stained with blood so divine,
A wondrous beauty I see;
For 'twas on that old cross
Jesus suffered and died
To pardon and sactify me.

To the old rugged cross I will ever be true,
Its shame and reproach gladly bear;
Then, He'll call me some day to my home far away
Where His glory forever I'll share.

In churches of every denomination, "The Old Rugged Cross" has always been one of the most glorious of the evangelical hymns. The Salvation Army is particularly fond of it for George Bennard, its author, was an adjutant in the "Army" at the time of its composition.

For many years afterward, as a minister of the Methodist Church, he was engaged in evangelistic work at Albion, Michigan. But he never forgot his Salvationist friends, and divisional and corps commanders called him back on many occasions to conduct soul-winning crusades under "Army" auspices in various areas of the country. Later, he withdrew from active service and lived in retirement near Reed City, Michigan.

His "promotion to glory", as the "Army" announced it, came only a few months ago. But his famous song will go on singing, and winning men and women, until the end of time.

When he wrote his hymn, in 1913, Mr. Bennard was making a study of the Cross in God's plan of redemption. The urge came to put his thoughts into song. At first, he made little headway with his hymn-writing. Then, while conducting a revival one day, he caught a new vision of the Cross and began to see its deeper meaning. It brough the inspiration he had been awaiting and, within a few days, he had completed the song which was to enrich and bless the lives of so many of his fellow men and women.

The song was still in manuscript form when Mr. Bennard first sang it for a group of intimate friends. A little later, it was introduced to the public at an evangelistic rally in Chicago.

A Methodist bishop once called it "the greatest hymn of the twentieth century." Another churchman has placed it with "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Rock of Ages" as one of the three most popular hymns of present day Christendom. Whenever radio hymn programs are broadcast and listeners are invited to request favorite hymns, an overwhelming number of calls is always received for "The Old Rugged Cross."

Readers' Saturday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Since moving to the U.S.A. I won't get to see your column as often as I would like. My brother sends me the paper as often as he thinks of it and your column is always the first thing I look for. Enclosed is a recipe for a dessert made with boysenberries that is absolutely scrumptious . . Wondered if it would be possible to freeze mint leaves this summer ready for next summer's parties? I often think of you when I am using recipes I have saved from your columns. Good luck to you . . . Mrs. N. W. E., Dayton, Ohio.

Dinner Menus

SATURDAY

Mixed Vegetable Juice; Three-Meat Loaf; Tomato Sauce; Baked Potatoes; Lettuce, Cucumber and Green Pepper Salad with French Dressing; Spanish Cream (see Friday); Angel Cake; Tea.

RASPBERRY AND BOYSENBERRY DELIGHT:

(Courtesy Mrs. N. W. E., Dayton, Ohio.)

1-2 cup margarine, 2 egg yolks, 1-3 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 1-4 cups flour, 1-4 teaspoon soda, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1 pint froezn or fresh raspberries, 1 cup frozen or fresh boysenberries, 4 tablespoons chopped walnuts, 2 egg whites, 1 tablespoon sugar.

Beat margarine and egg yolks with 1-3 cup sugar until light and fluffy. Add vanilla and sifted flour, soda and salt. Spread in ungreased pan. Combine 1-4 cup sugar, cornstarch and raspberries and boysenberries. Cook until thick. Spread this over uncooked mixture. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons nuts over this. Beat egg whites, gradually add 1 tablespoon sugar and spread over above mixture. Sprinkle with remaining chopped walnuts. Stand in pan of water and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes.

ANSWER:

Greetings and Thank you.

No, mint leaves do not freeez successfully. All you have to do is look at the frozen leaves in your mint patch right now to see how black and shrivelled they become. You could dry your own though by hanging a bunch from the basement rafters before freeze-up and use them.

QUESTION:

I wish to tell you that I read your column every day and enjoy it fully. I have tried many of your recipes and they have all been a great success. Thank you so much. Would it be possible for you to send me the instructions for burning brandy or whatever it is on the plum pudding? I have looked everywhere and cannot find out what it is all about but have an English husband who remembers this being done in England . . . "Busy".

ANSWER:

At a side table in the dining-room warm a spoon over a candle. Use a spoon large enough to hold the amount of spirits you want to flame. Pour domestic brandy into warm spoon and let it heat a little then light a match to it, and it will flame. Pour the flaming brandy over the hot pudding. Carry immediately to table. It will continue to flame until all of the alcohol content is burned out.

A Lift For Living

Faith's Mooring Sorely Needed

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

I suppose every normal adult remembers his childhood, as a comparatively quiet harbor sheltered behind the protecting presence of parents. We speak of leaving home to make our way in the world as launching out into life. While this is true in normal times, our times are abnormal. The young people of today launch into a world so different from the world of their fathers' youth that the old moral and social dogmas are inadequate, the old landmarks lost to view, the old shore lines hidden in fog. Many are so far at sea they have lost both their moorings and their bearings.

The world of my school days just before World War I seemed comparatively settled. England was the seat of an empire on whose shores the sun never set. France was the land of sturdy peasants and gay Parisians. Sunny Italy was the country of holidays and holy places. Germany was a prosperous place of scientific progress and great universities where our students went for graduate study, especially in theology. And Russia seemed hibernating safely under its "Little Father" the Czar.

From all this we have been brought into a world where national boundaries are fluid, where people are bewildered, and where our own American frontiers are in far places.

GREATLY AFFECTED

The deep waters affect us not only politically but morally and spiritually. As a boy I heard many sermons on the personal sins of lust, lying and dishonesty, few on the sins of war and race prejudice, and none on the evils of totalitarian states. Today we "wrestle not merely against flesh and blood" but "against principalities and powers," against ideologies and dictators.

We cannot row back into the quiet waters of isolated harbors. We cannot leave a world of radio and airplanes and atom bombs and live alone, politically or morally. We must prepare for living in deep waters.

To do this we must look to our lifebelts in the form of a personal faith buoyant enough to keep us afloat when out beyond our depth. When a person is out where he cannot touch bottom, mere struggle is not sufficient. When the inexperienced swimmer is tossed into the water, he tries to support himself by his own frantic efforts. He beats about furiously with his hands and his feet as if everything depended on his own energy. But watch the graceful trained swimmer and note how he combines the movements of his body with the buoyancy of the water. So in the deep waters of life we must learn to supplement our effort with that divine support which the Psalmist felt when he said, "Rest in the Lord and wait patiently for Him."

And how do we acquire this confidence in divine support? Some persons have reached it by practicing the presense of God, by trying to think of God as present, by doing one's duty as if God were present, by praying to God and worshipping Him until He seems to be present.

NEED PERSEVERENCE

Practicing the presence of God is somewhat like cultivating the appreciation of great music. Noble symphonies require time and much living with before they lift us. But eventually that which was an effort becomes a joy. Similarly, in the service of God the first stages may seem a burdensome duty and not very real. But if we persevere we reach a point where we who have been trying to get hold of God feel God getting hold of us.

And along with a personal faith buoyant enough to keep us afloat must go an organization of the faithful adequate to navigate deep waters. However good, a swimmer cannot long survive alone on the high seas. Even a rowboat is limited when the sea billows roll.

My feeling about our present world is like the feeling I've had walking the deck of an ocean liner on a dark and stormy night, the need to touch shoulders with people of faith in these dark and stormy times.

More than ever before we need to join with others in prayer and worship. We must cultivate a deeper and wider spirit of unity among our churches. I am heartened by the recent proposals for more merging within Protestantism and by the recent signs of better relations between Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews.

United we sail; divided we sink.

Friends Honor Resident on 95th Birthday

MADOC JCT. — On January 28th, Mr. Hiram Ashley, the oldest resident in this community, celebrated his 95th birthday. He is still enjoying fairly good health and likes to have his friends call.

Several called during the day to extend greetings among whom were: Mrs. Warren Harlow, Mrs. Russell Stapley of Stirling; Mrs. Blake McMullen, Mr. John Madill, Mrs. Charles Stapley and Sandra, and Miss Sharon Reide.

In the evening some 20 members of Eggleton Sunday school and a few relatives and friends of the neighborhood visited him. Miss Audrey Stapley, on behalf of the Sunday school presented Mr. Ashley with a decorated box of fruits and treats. Miss Annamae Clarke made the presentation of a large ice angel food cake, made by one of the teachers of the Sunday school, Mrs. Bruce Stapley. All joined in singing "Happy Birthday."

Mrs. Ashley on behalf of her husband and herself voiced appreciation to all for their thoughtfulness and good wishes.

Mr. Ashley was the recipient of a large number of birthday cards, also letters and several nice gifts.

Later Mrs. Ashley served dainty refreshments of sandwiches, birthday cake and cookies.

Fifteen more relatives and friends called on Sunday to extend congratulations.

Mr. Seymour Ashley of Batawa, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Miller, Arty Lee and Robert of Belleville, were dinner guests Sunday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ashley.

RARE COUGARS SIGHTED — The eastern cougar, or panther, believed to have died out after 1860, now is reported to be roaming forests in Northwestern Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick.

Black areas on map show where the cougars are said to have reappeared.

Last reported sighting in New Brunswick was made Oct. 29, 1960, near Harvey. A cougar, shot in Maine in 1938 and mounted in St. Zacharie, Que., now is at the Northeastern Wildlife Station in Fredericton and is thought to be the only one ever preserved. (CP Newsmap.)

N.B. Wildlife Expert Says 100 Rare Panthers May Be Roaming Eastern Canada

By JOHN MOSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FREDERICTON (CP) — Up to 100 rare eastern panthers, once thought extinct, may be roaming the forests of Eastern Canada and the Northeastern United States, says wildlife expert Bruce S. Wright.

Mr. Wright, director of the Northeastern Wildlife Station here, has been collecting reports on the reappearance of the panthers—or cougars—for more than 20 years.

The last reported sighting in New Brunswick was made Oct. 29, 1960, near Harvey in York County, 35 miles southwest of Fredericton. The province has about 10 "valid" sightings a year, mostly in districts where the big wildcats have been previously reported.

The panthers have also been seen on Cape Breton Island, Quebec, Ontario, Maine, Massachusetts and within 32 miles of New York City in New Jersey.

BOUGHT SPECIMEN

The eastern panther once was thought to have been extinct since 1860. Still relatively common in the west are the western cougars, a sub-species of the eastern panther. To the average spotter they appear identical although there are biological differences.

Mr. Wright's search for a modern specimen of the eastern variety finally met success last May.

Rosarie Morin, woodsman and trapper in the Quebec village of St. Zacharie, 300 miles northwest of Fredericton, trapped the animal in 1938 on the Maine side of Little St. John Lake at the head of the St. John River.

It was mounted by a Quebec taxidermist and remained in the parish hall until a biologist identified it and advised Mr. Wright who bought it.

WANTS PROTECTION

He brought it to his station here, one of the research stations operated in Canada and the United States by the Wildlife Management Institute at Washington.

The red-brown specimen has a body length of seven feet and a three-foot tail. It is believed to be the last taken in the northeast and the only one ever preserved.

"The panther is the rarest, least known and most spectacular of our native animals and we want to protect it," says Mr. Wright.

"It apparently has passed the critical population level and is on its way back, but in doing so it is once again coming more and more into contact with man.

"No other large species of our fauna has been able to do this and survive without help from man himself. There is little reason to hope that the cougar will be the exception and will succeed without this help.

"It should be placed in the same category as the whooping crane which is protected by law. It deserves complete protection under the game acts of the various provinces.

"It does no harm to man and is beneficial in areas where there is an over - abundance of deer because it thins them out. Otherwise they might exhaust their food supply."

Panthers live mainly on deer, porcupines and raccoons, hunting mainly at night.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Television entertainer Dagmar got a "quickie" divorce in Montgomery during an overnight stay, the Montgomery Advertiser says. Galvoa's Seizure of Liner Has Not Helped Opposition

LISBON (AP)—Henrique Galvao' seizure of the liner Santa Maria has done the opposition to Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar great and perhaps irreparable harm, reliable political observers here in the Portuguese capital say.

Reaction against those who seized the ship has been strong both in Portugal and in her overseas territories.

The government apparently feels its case is so strong it can sit back and let the United States or Brazil handle the affair.

Dr. Ramiro Valadao, chief of the government's press services, told a press conference Portugal would let any intervening power handle the case under its own laws. He said his government would not even demand extradition of Galvao and his 70 rebels, even though an officer of the ship was killed in the fray.

Thirty-nine opposition leaders saw fit a few days ago to write President Americo Thomaz divorcing themselves from the liner incident which they called an "unequivocably serious act."

HURT HIS POSITION

Humberto Delgado, the unsuccessful presidential candidate in the 1958 elections who has been living in exile in Brazil, hurt his position gravely at home, observers believe, by assuming responsibility for the seizure, and even more so by publicly predicting the seizure would lead to uprisings in Portugal and her territories.

Not the slightest disorder of a political nature has been reported.

Delgado's association with Galvao was never close in the past. Galvao was pretty much of an extremist, both while an ardent supporter of Salazar and after going into the opposition. Delgado was considered more moderate and measured.

Their present apparently close association has surprised many here and disillusioned others.

MANY WERE SUSPICIOUS

Many were suspicious about the reported international character of the rebels — only six Portuguese, the rest Spaniards, Cubans and persons of other nationality.

Valadao stated emphatically at press conferences Tuesday and Wednesday, "this is an international crime, not just one against Portugal." He said it involved the entire Western world.

Avidly awaiting news of the Santa Maria, people buy newspapers as fast as they appear on the streets. Large crowds stand in front of newspaper offices reading the latest news as it is chalked on bulletin boards.

Portugal is a maritime nation, and when something happens to one of her ships, especially the pride of her passenger fleet, it is a personal matter to all of her citizens, whether they approve of the government or not.

Sales Manager Takes 42 Years To Make Collection of Toby Jugs

TORONTO (CP)—When C. H. Spooner bought his first toby jug 42 years ago he didn't realize what he was getting himself into. Now it takes him and his wife five hours to wash his collection of 230 jugs, a job they tackle twice a year.

Mr. Spooner, 60-year-old sales manager here for the Canadian Car Company, doesn't agree with the saying that you have to be a nut to be a collector.

"I don't think I'm one," he said. "Maybe it's the contrast that keeps me interested. There's a big difference between selling railway cars and buying toby jugs."

The collection, representing literary, historical and contemporary characters, contains mainly the creations of Doulton artists. It forms the background for his recreation room bar.

The origin of the toby jug is obscure, although books on pottery list a number of possible beginnings. It is said that giving nicknames to personal drinking vessels dates from antiquity and that Toby is a contraction of Tobias.

Early toby jugs generally represented the full figure, seated and holding a mug. Their popularity brought variation in size. Some are no bigger than thimbles while others are of gallon capacity.

Btsides his jugs, Mr. Spooner has put together a collection of "thousands and thousands" of stamps, a stack of books and some figurines and antiques.

His jug collection ranges from a Viking, Mephistopheles, Don Quixote, the Three Musketeers and a crop of Dickens' characters to Sir Winston Churchill, Viscount Montgomery and the Queen.

Federal Prison Is Best Place Says Convict

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—Ex-convict Roscoe Baldwin's allegiance is to federal prisons.

Louisiana state troopers arrested the 35-year-old Baldwin while he was sleeping in a stolen car Thursday. Baldwin readily admitted stealing the car in Winchester, Ky.

"I'm sure happy to be on my way to a federal prison," Baldwin told the troopers. He said he was releasel from a federal penitentiary last September after a three - year term for auto theft in Michigan.

"This ought to be worth at least five years," he said happily in jail while awaiting FBI agents.

"I'm strictly a federal prison man. The food is good —it's clean and you get a pack of cigarets every day. I don't want any part of these state pens."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

He is the same old Moe and although his torso is covered with a sweater bearing the team insignia of the Omaha Knights of the International Hockey League, I hear he is up to his old tricks.

M'sieu Benoit is doing right well for his adopted city and its Knights of the hockey ampitheatre joustings, although you would never know it from the columnings of the local sports editors.

Moe is teamed with Fiori Goegan as one of the Knights' blueline bulwarks and the latest hockey murmur from the centre of the Nebraskan corn belt is that both have been named as candidates for the League all-star squad.

Record-wise Big Moe has earned the candidacy. He has a mark to date of 10 goals and 25 assists for thirty-five points and that's but one behind a guy named Lionel Repka of Fort Wayne, adjudged the league's outstanding defenceman last season.

As of the moment, Moe's left side is stiffer than the bustle of a Victorian dowager. It seems the likeable cuss ran into the wrong end of a hockey stick a week or so ago and came up with a couple of cracked ribs.

Quit, me eye. They slapped a mile or so of adhesive tape around Moe's midriff and upper torso, said "Sic 'Em" and away he went. This was no Knight off for Omaha.

The rest of the McFarland expatriates who are working Knights are doing well, thank you. Floyd Crawford has been toiling as a forward on either the second or third line of the club, and keeping his end up.

Paul Payette is said to be having a good season, although like the rest of the ex-Macs, you would never know it through the local printed word.

And there is no truth in the story that Minnie Menard gave up his Knighthood for pastures where the lettuce is greener and much thicker. The scuttlebutt hereabouts had it that Minnie had decided to call being a Knight a day when Bep Guidolin took off for the smorgasbords of Minneapolis. It ain't so, mes amis. Minnie, the Scooter, is still riding herd for the Omaha club.

And what of other ex-Macs?

Likeable, quiet-spoken Johnny McLellan has been having his ups and downs. Johnny never returned to Belleville after the European junket, but took the job as player-manager of the now defunct Milwaukee Falcons. He was picked up by Toledo, but Johnny wanted to remain in his native Timmins, so that was arranged.

Johnny signed as coach of the Timmins Flyers, but recently was ousted from that job. The brass wanted him to stay on as a player but Johnny said "No," asked for his release to play for Toledo, was refused and at the moment is a player without a club.

Johnny was the third coach of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association to get the axe. Mentors of the Kapuskasing and Rouyn-Noranda teams were fired.

Taking over the Kapuskasing club worries is Basil "Bummer" Doran, brother of "Red" Doran of this city. The "Bummer" is a former pro, having played with Syracuse in the old International League and since one of the north's outstanding coaches in minor hockey. It was he who recommended Ralph Backstrom to the Canadiens. Under his guidance the Kaps have risen from fourth to second place in the loop standing.

Ron Muir, who worked as a sportswriter in Western Ontario during the summer, was declared sane by fall and joined the Greenboro Generals of the Eastern Hockey League. Ron is battling with Gary Sharp for the club scoring lead. Both are in the loop's top ten.

Lammy Lamirande is with the Clinton Comets and was joined recently by Pete Babando, formerly of the Dunlops and a minute member of the McFarlands last season. Pete broke his thumb in the first play of the game with Galt before he had turned a hair.

Manager Ray Miron of the Jersey Larks, has appointed former Cornwall Colt Don LaBelle as acting coach. News certainly gets around. A hockey magazine quotes "Red" Berenson as being offered a $16,000 contract by the Montreal Canadiens. That item appeared in this column April 14, 1959.

700 Kids Enter -

Big Peewee Tourney

QUEBEC (CP) — More than 700 eager youngsters begin play today in the second international peewee hockey tournament.

Forty-six teams — four from Ontario — from four Canadian provinces and three states of the U.S.have entered the week-long contest, held under the auspices of the Quebec Winter Carnival.

Top prize is the Quebec City Trophy for the grand champion, awarded last year to a Scarborough team.

Competing teams of 12-year-olds and under are divided into four classes—AA, A, B and C—each of which has its own champion and trophy. The champion in each class enters a playoff next Saturday to determine the grand champion.

Competition will be stiffer this year and a single loss eliminates a team from the tourney.

'Meet Me In St. Louis' - Etcheverry

NFL Contract Is Approved

NEW YORK (CP) — Sam Etcheverry got what he wanted Friday—the chance to play in the National Football League—but for football itself, what has the fulfilment of Sam's wish wrought?

The complicated case of the strong - armed quarterback who played in Canada has already led to ill-feeling between the NFL and the overseers of Canadian professional football. Whether it leads to open hostility remains to be seen.

The contract Sam signed with St. Louis Cardinals was ratified by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle despite claims on Etcheverry by Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four.

Announcing his action, Rozelle rejected the protest of Canadian Football League Commissioner Sydney Halter, saying he hopes "the excellent relations which have existed between the NFL and the Canadian league . . . would not be affected in any way."

In Winnipeg, Halter said, however, Rozelle's action constitutes "a complete repudiation of the agreement between the two leagues to honor each other's contract."

SAM HAPPY

In Montreal, Sam's only comment was: "I'm happy he has accepted the contract."

The Etcheverry case began in November when Montreal decided to trade Sam to Hamilton. Etcheverry, for nine years Montreal's passing whiz, wouldn't agree and contended his contract specified he couldn't be traded without his approval.

Later, Hamilton learned that its prize acquisition had put his name on the dotted line for St. Louis.

Meanwhile, Hamilton had sent quarterback Bernie Faloney and guard Don Paquette to Montreal for Etcheverry and end Hal Patterson. Sam knows where he's playing next year, but Faloney, Paquette and Patterson don't as a result of Sam's action.

Rozelle's statement said Etcheverry had produced a copy of a letter agreement signed by Perry Moss, Alouettes coach and general manager, which included a clause prohibiting Montreal trading Etcheverry without his okay.

LAWYERS AGREE

Said Rozelle: "The player and his personal legal advisers are of the firm opinion that this breach freed him to sign a Cardinal contract.

"Further, they contend that the vast amount of publicuty this case has received in Canada and the United States makes it obvious that any attempt by Montreal to rescind this trade after Etcheverry objected was meaningless.

"Etcheverry and his attorney declare that it is impossible for the relationship between the player and Montreal ever to be restored to a harmonious relationship."

To this, Halter retorted that whether harmonious relationships could be restored "should be of no concern to the NFL. There is an agreement between the two leagues that we would honor each other's contracts and this is a definite violation of this agreement."

Alouettes officials declined to say anything Friday in the absence of club President Ted Workman, but Workman himself had gone on record a few days earlier as saying that "you can expect another player war" if St. Louis should get Etcheverry.

CFL TO MEET

The matter is to come up before CFL's annual meeting in Winnipeg next week, Halter advised Rozelle in a telephone conservation.

Halter said it was his contention that "a trade was made between Montreal and Hamilton and that it was made conditional to Etcheverry's consent being obtained."

"Negotiations were entered into with Etcheverry to obtain his consent and carried on for some time. Etcheverry was to advise Hamilton whether he would consent.

"The first indication Hamilton received that he did not plan to consent to the trade was when he announced that he had signed with St. Louis Cardinals.'

Etcheverry, 30, said after signing with the Cardinals that he had always "wanted to give it a whirl" in the NFL.

SET RECORDS

In his nine seasons with Montreal, he completed 1,944 passes in 3,428 tries for 30,435 yards and 183 touchdowns. Each figure is a Big Four record and Etcheverry has been an all-star in all but two seasons.

Hamilton evidently was taking his loss bravely. Jake Gaudaur, president and general manager of the Ticats, said in Hamilton: "I expect that Sam has done what he thought was best for him and I wish him the best of luck."

Gaudaur refused to comment on how the NFL approval of Sam's contract will affect the trade with Montreal.

The Cardinals know what they are getting in Etcheverry since St. Louis Coach Pop Ivy, who had coached at Edmonton, has first-hand knowledge of his ability.

In Toronto, Lew Hayman, managing director of Toronto Argonauts, said he doesn't think the case will set off a player war. But he added he is concerned with the problem of players leaving Canada without waiver clearance.

Hayman cited the cases of quarterback Randy Duncan, who went from British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Union to Dallas Texans of the American League, and tackle Bill Hudson, who went to Los Angeles Changers from Montreal.

Both were placed on waivers last year and Argos had first claim on them. Each time, the parent clubs withdraw the waivers.

Hayman met Workman Friday in an attempt to work out a deal for Montreal tackle Billy Shipp and end Doug McNichol. They settled nothing but Hayman feels they are not far from agreement.

Some Winners Declared

Bonspiel Nears Climax

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec International Bonspiel neared its climax today as play started in the semi-finals and finals of the Lieutenant - Governor's trophy, the week-long meet's big prize.

Meeting in the morning's semi-finals were Hugh Little of Halifax Mayflower and Jean-Louis Lacroix of Cap-de - la-Madeleine, Que; H. W. Muter of Weston and Gerry Jobin of Quebec. Finals in a numebr of minor trophies were also being played.

Jobin was beaten 12-8 Friday night in the Francois Jobin Gold Cup final—another of the bonspiel's top prizes — by Gerry Wright, a Quebecer skipping an Orillia rink.

The loss ruined Jobin's chances of winning three trophies, but he still had a chance to win the grand aggregate bowl for the best record of wins and losses over the week.

He was tied with Joe Thomas, another Quebecer, who won the trophy on Friday night with a 10-6 victory over Rene Matteau of Trois - Rivieres, Que. Both had won seven games, although Thomas had lost only one and Jobin two. Thomas has no more games to play.

In the other major trophy final Friday night Jacques Girard of Quebec Curling Club won the Chateau Trophy downing Bob Morris of Sept-Iles Que., 10-5.

Four other trophies were decided Friday night. Nels Findlay of Galt, took the Holt Renfrew in a 10-8 victory over Art Donovan's Weston rink; Harold Bonnetta of Whitby won the Val d'Or defeating E. F. Crease of Halifax 10-9; Bill Ward of Weston took the Royal Bank with a 9-5 win over Bob Ash of Kirkland Lake, and Herb Robinson of Oshawa, won the Cambrai Trophy in a 12 - 10 victory against A. L. Reid of Schenectady, N.Y.

In other Governor's quarter-finals Friday, Little dropped Bruce St. John of Gravenhurst, Ont., 9-6 while Lacroix beat Ted Slatcher of Weston 8-7 and Muter defeated Len Gillis of Kirkland Lake 9-5.

Leading Teams Tangle

Top Perch Up For Grabs Tonight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's been 13 years since Toronto Maple Leafs finished atop the National Hockey League, 23 years since they had a league scoring champion and seven years since they had a Vezina Trophy winner.

But all this playing - second-fiddle—notably to Montreal Canadiens — could end this season.

The Leafs, a well - blended unit of veterans and youngsters, are tied for-first place with Canadiens with just six weeks remaining in the schedule.

Fittingly, their oldest, Johnny Bower, leads the Vezina race, and one of their most robust youngsters, Frank Mahovlich, is within range of the scoring title.

The Leafs, who have played two more games than Canadiens, tonight host Detroit Red Wings, a team they've conquered with amazing regularity lately. Canadiens, back at full strength for the first time in weeks, are at home to the slumping Chicago Black Hawks.

TRADE OPPONENTS

Sunday the Leafs tackle the Hawks in Chicago and Canadiens are at Detroit.

New York Rangers and Boston Bruins, the two bottom clubs, play back-to-back home games against each other, starting tonight in Boston.

Mahovlich, the league's newest superstar, is engaged in a battle with Canadiens' Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, Dickie Moore and Jean Beliveau for the scoring championship.

Geoffrion, all - star right winger, is ahead by four points although he missed six straight games in the latter part of January with a knee injury. He has 65 points.

FRANK TOPS IN GOALS

Mahovlich ranks second with 61 points on an amazing 41 goals and 20 assists. Moore is third with 60 and Beliveau has 58.

The last Leaf to win the title was Gordie Drillon in 1937-38.

Bower, the league's oldest player at 36, has a slim lead in the race for the Vezina, having allowed 132 goals in 51 games. The Montreal combination of Jacques Plante and Charlie Hodge has allowed 134 goals in 49 games and Chicago's Glenn Hall has allowed 136 in 51 encounters.

Harry Lumley won it last for Toronto in 1953-54.

BOXER PENALIZED

MADRID (AP) — The Spanish Boxing Federation took away Fred Galiana's licence and national lightweight title Friday following his poor showing Friday against world featherweight champion Davey Moore of Springfield, Ohio, in a scheduled 10-round fight.

Galiana's purse of $4,166 was turned over to the National Boxers' Beneficial Association.

Moore floored the Spaniard late in the third round. Galiana still was groggy in the fourth and the American hit him more than 20 times without a return before the referee stepped in.

Royals Clip Teepees 10-3, Flyers Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The league - leading Guelph Royals snapped out of a three-game losing string with a vengeance Friday night, slamming St. Catharines Teepees 10-3 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A scoring spree.

While the Royals were stretching their first-place margin to 10 points, Niagara Falls Flyers edged Hamilton 2-1 to foil off a Red Wings' try for a share of third place with the Flyers.

The Royals, before a hometown crowd of 2,500, displayed devastating scoring force as they moved ahead 4-0 in the first period and 6-2 by the end of the second.

Paul Andrea and Barry Jakeman each scored a pair as the leaders piled up a 38-22 margin in shots. Bob Cunningham, Borden Smith, Jean Ratelle, Billy Taylor, Don Dibernardino and Marcelle Labelle had singles.

PLAYER INJURED

Murray Hall, Duke Harris and Doug Robinson scored for the sixth - place Teepees, who lost Bill Speers in the second period when he went to hospital with concussion.

A crowd of 2,600 in blizzard-swept Niagara Falls watched Flyers move to within three points of second place.

Great goaltending by Wayne Rutledge helped the Flyers pick up their fifth point in their last three games. Hamilton outshot them 32-22.

Jean Gilbert engineered Marcel Tessier's first-period goal with the Wings shorthanded and scored the second himself. A furious third - period Hamilton attack paid off when Pit Martin lifted one just under the top crossbar from a scramble in front of the net.

Coach Eddie Bush lifted goaltender Bud Blom with a minute and 12 seconds left in the game, only to have Nelson Leclair of the Falls rush out of his own end, pick up a stray pass and drive it into the cage. It was called back and ruled offside to hoots from the crowd.

Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival

"LIGHT AS A FEATHER"

Skaters in hockey can be classified as specific types just as can track athletes. For example, there are power skaters who get their speed from strength and a powerful shove off at the end of each stride: stride skaters who take long smooth strides with a long glide; choppers who take short, hopping strides, going down the ice like a rabbit with a sore foot and feather skaters who hardly seem to be touching the ice.

Body build, muscular construction, temperament and early training or an attempt to copy a certain type of player all play a role in the development of style. It is a serious mistake for a young player to try to copy any special style or a coach to try to teach one particular style to all players but every player can learn something fundamental from each one which can help his own skating.

An N.H.L. star who demonstrates one particular fundamental of fast skating who, according to Sport College timers, is now one of the fastest skaters in the league. Watching him glide effortlessly down the ice you will note that he has remarkable leg speed, moving from stride to stride in amazing fashion. One of the reasons he has such leg speed is because he keeps his skates very close to the ice in the skating action. There is no time lost lifting his feet up and down. It is all straight ahead. Everyone cannot be Keon but this principle of skating speed can be used by all — properly learned it cannot help but increase leg speed. For more skating hints get my bulletin, "Henri Richard, He Skates Like The Wind" by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10c to Hockey Hints 80 King St. W., Toronto.

MAY FIGHT IN CANADA

LONDON (Reuters) — Joe Erskine of Cardiff, Wales, may have a warmup fight in Canada before he meets Henry Cooper for the latter's British and Empire heavyweight titles in London March 21. Benny Jacobs, Erskine's manager, said Friday he is considering an offer from Toronto promoter Jack Allen for a fight against Bob Cleroux of Montreal in the first week in February or the first week in March.

U.S. Tennis Tourney Set For Feb. 9-13

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States national indoor tennis tourney, on the verge of being cancelled Friday, will be played as scheduled Feb. 9-13 with stars from 11 countries seeking the men's singles title won a year ago by Barry MacKay.

The threat to cancel was made when the organizing committee received a cable from Australia saying Rod Laver, Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson would not come here. It was followed by a cable from Nicola Pietrangeli, star of the Italian Davis Cup team, that a back injury would not permit him to play.

However, a session on the telephone brought acceptances from Orlando Sirola, the other half of the Italian cup team; Bill Knight of England; Pierre Damron of France; Francis Godbout of Quebec and the possibility that Laver still might come.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (CP)—Trail Smoke Eaters Friday night defeated a Swedish team 4-1, avenging Thursday's 4-0 exhibition defeat at the hands of the same team.

The Smokies, to represent Canada in the world hockey championships, led 1-0 at the end of the opening period, widened the margin to 3-1 in the second and added another tally in the final.

The rugged match was played before 13,322 fans. Smokies showed speed and finesse that they lacked in the opening game against the Swedes.

Defenceman Don Fletcher opened the scoring for the Canadians at the 18-minute mark of the opening period. Centre Dave Russnell made it 2-0 early in the second. Sweden's Gert Blome then put the home team on the score sheet but Russnell bounced back with another counter before the period ended.

Darryl Sly slapped the puck past Swedish goalie Kiell Svensson in the final period to round out the scoring.

Eight Smokies and four Swedes drew penalties in the rough second period. Fletcher drew a 10-minute penalty for protesting a referee's decision.

The outdoor rink was free of the wet snow that fell Thursday and obviously hampered the Canadians.

The Canadians were not too happy over the way the two Czech referees handled Fridays game.

A total of 14 penalties were called against Canada, eight against Sweden.

The referees ruled out almost every sort of bodychecking and the Canadians often protested against the penalties, which twice resulted in major penalties.

Sweden started strongly, but after forward Lundvall was injured in the first period, the Swedish players were ordered to take it easy. In the previous meeting, two other Swedish players were injured.

Millrose Games

World Records Equalled

NEW YORK (AP) — Hayes Jones of Eastern Michigan and Wilma Rudolph of Tennessee State equalled their world indoor track records in the Millrose Games Friday night.

A crowd of about 15,000 braved a heavy snowstorm to watch in amazement as Jones was timed at seven seconds flat for the 60-yard high hurdles and Miss Rudolph was timed in 6.9 in both the semi-final and final of the women's 60-yard dash.

Jerry Siebert of the University of California sped to a 1:51.9 victory, 1 3-5 seconds off the record in the half-mile run.

Istvan Roszavolgyi of Hungary won the Wanamaker Mile in 4:06.

Deacon Jones of Fort Lee, Va., took over the lead for a lap at the three-quarter mark but wound up third behind Ernie Cunliffe.

RECORD BROKEN

Manhattan's smooth - striding two - mile track relay team whipped to a 7:32.8 indoor record.

John Thomas, six-foot, five-inch Boston University junior, won the high jump with a leap of seven feet—for him a routine jump.

Manhattan's two - mile relay team was made up of John Corry, Kye Courtney, Larry St. Clair and Art Evans, running in that order. They finished about 25 yards ahead of Holy Cross.

The record they broke, 7:33.9 by Seton Hall in 1942, was made on a nine-lap track, which is far faster than Madison Square Garden's 11-lap saucer.

Henry Wadsworth, 22, from the University of Florida, won the pole vault, soaring 15 feet, four inches to beat world record holder Don Bragg's 15-3 effort.

Al Lawrence, the Australian from the University of Houston, won the two-mile run in 8:52.8, beating teammate John Macy by about eight yards. Ron Wallingford of the Toronto Olympic Club was fourth

Ralph Boston of Tennessee State, the world record holder, was the broad-jump winner with an effort of 25 feet, nine inches, an inch short of the indoor mark he set two weeks ago.

Johansson Hits Back At Critics

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Ingemar Johansson hit back Friday at critics of his training methods.

He told reporters that if he fails to regain the heavyweight boxing championship March 13 from Floyd Patterson, "it will not be because I am not the best - trained fighter you ever saw."

"Who makes the rule that a fighter must put himself away, like in a prison, when he trains?" the Swedish boxer asked. "It is good to have people around who are close to you when you relax."

He referred to the big entourage that includes his parents, fiancee, brother and sister-in-law.

McCartan Throws Fists At Referee

SUDBURY (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo goaltender Jack McCartan, apparently angered by Sudbury Wolves' winning goal, engaged in a fist - swinging scrap with referee Matt Pavelich after the Wolves edged the Beavers 3-2 in an Eastern Professional Hockey League game Friday night.

The goal, at 2:53 of the second period, was credited to Gene Achtymichuk but McCartan actually kicked it into his own net accidentally while two of his teammates were holding off the Sudbury player.

The Beavers contended the play should have been whistled dead before the score but Pavelich ruled the puck was free and still in play.

With McCartan out of the net in the final minute as the Beavers fought for a tie, play became rough and Kitchener-Waterloo drew two misconducts for arguing with the officials.

At the final whistle the Beavers coach Frank Currie started across the ice toward the Sudbury bench and the referee.

After some shoving by the players, McCartan, former U.S. Olympic star who went to the Beavers from New York Rangers of the National League, and Pavelich started throwing punches. The scrap fizzled out when no other players joined in.

Leon Rochefort and Dennis Olson shot the Beavers into an early lead before Ken Girard and Myron Stankiewicz tied it.

SOCCER MANAGER ILL

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Simpson, 60, one of Canada's top soccer executives, was taken—to hospital Friday night after suffering a heart attack at home. He managed the Canadian team which toured Russia and the British Isles last year. For the last 12 years he has been president of the Toronto and District Soccer Association.

Bob Bedard Named Top Tennis Star

TORONTO (CP) — Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., was Canada's No. 1 tennis player in 1960 for the sixth consecutive year, rankings annouced Friday night by the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association show.

Susan Butt, Victoria, topped the ladies list for the second successive year.

Second place in the men's division is held by Don Fontana of Toronto and François Godbout of Waterloo, Que., is ranked third.

Ann Barclay of Vancouver and Louise Brown of Toronto were ranked second and third in the women's division.

John Bassett, Toronto, reelected CLTA President for the second consecutive year, announced that Quebec City would again be the site of the Davis Cup tie provided the matches are played in Canada.

"However, we won't know who we will be playing or where the matches will be until the draw is made in about six weeks," Bassett said following the CLTA's annual meeting.

Fontana, in voluntary retirement, may decide not to try for Canada's team, Bassett said. He added that this year's Canadian championships will be played at the Monkland Tennis Club "subject to mutually satisfactory conditions being negotiated with the club." Dates will be set later.

United States colleges have been awarding athletic scholarships to promising young Canadian track and field athletes for years. And whether Canadians like it or not, they must admit these American-coached youngsters have been the backbone of Canada's track squads in British Empire, Pan - American and Olympic Games.

Let's face it, the Americans aren't doing this to help Canada in international competition. They want these young prospects for inter-university meets in the U.S. They don't particularly care about an athlete's nationality just as long as he can help out their track teams.

It came somewhat as a surprise to many natives the other day when it was announced in Toronto that two teen - aged Ontario golfers were going to U.S. colleges to iron out the wrinkles in their games — on scholarships. It has happened before.

NOTRE DAME FIRST

Twenty - five years ago Notre Dame University heard all about a young Winnipeg golfer, Bud Donovan. He was one of the best around his home town and, with a chance to further his studies in the depression years, he was glad of the offer to go to South Bend, Ind.

He spent three years boning up on a commerce course. He was a member of Notre Dame's golf team and at the weekends knocked balls around in inter-university matches.

Bud, now 46 and a manufacturer's agent for infant wear in Toronto and publicity director of the Ontario Golf Association, thinks the golf scholarship idea is a good one. "It's a wonderful thing for a boy to get the opportunity to combine education and golf."

In his case, it wasn't just a matter of going out on Notre Dame's 18-hole course and having someone showing him what he was doing wrong. "We had to maintain a 77 average in our studies and we played golf only on weekends against other universities."

OUT OF MONEY

Donovan went to Notre Dame in 1936 and left at the end of 1938 "without graduating."

"That was in the Depression years and the university looked after my board and room, and it was tough going. I worked in the library, served as a waiter in the university cafeteria, sold programs at football games and I simply ran out of money."

He didn't join the golf trail because in those years the pro circuit was pretty meagre. "There were only five to 10 tournaments a year while today there's big money in it with one tournament a week the year round."

He played always as an amateur and met the best. He got to the fourth round of the U.S. Amateur in 1935 and the same year to the fifth round of the British Amateur. That year, also, he played in the General Brock Open at Niagara Falls and tied with Byron Nelson for second place behind Tony Manero.

EDUCATION FIRST

Now, he's a weekend golfer and shoots between 77 and 82.

His advice to the two youngsters just awarded scholarships—Phil Brownlee of Toronto and John Kindred of Peterborough, British Columbia in Vancouver Ont.—is to "concentrate first on their education."

"They are sound golfers but not much better than hundreds their age in the United States. The woods are full of young promising golfers and these days it's pretty tough for young fellows to make a living on the big-time circuit.

"They've got a real chance to further their education and also to improve their golf. I don't blame them for taking it and if American colleges want to help our young Canadians, I'm all for it."

There are 141 university golf courses in the U.S. compared with one — the University of British Columbia in Vancouver —in Canada.

PRODUCTION VALUE

The value of production in Sweden's engineering industry in 1960 totalled more than $3,000,000,000, a record high.

Al Mengert Clings to Golf Lead

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) Lanky Al Mengert clung to the lead in the $50,000 Palm Springs Desert golf classic Friday with a 54-hole score of 201 after shooting a 68 in the third round.

With two rounds remaining, Mengert had a one-stroke lead over his nearest rival, Bob Rosburg, who also had a 68. Ken Venturi's 67 put him within striking distance at 203.

Power - hitting George Bayer carded a 69 for 204.

Al Balding of Toronto had a 72 Friday to go with previous rounds of 68 and 70.

Vancouver's Stan Leonard was one behind Balding. He has had rounds of 71, 69 and 71.

Further back were George Knudson and Jerry Magee, both of Toronto. Magee has rounds of 72-74-71—217 and Knudson 77-74-75—226.

Govt. Will 'Consider' Sport Bill

QUEBEC (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has promised "serious consideration" of proposals by Quebec City sportsmen for the establishment of a national sports council and the appointment of a national sports commissioner.

A group of sports associations, who submitted a brief to the federal government, got a reply Friday in a letter addressed to Jacques Flynn, Progressive Conservative member for Quebec South who had submitted the brief.

The letter offered the prime minister's "assurance that their views and recommendations will be given serious consideration."

The brief also recommended organization of interprovincial competition to stimulate interest in amateur sport; construction of a national medical centre where experts would study the relationships between sport and physical fitness; and financing on a national hockey team for international competition.

Senior Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Terriers and Chatham Maroons kept pace in their drive to overtake Windsor Bulldogs in the Ontario Hockey Association senior league leadership Friday night when they scored decisive wins.

Galt defeated the Indians 8-3 in Stratford and Chatham won 7-3 over the Athletics in Woodstock.

The Terriers' win was their eighth in a row. They overcame a 2-0 Stratford lead with four goals in the second period and added another four in the final period.

Galt rearguard Butch Keeling was given a misconduct penalty in the third period for arguing with referee Jerry Olinski on his way to the penalty box to serve a minor high - sticking penalty.

Jack Neale and Harry McKnight each scored two for the Terriers. Singles went to Bob Mader, Joe Hogan, Bill Wylie and Pete Kowalchuk.

Bill Walsh, Ken Doig and Bill Flick scored for Stratford.

BLAST FIVE IN THIRD

At Woodstock the Maroons, held to a 2-2 tie for two periods, exploded in the third with five goals — four of them within seven minutes—to the Athletics' one.

Joe Malo, Fred Pietsch and George Aitkens each scored twice and Eddie Bush once for the winners.

Rod McElroy, a late arrival with the A's this season, scored two and veteran Ed Marrison one for Woodstock.

The cellar - dwelling Athletics go to fifth-place Strathroy tonight facing the threat of elimination from the playoffs.

CANADIANS LOSE

PERTH, Scotland (CP)—Canada's touring women curlers were defeated 52-63 Friday on the opening round of play in this Scottish city. In one game Mrs. F. Morris of Perth defeated Mrs. H. Turnbull of Sarnia 15-8.

Quinte COSSA Basketball

Moira Secondary School took three well-played games from Prince Edward C.I. in the latter's gymnasium last night.

The bantam team won 39-23, the junior Ramblers won 54-29 and the seniors took a squeaker 35-33.

BANTAM GAME

The bantam game was a one sided affair although the score does not indicate the play. The Moira team missed many lay-up shots gained from a well-operating fast break, depending on their added height to control the defensive boards. Doing a good job of rebounding were Jack Rawlyk, Ron Faulkner and Bob Bailey.

High scorer for Moira was Ron Faulkner with 15 points, while Dan Fraser and Jack Rawlyk added 9 points each. Top man for Picton was Tom Smith with 12 points.

JUNIOR GAME

In the junior contest the Ramblers started off with a bang scoring a basket on the opening jump and were never headed. The winners hit consistently and led 30-12 at the half.

The Moira defence was functioning well as all the boys were out to get back into first place. Rebounders Uens, Blaker and Allenby did a good job of clearing the boards.

The Rambler offence worked well against both the man-to-man and zone defences set up by Picton. Rob Blaker led the Rambler scorers with 21 points. Both Dave Glen and Brian Skinner scored 12 and 11 points, respectively.

Tops for Picton was Gerald Nowal with 11 points.

SENIOR GAME

Moira seniors had a real fight on their hands as they struggled to complete the sweep from Picton. Picton got off to a fast start, leading 8-0 before Moira hit for its first basket. From then on the senior Ramblers started to click and led at the end of the quarter 10-8.

Wiht John Peoples leading the attack, the Moira team worked the ball well and by half time had a 24-16 bulge.

Picton began to hit in the second half and slowly cut the lead to three points. Action seesawed during the final minutes. Moira had a lead of two points with 30 seconds to go but Picton had the ball. A fine defensive play gave Moira the ball which they retained until game end.

Don Skinner hit for 11 points to lead Moira scorers, followed by Gerry Goyer with 8.

Picton's Doug Taylor and Richard Lee scored 16 and 14 points respectively.

The next regularly scheduled games for Moira's teams are on Thursday, Feb. 9, in Napanee.

Ron Howell Quits Hockey

SUDBURY (CP) — Ron Howell, best known as a player with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football League, has decided to end his hockey career.

Howell informed Sudbury Wolves coach Murph Chamberlain Friday he would rather hang up his skates than report to the Eastern Professional Hockey League. He had been playing with Rochester of the American League.

Damp, rainy weather —followed by frigid temperatures —sometimes add up to a frozen antenna rotor which will not budge in either direction. If this should happen to you, don't try to turn the aerial—you could burn out the transformer or damage the gears in the rotor. All you can do is to be contented with the channel to which the aerial happens to be turned.

The only cure for this trouble is to have the antenna dismantled and the rotor taken inside and thoroughly dried—a relatively simple operation.

WINDMILL STILL GOING — From noon to midnight each day comedians, acrobats, jugglers and scantily-clad dancers cavort on the stage of London's 29-year-old Windmill Theatre. Not even during the height of the wartime blitz did the famed theatre close its doors. Its shows, with their immobile nudes, remain a fond memory of many Canadian war veterans. Here, four girls go through a dance routine. (CP Photo).

London's Windmill Theatre Not a Strip-Tease Joint, Gals on Stage Pre-Peeled

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Sheila Van Damm says the Windmill Theatre is not a strip-tease joint.

And despite anything that Canadian war veterans may say to the contrary, there is no doubt that Miss Van Damm, the theatre's owner - manager, is right.

A strip - tease theatre is a place where girls disrobe before the audience — something that never happens at the Windmill. The girls at the Windmill come out on the stage already stripped.

With this established, the 39-year - old Miss Van Damm swung easily in her swivel chair and offered her thoughts on the Windmill's remarkable reputation.

"First it's an institution—there's nothing else quite like it in the world—a non - stop revue. Then there is the fact that the worst wartime blitz failed to stop our shows. Our productions have always been fun-filled and decent and, let's face it, men love to see beautiful girls."

ENJOY WORK

Windmill girls are famous. Forty of them, forming two separate companies, keep the 320 seats well filled from noon till midnight in the summer months and attract enough customers to more than break even in winter.

They light up the small stage with dancing, singing and cavorting that clearly entertain the predominantly male audience, 80 per cent tourist. The scenery and lighting take a back seat to few West End theatres and what the girls lack in talent they make up in their obvious enjoyment of their work.

The dancers are clothed—to a degree. The nude ones, by strict order of the Lord Chamberlain's office, must stand perfectly still. They do it admirably.

The theatre also offers comedy acts, jugglers, acrobats and other variety numbers. The audience looks upon these interruptions with polite intolerance.

The Windmill is a respectable place. No one ever criticizes it for indecency. Its girls, in the view of those who know them, are fine, upstanding young ladies. Vancouver comic Frank Berry, who has made three seven - week stands at the theatre, said the performers are "about the nicest bunch I've ever worked with."

SOCIAL CROSS-SECTION

Some of the girls come from Britain's aristocracy; 25 per cent are married; one has a family. One Mayfair mother comes to the theatre every night in a chauffeur - driven car to pick up her daughter.

The theatre's founder was Vivian Van Damm, a shrewd businessman, a tough producer and "a bit of a dictator" — in Sheila's words — but with a heart of gold.

From the time he established the Windmill 29 years ago, just off Piccadilly, until his death a few months ago, he devoted much of his effort to helping performers who showed promise. Often he worked them into bigger theatres at the expense of the Windmill.

There are 47 prominent names in British theatre and television that once appeared in small print on Windmill programs. And Sheila is determined to continue this tradition. She has already arranged for one of her best dancers to get into a high - paying Las Vegas show.

"The girls tend to regard me as an elder sister," says the plump theatre boss. "They'll call me by my first name, they tell me their troubles and we work things out together. . . . I think it's absolutely essential that we retain a happy atmosphere at the Windmill. A girl who is obviously happy is an attraction."

TURNOVER IS SMALL

The girls must be fairly happy. The average one stays with the theatre four years, making from £12 to £30 a week.

"It's a wonderful challenge, this job," says Miss Van Damm. "I love revue and want to make this a fast - moving, intelligent show that will bring the whole family into the theatre. Naked women are not an attraction by themselves any more, with our beaches so well filled with bikinis."

The Windmill seldom fires any of its 120 employees — the exception being Sheila herself who was dismissed from the public relations office by her father in 1946 because he thought someone else could do a better job.

She took up flying and became a commercial pilot. Later she turned to cars and twice was European ladies champion driver. Then, in 1956 when her father's health began to fail and it was obvious her two elder sisters weren't interested in stepping in, Sheila came back to the show.

"It would be madness to let the theatre go. It's part of the family and I love it."

Sheila, who lives with her mother in a luxurious apartment—they also have two country houses — loves the Windmill enough to spend 11 hours of her day there.

Uncle Miltie Is Contender For Award Nomination

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Who would have expected to find television's Uncle Miltie a contender for an academy award nomination?

But as ballots go out this weekend for the annual Oscar sweepstakes, Milton Berle, who played himself in Let's Make Love is among candidates for the best supporting actor nomination.

It would be refreshing to see Milton win—if for no other reason than that he promises to give the first honest acceptance speech in Oscar history.

"If I get the Oscar," he promises, "I will say that I thank no one but myself. I did it all, folks."

The critics put Milton in the Oscar race. Bosley Crowther of the New York Times was ecstatic about Berle playing Berle.

STOLE THE SHOW

Crowther said Berle stole the show without much effort from Marilyn Monroe and Yves Montand. The Times' writer devoted three-quarters of his review to Milton who only was on screen 11 minutes.

This has been Uncle Miltie's year. NBC-TV put him on Jackpot Bowling when it had a miserable rating of .06.

"Other comics thought it a comedown for a star comic to go on a sports show. I didn't. Now it's a combination sports-comedy show."

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Sunday, February 5, 1961

General Tendencies: You are able to get almost anyone who is in any position of power and-or influence to really give you the benefit of their helpful ideas and authority today. So, co-operate with all such persons intelligently. Then tonight be very careful to avoid any argument, discussions. Keep impersonal Be cagey with all officials, executives, don't scrap.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Consult those persons in a.m. who have very clear, fine minds and lots of valuable experience behind them. Clear up any personal problems that may be plaguing you. Later, confer with personal friends who are modern but spiritual. Grow.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) The ideal day to be with persons who will have a fine influence upon you and can give you wonderful ideas for making your life more beautiful and prosperous. Become a leader that others will emulate. P.M. steer clear of strangers.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—Morning is fine since you will [illegible] the inspiration you need to reach your goals in the future. Be certain you attend the services of your choice. Carry out ideas expounded on the pulpit. Take it easy tonight. Relax and be happy.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Now is the right day to follow the excellent idea given you by a member of the family which you intuitively know is right and will be of great benefit to you. Be careful tonight that you do not argue and take away from present harmony with others.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Be sure you do attend that church service, religious meeting, etc., that will help you to better understand yourself and others as well as the all-important matters of the spirit. Get together with friends of talent. P.M. take it easy.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Analyze and draw from that field of experience in all spiritual and business affairs of the past as a barometer for the future which you can make more happy and prosperous. Call on the right people, too. P.M. don't spend money foolishly.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — If attuned properly with astrological influences, you should feel most happy and contented. Go out with charming people who can add much to your joie de vivre. P.M. be gentle with kin.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) The ideal day to study spiritual matters that will be of great value to you, regardless of creed or color. Do research work on whatever is puzzling to you. Take it easy this evening and restore your energies for busy week ahead.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — The right day to get together with kind and gentle friends who understand you. Heed their wise words and go with them to charming places of fine atmosphere. Live the Golden Rule yourself, as they do. Be happy.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Sit back and think exactly how to best utilize your experiences of the past so that you have a happier and more prosperous future. See those higher-ups that can be approached informally today. P.M. guard reputation, prestige.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Delve into the fine philosophical and classical works that you so enjoy year in and year out. Impress others with your truly academic nature and love of the finest things in life. P.M. get out and meet the right people.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) You can quietly analyze the methods by which you will be able to get ahead faster in the future and then contact one in powerful position informally. Evening is fine for club meetings, delving into artistic or musical outlets. Be happy.

If your child is born today — he, or she, will be possessed of such an infectious charm that few will be able to resist relinquishing anything desired by your progeny. So, be sure you early teach your fascinating youngster that nothing is ever truly enjoyed that has not been earned by one's own efforts. Also, when it becomes necessary to work during adulthood, it is best your son, or daughter, be properly equipped for success.

Monday, February 6, 1961

General Tendencies: The morning is one of those times when every sort of block or obstacle can arise to put you behind the eight-ball if you try to force any sort of issue. However, if you make a point to let conditions work themselves out, merely doing the basic work expected of you, all kinds of beneficial results follow. Be sure that you do make a point to be co-operative through tonight.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Be careful that you do not become involved in an argument between a partner and a higher-up. Remain neutral, wear a smile and go about your own business. Then all clears up nicely and you do not lose any valuable friendships.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Don't permit new acquaintances to disturb you at your present job, since you are perfectly capable in it. Later, consult with clever member of your own family about any problem that may be troubling you at this time.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—If you do not keep promises made, both of a monetary or personal nature, you can get into quite a bit of trouble. Later, be grateful for any spontaneous gifts instead of resentful. P.M. take that little trip to see a good friend.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — An associate and one close of kin are endeavoring to involve you in some situation of which you should definitely keep out of, or you literally become the goat. Concentrate upon how to have a greater abundance instead.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Be sure you handle any important matters yourself and not rely on co-workers or associates who can be very disappointing. Be courteous, however, with them. P.M. take health treatments needed. Get hair arranged in newest fashion.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—While you are anxious to have a good time now, if you shirk any responsibilities, you may lose out greatly in important affairs. Keep busily occupied. Evening is then still free for romantic interests or club work. Be happy.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—While matters at home are quite tense now, it is best you make this a productive day by allying yourself with your most influential and progressive friend. P.M. become more popular socially.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—A day for tending strictly to business, whether in vocational or personal matters. Do your best to get the approval of higher-up. Later, drive carefully while out shopping or going to meetings, etc. Be kind to close ties.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Rather than fret over any financial or other problems, keep busily occupied finding more lucrative outlets that will increase income. Evening is then fine for having a good time with compatibles who can also be stepping stones.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try not to be annoying to others with your problems today, as well as to make yourself literally ill over your lot in life — you have many blessings. Get out and be of service to others, which is the panacea for all ailments.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) There is every opportunity for advancement and increasing prestige today, if you put aside all worry and get busy. Don't be afraid to look into new outlets, meet fine individuals, study new methods, etc. P.M. relax. Have fun.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) By being cheerful now you help yourself and those about you. And be sure to avoid that gloomy individual who is not thinking straight and can warp your own mind at a time when you have all you can do to help yourself.

If your child is born today—there is a tendency in this nature to do everything in the most difficult way and to learn only through experience, so it behooves you early to give your child the benefit of your own knowledge and teach wisdom by example and logical explanation. You will have an apt pupil and then the chart is fine for any profession where originality is a requisite.

Plants, People Have Same Needs

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Water, food, fresh air, sun, rest and cleanliness, people need all these things to thrive and so do plants.

During the summer most of these things are supplied in varying degrees by natural processes. House plants on the other hand are totally dependant upon the housewife, or their owner for their needs.

Different types of plants have different needs. Some can get along on small amounts of water such as the cacti and succulents. These can stand dry atmosphere, strong sun and little water. They need little food, but given just the right amounts they will flourish and increase. Pothos and Philadendrons do very well in water and with little or no sun. Flowering plants must have strong light and some sun. African violets seem to do very well without the sun if they are given a good northern light. Ferns and foliage plants prefer shade from the sun but good light.

By studying their needs you can keep your houseplants in good health.

WATER WITH CARE

Consider too your surroundings. If you have dry air in your home as most of us do in the winter, increase the humidity and give extra water on certain days. When the weather is cold outside the heating system works harder to keep the indoor temperature up and this robs the air of more moisture than on warmer days when the heating system does not have to work so hard. Give water to plants as they need it. Touch the soil surface with the finger and if it is the least bit damp wait until it feels amost dry, but not bone dry. Cyclamen and hydrangeas are heavy drinkers. They often need water twice a day to keep them in good condition. Geraniums, begonias, petunias seldom need it oftener than every second day. Water should not stand in the saucer below the plant. A short time after watering tip out any water that has drained down into the saucer. Try to give just the right amount. Water can leach out the nutrients and they are discarded when you empty the saucer.

Plastic pots do not show moisture on the outside of the pots as do the red clay pots. However, they have been tested and approved by many nurseryman. The clay pot being porous speeds evaporation and this cools the soil. As the temperature near the window may be as much as 20 degrees lower than the air in the centre of the room this constant evaporation keeps, the roots really cold in winter.

QUICKER RESULTS

If you are planning to root cuttings of geraniums or begonias try using a plastic, or glass container. You will get quicker results than if clay pots are used. A little bottom heat will also be a hlep.

Rest and food should be considered together. During the dark days of winter, from November until mid-January plant growth is often sluggish due to decreased light. This is a good time to withhold nutrients. Trying to force plants into growth without sufficient light gives them indigestion. Respect this natural resting time and they will respond with more vigorous growth later. Give only enough water to keep the leaves from turning yellow and dropping. Watch this carefully as artificial heat robs the plants of moisture quickly.

KEEP LEAVES CLEAN

Wash or spray your plants often enough to keep their leaves clean. A tepid spray once a week does wonders for jaded plants. Even the furry leaved plants will welcome a wash. Wrap the pot and the soil in plastic or cover soil with foil and wash in a pan of tepid water, or apply tepid water with a spray attachement. Leave the plants in the kitchen or bathroom to dry off thoroughly before returning them to the cooler air of the window.

If a new plant pest sneaked into your home on a gift plant treat it now, before it spreads to other plants. Mealy bugs, those snowy bits that look like batten in the crotch of the leaves can be killed by alcohol. Wrap a toothpick with cotton and dip in alcohol, any type will do perfume or rubbing alcohol and touch the furry mass. Do not touch the plant stem, or leaf.

Red spider, springtails, and white fly can be controlled with a dusting of all purpose plant dust, or a nicotine soap spray. Use all products according to directions.

Most plants resent drafts but all need fresh air. Open the back and front door or a door and a window to give a good cross current of air but keep your plants out of this direct current.

DELAY CITY HALL

TORONTO (CP) — Start of construction of Toronto's new city hall has been put back one month to July 1, Mayor Nathan Phillips said Friday. The delay is due to alterations which will reduce the cost of the structure, he said.

Your Car

Don't Let Snow And Icy Ruts Hold You Back

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

What can you do when you slide, skid or are forced to stop in hard snow or icy ruts and can't get out? Without shovel, chains, sand or dirt, cloth, hot water or rock salt you still might try several things.

Get as much weight as possible in the rear of the car. Keep the wheels turned as straight as possible. Let several pounds of air out of the rear tires. 'Gunning' the engine to spin the wheels faster will be fruitless when there is little or no traction.

Some motorists do not remain stuck for long because they are fairly adept at 'rocking' the car out of trouble. To rock, shift into reverse and grandually accelerate. When backward travel ceases and the wheels begin to spin, quickly release the gas pedal, shift into low and again accelerate gradually. When the car stops moving forward, again release the accelerator and quickly shift into reverse. Patiently continue this rhythmic, rocking motion and you will very often find it quite successful.

L. C. asks: "If faulty engine timing is the cause of engine overheating, would it mean that the timing is too fast or too slow?"

(A) It would mean ignition timing is retarded.

F. D. writes: "I know you can't use oil on noisy rubber leaf spring bushings, but is it correct that brake fluid is all right?"

(A) Yes. Brake fluid is commonly used. There are, however, lubricants especially designed for such rubber parts which are available at service stations or supply stores.

From B. T.: "Suspecting a brake drag at the left rear wheel, I checked after driving a few miles and found that both rear wheels were abnormally hot. Is it likely both rear brakes are dragging?"

(A) It is more likely that trouble in the parking brake system is causing the drag at both wheels.

Minor Hockey

The Bruins and Red Wings took comfortable leads, due to a coupel of strong individual performances, as the playoffs commenced in the Peewee division of the BMHA this morning.

All series are two-game, total goals-to-count affairs with the second game in each series slated for next Saturday morning.

Bruins blanked the Canadiens 5-0 with Ronnie Hannah's three consecutive goals building up the margin. Wayne McTaggart and Jim Murray also scored while Ross McDougall drew two assists and Murray one.

A starring effort by Larry Moore gave the Red Wings a 5-1 victory over the Black Hawks. Moore assisted on his team's first goal, scored by T. Boulter, then scored the final four goals himself, all unassisted. J. Beatty replied for the Hawks with help from S. Thorne.

The Browns will carry a three-goal lead into next week's game after blanking the Macs 3-0. P. Goodfellow, T. Herrington, who also had an assist, and W. Hay potted the goals. T. Beresford and D. Parsons had helpers.

Rangers downed Quinte by a 4-2 count. Ranger goals were scored by M. Smith, Steven Scott, D. Chambers and C. Smith. N. Brown assisted on a pair. Richard Eves and J. Pope were the Quinte marksmen while Wayne Muir assisted on both goals.

The Baron-Maple Leaf game next Saturday will be a sudden-death affair after they fought to a 1-1 deadlock this morning. Gary Lowe scored for Leafs on a play with A. Bradley and P. Bishop. Jim McCreary had the Barons' goal with Ron Brooks and John Holgate assisting.

Quinte COSSA Basketball

By BILL BURLEY

Starting into the last half of the season's games last night Quinte Secondary defeated Trenton High School with a three-ply victory. The seniors defeated the Tigers 58-33, still retaining their first place tie with BCI. The juniors belted the Tigers in a 57-10 landslide, also retaining their first place tie with BCI and Moira, and ending the games the Bantams took a 41-31 toss-up over the Little Tigers.

SENIORS

The senior game proved to be another fine win for the Quinte seniors. They started a scoring rampage, but this didn't dampen the Tigers' efforts. The Tigers were just not up to their regular shooting standards. The first half was taken by Quinte by a few points but in the last half the Saints cracked down and made the score board jump to take the game.

Line-ups:

Trenton—Whitley 9; Lawrence; Bowman 4; Kinney; Kerr 6; Thompson; Byrnes; Scuccutts 14.

Quinte—Baker 2; Rose 8; Follwell 8; Davis 13; Marriot; Mills 1; Michaud 8; Locke 8; Campbell 10.

JUNIORS

Once again the Tigers failed to get going. The Saints were really working the ball around and by effective defensive measures, only allowed a point to be scored in the first quarter. Trenton tried to rally by scoring two field goals in a row, but Quinte checked this by scoring 12 baskets. In the last half the Tigers made a final attempt by hooping another five points, but the horn blew ending the game with Quinte slicing off a big score to take the game. High scorer of the game was Wayne Gilroy, the triple threat man of Quinte, with 19 points.

Line-up:

Trenton—Bowman 2; Webb 5; Berle 1; Armstrong 2; Rathbun; Mortey; Robinson, Parsons; Price; Champagne; McDonald; Gregg; Blair.

Quinte—Irvine 5; Burley 3; Onderdonk; McBride 10; Fair 7; Gilroy 19; Firkin 2; Phillips; Turner 11; Matthews 2.

BANTAMS

The batams got off to a usual slow start once again. In the first half it was hard to say who would win the game. The Saints were putting up a strong offensive play but lacked good defensive patterns. The second half was led by Quinte as was the rest of the game. Trenton only lagged behind by five points until the last few minutes when Quinte pulled out to win.

Line-ups:

Trenton—McGregor 2; Webb 8; Perks 8; Galbraith 1; Alexander; Geord; Meyers, Whitley; Fleming 4; Wright, Lesson 4; Davis 4.

Quinte—Middleton 5; Fletcher 2; Reppard 6; Eves 5; Campbell 2; Leslie 8; Bylsma 1; Taylor; Flindall 1; Livingston.

CLERGYMAN IS CARTOONIST — Rev. Lawrence A. Purdy, Montreal-born United Church minister now serving in Trinidad, is also a part-time cartoonist. Mr. Purdy, 33, is a graduate of the University of Toronto and has served in churches at Creighton Mines, Ont., and Toronto. (CP Photo).

United Church Minister Also Capable Cartoonist On Tropical Trinidad

By L. A. BRUNTON
Canadian Press Correspondent

SAN FERNANDO, Trinidad (CP) — Every so often Rev. Lawrence A. Purdy, Montreal-born United Church minister takes time out from the serious business of preaching religion on this tropical island to draw a cartoon lampooning the ideosyncracies of clergymen or churchgoers.

The cartoons, usually depicting a minister in some rib-tickling situation, are designed to show that the church and its clergy have a human side.

In one he depicted a senior minister giving advice to a newcomer: ". . . And keep your visits brief—no discussing politics or religion."

Another showed a minister concluding a marriage counselling class by saying: ". . . And finally before you choose a November wedding date, please find out when the Grey Cup game is."

A third showed a couple leaving church, the woman saying to her husband: "We attend every Easter and he still doesn't remember our name."

CLERICATURES

The cartoons have appeared regularly in the United Church Observer in Canada during the last five years.

Some of the best have been collected into a special edition published by Ryerson Press of Toronto under the title Clericatures.

But cartooning is strictly a hobby for the hard-working 33-year-old Canadian who since his arrival here in 1959 has injected new life into the work of what was formerly known as the Canadian Mission.

Because Trinidad, a member of the West Indies Federation, is to become self - governing later this year, the name of the mission has been changed to the "Presbyterian Church." It is headed by a Trinidadian and has powers of self-government.

Mr. Purdy, now chaplain to Presbyterian secondary schools and colleges in Trinidad, makes his headquarters at Naparima College in San Fernando, Trinidad's second largest city.

Since he arrived here he has established the island's first travelling Bible school, founded an amateur radio society and helped to set up three Alcoholics Anonymous groups.

WAS RCAF CHAPLAIN

A graduate of Victoria College at the University of Toronto, Mr. Purdy was ordained in 1952 and served at Creighton Mines, Ont., and Applewood church, near Toronto, before volunteering for overseas mission work. He also served four years as chaplain in the RCAF Auxiliary and had special training in clinical counselling and psychiatry at the Toronto General Hospital.

Of all of his accomplishments here, he is perhaps proudest of his Bible caravan. He said the idea behind the caravan is to educate people by making students share their experiences with others.

The caravan, ready to visit any area where the people request it, has a small bus equipped with a public address system. Study, worship, games, crafts and songs are featured.

Senior college students are called on to help. This has proved, said Mr. Purdy, that the college boys "represent a great potential for service in our church and community yet to be fully developed."

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Let the Spurned Widow's Story Serve as a Warning to All Men

By THOMAS COLLINS

Women, being women, will do nothing but stir their emotions if they read what follows here.

But men, both the young ones and the old ones, can profit from it. And it is for them that this particular column is written.

A woman, apparently well-born and intelligent, has come upon an emotional crisis in the Golden Years of her life, and has spelled out to me the details of it.

Her Story:

"I am a widow. I own my home. I have sufficient income for my needs. What I tell you here is not an episode or a passing problem, but a five-year journey into grief.

"My son, who was an only child, married just a few months after my husband died. He married a girl who had not finished her education and had been petted all her life by her mother.

"Because I had money I stepped in to help them after their marriage. I helped them buy a home. I bought most of their furniture.

"I wanted to be accepted by my daughter-in-law, and to a limited extent I was.

OFFERED HER HELP

"As time moved on I offered what help I could.

"When they had company for dinner I would cook for them. At times I would cook the dinner at my home and bring it to their home. I was never invited to stay for dinner.

"After about two years they had a baby. From the start I bought everything for the baby, starting with its bed. Then, when my son and his wife wanted to go out, night or day, they would call me to baby-sit. I would always go. In a period of one month I baby-sat for my grandchild a total of 23 times, which included three or four times a week when my daughter-in-law wanted to play bridge.

"Sometimes I would keep the baby six or eight hours in one day. Once I kept him for two weeks while my son and his wife took a vacation.

"They had no baby-sitter except me.

"The baby is now three years old, and till now I have bought all his clothes. I have also let my daughter-in-law use my car two or three times each week for her bridge games and given my son more than $7,000, which is practically all of my savings.

"So what happens? Three months ago my daughter-in-law informed me that she had decided she no longer wanted me in their lives. She said then — and has insisted since — that she doesn't want me to visit her home. She has asked me not even to phone.

"I haven't visited. I haven't phoned. I haven't been able to see the grandson I baby-sat for for three years. I have hardly seen my son — even when his wife had a birthday party for him I wasn't invited.

"At this point things have reached a stage where my daughter-in-law threatens to leave my son, taking the baby with her, if I do not stay out of their lives; and her own mother, who spoiled her to start with, is strongly supporting her in this."

WHO IS TO BLAME?

Is this a spoiled mother with an only son who can't let a younger woman have him?

Is it a case of a son with no backbone?

Is it a spoiled daughter-in-law who got all she could get and then slammed the door?

Or is it a case of two older widows, each spoiled by the luxury of having had a husband, and both grasping for their children to lean on when their husbands passed away, battling each other for the same crutch?

Even Solomon wouldn't know. But since it is men who spoil women, both the young ones and the old ones, it behooves them to study the unhappiness of this widow and take [illegible] to see that the same sort [illegible] private tragedy doesn't happen to them or theirs.

Three Weekend Fires Claim 14 Victims

Seven Children Die In One Quebec Fire

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thirteen children and an adult died in three separate weekend fires in Quebec province.

Two other large fires in Eastern Canada caused damage totalling almost $1,000,000 but there was no loss of life.

The worst single disaster occurred Sunday near Windsor Mills, Que., where a farmhouse burned, killing the seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Marc Saint-Laurent.

Five children perished Saturday in a house fire at Maniwaki, Que., 90 miles north of Ottawa, and two more Sunday in a house fire at Beauharnois, Que., 30 miles west of Montreal.

In Ottawa Saturday fast-spreading flames destroyed the Dominion United Church and the Robertson Arts Galleries and caused smoke and water damage to other downtown area buildings including the Centre Theatre.

TO CONTROL CROWD

Total loss was estimated at close to $600,000. At the height of the blaze Mayor Charlotte Whitton proclaimed a state of emergency to give firemen whatever powers they needed to control the crowds of spectators and recruit aid.

The other big fire was at Donnacona, Que., a pulp and paper town on the St. Lawrence River north shore, where a block-long business section was destroyed Saturday night and early Sunday.

Loss was estimated at $400,000. Ten families—441 persons in all—were left homeless. They fled into the street in 10-degree below zero weather.

Cause of the fire at Windsor Mills was not determined.

Provincial police identified the victims as: Albert, 8, Donald, 7, Dianne, 6, Carmen, 5, Gaston, 4, Denis, 3, and Francois, 2.

Late Sunday night police had recovered four charred bodies from the ruins of the two-storey wooden farmhouse.

WERE MILKING

Mr. and Mrs. Saint-Laurent were milking cows in the barn when the fire started shortly after 9 a.m.

The children had been sleeping late, the father said, because everyone stayed up later

DONNACONA, Que. (CP) — A block-long business section of this St. Lawrence River pulp and paper town lay in ice-coated ruins today following a $400,000 weekend fire.

The fire burned nine hours Saturday night and early Sunday, wrecking a two-storey stretch of stores, offices and homes. The ruins, covered in thick ice which quickly formed in a 10-below weather, smouldered all day Sunday.

The outbreak left 10 families, 41 persons in all, homeless. Most of these were children quickly hustled from their beds wearing only pajamas. Mrs. Michel Bernadette, 86, an invalid, was the oldest. She was carried out by her two daughters.

Some residents were able to save personal belongings. But most lost everything.

CANCELS SPEECH

Mayor Raoul Matthieu, running in a civic election today, estimated damage at "not less than $400,000." He cancelled an election speech Sunday night because "this is not the time to hold a public assembly."

His home and hardware store are just across the town's main street from the ruined buildings which housed a men's wear shop, a department store, a combination butcher and grocer shop and a number of offices and the flats above.

The buildings were made of wood and were up to 50 years old.

Fire Chief Paul Lavallee said the blaze started in the butcher shop about 10 p.m. It was brought under control near 7 a.m. Sunday.

Firemen from six nearby communities—including Quebec 25 miles away—were brought in to fight the blaze. So was a five-man army demolition team when it was feared the flames might jump to other buildings. But a wind which rose to 20 miles an hour at 6 a.m. died down quickly and the team was not needed.

Elaine Brethour Dies of Burns

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Elaine Brethour, 4, died in hospital Sunday of burns suffered Friday in a fire that took the lives of her two sisters, Karen, 2, and Sandra, 10 months.

Elaine was rescued from the Brethours' frame farm house near Baptiste Lake, some 75 miles northeast of here, by her father Garnet, 25. He is recovering in hospital from burns to his face and hands. His wife was out visiting at the time of the fire.

KILLS THREE

GNADENHUTTEN, Ohio (AJ)—Charles Bunday, a quiet-mannered brick company employee, beat and stabbed his wife and two children to death in their sleep, then hanged himself, sheriff's deputies reported Sunday. Authorities have no idea what might have prompted the savage slayings and suicide.

41 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An outbreak of fires and traffice smashes swelled Canada's toll of accidental deaths during the weekend.

Quebec was hit by house fires that killed 13 children and one adult. Two other persons were asphyxiated.

Six traffic deaths increased Quebec's toll to 22, more than half the over-all count across the country. A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday listed 41 fatalities, 20 in traffic, 15 in fires and six in other accidents.

Seven Quebec children died in a house fire at Windsor Mills, five at Maniwaki and two more at Beauharnois. One person in Ontario also died in a fire.

CRASH KILLS THREE

Four apprentice soldiers died in Ontario. Three were killed in a car crash near Perth and another died in a trial parachute jump at Gananoque. Four other persons died in traffic in the province, a boy was killed tobogganing and a youth died after becoming lost while skiing.

Two persons died in road col-

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis—Variable amounts of cloud and sunshine were forecast for Ontario today. Light and intermittent snow in the U.S. midwest may reach Southern Ontario Tuesday.

Cousin of Queen Wants to Ban Sunday Drinking on His Island

GLASGOW (AP) — Lord Granville, a cousin of the Queen, wants to ban Sunday drinking on his Hebridean island of North Uist and so head off a weekly invasion from the neighboring island of South Uist—always on Sundays.

The two islands in the Outer Hebrides off the northwest coast of Scotland are separated by a two-mile strip of the Atlantic Ocean—but they are divided by more than that.

The inhabitans of North Uist, pop. 2,579, are "wee frees"—the strictest of Presbyterians. The inhabitants of South Uist (pop. 3,235), are Roman Catholics and prefer a slightly more "continental" Sunday.

Another difference is that the north island's Lochmaddy Hotel, owned by the Queen's cousin, has the only bar on the islands with a licence to serve drinks on Sundays.

Until last fall there was never any great Sunday trade.

But in September the Queen Mother opened a causeway between the two islands. It was designed to bring them closer together but it only pushed them farther apart. For instead of having to risk a journey in a row boat, the southerners now stream across the causeway on a Sunday bound for the bar on the Dockmaddy Hotel.

The northerners staged angry protest meetings. They sent a petition to Lord Granville, ultimate authority on the island. Now Lord Granville has instructed the manager of the Lochmaddy Hotel to apply to the licensing justices for a six-day liquor license instead of the current seven-day licence, eliminating Sunday.

Sir Compton Mackenzie, author of many comic novels about the western isles—including the best-selling Whisky, Galore—had his own solution: Let the south island people get their own liquor licence.

One consolation remains for the men of South Uist: The next sitting of the local licensing court is not until April.

CONVICT, WOMAN HELD HOSTAGE, ARE RECOVERING

Escapee Shot Down By Police Bullets

MONTREAL (CP) — Convict Donald Pollick and the woman he held as a hostage for 14 hours were both being treated in hospital today for bullet wounds inflicted at the climax of a suspense-filled drama enacted in the shadow of St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary during the weekend.

Pollock's freedom ended early Sunday when a provincial police sharpshooter dropped him with two well-placed bullets.

The woman, Mrs. Rolland Cyr, was slightly wounded when Pollock stumbled after being shot and the rifle he was holding apparently went off.

Both Pollock and Mrs. Cyr, 42-year-old wife of the penitentiary paymaster, were reported in satisfactory condition 24 hours after the shooting.

Pollock made his break for freedom during a hockey game outside the penitentiary walls about midday Saturday. He slugged a guard, grabbed his rifle and ran to the nearby Cyr house.

THREATENS DEATH

For 14 hours he carried on telephone negotiations with penitentiary officials and police, threatening to kill Mrs. Cyr and himself if police tried to rush the house.

A passing motorist, Jean-Maurice Leblanc, 55, was shot in the chest by Pollock shortly after the escape. Police would not confirm reports that Pollock tried to seize Leblanc's car.

Leblanc was also reported in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Cyr and their 11-year-old daughter Carole were in the house when Pollock burst in but they ran out.

Provincial police reported at first that two women were being held hostage. Later they learned the daughter escaped, running through the back door.

Mrs. Cyr remained calm throughout her ordeal and was unharmed until she was wounded at the moment of Pollock's capture.

Police set the stage for Pollock's capture when it was arranged late Saturday evening that prison supervisor Robert Trudel would drive to the house and meet him outside it.

Pollock warned by phone that Trudel was to be alone and unarmed, or else Mrs. Cyr would be killed.

Trudel did go alone but, as he drove up, provincial police slipped into position unseen around the house. It was then midnight.

Lieut. Rene Marchand had been waiting in a snowbank with his .303-calibre rifle for half an hour when the door of the Cyr house finally opened.

Pollock pushed Mrs. Cyr out first, pointing his stolen rifle at her back.

Lieut. Marchand fired quickly, hitting the convict in the right wrist and shoulder.

Capt. Albert Bissaillan ran up and seized Pollock, who was bundled into Trudel's car and driven to an ambulance waiting at police roadblocks half a mile away.

Trudel said Pollock was under the influence of barbiturates—commonly known as goofballs—but this was denied by other prison officials.

Northeastern U.S. Buried By Snow, Claims 100 Deaths

NEW YORK (AP) — Northeastern areas of the U.S. struggled today to overcome the devastation of a weekend storm that buried the area under up to 40 inches of snow. It was blamed for nearly 100 deaths.

Meanwhile, a new storm headed northeastward after dumping up to eight inches of snow on portions of Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas and glazing nearby areas with freezing rain or sleet.

The storm was expected to move across the Midwest and into the middle Mississippi Valley, Kentucky and the Tennessee today but posed no immediate threat to the bealeaguered Northeast.

The season's third major storm virtually paralyzed the area from the Carolinas northward into New England during the weekend.

The howling storm, accompanied by winds up to 75 miles an hour, whipped the snow into gigantic drifts, severed utility lines and reduced travel to a minimum.

Numerous towns and cities, mostly in New England and New York, were under emergency conditions long after the storm roared out to sea off the tip of Nova Scotia early Sunday.

Air, rail and bus schedules were still a scramble Sunday night but officials held out hope that reasonable service would be restored today.

New York City, its 6,000 miles of streets nearly strangled with 17 inches of snow, was still closed to all but emergency travel.

The city's two major airports, Idlewild and La Guardia, resumed operations only Sunday night after being closed since Friday, forcing the cancellation of some 2,600 flights.

The four major railroads operating out of the city hoped to be back on schedule today.

Among hardest-hit communities was Cortland, N.Y., which measured 40 inches of snow, the heaviest in the city's history. Boston had 14.4 inches but northern area of New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine escaped the full fury as the storm moved out to sea.

The storm came on the heels of 16 consecutive days of subfreezing temperatures but the mercury was expected to climb to the 30s today with the welcome prospect of some thawing.

Russia Unusually Silent On Mission, Fate of Sputnik

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union maintained an unusual silence today on the mission and fate of its huge new Sputnik—the biggest ever launched. Western tracking stations were unable to trace the satellite.

A Soviet scientist, Professor Yevgeny Leondovich Klinov, hinted that the seven-ton satellite, whose launching was announced Saturday, was unmanned. He said it was designed to study the earth and its environment.

Moscow's official silence was in contrast to previous satellite launchings, when Soviet scientists routinely announced how equipment was functioning and the schedule of cities to be passed over.

Western experts speculated that the Russians might be keeping some spectacular development a secret until its success was assured.

Western scientists especially noted the Soviet seemed in no hurry to answer speculation that the Sputnik might be carrying a man through space. The satellite is large enough to carry an astronaut—and perhaps two.

Britain's leading satellite expert, Professor Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank tracking station, said, "There is certainly something rather odd about the long Russian silence on the satellite's progress."

He suggested the Sputnik's radio may have broken down or the Russians might be transmitting on frequencies not used before.

"It may be, of course, that there is some living thing on board—not necessarily a man—and the Russians are saying nothing until they get the satellite safely back to earth," he said.

Japanese scientists said they picked up signals being transmitted today on frequencies normally used by Soviet satellites but said the signals seemed to be coming from a fixed station and not an orbiting object.

Prof. Klinov was quoted by Moscow radio as saying the satellite was designed "to study the earth as a planet and to make a study of its nearest environment, including that of meteoritic dangers."

The 7.1-ton Sputnik compares with the 4½-ton Atlas-Score satellite, the largest the United States has sent into orbit, which was launched Dec. 18, 1959.

Slight Delay in Returning Home Passengers on Ship

RECIFE (AP)—Most of the Santa Maria's adventure-jaded American passengers looked forward to returning to home soil today, but it seems there will be a slight delay.

Thirty-eight of the Americans set out by plane Sunday night. They were booked to board a flight for Miami at Belem, an Amazon delta city 1,050 miles northwest of Recife.

But an airline spokesman in Miami said the flight was delayed for some reason and woul not arrive in Miami until early Tuesday.

That will make it two full weeks since the scheduled docking of the Santa Maria at Port Everglades, Fla., a port of call that the luxury liner missed when Portuguese rebels took over.

LINER UNDER REPAIR

The once-captive luxury liner lay at her berth in Recife for resupply and repairs. Her former captor, rebel Capt. Henrique Galvao, also stayed in Recife, restricted by police for the time being despite a promise of political asylum in Brazil.

Most of the Santa Maria's European passengers were on their way to Lisbon aboard the sister ship Vera Cruz—accompanied by a heavy guard to ensure there was no repetition of the seizure at sea.

The Europeans, about 450 of the Santa Maria's 600 passengers, are mostly Spaniards and Portuguese. Wtih them are 220 Vera Crux passengers who boarded the ship at Rio de Janeiro and Santos, Brazil.

Galvao's armed rebels took over the ship Jan. 22 after killing a ship's officer and wounding three sailors.

Capt. Mario Simoes Maia wep when given back his ship. The Colonial Navigation Company, owner of the $16,600,000 liner, estimates that the Santa Maria's misadventure cost it $100,000 a day.

South Africa Sherry Served At Club Dinner

OXFORD (AP)—Ten bottles of golden sherry have plunged Hugh Gaitskell, British Labor party leader, into a spot of political embarrassment.

The sherry was served at a reception given Jan. 27 for Gaitskell by Oxford University's Labor Club, which takes its socialism seriously.

Everyone enjoyed the sherry, which was served from decanters.

It was only afterwards that the terrible news came out. Gaitskell and company had been drinking South African sherry.

And everyone at the reception was pledgel not to buy any product of South Africa as a protest against the Union's racial laws.

"This may seem funny to you but it's not funny to Mr. Gaitskell," said club organizer John Gyford Saturday night.

He ordered an inquiry into who bought the South African sherry and who told the waiter to serve it from decanters.

Last word to the waiter:

"I had specific instructions to get that wine from a member who said the club couldn't afford Spanish sherry."

ITALIANS TOPS

OTTAWA (CP)—The flow of Italian immigrants to Canada in 1960 topped British arrivals for the third straight year in the post-war period. Statistics issued by the immigration department show Italian arrivals totalled 21,308, down 5,514 from 26,822 in 1959. Movement of British immigrants was up slightly to 20,853 from 19,301.

FOUR MORE DIE IN NEW RIOTS AT ANGOLA CITY

Second Clash Comes At Victims' Funeral

LISBON (AP)—Four persons were reported to have been killed and seven wounded Sunday during new rioting in Luanda, capital of Portugal's West African territory of Angola.

The Portuguese news agency Lusitania said shooting broke out during a funeral procession for seven policemen and soldiers killed in a clash Friday between Negroes and machine-gun-armed police. Nine civilians also were killed in the battle.

Angola's governor-general, Alvaro da Silva Tavares, said all of Sunday's victims were rioters. Da Silva was in the funeral procession but there was no indication that the firing was directed at him.

Da Silva said he has evidence the rioters were "partisans of a Communist-inspired movement that is preparing . . . to implant Sovietism on the Iberian Peninsula."

SAY WEAPONS CZECH

Spokesmen for Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar's regime said modern Czechoslovak weapons were seized by police in Friday's clash.

An official of Portugal's international police denied that Friday's rioters were marching on the police station or staging an uprising against Salazar's dictatorship. He declined to give details. A Canadian eyewitness to the shooting said it developed from a police crackdown on a crowd of drunken revellers at 4 a.m.

Da Silva, however, said Saturday the police had crushed an armed uprising supposedly timed with the seizure of the Portuguese liner Santa Maria by rebels opposing Salazar. He said Leanada's police headquarters and civil and military prisons were attacked by rioters trying to free prisoners.

SAW THE FIGHTING

The tourist from Toronto, Harry Jurgenssen, said he saw the fighting, in a squalid suburb reserved for Africans and poor whites.

"It was sickening and horrible," he said. "The place looked like a slaughterhouse."

Jurgenssen said he was touring the city when he heard noises that sounded like merry-making and dancing on a side street at 4 a.m. He went to watch.

"I saw a dozen men fighting among themselves and hundreds of others standing around drinking, singing and applauding the men who were fighting."

Jurdenssen said police arrived and arrested a few persons. They returned later and opened fire, Jurgenssen said.

"I ducked behind a garbage can and didn't dare show my head.

"When I looked again there were about 30 people lying on the ground, many of them writhing horribly and moaning. I saw a few police standing over them with machine-guns."

Consumer Price Index Declines In December

Cheaper Food, Clothes Follow Drop in Wages

OTTAWA (CP) — The cost of living eased fractionally in December as the consumer price index for Jan. 1 declined four-tenths of a point to 129.2 from 129.6 at Dec. 1.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said today that the decline in the index—based on 1949 prices equalling 100—was caused mainly by a drop in food prices.

The decrease was the first since June when the index dropped to 127.5 at July 1 from 127.6 at June 1. It rose to a record of 129.6 at Nov. 1 and held steady at that level at Dec. 1.

The index at Jan. 1 was 1.7 points higher than the year earlier level of 127.5 at Jan. 1, 1960.

FOOD PRICES DIP

The .3-per-cent drop in the index in December was largely the result of a decrease of nine-tenths of a point in the food index. The clothing index fell one point and the household operation index two-tenths of a point. The other commodities and services index was unchanged and the shelter index rose one-tenth of a point.

The December fall in living costs followed a decline in November in industrial wages. The index of average industrial wages and salaries at Dec. 1—latest date available—was 177.9 compared with 178.3 a month earlier and 172.8 a year earlier. This index is based on 1949 wages equalling 100.

This wages index, computed from a survey of firms employing more than 10 persons and covering a wide range of industries, represents an average of total wages paid.

The food index, in its third monthly drop in a row, fell to 124.4 from 125.3 as a result of substantial price decline, for eggs and fresh tomatoes. Price drops also were reported for citrus fruits, bananas and canned tomatoes, but prices were higher for most other fresh fruits and vegetables and meats.

SALES HELP INDEX

Widespread year-end sales resulted in the clothing index dropping to 111.6 from 112.6.

Meanwhile, wholesale prices rose fractionally.

The wholesale index of 30 industrial materials rose to 236.2 from 235.9 in the three-week period from Dec. 30 to Jan. 20. In the same period, the index of Canadian farm products at terminal markets advanced to 221.7 from 219.3. Both indexes are based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

LEVELS OFF

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian road and street construction is levelling off, the Canadian Good Roads Association says, after a record building value in 1960 of $1,269,000,000. The association says outlays by the federal, provincial and municipal governments rose only three per cent over 1959, the smallest annual percentage growth since the end of the Second World War.

Fidel Castro Still Selling Goods to U.S.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The United States still supplies Fidel Castro with millions of dollars in trade to buy guns, oil and machinery, says the Miami Herald.

"At the present pace, Castro pockets more than $60,000,000 annually through the export of fruits, vegetables and other commodities, despite economic restrictions and severed relations with the United States," the newspaper says.

The Herald, in an article by Dom Bonafede, adds:

"U.S. producers are restoring Cuba's livestock industry, depleted after the revolutionary government assumed power, with weekly shipments of hundreds of breeding cattle and hogs and breeding chicks.

HAS FAVORED POSITION

"Preferential duties granted Cuba after the Spanish-American War are still in force, giving the Red-stained island a favored trade position over all other countries, including our closest free-world allies.

"Canaidan exports licensed in that country may be shipped across the United States in bond and sent to Cuba from Florida without further restrictions."

The Herald says "U.S. department of commerce figures show that Cuban shipments to the United States last November—after the embargo was ordered—amounted to $5,000,000," it says. "U.S. exports to Cuba for the same period totaled $3,846,000."

Shipments from Cuba included cucumbers, tomatoes, tobacco, pineapples, pumpkins, peppers, frozen froglets, ginger, oranges and beeswax; to Cuba, about 50 railroad cars of lard and livestock weekly.

Kennedy Asks Tax Exemption Cut For Tourists From $500 to $100

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy asked Congress today to reduce to $100 from $500 the value of tax-free goods American tourists can bring back to the United States at any one time.

Kennedy made the request in a special message to Congress outlining a plan for stopping the drain on American gold reserves.

At the same time he promised to keep the official price of gold pegged at $35 an ounce; concentrate on a drive to promote American exports; attract more foreign tourists to the United States, and reject trade protectionism as a means of fighting foreign competition.

The president's tourist goods proposal, if adopted by Congress, may leave its impact on Canada. Canada has experienced a chronic deficit in tourist trade with the U.S. because Canadian tourists tend to spend more in the United States than do American tourists in Canada.

The Canadian deficit may be aggravated to the extent that a reduction in the value of goods that could be brought back duty-free discourages American spending in the United States and other countries. Canadians now are allowed to bring back a maximum $100 worth of goods duty-free every four months. Canadians making extended trips overseas can bring back the entire $300-a-year lump sum in one shot.

American tourists now can bring back a maximum of $200 worth of goods duty-free every month providing they remain away two days or more. They get the full $500 exemption every six months providing they remain away 12 days or more.

Kennedy wants the law changed to provide an exemption of $100 a month on out-of-country visits of two days or more.

Officials said a customs bureau survey indicates that American tourists bring home each year $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 of foreign goods free of duty. Some of the goods would remain duty-free under the proposed $100 exemption.

While the U.S. has a surplus in its tourist trade with Canada, Americans spend about $2,000,000,000 a year in other countries while foreign travellers spend about $1,000,000,000 in the U.S.

This, Kennedy said, adds to the over-all American deficit in international payments and a decline in U.S. gold holdings.

Purchasing arrangements having been recently completed for their own school building at 281 John St., the group, composed of parents of school age retarded children and interested local citizens will be holding 'open house' at 8 p.m.

School rooms and samples of children's work will be open for inspection and officers will be present to answer questions regarding a project which is known throughout Ontario as one of the most diversified in its field of activities. These include facilities for pre-school retarded children, adolescents beyond school age, and the adult retarded.

To mark this special occasion a visit has been arranged by Mrs. A. M. Stocker, inspector of auxiliary services, Ontario Department of Education. Mrs. Stocker will supplement her address by showing slides of other schools. Although the school is already operating, the official ceremony of handing over the key is being organized by the Lions Club, which is underwriting the major part of cost of the building and will take place in early April.

Admission will be free and all are welcome.

Wellington Wins Stirling Peewee Tourney

Wellington won the Canadian Legion-sponsored peewee hockey tournament played in Stirling Saturday, defeating Belleville in the final game.

Actually the Belleville club won, outscoring the village youngsters 3-2 but losing by virtue of a four-goal handicap.

Belleville is classed in OMHA regulations as an "A" club, while Wellington is classed as "D".

The tournament was played in two divisions. In one section were teams from Napanee, Frankford, Stirling and Wellington. In the other were Belleville, Trenton, Cooper and Tweed.

The tournament was held under the direction of Marvin Scott of Stirling.

Both finalist teams played three games during the daylong tournament. Wellington played Stirling, Napanee and Belleville with the city youngsters meeting Tweed, Trenton, and Wellington.

Wellington defeated Stirling 13-1 and Napanee 3-2. Belleville won over Tweed 7-5 and Trenton 3-2.

The winners were presented with the Stirling Legion branch trophy at ceremonies following the game.

Welcome Break From Cold Wave

Belleville and district residents are enjoying a welcome respite from the prolonged streak of sub-zero weather, which has seen the mercury tumbling to 15 below and colder for more than two weeks.

Sunday local residents took advantage of the break in weather to do some driving and traffic was steady on local highways during the afternoon.

But there were no serious accidents to mar the day with city police reporting only a few minor fender bumps.

Galvao's Rebels Paid for Drinks, Not Passengers

RECIFE (AP) — In retrospect, the adventure of the Santa Maria seems even more incredible than it did when she sailed out of old Caribbean pirate waters under rebel command.

For example Capt. Henrique Galvao's men paid for their drinks. Unlike pirates of old, they didn't commandeer the ship's liquor stocks. Unlike modern expense account pirates, they didn't charge things with a credit card. These men paid cash.

When they came off watch, passengers said, the rebels put aside their guns, showered and changed to neat civilian clothes—usually dark business suits, white shirts and ties.

Then they drank, dined, chatted and danced with passengers, went to the movies and even helped entertain.

Off duty, the rebels acted like tourists. They swam in the pool while comrades stood guard with guns. They lounged in deck chairs, but were always polite enough to offer a lady a seat.

They took pictures, still and movie, and had pictures taken of themselves with passengers.

One business - suited rebel played the piano for tea time entertainment of passengers in the first class lounge.

Incredible Sea Adventure Plausible in 18th Century But Out of Place in 20th

AP newsfeature writer Saul Pett flew in a U.S. Navy plane helping in the search for the Portuguese liner Santa Maria and covered events after the ship came to harbor in Brazil. Here he tells the story of the ship's stranger-than-fiction odyssey.

By SAUL PETT

RECIFE (AP) — Mrs. Caroline Boyce, a widow from Baltimore, Md., travelling on the Santa Maria awoke about 2 a.m. Sunday, January 22, and looked out the porthole in her cabin.

Mrs. Boyce is an amateur astronomer and she concluded from the position of the North Star that the ship had changed course on the voyage to Port Everglades, Fla., probably temporarily.

She thought nothing more of it and went back to sleep.

It was the last good night for sleep aboard the 20,906-ton Portuguese liner.

The next 12 days and nights were to form an incredible sea adventure—like a badly-written novel which might have been plausible in the 18th century, but not the 20th.

FIRST FROM OTTAWA

Another implausible happening was that the first news of the ship's seizure came from Ottawa—thousands of miles to the north.

The story began in Curacao, a Dutch Caribbean island, where 30 men boarded the ship as passengers.

If anyone noticed their bags were extra heavy, nobody said anything.

Certainly there was nothing to worry about in one of the men. He had a hawklike face, intense dark eyes, a certain amount of dash—altogether the kind of a man that a lonely school teacher might be enchanced to meet on a cruise.

But his name was Henrique Malta Galvao, and he hadn't come aboard in search of romance.

AROUSE CAPTAIN

That Sunday morning, half an hour before Mrs. Boyce awakened to look at the North Star, Capt. Mario Simoes Maia was roused from sleep by a frightened crew member.

The sailor shouted something about passengers suddenly entering the bridge and opening fire, wounding two officers.

Maia could only believe that some passengers had gone berserk—probably from too much liquor—and raced out to investigate.

The ship's master was too late.

His third officer was dead. Three others were wounded.

His ship already was in the hands of 30 men who seized control of strategic points in the middle of the night.

STARES AT GUN

At the bridge Maia found himself staring into the barrel of a sub-machine-gun.

The captain raced back down to his cabin, turned off the lights and called down to order the engines stopped.

Outside his door he saw an officer lying in blood on the deck. As Maia started toward him, a stranger aimed a rifle at him.

The captain whirled around to his phone and tried calling his crew to arm themselves with anything handy. He got no answer—except from the bridge.

"This is Capt. Galvao," a strange, firm voice said, "who in the name of Gen. Humberto Delgado has just taken your ship by assault. You must not try any kind of resistance because it will be violently repressed."

And the passengers heard nothing, saw nothing of this during the night.

BLOOD STAINS FLOOR

Awakening in the morning, Douglas Patton of Boulder City, Nev., a native of Montreal, noticed blood in the passageway and wondered whether some engineer had hurt himself on the machinery. Patton continued on his way to breakfast.

At breakfast, the passengers thought the menus were skimpy and the waiters unusually tense.

Then, men with guns moved in and the loudspeaker announced in Spanish, English and Portuguese that the ship was not going to Florida.

The passengers were told also that this was the beginning of a revolution coinciding with uprising in Portugal and Spain. For the next four or five days there would be no port in sight, the voice said.

About 4 p.m. that day, the phone rang in the communications building headquarters of the U.S. Caribbean Sea Frontier Command in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

LAND THE WOUNDED

It was the U.S. Coast Guard calling with a report from the British frigate Rothesay that the Santa Maria had been commandeered on the high seas, that wounded men were disembarked on the island of St. Lucia and that the Santa Maria was headed east into the Atlantic.

The U.S. Navy in San Juan ordered the destroyers Wilson and Damato into the area and

The bands still played in the salons and the passengers still showed up but they sat at tables and few danced.

The passengers were bothered most by the sight of pistols and sub - machine - guns the rebels carried everywhere.

But Galvao made a point of trying to reassure the passengers, especially those in the upper two decks. He thus invited them to send radio messages and asked them to come to him if they had any problems or complaints, no matter how small.

But while he tried to charm the upper classes, Galvao did nothing for the poorer people whom he says revolution will lift up from slavery.

SITUATION WORSENS

As their captivity continued day after day the situation of the third class passengers deteriorated. The food and water supply, the close heat, the sense of claustrophobia in the crowded quarters all worsened.

Sympathetic cabin and first class passengers demanded that Galvao improve the lot of those in third class.

He did nothing.

And then, late in the second Sunday of captivity, after 2,800 miles of enforced travel, the Santa Maria was found by a U.S. naval plane 65 miles off Recife.

On Monday, radio messages set up the details of a rendezvous between Galvao and Rear-Admiral Allen Smith of the U.S. navy.

WOMEN WEEP

Tuesday, Admiral Smith came aboard to negotiate with Galvao. The passengers cheered wildly. Women wept.

But the ending of captivity was not yet settled. Galvao was holding out for a condition: he would disembark the passengers only if Brazilian authorities agreed to give him fuel and supplies.

Apparently Galvao still entertained the idea of taking off again, probably for Africa.

Had he tried it, four American destroyers and the atomic submarine Sea Wolf — now all forming a broad circle around the Santa Maria — were fully prepared to pursue him.

At noon Wednesday Galvao brought the Santa Maria into Brazilian territorial waters and there, three miles away, the captives could see land for the first time in 11 days.

And still there was no definite word from Galvao. Tempers began to ignite.

STORM THE DOCK

Suddenly a crowd of third class passengers stormed up to the cabin deck and shouted outside the lounge.

One man rushed at a rebel and knocked him through a glass door. The rebel arose and drew his pistol. The demonstrator was pursuaded by his wife to quiet down.

It was clear now that Galvao might have a real battle on his hands from the passengers and crew.

The next day Galvao brought the ship into the harbor and released the passengers.

The extended cruise of the Santa Maria at last had ended.

Brazil took control of the vessel and handed it over to the Portuguese.

planes were sent aloft to assist in the search.

For three days the ships and 28 naval planes searched. In the age of flight, radar and other electronic marvels a 610-foot luxury liner could not be found for 72 hours.

Late Wednesday afternoon, a Danish freighter thought she sighted the Santa Maria 900 miles east and a little south of Trinidad.

That night, a naval plane swooped down over the ocean and picked out the Santa Maria in its search light.

ASKS TURN BACK

The plane radioed the ship, asking her to turn toward San Juan.

The answer was a refusal, accompanied by an offer to negotiate aboard ship with the representatives of any nation except Portugal and Spain. There was an indication the ship might head for Angola, a Portuguese colony in West Africa.

The navy in San Juan ordered the destroyers Wilson and Damato to move southeast and the destroyers Gearing and Vogelgesang to move southwest from the Cape Verde islands off Africa.

Meanwhile, life aboard the Santa Maria had settled down to a kind of numbed routine.

Four times the passengers were told they would make a neutral port "tomorrow" and be released from captivity. Always it was tomorrow—and tomorrow never came.

But for the majority of first class and cabin passengers, life had not changed much physically.

The food still was generally good, passengers moved about in relative freedom, and the men in khaki and black berets who had seemed so menacing by now had satisfied the passengers they were not likely to molest anyone.

Muscular Dystrophy Donations Record

TORONTO — Despite a period of economic recession, one voluntary health association of Canada reports that its donations in 1960 had reached the highest peak in its history, with contributions totalling over $337,000.

Arthur Minden, QC, president of The Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada, attributed the increase to a growing concern among the public over the menace of muscular dystrophy to Canadian children. "Both the public, and the research scientists," said Mr. Minden, "seem to be determined that the mystery of the cause of this disease shall not long remain unsolved."

Three hundred and thirty communities took part in this year's campaign, which ran for a week during November. Canadian fire departments have always been the chief money raisers for MDAC and in the 1960 campaign 250 fire departments carried out door-to-door canvasses and other fund raising measures. Service clubs, Scouts and Guides also were active on behalf of the Association.

Dies From Exposure

NEW HAMBURG (CP)—A 21-year-old New Hamburg man found dead in the bush Saturday after becoming lost on a lone cross-country ski run apparently died from exposure, a coroner said Sunday.

Peter John Cairns, son of veterinarian Dr. H. J. Cairns, left his home in this village 12 miles west of Kitchener Friday afternoon. When he did not return his father, mother and brother followed his trail but lost it in drifting snow. A search party Saturday found the ashes of a fire with the body nearby.

Marks in the snow indicated he had been lying beside the fire for some time.

Good Penmanship Still Key to Grades

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed. D., with HARRY KARNS

Article 6

Don't kid yourself that good penmanship is no longer important in this world of typewriters, dictaphones and tape recorders.

It's just as important to you as it was to your grandfather when he went to school.

Poor handwriting is one of the major reasons why students fail.

The student has no typewriter or recorder with him in the classroom when taking notes or answering exam questions. If he writes well, he stands a better chance of making good grades.

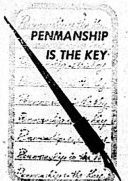
Writing happens to be a complex chore.

First, you must form a concept or picture in your mind. Then you must put this into words and arrange the words in sentences. Next, you must write all the necessary letters and symbols on the paper with the capitals and the punctuation marks in the right places and with the words spelled correctly.

Writing is a muscular as well as a mental operation. If the writing muscles are poorly trained and too weak to work very long, you are handicapped almost as much as you would be by a damaged brain.

We never really understood what a severe block poor writing habits can be until we met John. He came to us complaining of low grades on essay type exams. His penmanship was terrible.

We suggested simply that he practise writing. We hoped his grades might be raised by what is called the "halo" effect. That is, the teacher might grade him higher because his paper looked good, not necessarily because he had more to say.



John practised, his penmanship improved, and he got better grades on essay questions. The old halo effect was working.

We glanced at some of his new papers and received a pleasant surprise. The answers were greatly improved in meaning and content as well as appearance.

WRITING HELPED THINKING

This improvement was linked with his new muscular skill in writing! Having gained that skill, he was able to think of what instead of how to write.

To check that conclusion, we repeated the experiment with student after student, —always with the same results.

There was, for example, Ed. He brought us two exam papers from his sophomore economics class at the university. One had been graded "D," the other "D-minus." Ed felt that an injustice had been done. He had worked hard, and he deserved better grades.

"What the heck am I doing wrong?"

An analysis of the papers showed Ed didn't write easily. The further he went in the exam, the worse his writing got, until finally it deteriorated into a meaningless scrawl.

The physical chore distracted him from the subject matter.

We advised him to train his writing muscles and exercise them. We gave him a brief paragraph of three sentences and told him to write it over and over again.

Try the following procedure, which we suggested to him:

1. Sit at a desk or table of comfortable height.
2. Get your arm in a comfortable position.
3. Hold your pencil in a comfortable manner, without cramping your hand or fingers.
4. Write several trial words. Remember that style of penmanship doesn't matter. The important thing is to form letters reasonably well and move the pencil easily on the paper.
5. Write three brief sentences over and over again. By the third writing you should have the material you are copying so clearly in your mind that you can centre your attention on the task of controlling your hand.
6. Now insist that your hand make well-formed letters and words without lifting the pencil from paper.

Practise in this way 20 minutes each day. Use different materials for each day's practice.

QUIT WHILE AHEAD

Caution: Don't practise too long at any one time. Your muscles are tiring when your penmanship starts deteriorating rather than improving. Quit for the day.

Ed practised thus for 10 days, took another exam in economics and hiked his grade to "B." The pen, provided you know how to hold it, is mightier than the sword.

If you are used to writing in English and you try to write in a foreign language, you face new problems. Some letters are shaped differently. You run into marks that normally appear in English only as pronunciation aids in dictionaries.

Practise writing the foreign language in the same way suggested for muscular training in writing English. Select three sentences containing the strange new letters and markings. Repeated writings will develop skill and accuracy.

Phyllis was discouraged by poor grades in French. We discovered she was losing points because of errors in small details —an accent mark omitted, a word misspelled, a letter incorrectly formed. By exercising as outlined above, she got to the point where she could think of subject matter and still do a good job of writing.

Henry's problem was slightly different. His teacher read in Spanish without attempting translation. Henry could not write fast enough to keep up, and he had a hard time reading his own work, in English or Spanish. A few days of practice 20 minutes a day resulted in substantial improvement.

We want to warn you about something with regard to writing exercises. They need to be writing exercises only — nothing more. It's not sufficient to pay attention to your penmanship while writing letters, taking notes, or making entries in your diary. The fact that your mind is centred on some other activity defeats your purpose.

TOMORROW: How to listen.

Prince Edward Flying Club Elects Officers

PICTON (Special)—A record attendance of 31 marked the annual general meeting of voting members of the Prince Edward Flying Club in their lounge at Picton airport Sunday.

From 16 nominations, the nine directors elected for 1961 were: Orm Reid, Alex Williams, John Clark, Bob Byers, James Marker, Ruth Hart, Remy Boyle, Rex Brough and Bill Beatty.

Subsequently to their election, the directors held their first meeting in which Mr. Reid was again named club president with Mr. Williams as vice-president.

The Prince Edward Flying Club had its beginning in 1953 and has grown into one of the most prominent flying clubs of its kind in Canada, having won the Yorath trophy in 1959 for making best use of its resources during that year when it nearly doubled its activities.

Last year was an even bigger year with more than 2,360 flying hours, an increase of more than 25 per cent over 1959, being logged by club members.

The club recently received a charter to provide air taxi service from this district to any point in Canada in which persons or goods may be carried. With the phenomenal growth of aviation in Canada, club officials believe the Prince Edward Flying Club now is geared to provide the essential air services for an expanding Canadian economy.

8,000 Young Turkeys Die

TRAFALGAR (CP) — Fire Saturday night destroyed the Export Food Products Limited turkey farm and 8,000 young turkeys.

The blaze ended a six - year fight by residents to have the turkey farm removed. The 10-acre farm is in the middle of the township's best residential area.

Fire Chief George Wright said the fire is believed to have been caused by overloaded elctrical wiring. H estimated the loss at $50,000.

Chief Wright said it is doubtful the owners will be able to obtain a permit to rebuild.

than usual to watch television Saturday night.

As they left the barn, he and his wife, who is expecting another child shortly, saw the house in flames.

Mr. Saint-Laurent pulled open the door but was forced back by the flames and smoke.

A neighbor also tried to rescue the children but failed to get past the door.

WERE NOT CALLED

Fire department officials at Windsor Mills said they were not called to the fire. Firemen at nearby Sherbrooke first heard of the fire on a newscast three hours after it started.

At Maniwaki, five children of Mr. and Mrs. Aldren Richard perished when flames swept their home.

The parents and a one-month-old baby were rescued by a passerby.

Dead are: Paulette, 26, Jean, 8, Christine, 7, Andre, 6, and Line, 2½.

Hospital authorities described the condition of the parents and the child as good. They suffered minor burns, shock and smoke poisoning.

The first alarm was sounded when a neighbor spotted flames about 6 a.m. Shortly after, passerby Adege Emond, a police constable, rushed inside to save the baby and parents.

FLAMES FORCED BACK

He attempted to re-enter the building but was forced back by flames.

The bodies were found near the front door, where the victims had apparently succumbed while attempting to reach safety.

Cause of the fire was undetermined.

The Beauharnois fire left 20 persons temporarily homeless after an overheated oil stove exploded in the apartment of Emilien Lortie.

Victims Emilien Lortie Jr., one year, and his one-month-old sister who had not yet been baptized were asphyxiated by heavy smoke.

Other persons in the two-storey, four-family house were forced into the streets when their apartments suffered severe smoke and water damage.

20 Head Cattle, Pigs, Hens and Grain Destroyed

WELLINGTON (Special) — Twenty head of cattle, including 14 purebred Holsteins, ten week-old pigs, a sow, about 15 hens and an unknown quantity of hay and grain were destroyed early today when fire turned a barn into a raging inferno on farm of Wallace MacNaughton, R.R. 1, Wellington, about five miles east of here.

The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Mrs. MacNaughton said that if it had not been for a neighbor, Mrs. Donna Taylor, who lives about a mile away, "we might have been burned ourselves." She said Mrs. Taylor phoned with the alarm at about 2 a.m. after seeing flames dancing through a window of the barn.

An empty tenement house adjacent to the barn was smoking when the volunteer fire brigades from Wellington and Bloomfield arrived, said Mrs. MacNaughton.

"If the tenement house had caught fire the flames could have easily spread to our house."

Mrs. MacNaughton said she and her husband had moved to the farm in November.

She said the fire started in the pig pen and "must have been caused by a heat lamp we'd had on the little pigs."

"I can't understand it, though, because we'd had the heat lamp on the pigs for about a week."

She said the barn was insured but that its contents, including the livestock, were not. The loss has not yet been estimated.

BAGHDAD (AP)—The Arab League states resolved during the weekend, over Tunisian objections, to oppose Mauritania's admission to the United Nations. Mauritania, a former French West African possession, became independent last year. Morocco, a league member, contends Mauritania is an integral part of its territory.

Slippery Roads Cause Four Minor Mishaps

TRENTON — Four accidents which caused minor property damage were reported by town police over the weekend. The cause of each accident was attributed to slippery roads.

Most serious occurred at 4.35 p.m. Sunday, when Mrs. Alma White, 47 Bentinct St. was stepping out of the rear door of a parked car, owned by William A. Rogers of Toronto, in front of the Weaver Funeral Home, when it was struck from behind by a car driven by Rose Marie Northrup, 19, of West St. Trenton. Mrs. White was treated at hospital for leg injuries and allowed to go home. Total damage to the two cars was estimated at $160.

Miss Northrup told police she was unable to stop because of slippery road conditions and could not take evasive action because of oncoming eastbound traffic. Miss Northrup also told police that she was blinded by bright sunshine.

Ambulance Decision May Come Tonight

TRENTON — Town council will be asked to come to some sort of a decision on the ambulance question at tonight's regular council meeting.

In the Dec. 5 elections, taxpayers voted to make council responsible for providing an ambulance service of some kind. This may be done by continuing to subsidize the present operator; by the town providing an ambulance and operating personnel; by council approaching another private owner with a view to having him come to town and provide the service without a subsidy.

Subsidizing the present owner would cost the town $3,600 a year. Providing an ambulance and operating personnel would cost several thousands.

Charge Three Men With Theft From Cottages

TRENTON — Carl Buck, 19, and Gordon Woodcock, 23, both of Trenton and Alan Cooney of R.R. 3 Brighton are being held in jail at Cobourg on charges of breaking, entering and theft in connection with recent lottings of cottages at Barcoven Beach near Brighton.

Trial date is set for Feb. 9.

One Call

TRENTON — The fire department spent a quiet weekend. On Saturday, a truck was sent to the town dump to quell a blaze which had broken out among the refuse. Other than this, no calls were received.

Hold Banquet

TRENTON — All service club meetings have been cancelled this week as the members will attend an inter-service club dinner at the Queensway Hotel tonight. Members of the Rotary Club will be hosts to members of the Kiwanis Club, the Kinsmen Club and the Lions Club.

Charge Mother

TORONTO (CP) — An 18-month-old girl was found dead in her crib today and Mrs. Donna Dolan, 25, was charged with failing to provide the necessities of life for her daughter.

The father, truck driver Bill Dolan, 32, had been away since Jan. 28 on a long-distance haul and returned home to find young Darlene dead.

Her brother Nelson, 2½ years old, was taken to hospital for treatment.

18,001 Pelts Sold For $132,510 At North Bay

NORTH BAY (CP)—The largest raw fur sale in Ontario's history ended Saturday night when 18,001 pelts sold for $132,510. The sale was sponsored by the Ontario Trappers' Association, with assistance given by members of the department of lands and forests fish and wildlife branch.

Twelve buyers representing some of the world's largest fur merchants were present from London, New York, Winnipeg, Montreal, Port Arthur, Timmins, Cochrane and Sudbury.

Of the estimated 10,000 to 12,000 trappers in Ontario, the 18,000 pelts represented shipments from about 500 trappers, the greatest number coming from the Parry Sound district.

A fisher pelt brought the highest bid, $55, with otter next at a top price of $48.50. The majority of the furs were beaver with 7,914 skins selling at an average of $11.78. Other furs included muskrat, mink, marten, lynx, fox, raccoon, wolf and rabbit.

Indian trappers from as far north as the Winisk River at Hudson Bay attended the auction to see what price their furs would bring.

Alex Sheiff of Winnipeg, considered by the OTA to be one of the best fur graders today, graded and auctioned the furs in the 10-hour session. The furs remained guarded in the OTA warehouse while the auction took place from coded catalogues in another building.

Plans for North Bay to become a $1,000,000 fur-marketing centre were discussed at the trapper's annual convention which ended Friday.

The next fur sale here will be early in March, with March 3 as the last receiving date for fur shipments from Ontario trappers.

TORONTO (CP)—A testimonial dinner Saturday night honored 76-year-old James M. Macdonnell, former minister without portfolio in the Diefenbaker cabinet and Progressive Conservative member for Toronto-Greenwood.

Governor - General Vanier, Prime Minister Diefenbaker, several members of the cabinet and other members of Parliament attended the dinner at the Albany Club here.

The dinner was closed to the press.

Homosexuals Too Frightened To Seek Advice

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) So much horror and fear surround the subject of homosexuality for young people that they are too frightened to seek the advice that would help them to reach sexual maturity, a psychiatrist said Saturday.

Dr. Michael Tuchtie, director of patient treatment in the forensic clinic of the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, was a member of a panel on sex offenders at the final sessions of the midwinter meeting of the Canadian Bar Association, Ontario section.

Other panellists were Dr. Kenneth Gray, professor of forensic psychiatry at the University of Toronto, Dr. J. D. Atcheson, superintendent of the Thistletown Hospital for Adolescents, and Dr. R. E. Turner, director of outpatient treatment at the Thistletown clinic near Toronto.

Dr. Tuchtie said it is clear the problem of homosexuality "will not be solved by pious exhortations or social ostracism."

NEED CLOSER ATTENTION

"Society will continue to suffer from sexual deviation until it focuses far more attention on childhood and parenthood."

The panelists agreed that imprisonment provides no cure for sexual deviation unless the prisoner has adequate psychiatric care. Nor did they feel corporal punishment is of any use in treating deviates.

Dr. Gray said the sex deviate is one who seeks any form of sexual satisfaction other than intercourse with an adult of the opposite sex. The term deviate might be applied "to the man next door, who is a valuable member of his community."

Dr. Atcheson said more training schools are required for dealing with emotionally disordered males and promiscuous females.

SHOULD BE LICENSED

Lawyer John J. Robinette of Toronto told a luncheon meeting that lawyers who act as mortgage brokers should be licensed as such and therefore bonded.

Mr. Robinette, treasurer of the solicitors' indemnity fund, said in most cases referred to the fund's committee the principals involved are actually lawyers acting as mortgage brokers.

The fund, financially supported by members of the bar, makes restitution to clients who have had trust funds misappropriated by their lawyers. Last year the levy was $45 for each lawyer, compared with $30 in 1959.

Mr. Robinette said 11 Ontario lawyers were disbarred last year.

Soldier Killed In Attempted Parachute Jump

GANANOQUE (CP) — A 17-year-old apprentice soldier was killed Sunday when he plunged 5,200 feet from a plane in an attempted parachute jump.

The victim was Kenneth David Vaughan of Medicine Hat, Alta., stationed at Camp Barriefield near Kingston. A member of the Parachutists Club of Canada, he was making his 13th jump.

He was one of five men who jumped from a private plane piloted by Robert Bews, 47, of Gananoque. Constable Robert Kennedy of the provincial police said the ripcoard on Vaughan's parachute was not pulled.

The young soldier had landed safely in a previous jump at Gananoque Airport, seven miles from here.

Coroner Dr. Ken Gray of Gananoque said an inquest will be held to determine whether the youth died before striking the ground.

Crime and Punishment

Although some persons are hailing this decade as an era of enlightened thinking for those incarcerated in the gaols and prisons of the land (we refer to comfortable prison facilities and advanced parole schemes), we remain unimpressed and uninspired with this sort of treatment for the criminal element of our society.

We will not deny the fine efforts made by the probation service in handling those who have strayed into the paths of unrighteousness for the first time. They are people who need help and will most readily respond to help, since new habits are the easiest to break or cure.

The case presented by the third or fourth time offender, however, is certainly a different kettle of fish. Here is one who has proved that he cannot be led out of the life of crime. Here is one who accepts any arrest or imprisonment as a part of the game, and a not too unpleasant part of the game at that. Imprisonment means a warm bed, three meals a day, a well-planned schedule of sports and extra-curricular activities and steady employment of not too taxing a nature to too many of the "regulars" or "repeaters."

Although we disagree with the deluxe treatment afforded these people both in principle and practice we would accept it if it had a reformative effect upon the criminal. Everything is available, to the best of our knowledge, except adequate psychiatric treatment, which many actually feel would be the most important factor in effecting the reform cure.

Coupled with this relatively utopian existence is the parole system which allows a prisoner to be set free for "good behavior" while in prison. This means that after a certain percentage of his original sentence is completed he is eligible to apply for parole; to return to the outside world and attempt to mingle harmoniously with the rest of society. This system is supposed to be working wonders, but is far from being completely satisfactory.

Our particular dissatisfaction arises through a recent incident involving a 19-year-old U.S. hoodlum recently sentenced to life imprisonment plus 643 years of prison on 13 charges. Amongst the charges involved were three of rape plus assault with intent to murder, robbery, burglary, car theft, carrying a gun, and assault of a police officer. Despite the youth of the offender he already had the dubious distinction of being an ex-convict.

At first glance one might feel that it was a good thing that this individual was despatched from the rest of society for good. This, however, is not the case. The lad in question will, if he is a good boy in prison, be free to wander about in society in just a bit over 16 years from now, despite the seeming finality of that life imprisonment plus 643 years in prison.

We seriously doubt if the passing of 16 years will do much to effect the reform of this person. Certainly his previous prison term did not. Because of the multiplicity and the nature of his crimes there is no assurance that here is a person that society can gamble with, through allowing him to be paroled. Society is gambling with more than just the life of this convict. It is gambling with the lives of people like the three women he raped, the policemen he assaulted, the person he attacked with intent to murder. Who can tell how many innocent citizens will pay the penalty of easy parole for this man 16 years from now? It can be stated that no psychologist or psychiatrist would wish to stake his personal reputation or life by guaranteeing that this man would be reformed to the degree where he will never get out of step again.

Although this man is subject to the laws in the United States, a much similar system exists in Canada, and so do similar cases.

We believe in the inherent goodness of man as an individual just as much as we believe that dogs get rabies. Just as a rabbies-stricken dog is dangerous to man and society so is the criminally-oriented individual. We do believe that every possible assistance should be given to any person who has slipped into a criminal way of life during its early stages. In fact we do not think that there is really enough done in this respect—the field of crime prevention.

On the other hand once a person has persisted in following the paths of crime there is absolutely no reason why the rest of society should be subjected to the hazards of such a man serving less than his original sentence or even being let loose in society again.

We're living in an era when the two most publicized words in the English language apply to something small and something growing constantly in size—compacts and inflation. (St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

Syd Calls Wild Prophesying Dangerous

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I have been looking at the economists' predictions for 1961, and I think they are as silly as were those for 1960. Last year we were told something about the "Soaring Sixties," which were to begin with the "boom year" of 1960. Some boom, my friends.

In ancient Scythia, when prophets predicted things that failed to come true, they were shackled hand and foot, laid on a little cart filled with heather — and burned.

That is another of those delightful primitive customs that should not be scorned. Perhaps we should not incinerate false prophets, but we should prevent them from practising fraud.

During the war, author Louis Bromfield often predicted "acute famine" for the United States. He wrote and lectured on the subject with passionate constancy—while were were eating outselves to death. He should have been barred from predicting even the next day's weather.

In Biblical times, prophecy was an honorable profession, and many of the Old Testament diviners were men of great probity and wisdom, trying to redeem their people from folly and crime.

Today, most of our major prophets are just the press agents for special interests — shrewd propagandists who know that the public can be stampeded into believing almost anything if it is repeated often enough.

A doctor's licence can be revoked for malpractice, a lawyer can be disbarred for a number of reasons (although not enough of them are) and a clerygman can be unfrocked for violating the canons of his church. I don't see why a professional prophet shouldn't be held accountable for his gross errors, especially when newspaper soothsayers command such huge audiences.

Maybe a war with Russia is inevitable, but the breast-beaters who do everything but name the exact date are contributing to a public hysteria that can blow out the last flickering hope of peace. Hysteria doesn't create wars, but it can quiet the peacemakers. And it is worth remembering, that in the past, political prophets have been just as unreliable as economic prophets.

Let's close this little sermon with a text from La Rochefoucauld, who always knew what he was talking about. "We cannot sufficiently praise prudence," he said, "yet the greatest prudence cannot with certainty predict the least event, since it acts on man — that most uncertain of all things mortal."

Snow Once Welcomed

Ottawa Citizen

Snow has become disreputable in a motorized age; except possibly for skiers, children, and others who do not care whether the wheels of a mechanized society move or not, snow is a nuisance that has to be shovelled, salted, carted away. Yet it was not always thus. Before wheels replaced stretches of lawn, snow was welcomed for its beneficience.

At one time the only shovelling people had to do was to dig a fairly narrow path from the front and back doors to the street. A boy could do the job in 15 or 20 minutes, for wages varying from a nickle to a quarter, depending on the size of the boy and the level of economic sophistication he had attained. That task completed the snow was there to be enjoyed.

Anyone who has pondered the question deeply must agree that the extraordinary thing about snow is its flexibility. Grass is good to sit on, and maybe for a puppy to roll on, but that's about all. Snow is much more than that. It is building material, from which forts and castles can be constructed; it is the raw commodity from which military weapons can be fashioned; sculptors can use it to create works of art; and no right-thinking boy can bear to see a deep layer of snow alongside a garage without using it as a diving pool, the garage roof being the diving board.

The inventory could be multiplied: snow guards the tender autumn bulbs from frost; in the winter sun, the snow clinging to the treetops and roofs forms the city's diadem, and in the austere winter moonlight the snow cleanses the city. But it is unnecessary to go on. Besides, we're still exhausted from our efforts of yesterday when our car got stuck in a snowbank, and we wished we had never seen snow.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LIVE LIFE ABUNDANTLY

There is no sadder picture in this world than that of the one who looks upon his or her existence as something to be gotten rid of as soon as possible, somehow.

Contrastingly, there is no picture so inspiring as that of the love of life and all its goodnesses.

Life is very good to the one who is good to life.

I like that word abundant. How full of meaning! And how it thrills one to think of the life that is abundant with happy work and service.

I can think of no greater prayer to be uttered every morning and every evening, than this: "Oh God, help me to live life more abundantly."

People who live abundant lives have no time for complaining or finding fault, either with their lot or with the way that other people live.

Their one idea seems to be to add something, to give something — to leave something.

If every time we marked a yearly milestone we could look back and say: "Well, this is a much more abundant year in real things accomplished than any of the former years." I am sure that the years' toll would leave no regret.

Live more abundantly — in work well done, in friendship well cemented, in service rendered for the pure love of having rendered it, in acts performed that have helped to make the world a better place in which to live.

Can you think of a better resolve for this young New Year than to live life more abundantly?

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

REGULAR EXERCISE

Most high school graduates today emerge well indoctrinated with the idea of keeping in good physical condition by frequent exercise. This principle gets a good deal of support from makers of sporting goods and from sports enthusiasts. Indeed, most people discover for themselves, as they get older and perhaps lazier, that exercise is necessary, when they find that they have become soft, out of condition, and short of wind.

It would be a good thing if as much attention and publicity were given to the idea that like our bodies, our consciences need regular exercise. The sense of right and wrong is easily dulled by the lack of use. Failure to face decisions and to choose the right makes it easier to be unaware even that one is failing at all. Many a man who would not willingly hurt his fellow men newevertheless does so day after day because he has become so indifferent to evil that he no longer recognizes it.

A friend of ours now in his eighties is still vigorously doing the same work he has done for over a half century. He is one of the happiest people of his age I know. Part of his good fortune is due to his health, for he has faithfully tried to keep himself in good condition. But even more of his sense of well-being comes from the working of a well-exercised conscience that has never grown old.

Letters To The Editor

High Pay Demands, Working Wives Hit

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

A recent front-page article in your newspaper prompts comment. The heading read "Jobless Told Federal Gov't Responsible for Situation." The account fails to indicate who was responsible for such an inane statement. I would hate to think that it came from Provincial Labor Minister Daley. I prefer to think it came from either an unemployed worker or a union organizer who can't see beyond the good ornament of his 1961 Cadillac. Both these factions are all too willing to blame the present unemployment situation on the Federal Government. If these short-sighted individuals only realized it, much unemployment today stems from yesterday's regular demands for pay increases. Canada is pricing itself right out of world markets —and th ehome market too. To sell products at home and abroad we must produce at a favorable price, and to do so the line must be held somewhere. We've had the world's best standard of living for some years now, but unless we "tighten up the belt," we shall suffer later on.

One worker said there was full employment in Poland. Does he know that the Communists have openly boasted that they will crush our way of life, and win the world to Communism — not with rockets and intercontinental missiles, but with economics?

Perhaps it's time for organized labor in Canada to take a long look at things and with government assistance and controls, attempt to materially increase the "saleability" of Canadian made goods.

Now a few observations concerning working mothers, many of whom hold down positions which might otherwise keep men employed. Granted, some mothers must work in order to keep food on the table, and to "make ends meet" as it were — and a "well done" to a mother willing to burn the candle at both ends in order to provide necessities for her family. However, some working mothers of my acquaintance claim they do so only because their health would suffer if they didn't get away from the home and work. Hog wash!. Let's face facts. Many mothers seek employment simply because they can't stand to be home and bear the responsibilities of raising and "putting up with" their children all day long. Many more work just for the almighty dollar. I don't think much of a man who allows (and even encourages) his wife to neglect the children and work all day in order to provide a car like the Joneses, or even a car at all.

Mr. Daley stated he had no magic wand to wave that would cure the unemployment problem. Perhaps instead of a wand he could wave a stout stick — and let it fall on the bottoms of some of these "working mothers," and get them back where they belong — in the home.

Newcomer Praises Staff at Hospital

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

As a newcomer to Belleville, may I take advantage of your column to congratulate the "emergency staff" at the Belleville General Hospital?

Since our arrival in Belleville last summer I have heard several derogatory comments about our hospital. However, the aged old expression "experience is the best teacher" has most certainly changed my opinion of such remarks.

I recently had occasion to be admitted for emergency treatment and personally found all the staff, doctors, nurses, aides, orderlies, technicians and office personnel most congenial. All were very amiable and showed only the finest traits of their chosen professions.

To Your Good Health

Emotions Influencing Factor In Menstrual Irregularity

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

Two related questions today. The first:

"Dear Doctor: My daughter is 17, and since she began menstruating two years ago, she has consistently had about an 18-day cycle. She is in good health.

"Is there any danger of this producing an anemic condition? Is there a drug to correct it? Does it need to be corrected? — Mrs. V. H."

Excessive flow can produce a mild anemia, so efforts should be made to regulate the period — or, alternatively, to conclude that this cycle is, for her, normal.

The average cycle, of course, is 28 days, but a considerable departure from the average is known to occur. The variation is generally regarded by ranging from 18 days to as high as 40. A greater departure from average is rare but can occur.

Now for the second letter:

"Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, who is 20 and single, has always been irregular in her menses. She has not menstrated now for 66 days. She is quite nervous and easily upset. — Mrs. C. D."

Menstrual irregularity can be influenced by emotional, or nervous factors — and the second letter raises this as a prime point of suspicion. It is quite common.

Steps should be taken to bolster the general health. See whether the young woman is getting proper nutrition — some of the goofy quick reducing diets have played their part in such irregularity.

A check of thyroid activity is also wise. Sometimes study of the ovarian and pituitary function eventually is necessary, but this is more elaborate, and usually the simpler approaches provide the information required.

Keep in mind that in some instances, scanty menstruation or lack of it is corrected simply by persuading an inactive young woman to do less sitting and more physical, outdoor activity, which can work relative wonders where the real trouble is physical inactivity.

Where the irregularity is not a symptom of some deep-seated disorder, it has also been observed that the first normal pregnancy sometimes will put an end to irregularity.

There, you see, you have quite a variety of possibilities, and as I have said before, perhaps to the point of making you tired of hearing it, there is no substitute for tracking down the basic causes.

Before you do that, treatment is largely guesswork. After you find the reasons, the correct treatment becomes obvious.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about coccydynia, a sore and painful coccyx. What could cause it in the absence of an injury? What type treatment is used? — E. W."

Some sort of strain or stress has been put on the coccyx, which juts from the base of the spine. It could be from some injury long since forgotten. (Among women, strain at childbirth sometimes causes this).

Massage of a group of muscles attached to the coccyx may help. Heat usually helps. Proper sitting posture is very important; use a firm but cushioned seat, keep your posture erect with good back support. Don't slouch.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My grandson, seven years old, has been bothered with his hip. Doctors say he has Legg Perthes disease. What is it and what might cause it? — Mrs. B."

It's a disorder of the hip joint usually seen in children. Some stress or other has interfered with circulation of the hip joint. It is an ailment that tends to correct itself. Rest is of greatest help.

Now Instant Beefsteak

Sherbrooke Daily Record

Where is it going to end? Last week it was instant beer and now its instant beefsteak.

Most people thought that the ultimate had been reached when it was revealed over Christmas week that a U S firm had developed a method of reducing beer to a powder. But now comes word that a Canadian scientist named Dr. W. R. Smithies has developed a process for treating beefsteak called "freeze-drying."

Don't let the name fool you. Actually it's instant beefsteak.

When Dr. Smithies gets through with a steak it has the same weight and consistency as balsa wood. And before it's ready for the pan it has to be soaked in water for 10 minutes.

The Smithies steak was developed for the Department of National Defence as a means of getting around the high cost of air freight which, in the case of some of our isolated northern outposts, runs up to $2 a pound.

The freeze-drying process, which can also be applied to other meats, poultry and vegetables, costs only eight cents a pound and cuts weight by more than one-half.

And so, while steak connoisseurs may be shocked by this seeming desecration of their favorite dish, taxpayers, no doubt, will give it their blessing.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

Scholars, I find, do not do much thinking. They are too busy assimilating in a seated posture to have any time for the calisthenics of thought. One of my cronies is a scholar who accompanied me into the bank the other lay while I cashed a cheque. If there is one thing that infuriates my friend it is arrogance. The two of us did not cut much of a figure as we stood in line at the teller's wicket. He is the kind of scholar who doesn't know enough not to get in line when he doesn't have to.) And into the bank swarmed a gentleman who was obviously a person of importance. Glancing briefly at the line-up, and seeing only a small procession of people of no importance, he stepped up to the wicket, apologized masterfully as he put his elbow ahead of the lady ahead of me, who was at the wicket, and said:

"Sorry, but would you mind cashing this?"

He smiled the smile of a man who realizes others will stand aside for their betters.

The foolish girl in the cage interrupted her engagment with the lady and hastily cashed the gentleman's cheque.

My scholar nearly went crazy. He stamped. He clenched his fists.

"Wait!" he gritted, after the gentleman was gone. "Wait till the communists get here!"

It took me all the time we were spending my cheque to persuade him that when the communists get here, characters far more deadpan and less lovable than that gentleman will lord it over us.

BAYSIDE CUBS

Two important ceremonies were held at the last Pack meeting. There was an investiture of two new Chums, John Cole and Donny Jonah, their white neckerchiefs were exchanged for the group colors and they are now Cubs in the Green Six.

Seconder Archie Haig was promoted to Sixer of the Green Six, and Seconder Don Mallory to Sixer in the Tawny Six.

BADGES AND STARS

First year stars were awarded to Cubs Michael Auger, Larry Fell, Bill Hunt, Wes Knowlton, John Little, Grant McLeod, Glen Mallory, Ronnie McAllister, Seconder David Green and Sixer Glen Mallory.

Second year stars to Sixers Archie Haig and Vince Moase. Third year to Sixer Bill Tell. Collectors' badge to Cub Michael Auger. Swimmers' to Cub Larry Fell and Sixer Bill Fells. Artists' to Sixer Bill Fell. House Orderly to Sixer Bill Fell and Sixer Vince Moase. Toymaker to Cub Bill Hunt.

Two Cubs, David and Eddie Penley, who transferred from Ottawa, to Bayside were accorded a hearty welcome to the Pack and also new Chums Henry and Richard Kafka.

The leaders were particularly pleased to meet some of the parents at this meeting. It is very encouraging when -ents visit the pack and they are always made welcome.

It was a busy night at Bayside school and we join with the leaders in congratulating the boys on winning their badges, stars and Sixers' stripes.

Thank you, 'Mrs. Betty Moase for your report. Keep up the good work.

15TH BELLEVILLE

According to Cubmaster Gord Russell this group practises Scouting which would, we feel sure, meet with the approval of "B-P" himself.

A parents' night was recently held at Queen Victoria School auditorium, which was very well attended by Cubs and Scouts, accompanied by their parents and leaders. Akela Terry showed colored movies of the Cub camp at Sagonaska. It was quite a thrill to the boys to see themselves in color. The Scouts and Cubs are very familiar with Sagonaska. Many of the Scouts had fond memories of day long hikes and the two Cub Packs enjoyed many rambles at this camp. The 15th is really convinced that Sagonaska is ideal for Scouting.

Queen's Scout David Fort gave a most interesting description of the American Jamboree at Colorado Springs, illustrated with beautiful colored slides. It was very well presented and gave the boys a preview of what they may do in the future.

The Boy Scouts' Auxiliary closed this happy evening by serving a delicious lunch.

CUBS ENJOY WINTER

Little girls—according to an ancient authority—are made of sugar and spice, etc. We won't mention what little boys are made of, but we do know that Cub leaders have plenty of vim, vigor and pure energy in their make-up. Cubs from "A" and "B" Packs have been out on toboggan parties having the time of their lives, while we old folks just keep on complaining how cold it is. Last Sunday about two dozen Cubs with four Scouts (supposed to be helpers?), four Cub leaders and a group member made up quite a cavalcade and they all had a wonderful time at Oak Lake. Lots of thrills and spills, a ramble over the hills and of course a camp fire where hot chocolate and cookies were served by ACM Arnold Welch and ACM Miriam Russell. The refreshments brought the busy afternoon to a close and Cubs, Scouts, Leaders and the committeeman repaired homewards—tired but happy.

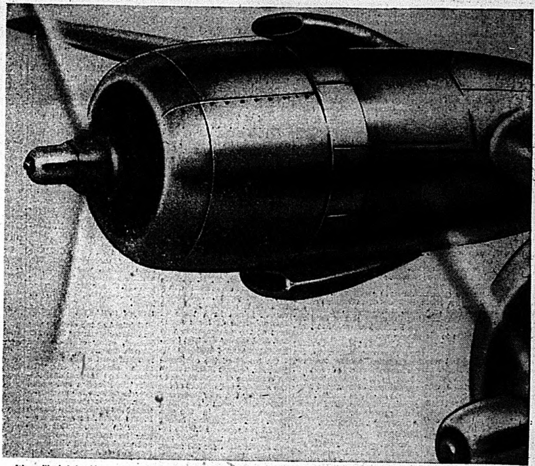
BULLETIN:

Shell's research on propeller-icing enables today's Super Shell to check cold-weather stalling —and give your car top performance

Shell's discovery of a new way to keep ice from sticking to metal now lets your carburetor shrug off frosty rime before it stalls your engine—a problem which can occur many degrees above freezing.

Read these little-known facts about this cause of cold-weather stalling—and how it is tackled by one of nine ingredients in today's Super Shell gasoline.



It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good. When Shell research scientists were tackling the problem of propeller-icing, they found that a "surfactant" film, one ten-millionth of an inch thick, was enough to help prevent ice sticking to metal. This same principle is the secret of the anti-icing ingredient in today's Super Shell. If you have been bothered with mysterious stalls that often occur even when the temperature is well above freezing, you should try a tankful of Super Shell. Your trouble may well be carburetor-icing.

UNDER conditions which occur too often for comfort, the carburetor in your car may make ice faster than the refrigerator in your kitchen.

Tiny particles of ice build up till they block the carburetor throat. Then you stall. An annoying phenomenon which can affect two out of three cars on the road.

This problem has bothered automotive engineers and motorists for years. Particularly because it can happen even at forty-five degrees. Shell scientists, looking for a way to prevent the dangerous icing-up of airplane propellers, found the answer.

They discovered a new way to discourage ice from sticking to metal surfaces. Today, this very same principle is applied in Shell's carburetor anti-icer.

Why can carburetors ice at 45 degrees?

The air your engine breathes contains moisture. Much of it condenses in the carburetor. There the evaporation of the fuel may quickly drop the temperature to well below freezing—and that means ice.

Today, the anti-icing ingredient in Super Shell simply coats the vital carburetor parts to help keep ice from sticking. And that's the root of the problem.

Here are a few facts about the jobs done by Super Shell's other ingredients. Read about them to see how they help give your car top performance.

Ingredient #2 is TCP for power, mileage and longer plug-life

Super Shell now contains an even better version of this famous additive. It was originally developed for use in aviation gasoline.

TCP additive can give your car up to 15 per cent more power; 17 extra miles per tankful; and make your plugs last twice as long.*

Test proves how TCP neutralizes glowing deposits. The electrically heated piston, above, has been sprinkled with two kinds of engine deposits. The glowing deposit, at left, had not been neutralized with TCP. The deposit on the right had. With TCP in action, there is no trace of glow.

Today's aviation-grade TCP does this by neutralizing the harmful effects of engine deposits. It stops them from glowing when hot—a major cause of power loss. And also stops them from diverting your spark—a major cause of "missing."

Ingredient #3 is "cat-cracked" gasoline for power with a purr

This is petroleum that has actually cracked under 1000-degree heat and catalytic action. Its heavier molecules have been shattered into livelier, lighter ones.

The result is a high-octane ingredient that makes your engine purr with power the moment you put your foot down.

NOTE: "Cat-cracking" refers to the use of a catalyst—a substance that has the mysterious ability to alter molecules without changing itself.

Shell man checks furnace which pre-heats the petroleum before it is fed into cat-cracker. Stand near by, and the roar sounds like Hades.

Ingredient #4 is heavy alkanes—for power and economy at all speeds

Shell scientists will tell you that gasoline can be too sensitive.

That's their unflattering description of a "touchy" gasoline that performs well enough when you're driving slowly, but causes knock and loss of power when you speed up.

So they put heavy alkanes into Super Shell. This ingredient is prized for its insensitivity. It keeps octane ratings high enough to give you plenty of knock-free power at all speeds.

NOTE: Heavy alkanes also have the advantage of lowering your fuel consumption. Your engine can use them up slowly—and still give you all the power you need.

Ingredient #5 is anti-knock mix for extra resistance to knocks

You might suppose that two high-octane ingredients are enough to give you knock-free performance. But Shell's scientists have ears like musicians.

They insist on adding a special anti-knock mix. A mix so effective, that one teaspoon per gallon can boost anti-knock rating by seven points.

This mix has the tricky job of regulating combustion so that Super Shell gives each piston a firm, even push—rather than a sharp blow which would cause a knock.

Ingredient #6 is butane for quick starts on cold mornings

By itself, butane is so volatile that it would actually boil in your refrigerator. In Super Shell, it helps your engine fire in seconds.

Think what this means in cold weather. Your battery is relieved of strain—and so is your patience.

NOTE: Super Shell is primed with butane all year round. In winter, Shell scientists simply increase the quick-start dose.

Ingredient #7 is mixed pentanes for fast warm-ups on cold days

Pentanes are made by tearing gasoline apart, much as you split logs into kindling to start a log fire.

In this case, the "logs" are petroleum's heavier hydrocarbons. A special process transforms their molecules from slow-burning "logs" to quick-firing "kindling."

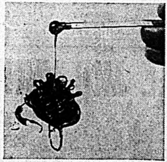
NET RESULT: Fast warm-up and top performance in a hurry.

Ingredient #8 is gum preventive to keep the fuel system clean

Even the purest gasoline can form gum when stored. This can clog carburetors, fuel lines, and pumps.

But with Super Shell, you needn't worry.

A special gum preventive does the trick. It acts like a policeman controlling a mob. Keeps an eye on unstable elements—stops them from clotting and forming gum.



You can forget this ugly picture if you fill up with today's Super Shell. You're looking at the actual gum that could form in your fuel system if you used a gasoline that didn't contain an efficient gum preventive. Imagine what this gum could do inside your carburetor. Or your fuel line. The thought is horrible.

Super Shell makes gummed-up engines a thing of the past.

Ingredient #9 is Platformate for extra energy, more mileage

It takes one million dollars' worth of platinum catalyst for Shell to produce its Platformate.

But fortunately for you and for us, this precious stuff can be used over and over again.

The platinum process, which gives Platformate its odd name, re-forms petroleum into super-energy components—such as benzene, toluene and xylene.

These three alone release 7 per cent more useful energy per gallon than the best 100-octane aviation gasoline.

But make no mistake. This is not untamed energy. Far from it. The super-energy of Platformate is harnessed by the eight other ingredients in Super Shell, where it behaves so well you scarcely know it's there. That is until you note your extra mileage. After that, there is no doubt.

Test Super Shell for yourself

Try Super Shell next time you fill up. You'll soon feel and hear a difference in the way your engine runs.

That difference is top performance.

Wedding

MUNNS — RUTTAN

On Saturday, January 29th, at 10.00 a.m. a very pretty wedding was solemnized in Holy Rosary Church, Belleville, by the Rev. Father Maurice, when he united in marriage Joan Madeline Ruttan, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ruttan, to Paul Munns, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Munns. Yellow and white and pink 'mums adorned the altar and white satin bows the guest pews.

Mrs. Turcotte provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Ernest Reid.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in her white bridal gown of Chantilly lace, net and taffeta featuring a fitted bodice and skirt of lace and net over taffeta. She wore a matching headdress with finger-tip veil of silk tulle illusion and carried a prayer book crested with red rosebuds and rosebud-knotted white satin streamers.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Michael O'Brien, of Belleville, as matron of honor, wearing a gown of turquoise crystalette with matching gloves and headdress, and carrying a nosegay of pink, yellow and white 'mums. A pearl necklace and matching earrings, the gift of the bride, completed her ensemble.

Mr. Russell Bennett, of Shannonville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while the guests were ushered by Messrs. Don Roberts, of Belleville and Michael O'Brien, brother-in-law of the bride.

The bridegroom's gifts to his attendants were matching tie-pins and cuff links.

The wedding breakfast was held in the Banquet Room of the Belmont Restaurant, for 25 guests. The bride's table was appointed with the traditional white damask and centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom, and flanked by tall white candles and the bridal bouquets.

The bride's mother received, gowned in a moss-green matte jersey sheath with matching hat and gloves, and wearing a corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, attired also in moss-green in sheath design, with winter-white hat and gloves and corsage of pink carnations.

Following the wedding breakfast the happy couple left for a wedding trip to Ottawa and points east, the bride wearing a brown dress with matching brown coat with beige accessories and carrying yellow carnations.

Guests attended from Tweed, Toronto, Stoco and Belleville.

The bride was the honored guest, prior to her marriage, at a presentation at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Joe Marsh, when the fellow employees of the Ladies' Artistic Wear, made a special presentation. Special gifts were also received from her former school chums of St. Michael's High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Munns will reside at 55 St. Charles Street, Belleville.

Women's Activities

MASSASSAGA W.A.

A meeting of the Massassaga W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. A. D. Revill on February 2nd. Due to the illness of the president, Mrs. George Flower, the meeting was presided over by Mrs. F. P. Roblin, the vice-president.

There were 17 members present including Mrs. Berkhuizen, a new member whom all wish to welcome to the group.

It was announced that the next meeting would be held at the home of Mrs. W. Grey.

Mrs. Roy Valleau, assisted by Mrs. Sid Johnson, conducted the devotional which included a reading given by Mrs. Roy Valleau and Mrs. Berton Thompson. Mrs. Neddow gave a fine talk. A humorous poem "My Get-up and Go" was read by Mrs. Grey. Mrs. M. Davidson gave a lovely solo in which all joined for part of it.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Valleau and her group and a social hour followed.

Congregational Meeting

ST. COLUMBA CHURCH

The congregation of St. Columba Presbyterian Church on Farley Avenue, held its annual congregational meeting last week. The minister, the Rev. N. Hutchinson, presided throughout the meeting and Mr. Sam Mulholland, elected, as secretary for this meeting, transcribed the minutes.

The annual activity report of the Assessor Session was given by the Clerk of Session, Mr. V. Weir. In this account, he briefly reveiwed the history of the St. Columbia congregation from its beginning as a worshipping group which was a local extension of St. Andrew's congregation, to the rapidly growing and autonomous congregation of today. A special mention and expression of thanks was directed to those in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, who, through their foresight and persistent endeavors, made this site of land possible. Mr. Weir also commented upon the energy and the obvious enthusiasm of the new St. Columba congregation and wished it every success in the years ahead.

The annual activity report of the Board of Trustees of St. Columba read by the secretary, Mr. A. Woods, informed the congregation that all the trustee business so far transacted had been handled in a routine manner.

BOARD OF MANAGER'S REPORT

The annual report of the Board of Managers, presented by the secretary, Mr. J. Hayman, named the executive, the committee chairmen and the miscellaneous appointments of and from the Board for 1961. In thanking all the board members for their continuing service, the board chairman reminded them and the rest of the congregation that 1961 may prove to be one of the most important years in the history of St. Columba Presbyterian Church. For as it was pointed out, every effort shall be put forward to erect a new church sanctuary on the corner of Farley and Bridge streets as soon as is practicable. The appointmnet of a campaign chairman, it was stated, is now being discussed and a date for the building campaign is tentatively set.

The Board of Managers made two recommendations to the congregation which involved the appointment of Mr. R. Lloyd to the Board, and the appointment of Mr. Stan MacDonald as church auditor. Both recommendations were unanimously accepted.

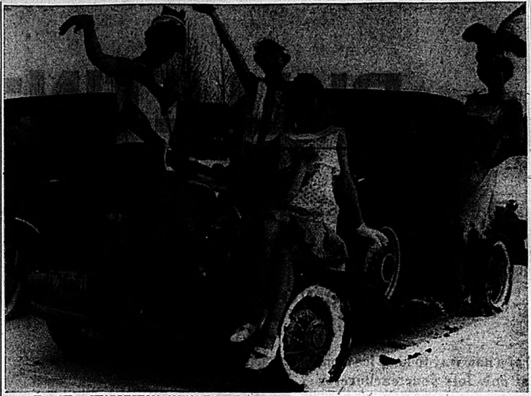
ACTIVITY FINANCIAL REPORTS

Annual activity reports and annual financial statements were received from the following St. Columba church organizations: the Church School (superintendent by Mr. K. D. Taylor), the Presbyterian Women's Guild (chaired by Mrs. F. VanRompaey), the Junior choir, the C.G.I.T., the Teenagers class and the Children of the Church (C.O.C.)

A social hour followed and during this time architectural drawings of church sanctuaries were put on display by the building extension committee for all church members to examine.

TABERNACLE UNITED

At the recent congregational meeting of Tabernacle United Church, Dr. A. C. Forrest, editor of the United Church Observer, spoke on his recent observations in the U.S.S.R. and Cuba, under two headings: "The Stamp of God's Love on All', and "The Mark of Hunger and Need" which may also be seen in Cairo, Africa, and everywhere, emphasizing that the need is not just to give them surplus wheat, but to train young people to make use of the talents they have so that they may aid these people to help themselves.



CH . . CH . . CHARLESTON, ANYONE? — Enjoying the cool weather following a hot rehearsal number are a few of the cast from "The Boyfriend." The play, a satire on the roaring twenties, is being presented by the students of Quinte Secondary School on February 16th to 18th in the school auditorium.

The chattering Charleston cuties shown above are (left to right): Sherrill Beeby, Claudia Durrant (the girl, not the car, which is a Ford product); Noreen Brooks and Lynne Brown. Enjoying his obscured vision from the chauffeur's chair is Alastair Camelford, another member of the cast.

Following a bounteous potluck supper catered by the W.A. the Rev. M. G. McFarlane, led the congregation in a devotional period. The members and adherents of the church joined in a Time of Remembrance of those members of the congregation who had died during the past year.

APPRECIATION VOICED

On behalf of the congregation, Mr. George Stanton moved a motion of appreciation to the minister and officers of the church for the able leadership they had given Tabernacle United Church in the past year. Mr. McFarlane briefly stated his pleasure in his association with Tabernacle and his appreciation for the strong support given in carrying through the important work that Tabernacle Church has to do. He emphasized certain improvements still to be made to facilitate this task.

Mr. A. D. Archibald urged that consideration be given to a special 150th anniversary gift as individual families toward the speedier reduction of the advancement fund debt. This was approved.

NEW OFFICERS

Mr. Frank Douglas, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the proposed slate of officers to fill the vacancies arising this year. Besides a goodly number of members being re-elected the following new names were added: Messrs. Ralph Nelson, Ray Rouse, J. B. Leddingham, John Pitts and John Babiak to the Session. Messrs James McAllister, Lionel Bovay, John Armstrong and Glenn Jacques to the committee of Stewards.

The meeting expressed its gratitude to Mr. William J. Slavin as church school superintendent for the able leadership he has given. Mr. Slavin in retiring from this office after serving in this capacity for more than five years. The incoming superintendent, Mr. John Babiak, was introduced and his assistants, first assistant, Mr. James McAllister and second assistant, Dr. R. B. Knox.

GUEST SPEAKER

Highlight of the evening was an address given by Dr. A. C. Forrest, editor of the United Church Observer. Dr. Forrest had been a guest speaker at a conference on "The Church and International Affairs" in Kingston and stayed over to address the meeting.

Dr. Forrest recently represented the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. as a news reporter in Cuba. This summer he visited the U.S.S.R. and previously had visited and reported on Africa. Dr. Forrest noted two things important to him and he felt to everyone as he visited these different parts of the world. Wherever the traveller goes in this world he sees the stamp of God's love on all, but also there is another mark--it is the mark of hunger and need. It can be seen in Cairo, Africa, Cuba, everywhere.

He emphasized that the need is not just to give them surplus wheat but there are little farmers in these countries just developing their farms so that they can make a living for themselves.

"We need, in our schools and churches and colleges," he stated, "to train a generation of young people to see that there is still required five talents and ten talents from five talented and ten talented people and that they be trained to aid these people in those other developing areas so that they can help themselves and their people. A speaker in the United Nations stated once that the most under-developed area in the world was that just under many men's hats."

GREAT EXTREMES

Dr. Forrest emphasized the greatness of the impact upon him of the extremities in the world, the extremes of riches and poverty. He spoke of Cuba and conditions as they had been and as they are now. Whereas thousands of children were out of school and thousands of teachers unemployed, now schools are opened and many at school.

"Where living conditions were intolerable, new houses have been built. Where children were weakened by disease and parasites with little chance of medical care, now there is a concern being shown for their problems. Many of the common people think if the former was democracy and this is Communism then we like this. He stated that only one quarter of one per cent of Cuba was really Communistic prior to the revolution.

"As to whether Fidel Castro is actually a Communist or not, is not a certainty. His son attends a Methodist Sunday school while his parents are devout Roman Catholics. Some of his cabinet members are Communists."

The speaker emphasized that "you cannot expect people to value such liberties as freedom of the press when they are illiterate and that Cuba is in a state of confusion and the Communists are exploiters of confusion. The western world has failed to penetrate these countries in the spirit of love. We have learned how naive the people are and taken advantage of their naivete."

Dr. Forrest urged the group to realize that the greatest witness of the love of Jesus Christ to these people and other such peoples of the world is in the evident sacrificial concern of the missionary and we ourselves toward them. This is the witness that counts—not only words but works of love and real help for them to achieve their selfhood.

Dr. Ivan Reed expressed the thanks of the meeting to Dr. Forrest for his challenging and informative address.

Tabernacle Church shows a total of nearly $33,000 raised during the year with over $7,500 for missions and the wider work of the church. During the year 68 new members were received, bringing the total membership to 769.

Women's Activities

CHRIST CHURCH A.B.W.A.

On February the 2nd, at 1 p.m. the afternoon branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church met to enjoy a luncheon with members and guests.

The popular greeting was "have you brought a hot dish", a fitting idea too, on a day which was bitterly cold. All who braved the zero weather were well repaid in the happiness of warm friendship.

The tables were prettily arranged with the Valentine motif, adding a delightful welcome and reflecting the pleasure of the work put into the preparations by the ladies responsible.

Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan said the Blessing.

Most of the regular business was dispensed with to make time for an address by Mrs. O'Krafka of St. George's Parish, Trenton, Ont. As the Diocesan W. A. vice-president, Mrs. O'Krafka, linked the methods and aims of the W.A. with the message that the recent Epiphany Season teaches. "As the Star which led the Wise Men into Bethlehem, we, by our example, can lead the way to Jesus. Quoting three words for reflection, 'understanding one another', the speaker said that much along the lines of understanding can be accomplished by getting away from our disagreements, forget grudges and try to love our enemies. Love is of God and when we love we are looking through the eyes of God'.

"Touching on other subjects of interest to W.A. members the 'Thank Offering' was explained. To stress the importance of this fund used for missionary work in the Diocese and abroad, Mrs. O'Krafka suggested that all members use a Thank-Offering box for the purpose of being able to offer a tangible 'thank-you' when a blessing is received".

Two chapters of the Study Book, "Towards the Centre", were explained by Mrs. G. G. Wright, auxiliary educational secretary.

The president, Mrs. H. Pitt, introduced Mrs. L. Lennox, who has accepted the office of 'Little Helpers' secretary for Christ Church parish. All wish Mrs. Lennox happiness and success in this work.

Closing the meeting, Mrs. Pitt thanked all who had contributed towards making the get-together a success, especially mentioning the ladies who were responsible for the attractive tables, namely Mrs. W. D. McLaughlin and Mrs. J. Chapman.

MODERN MANNERS

HIGH PITCHED VOICE AN BE MARITAL HAZARD

A Navy Chaplain recently made a very interesting reply to a question that I asked him. My question? "Have you any ideas, gained from your experience with the men you try to help, why so many of them have trouble getting along with their wives?"

His answer? He said that what he had seen and heard about broken marriages had made him feel that wives should do a little checking up on their voices! Upon further probing, I discovered the following:

He has come to the conclusion that a man contemplating marriage should give a ten-minute blindfold test to the girl of his choice. If, blindfolded, he finds that he enjoys her voice, without being influenced by her beauty or other qualifications, then it is safe to pop the question. If he is merely tolerant of her voice, he should wait until he makes sure he can take it for years to come!

Rather a far-fetched idea? Maybe not, even though it is just "one man's opinion!" My chaplain informant sincerely feels that it's very important to a happy, successful marriage. During his years in the service he has come in close contact with men from all walks of life who have told him the reasons for their marital discord.

About 65 per cent of them have indicated that they could get along much better with their wives if they just wouldn't "nag and scold, usually in a high-pitched voice." He feels that the wife can accomplish much more, saying the same thing, if she uses a dodulated voice, never raising it to a high-pitched, rasping level.

Maybe he has something! It might be apropos at this point to ask ourselves (the ladies) what we talk about when we do use our voices! From the moment a husband enters the door at night, just returning from work, is the entire scope of our conversation bordered on the north by the children, the south by the fight with the butcher, the east by how tired we are, and the west by the nasty neighbors next door?

Perhaps things would run smoother if we greeted the man of the house with a smile, a hope that things went well at the office (showing interest meantime about his business problems).

Then pack the young ones off to bed, after a short play with Dad, and enjoy a quiet little dinner for two with talk about the doings of the day, including interesting happenings, both here and abroad. It takes five minutes to glance over the headlines in the daily paper, or to watch the TV news and keep up on the interesting and exciting things going on around us. Then, if there are family problems to discuss, it will be easier after things have simmered down. Try it and see. This plan really works.

We have taken this from one side only, in this little discussion. Women may be accused of nagging with rasping voices, but the men have faults on their side, too! We will take that up at a later date!

Question: My son is going steady with a girl. Her parents want to meet us. What is the correct procedure of meeting? If conditions are such that you can entertain in your home, would it be proper to dine out? Mr. O. B., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: When a couple become engaged, it is considered proper that the parents of the man call upon his fiancee's family. This does not really apply if it is just a case of "going steady." However, if you wish to do so, I see no reason why your wife cannot call the mother of the girl and invite them to dinner, either at home or in a restaurant. Or you can pay them a call, say, on a Sunday afternoon.

Question — My husband and I live in a small suburb, and all of us in our block are very friendly. Unfortunately, a few months ago, a couple who lived two doors down from us just couldn't make a go of it and were divorced. We are very fond of both of them and would like to invite them to our home for parties or a dinner now and then. Should we invite them together, or one at a time? Mrs. K. P. S., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Answer — My suggestion in this predicament is: Take it easy! Many a friendship has been broken up when well-meaning friends have taken what they thought was a roundabout way to help patch up the differences between the divorced couple. Use tact here. Why not call one of them, telling her (or him) that you are anxious to see her and could she make it for dinner next Sunday. Don't invite the other party to the breakup at this time. Feel out the one who does come as to their wishes in the matter, for the future, and go on from there.

Question: What is your opinion about the time my daughter, who is fourteen, should come in from her Friday or Saturday evening dates? Am I right in thinking that ten o'clock is late enough for just a movie date? For a special party, I say eleven o'clock is the time she should be, brought home by her young man. My daughter is very bitter about this, feeling that she should be allowed to stay out longer in both cases. Since she has paid a lot of attention to the comments concerning teens in your column, I wish you would tell me what you think. Maybe she would listen to you — Mrs. P. F. D., New York, N. Y.

Answer: She won't like what I am going to say! It is my opinion, after years of study that a young girl of fourteen should not be allowed to have "dates" on Friday and Saturday nights, unless she is chaperoned. A school party, or one at the home of a friend, is perfectly all right, of course, but either Mother or Dad should take her there. and pick her up. Definitely not her "young man." Alone, that is. He should come to your house and go with you, both to and from the party.

I have talked with many young boys of the same age, and, while they admit it is "smart" to fuss about restrictions as far as their dates are concerned, they have all admitted, under pressure, that they had more respect for the girl than they would have had if the family took a "so what" attitude! Try to explain this to your daughter. She will not be unpopular because of your attitude. Fourteen is just too young to start out on dates There's plenty of time in years to come. While she may rebel and argue now, she will thank you for it later on. I learned by experience. My own daughter did just that!

Italian Minestrone — A Meatless Main Course Soup

By Mary Moore

About 11:30 yesterday morning I wandered into the kitchen and found Gary hunting in the refrigerator. He said he wanted some coffee cake toasted.

I had some minstrone on simmering for lunch so quickly set the table. In no time Davy had joined us and we were slurping Italian minestrone and eating buttered coffee cake and having a spirited conversation about destroyers which they had seen in the harbor at Liverpool.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

Meat Loaf with Tomato Sauce; Baked Jacket Potatoes; Spinach; Orange Bavarian with Fresh Orange Sauce; Tea

ITALIAN MINESTRONE — a thick main course soup:

Of Minestrone George Rector says it should be broad-chested and thick with as many odds and ends as a good clam chowder. It should have a pushcartful of vegetables in it and be finished with the characterizing "pesto" which gives the richness and the body necessary for a main course soup.

These amounts are generous and will serve an average family two meals. You will see that this is a meatless soup.

One cup white navy beans, 3 potatoes, 1-4 medium head cabbage, 2 cups fresh (or fresh frozen) green beans, 1 cup peas (fresh or fresh frozen or canned), 2 cups (or 1-2 pound) fine uncooked noodles or spaghetti, water, salt and pepper.

First soak the navy beans overnight in cold water to cover. (You may use dried peas too — 1-2 cup of them — instead of the 1 cup fresh or frozen peas. If, so, soak them too in water to cover.) In the morning, drain beans and add peas, pared and diced raw potatoes, chopped cabbage, chopped green beans and uncooked noodles and 2 to 2 1-2 quarts water and about 2 teaspoons salt and 1-4 teaspoon pepper. Simmer until dried beans are tender — about 1 hour. Meanwhile, mix together the "pesto": Cream 3 tablespoons butter and add 3 tablespoons olive or salad oil (this addition of oil is optional) and add 3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese (or old Cheddar), 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley, 1 garlic clove finely chopped, 1-2 teaspoon salt, and 1-4 cup table cream. When vegetables are tender, stir this "pesto" into the soup and let simmer about 5 minutes just before serving. Serve in big soup bowls and pass a generous amount of grated Parmesan. If this is too expensive, grated old Swiss or Cheddar cheese make a dandy substitute. Real Italian minestrone lovers sprinkle the top of the soup very generously with grated cheese and eat it with Italian bread with sweet butter, or with Italian breadsticks.

This soup is even better next day if any is leftover.

CORRECTION

I made a typographical error in the recipe for Perfect Shortbread on the release for January 23.

Following is the corrected recipe for

PERFECT SHORTBREAD

I would advise weighing these ingredients.

1⅓ pounds butter, 1½ cups sifted icing sugar, 1½ pounds sifted all-purpose or cake flour, 6 ounces rice flour, 2 ounces cornstarch.

Beat the room-temperature butter with the sugar in the electric beater until blended. Remove from beater and with hands work in the flours until dough is pliable and will form into a ball. (I rolled mine out and cut it into cookies, but if you prefer, this may be pressed into small pans to depth of ½" or ¾" and pricked with fork.)

Roll out dough evenly to a little thicker than ¼" (Lightly dust board and rolling pin with cornstarch to prevent sticking).

Cut out with different shaped cutters, preferably small cookie cutters, and bake on ungreased cookie sheets ½" apart at 300 deg. Fahr. for 22 to 25 minutes. Do not brown. Time in oven depends on thickness of shortbread cookies.

NOTE: The error was in the amount of flour: in the incorrect copy I said "3½ lbs. flour."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Oscar E. — Television is robbing them of any real family life.

Charlotte F. — It keeps the kids quiet and off the streets, at least.

Oscar E. — I'm 18 and a freshman in university. Since my oldest sister has a big house here in town, I live with her and her family instead of in a dormitory.

For bright people like Charlotte and Dave, I'm amazed to see how they've let television dominate their home. There's a set on each of the three floors and sometimes all three are going at once, with the younger kids watching cartoons the older ones some slapstick nonsense, and Charlotte a gooey movie.

Back home we have a set, too, but it's only turned on for the news or something superfine. Everyone reads a lot. Dad keeps up with his cello and often has his friends over for a workout with chamber music.

What's happening to Charlotte and her family? You can only talk to them during commercials. And when you do, it's like talking to sleep-walkers!

Charlotte F. — Oscar means well, so I don't resent his criticism. But for me, with four youngsters and no help, TV is a godsend. It's a babysitter, pacifier, and tranquillizer all for the price of a little electric current.

I'm sorry if the noise and our preoccupation bother him. If he can find some other way to keep the kids absorbed and out of my hair and away from each other's necks, I'll take my hat off to him. But after a few days of being playmate, pal, referee, and nursemaid, — especially a few rainy days — he'll be ready to throw his arms around the set and kiss it!

Our mother didn't have any problem. She had plenty of hired help plus relatives around to keep an eye on her children. And we lived in a farm town where county fairs and neighborhood projects kept us all busy. We were never at loose ends.

The Council — Oscar raises a timely question for his sister: Who's the boss, — you or the mesmerizing box? TV is certainly habit-forming and Oscar is pointing out what Charlotte and Dave probably suspect — that the habits being formed are stultifying.

It's easy to understand Charlotte, weary from the morning rush and craving a cup of coffee while it's hot and a soft-boiled egg while it's warm. She settles her young in front of the set and sighs, "At last, a half-hour to myself." It's better than paregoric, certainly. But then comes lunch on a bridge-table in front of TV, and eventually too many TV dinners for all.

Evidently, things are getting out of hand in the F. home and it takes a devoted "outsider" to rouse them all from a sort of coma. What happens to homework? What happens to hobbies, sports, skills? Who is free to create, imagine, meditate concentrate and just plain think a thing through? Disgustedly, John Crosby, a TV critic, says the shows are "designed to kill time . . dedicated to utter vacuity . . anaesthetic."

Applying a few tips from two University of Michigan professors, Oscar may be just the one to help these parents turn TV viewing into an enrichment, a bridge rather than a wall between members of the family. Here are the ideas:

1. Plan the week's viewing schedule in advance, say on Sundays, with the whole family participating in the decisions; 2. Programs can be a springboard for dinner-table talk. With more than one set in use, children can report on competing programs; 3. Joining the children as they watch offers the adults a chance to guide and educate, by explaining and comforting. A family can thus turn TV into a valuable shared experience; 4. Insisting that the set be turned off, in the interest of other activities. Oscar and the adults have the job of "selling" the kids on the importance of being active, producing, developing.

Before we become, as Sam Levenson warns, "a nation of starers," families like Charlotte's must control, not be controlled by, the Big Box.

Community Honors Former Residents

RAWDON — On January 28 Wellmans L.O.L. hall was the scene of a gathering in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Russett, Teddy and Barbara, who have moved to the Foxboro Road to reside.

Mr. Craig Watson was master of ceremonies and he and Mrs. Fred Beckett were in charge of the assembly singing. Mrs. James Pollock contributed a vocal selection. Readings were given by Mrs. Douglas Clancy, Mrs. John Carlisle and Mrs. William Vardy. Piano selections were rendered by Mrs. Fred Beckett and Miss Nancy Tompkins. Mrs. Glenn Clarke and her sister, Miss B. Vardy, sang a couple of duets with guitar accompaniment.

"Happy Birthday" was sung for George Watson and he spoke briefly, also Mr. Lorne Watson. Lloyd Dunham recited a selection.

Mr. Russett was a former director of Plum-Grove Cheese Factory and Fred Beckett voiced appreciation on behalf of the association.

Mrs. Kenneth Tompkins wrote an address in poetry, which she read to the honored couple. Messrs. Douglas Clancy and James Pollock made the presentation of a step-up table and wall mirror. Miss Virginia Pollock presented Barbara with a boudoir lamp. As Teddy was ill with the humps, he was unable to be in attendance; his gift was a bedside clock. Mrs. Byron Seeley, president of Wellmans W.I. made the presentation of a china cup and saucer on behalf of that organization.

The recipients voiced thanks for the party in their honor and for the gifts, after which the committee in charge served refreshments and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Mother's Helper

WHEN YOU'RE traveling by plane, it's never wise to count on your stewardess as a baby sitter. She's busy with her many duties, and it's not fair to her—or the other passengers—to allow your children to wander around the plane. Take a small suitcase of toys, and be sure to include a new book or two.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. [illegible] Sports Editor

A gentleman who s[illegible]xious Parent" over his signature pens this dep[illegible]

"I saw a story in the Kingston paper a short while ago which said the Boston Bruins were anticipating taking over the minor hockey situation in that city. The story said that if such is the case every youngster in Kingston must play for a Bruins team and would not be allowed to play for any other club unless he went out of the city.

"What is the situation here? I understand the Chicago Black Hawks, along with Mayor McFarland, have taken over the junior "B" club. Are they in control of the minors too. I have two sons playing minor hockey and I am not in favor of any professional club tieing strings on them."

Rest easy, sir. The answer is a definite "No."

The Black Hawks organization approached the minor hockey people here with a view to affiliation. The Belleville Minor Hockey Association voted against such a procedure with one dissenting vote. The Belleville Minor Sports Association at a later meeting backed up the hockey division's decision.

Recently it was reported that the Detroit Red Wings who sponsor the Hamilton Junior "A" Wings, had complete control over minor hockey in the Ambitious City. Later it was revealed that a "deal" had been cooked up between the arena manager who owns the junior "A" franchise and a local minor organization on the basis of players for free ice time.

Down in St. Catharines sports editor Jack Gatecliffe probed the professional-minor league set-up. The Chicago Black Hawks, mother of St. Catharines junior "A" Teepees, have been for years, so Gatecliffe contacted Hawk scout Bob Wilson, minor hockey brass, and President Frank Doherty of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association.

They all agreed that no arrangement has been made between the Hawks and minor hockey.

Wilson stated: "A National Hockey League team has the right to control only the players of one team in each league in each city.

In other words the maximum players which a pro team can have on its list at any one time in one city or town is the members of one midget, one juvenile, one junior "B" and one junior "A" team.

All other players in each league are "fair game" to any other scout in hockey.

But it is no secret here that minor hockey players of any classification are being openly scouted by the Black Hawks bird-watchers. "Baldy" Cotton, chief Eagle-Eye of the Boston Bruins, was here the other night, but presumably was interested only in the Kingston Frontenacs, a Bruins-sponsored outfit.

However, if the Belleville Minor Hockey Association non-affiliation edict still holds good, there is nothing to stop any N.H.L. scout from looking over minor hockey potentials.

As far as this department is aware, the Black Hawks have no control over any minor hockey league or team in this city.

Junior "A" and junior "B" teams is another matter. When players sign with those clubs they realize, or should realize, that they are National League teams property.

Generally speaking, National Hockey League chief scouts, if their organization does have a minor team under its wing, do not step in the way of a youngster if he expresses a wish to try out with another club.

As far as this department is concerned, with the exception of the junior "B" McFarlands, Belleville is an "open city" for the Royal Order of Birdwatchers of the National Hockey League.

"Anxious Father" need not worry. The Hawks are not playing yo-yo with Belleville minors.

Of course all of us have NHL favorites, particularly the younger fry, but as far as developing potential is concerned, isn't one club as good as another?

Wolves Lose, Too

Leicester Beats Spurs

LONDON (Reuters)—All-conquering Tottenham Hotspur, the soccer team of the season, saw its unbeaten home record shattered Saturday when it lost 3-2 to Leicester City in the First Division of the English Football League.

Tottenham, beaten only twice before in 27 games, was seeking its 50th point of the season to record the fastest half-century in league history.

The defeat made little difference to Tottenham's standing because its nearest rival, Wolverhampton Wanderers lost 2-1 at Blackburn.

Spurs thus maintained their lead of eight points.

Third-place Sheffield Wednesday, which trounced Manchester United 7-2 in a mid-week cup replay, continued its goal-scoring form with a 5-1 win over Preston. It now is two points behind Wolverhampton.

George Estham, the second costliest player in English soccer, returned to his old club, Newcastle, and scored the equalizing goal for Arsenal in a thrilling 3-3 draw.

Waterlogged grounds, high winds and snow in the north upset form and fixtures. The First-Division Birmingham - vs- Burnley game was postponed. Second - Division Luton - Charlton and Stoke-Derby games and the Fourth-Division Gillingham-Northampton game also were called off.

Heavy snow prevented play in five Scottish-Division games.

What's This? Habs In Second Place!

Beaten Twice Over Weekend

By LAURENT CHIASSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal Canadiens, hockey's top team the last five seasons, are in trouble.

They have won only once in seven starts and during the weekend dropped to second place in the National Hockey League standings — the first time in four seasons the Habs have been out of first place this late in the schedule.

Chicago Black Hawks, goalie Glenn Hall stopping 36 shots, handed the Canadiens a 4-1 drubbing at Montreal Saturday. But the esusher came Sunday in Detroit when Canadiens were swamped 7-2, their worst defeat this year.

Toronto Maple Leafs took advantage of Montreal's ineffectiveness and opened a three-point lead at the top of the standings with a win and a tie against the same opponents as Montreal.

Saturday, the Leafs struck for four goals in the second period on home ice to beat the Wings 4-2. Sunday, they were held to a 1-1 tie in Chicago.

BEAT BRUIN TWICE

New York Rangers, a hot team for the last several weeks, beat Boston Bruins twice in other weekend games.

Two goals within 35 seconds were enough for a 2-1 decision at Boston Saturday. On home ice Sunday, the Rangers trumped the Bruins 5-2.

Chicago strengthened its grip on third place and now have 55 points, four more than fourth-place Detroit. The onrushing Rangers have 42 points and the Bruins are last with 33.

Hall, one of the game's great goalies, was the big star against Canadiens before a crowd of 14,473. Four of his 36 saves were on breakaways.

Chicago's scoring was divided among Eddie Litzenberger, Murray Balfour, Ron Murphy and Stan Mikita. Marcel Bonin scored Montreal's only goal.

CROWD IS GLEEFUL

Another big crowd — 13,562— hooted in glee as Canadiens lost at Detroit Sunday. It was the worst thrashing the Wings had given the Habs since Nov. 18, 1956 when they won 8-3.

Alex elvechio paced the Wings with his 20th and 21st goals of the season, putting him in the 20-goal circle for the third time in his career.

Sharing the spotlight with Delvecchio were Val Fonteyne, Len Lunde, Claude Laforge and goalie Terry Sawchuk.

Fonteyne got his first goal in 44 games, Lunde his first in 27 and Laforge his first of the season. Sawchuk made 33 saves.

Other Detroit scorers were Norm Ullman and Jerry Melnyk. Gilles Tremblay and Bernie Geoffrion, with his 30th, scored for Montreal.

SPOT THEM LEAD

Toronto spotted the Wings a 1-0 lead in the first period Saturday but came roaring back in the second on goals by Bob Nevin, George Armstrong, Eddie Shack and Ron Stewart.

Vic Stasiuk, recently acquired from Boston in a five - player trade, scored his first goal as a Wing in the first period. Defenceman Marcel Pronovost got the other Wing goal in the third.

The Leafs appeared headed for aother win at Chicago Sunday. They led 1-0 on rookie Dave Keon's goal after only 36 seconds of play until past the halfway mark of the third.

Then Eric Nesterenko swept around the Toronto defence for the equalizer.

The New York - Boston game Saturday started two hours late after the Rangers were held up by a snowstorm. Four Rangers —Ted Hampson, Brian Cullen, Dean Prentice and Don Johns —couldn't get a train due to the weather and did not play.

Andy Hebenton got his 20th goal of the season in the second period. Then defenceman Harry Howell sent Rangers head 2-0.

Fern. Flaman counted Boston's loan goal, also in the second.

Prentice scored twice for Rangers Sunday and singles went to Andy Bathgate, Camille Henry and Floyd Smith.

Charlie Burns and Doug Mohns tallied for Boston.

Thinks He Can Beat Record

Mahovlich Having Goal Troubles

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP) — Toronto's Frank Mahovlich is having trouble scoring goals these days, but the Big M still thinks he can bust Maurice (Rocket) Richard's record of 50 goals in one season.

Mahovlich is the first to admit it will be somewhat of a hollow record, since Richard's feat was accomplished in 50 games whereas the National Hockey League now plays 70 games.

Nevertheless, the league has been playing 70 games a season for more than 10 years and nobody has yet matched the 1944-45 record of the former Montreal Canadiens star.

"I still can do it," said Mahovlich after the Leafs and the Chicago Black Hawks had battle dto a 1-1 tie Sunday night in which the Big M was shut out. "I have 17 games left and if I can get a hat trick or two, I can make it. But it has been tough lately so I guess I'll just have to work harder."

TALLIES ASSIST

The best he could do Saturday night was a single assist as Leafs defeated Detroit Red Wings 4-2. It brought big Frank's point total to 62 which leaves him in second place four points behind Montreal's Bernie Geoffrion.

Frank's 41 goals are nine better than Canadiens' Dickie Moore's total of 32, second best in the goals - scored statistics. Moore, with 29 assists to Frank's 21, trails the Toronto star by one point.

Mahovlich, a serious 23-year-old, made no attempt to hide his disgust over the close guarding of Chicago's Eric Nesterenko.

"He does a lot of grabbing and holding," said Mahovlich, "but I'll get my shots at him one of these days. You know, every dog has his day."

That's probably what the Black Hawks were thinking when they decided to put Nesterenko on Mahovlich.

"He was driving us crazy," said Hawk coach Rudy Pilous. "We let him roam early in the season and what happened? He scored four goals against us one night and three another night. We simply had to do something or he'd wind up breaking every record in the league against us alone."

Although Mahovlich is being checked closely throughout the league, it is not only the defences which have been stopping him. The luck factor also appears to be against him. Early in Sunday night's game he grabbed a loose puck and went darting in on goalie Glenn Hall.

It appeared as if the Big M would have no trouble getting No. 42 as he let loose from about 10 feet out. The blurring puck, aimed at the right-hand corner of the net, missed by an inch and came pounding off the boards.

Royals Lead Whittled to Eight Points

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto St. Michael's College Majors cut Guelph Royals' first-place margin to eight points in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series during the weekend.

The Majors, with two games in hand over Guelph dropped sixth-place St. Catharines Teepees 5-2 Saturday night with the help of Bruce Draper's three-goal performance, but blew a one-goal lead and lost 3-1 to the Teeps in a return engagement Sunday.

In the other half of a Toronto Sunday doubleheader, Toronto Marlboros twice lost the lead and tied 3-3 with Peterborough Petes.

The Majors got the lion's share of penalties Saturday but made their chances count where St. Catharines couldn't. Three St. Michael's goals were scored with the Teepees a man shy.

Larry Keenan and Arnold Brown scored along with Draper, Brown driving the puck into an empty net with Teepees goaltender Roger Crozier on the bench with one second left.

St. Catharines scorers were defenceman Bill Speer, playing despite a concussion suffered in Guelph Friday night, and Doug Robinson.

Daper score the first goal Sunday but frequent unmolested St. Catharines rushes in the third period paid off in goals for Doug Jarrett, Bill Ives and Robinson.

Thirteen penalties were called in the game, witnessed by 5,038. The Teepees drew seven.

Claude Larose scored twice for Peterborough, Rich Mulholland once. George Standing, Frank Ridley and Gus Brassard scored for the tail - end Marlies, assessed 12 of the 19 penalties, including a misconduct to Standing for a comment he made after his goal.

Hull Beats Kingston 4-2; Retains Lead

Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional Hockey League retained their 16-point league lead, defeating fourth-place Kingston Frontenacs 4-2 in Hull Sunday.

The Frontenacs also were defeated 7-4 by second-place Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds in Kingston Saturday.

In the other weekend game third-place Kitchener Waterloo Beavers clipped the cellar-dwelling Montreal Royals 4-2 at Kitchener.

Bill Carter scored two goals for Hull - Ottawa against the Frontenacs. Johnny Annable and Bob Ellett added singles. Bob Attersley and Stan Maxwell were Kingston's marksmen.

Association President Jim Vipond reported that the sports celebrity dinner held in Toronto last month had realized approximately $25,000 for the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Total receipts from the dinner during the last 10 years now are $210,000.

Smoke Eaters Rough Swedish Stars

LEKSAND, Sweden (CP) — Trail Smoke Eaters play their last exhibition game in Sweden today and the Swedes are none the sorrier for it.

While the Smoke Eaters scored an easy 3-1 victory over a Swedish B team Sunday night, Stockholm burned over the Canadians' boisterous defeat of the Swedish championship team Friday.

In the Friday game and one the previous day that the Smoke Eaters lost 4-0, four of Sweden's top hockey players were injured—two of them so badly that they will have to be dropped from the national team that will compete in the world tournament in Switzerland next month.

Swedish newspapers cried foul, accusing the Canadians of "scandalous" ice tactics. "This is not hockey," said one. "Next time we will have to call in Sweden's national boxing squad."

Fearing further injuries, the Swedes decided against using their national team in the remaining exhibition games. The Canadians played at half-speed against the B team despite a weak Swedish defence that they could have penetrated with more goals.

Stockholm's evening newspapers accused the Canadians of barbarism. They played up the charges to the extent of using four full-pages of stories and pictures Saturday, including the entire front pages.

However, some observers acknowledged that it was the Swedes' failure to play "heads-up" hockey that resulted in their being shaken up by tough Canadian body-checks.

Nisse Nilsson, named "best forward of the tournament" in the Squaw Valley, Calif., Olympics last year, suffered a broken jaw Thursday. The Canadians, weary after their trip overseas and a game in Oslo the day before, played that match in a heavy snowfall and were shut out.

In Trail's 4-1 victory Friday night, Lars-Erik Lundvall, a forward for Sweden's national team for many years, injured a knee and was forced out of the world championships. Two other Swedes who suffered minor injuries will probably be able to play.

RAPPED BY REFS

Trail's Darryl Sly got into a minor fight with Swedish forward Sven Johansson during the game and drew seven minutes in penalties compared to two for the Swede. In all, the Canadians were given 14 penalties by two Czech referees, who severely criticized their rough play.

Sunday night, the Smoke Eaters concentrated mainly on their passing plays.

Captain Cal Hockley fired home a pass from George Ferguson to open the scoring in the first period but Sweden got it back a few minutes later when Trail was a man short.

Dave Russnell put the Smoke Eaters ahead again before the period ended, and Adolph Tambellini's goal on a pass from Jackie McLeod late in the third period wound up the scoring.

The game was played in 13-below-zero weather on an outdoor rink. Low temperatures also were forecast for today's game against Sweden's No. 2 team at Gavle.

The Smoke Eaters will play another 13 games before going into the world championships March 2-12. They won their first exhibition game in Oslo 8-3, giving them a record of three victories and one loss to date.

Ladies Win Major Award In Badminton

Belleville Garrison Badminton Club's distaff side did some justifiable gloating over the mere males over the weekend.

For after the smoke of "bird battle" was over at the Bowmanville Badminton Club Saturday night, two of their teams reached the ladies' double finals with one bringing home the title and the silver plate.

Betty Walmsley and Jackie Hull were the proud winners defeating Marion Salisbury and Dorothy Lazier for the honors.

Some 80 players from Picton, Whitby, Belleville, Oshawa, Peterborough and Bowmanville took part in the annual "B" tournament.

The Garrison Club was represented by 14 players, eight of them ladies. These included besides the four finalists, Noreen Callaghan, Marilyn Kirkman, Loreen Potts and Billie Waldon. All gave highly creditable performances.

Men players were Dawson McLean, Alex Cunningham, Arthur Bestic, Bill Gilbert, Mervin Potts and Douglas Law. They, too, played well but failed to end up "in the money".

The fine performance of Jackie Hull and Betty Walmsley was one of the highlights of the tournament, shading that of Marion Salisbury and Dorothy Lazier.

The foursome defeated the best five Eastern Ontario clubs had to offer in order to reach the finals.

It was the second major triumph for the club this season, Allan Mott having won a bantam championship a few weeks ago.

No Abuse in NHL

O'Ree Happy In Big Time

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie O'Ree, the National Hockey League's first and only Negro player, admits he's been subjected to name-calling and other indignities during his five-year professional career.

"But it hasn't happened so far in the NHL," the Boston Bruins rookie said Saturday. "I've been expecting some trouble, but I've played in all the league cities and there's been none from the opposing players or the fans."

Although he played two games for Boston three years ago, this is O'Ree's first real chance in the big league. He was brought up from Kingston of the Eastern Professional League two months ago and coach Milt Schmidt calls him "a real nice kid and an excellent prospect."

"When Willie joined the club this season I held a special meeting with the other players," Schmidt revealed. "I asked them if anyone had any objection about rooming with him. No one objected and he's been rooming with Charlie Burns ever since."

PRO FIVE YEARS

O'Ree, 25, and a native of Fredericton, broke into professional hockey with Quebec City of the Quebec League in 1956-57.

"Punch Imlach was coaching the team at the time and I'll always remember the advice he gave me," said O'Ree. "Punch told me that no matter what abuses I had to take, to work hard and I'd make the NHL because I had the ability.

"It hasn't been easy," Willie continued. "While with Quebec and later with Kingston they called me names several times because of my color. I was also spat at. But now that I'm with the Bruins it was all worth it.

"Up here, I've been treated just like any other hockey player. I'd like to be singled out only for making a good showing on the ice."

To O'Ree's credit so far this season are game-winning goals against the champion Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings.

"I'm confident I can score 20 goals in this league," said O'Ree, a speedy leftwinger. "I feel now as though I belong."

Norway Wins Over US 4-3

OSLO (AP)—While the Norwegian and the American national hockey teams battled it out on the rink Sunday night, the two team coaches fought a verbal duel in the dressing room. The coach of the Norwegian team, which won 4-3, is Canadian - born Murray (Mo) Fife.

U.S. Coach Carnie Pleaban went to the dressing room complaining loudly about Norwegian referees Jan Molberg and Finn Heegbarth.

"I've been here before but never seen so bad handling of the whistles," Pleaban said after the first period when the U.S. team had just two shots on the Norwegian goal.

The Americans drew a total of 10 two-minute penalties, the Norwegians one.

"You better . . . tell a couple of your guys we are playing ice hockey in Europe and not American football," said Fife as he entered the dressing room after Pleaban.

"Who said that," Pleaban shouted back. He didn't notice Fife coming in behind him.

"I said it," Fife shouted back.

"Oh—you said it boy," leaban grinned and the two coaches went on to talk over the refereeing during the interval in the dressing room and at the players' bench at the start of the second period.

They separated exchanging friendly pats on the shoulders.

Joey Archer Wins Upset Over Fullmer

NEW YORK (AP) Undefeated Joey Archer of New York scored his 30th straight victory Saturday night by gaining an upset 10 - round decision over middleweight contender Don Fullmer, 21, of West Jordan, Utah. Archer weighed 160¼ pounds, Fullmer 157¾.

Referee Jimmy Devlin called it 7 to 3 for Archer and judge Frank Forbes 8 to 2. Judge Leo Birnbaum called it a draw, giving each five rounds and six points. The Associated Press card had Fullmer ahead 6 to 4.

The split decision defeat ended Fullmer's unbeaten streak at eight. He is ranked sixth.

Fullmer, a 7-to-5 favorite, now has a 24-4-1 record. He bled from the nose from the third round on.

GREAVES GETS DECISION

In the semi - final, Wilfie Greaves of Edmonton, Canadian middleweight champion, won an eight-round split decision over Obdulio Nunez, sharp-punching Puerto Rican.

Afterwards, Madison Square Garden matchmaker Teddy Brenner said of Archer: "We're going to put him back in the Garden in April, probably against Wilfie Greaves. He looks like a real good prospect."

Greaves's win avenged an October loss to the Puerto Rican. Despite cuts over his left eye and under his right one, the busky Canadian forced the fight all the way. Greaves weighed 161 pounds, Nunez 158.

Greaves rocked Nunez with a right to the jaw in the third round. The Puerto Rican's knees buckled and he absorbed a withering barrage for 15 seconds but refused to go down.

Judge Leo Birnbaum called it 4 to 3 for Greaves with one round even. Judge Frank Forbes had it 5 to 3 for Greaves. Barney Smith called it even, awarding four rounds and five points to each.

Ed Chadwick Has Shutout In AL Debut

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Providence Reds must be wondering what trick of fate kept goaltender Ed Chadwick off their American Hockey League club.

Chadwick was slated to join Providence from Rochester Americans and Don Simmons, who had played earlier in the season for the Reds, was to go to Rochester. But Simmons refused to report to the Americans and the deal was held up.

Chadwick Sunday night gave the Reds a taste of what they were missing. He and Americans shut the Reds out 5-0. Duke Edmundson made Chadwick's task simple by scoring three goals. Dick Van Impe and Dave Creighton chipped in with one each.

In other games, Buffalo Bisons edged Cleveland Barons 2-1 in overtime and the league-leading Springfield Indians belted Quebec Aces 6-2. Cleveland defeated the Reds 5-2 in Saturday's only engagement. Two other scheduled games were postponed because of heavy snowstorms.

LEAD LEAGUE

The Indians lead the league race with 70 points, 16 ahead of the Barons and 20 ahead of the Bears.

At Buffalo, Billy Dea's goal at 6:54 of sudden-death overtime gave the Bisons their victory. Chico Maki, who picked up Buffalo's first goal, passed the puck to ea as he swept in from the left wing. Dea made no mistake with a 10-foot blast. Bill Dineen scored for Cleveland.

Bob Kabel led the Indians' attack against the Aces at Quebec with two goals. Jack Caffery, Ken Schinkel, Art Stratton and Jim Anderson added singles. Quebec scorers were Fleming Mackell and Bob Bailey.

The Barons overcame a 2-1 Providence lead at Cleveland. Eddie Mazur, Greig Hicks, Fred Glover, Cal Gardiner and Jim Mikol scored for the Barons. Ray Ross and George Ranieri accounted for the Providence goals.

Final Goal Touches Off Wild Riot

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—A riot between St. Paul players and spectators ended the Toledo Mercury-St. Paul Saints International Hockey League game Sunday with one second left to play. St. Paul won 6-5.

It took 20 policemen to restore order.

The wild melee was touched off after Toledo's Gerry Moore got his third goal at 19:59 of the final period, just as the buzzer sounded the end of the game.

St. Paul players, led by goaltender Jacques Marcotte, rushed to the scorer's table to protest that the goal was not scored before the buzzer.

A spectator heckled Marcotte, who then swung a stick at the fan. Spectators swarmed to the area and the entire St. Paul team rushed in, attacking the spectators with their sticks. One spectator threw a chair on the ice and several others joined in. The St. Paul players retaliated by throwing chairs back to the crowd.

Two spectators were injured slightly.

Referee Jack Patterson suspended the game with one second left.

CANCEL RACES

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Bowie Race Course, battered by snowstorms since the opening of its scheduled 48-day meeting last month, Saturday postponed further racing at the southern Maryland track until Wednesday.

Senior Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Bulldogs dispelled any hopes or fears they might slide from their long-held perch atop the Ontario Hockey Association Senior Series during the weekend, when they trimmed second-place Galt Terriers 5-2 Saturday and Strathroy Rockets 10-3 Sunday.

They now are nine points ahead of Galt and Chatham Maroons who are tied for second.

In the only other weekend action, Strathroy moved closer to fourth - place Stratford Indians, edging Woodstock Athletics 5-3 in Strathroy.

The league - leaders disappointed 1,300 Galt fans when they broke a 1-1 tie in the second period with three unanswered goals and then held the Terriers to one goal in the final 20 minutes.

Playing Coach Joe Klukay scored twice for the winners, Bob Brown, Len Speck and Lou Bendo once each. Bendo's goal was scored into an empty net at 19:48 of the third period after Terriers had pulled goaltender Boat Hurley.

CHILDS HOLDS FORT

Ted Maki and Ab Martin scored for Galt, as the Terriers outshot Windsor 39-34 but found Bulldogs goaltender Ross Childs almost impenetrable.

At Windsor Sunday the Bulldogs humbled the Rockets before 1,489 fans as they peppered 57 shots at Dick Paltowski in the Strathroy nets.

Defenceman Jerry Serviss put on a two-way display for the winners, scoring three times. Bill Mitchell and Gord Haidy each tallied twice and singles went to Ed Switzer, Joe Zorica and Bendo.

Paul Oliver, Willie Haas and Bruce Jones were Strathroy's scorers.

Things were a lot brighter for the Rockets Saturday night when they opened a 3-1 lead over the hapless, cellar-dwelling Athletics in the first period and tied them 1-1 in the other two frames.

Star of the game was Art Sullivan, who scored four Rockets goals and assisted on the fifth. Cec Cowie notched the team's third - period goal. Woodstock goals were registered by Jack Stoddard, with two, and Jack Taylor.

TO REPRESENT U.S.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—Marine Corporals Gary Sheffield and Jerry Tennant, members of the No. 1 U.S. four-man bobsled team, won the right Sunday to represent the United States as the No. 1 team in the two-man world championships.

Maxwell Wins Palm Springs Golf Tourney

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) Pudgy Billy Maxwell, 31, a tenacious little man on any golf course, ended a long victory drought Sunday when he captured the $50,000 Palm Springs classic.

The Texan knocked out a one-under-par 71 for a total score of 345 in 90-hole desert marathon to haul down $5,300 top money and score his first triumph since the 1958 Memphis Open.

Young Doug Sanders took second place, shooting a 69 for a total of 347, worth $3,400. In third place, with his patented finish, was Arnold Palmer, who came from practically nowhere and shot a 69 for an over-all score of 348 which earned him $2,200.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver picked up $1,200 for his 90-hole total of 352. Leonard coupled a final - round 72 with earlier rounds of 71, 69, 71 and 69 to tie for eighth place.

Toronto's Al Balding finished with a 73 for 355 and $526. George Knudson and Jerry Magee, both of Toronto, failed to make the 287 cut-off Saturday.

Golf Circuit Gold-Lined

MIAMI, Fla. (CP)—A record in total circuit purses and a cast of golfing greats will feature the 1961 Caribbean tour which will be launched this week in Panama. The players assembled from the United States, Canada, Europe, Latin and South America leave here today for the first stop of the five-tournament swing.

With the purse increased from $55,000 from $41,000, the championship events in Panama, Maracaibo, Caracas, Puerto Rico and Jamaica have lured a field from two continents, including Bill Kerr, Cnadian Professional Golfers Association champion, and Alan Johnson, Rivermead Cup winner, both of Montreal.

Richardson Rink Beaten

REGINA (CP)—Ernie Richardson, Canadian and international curling champion for the last two years, Saturday was knocked from 1961 competition.

Richardson's Civil Service rink bowed 6-4 in an extra end to Bill Clarke's Caledonian Club foursome in the final of the bottom event in the city championship.

Clarke, along with the winner of the top event, Wes Kaitenbruner of Regina Club, will carry the city colors into the southern Saskatchewan championships beginning in Moose Jaw today.

HOPE EXPAND AHL

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Baltimore and St. Louis hope to be operating American Hockey League franchises next year, a member of the league's board of governors says. Word that the two cities have applied for franchises in the league came during the weekend from Lloyd Blinco, general manager of Hershey Bears. He said that if the two cities gain franchises, the league probably will set up east and west divisions.

Don January Clinches Golf Pot of Gold

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—A smile as broad as Texas spread across Don January's face Sunday when he learned that the final threesome had passed the last par-three hole at the Palm Springs golf classic.

For this meant the 31-year-old Dallas golfer had won the full $50,000 bonus offered pros in this five-day tournament for a hole-in-one.

January got his hole-in-one Thursday on a 148-yard, par-three 15th hole. He shot a 74 Sunday and finished far down in the field of 64 pros with an over-all score of 359.

For that, he also collected prize money—exactly $18.33.

Broadcasters Issue Revised Code of Ethics

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Association of Broadcasters issued today a revised code of ethics described by its executive vice-president, T. J. Allard, as "a conscious and determined attempt at self-regulation."

The code, a revision of one issued in 1943, has been accepted by about three-quarters of the association's membership of 168 private radio stations and 48 private television stations and more are expected.

It defines broadcasting station owners and managers "as publishers and an integral part of the press of Canada" with responsibility for dissemination of information and news, meeting varied tastes for entertainment and following ethical business standards in dealing with advertisers and their agents.

LABEL OPINIONS

Member stations will endeavor to provide editorial opinion, clearly labelled as such and kept distinct from regular news broadcasts, says the revised code in a statement not contained in the old.

The code calls on member stations to provide "closest possible supervision" of children's programs, to guard against advertising appeals which might be in poor taste or which might encourage activities of a dangerous social nature and to make educational programs as "useful and entertaining as possible."

The revised code provides for a five-man association committee to enforce its provisions among subscribing broadcasters. Any station which accepts the code, then breaks it, can be named in a public announcement 60 days after the committee decision—the delay is to permit appeal to the association's board of directors. Board rulings are final.

The association code is comparable to the publicly-owned CBC's policy statements, revised periodically by its directors. Both CBC and private stations are subject to broad principles set out in the 1958 Broadcasting Act and also to rules and policy statements of the Board of Broadcast Governors.

While reminding association members to supervise closely selection and control of material, plot and characterizations in children's programs, the new code also suggests that parents keep their youngsters away from radio or TV programs that may affect them adversely.

For example, one child may be delighted by a TV program based on the old fairy tale of Hansel and Gretel. Another child may be terrified. The C.A.B. holds that the only answer is for parents to know how their children are affected and to act accordingly.

On news, the code says stations should present news "with accuracy and without bias." The old code called for "fairness and accuracy."

Native Girl Picked to Play Marlon Brando's Sweetheart

By BOB THOMAS

PAPEETE (AP) — The newest star in films hails from Bora Bora and couldn't care less about Hollywood.

Tarita, 19, lithe and lovely, was picked to play Marlon Brando's sweetheart in Mutiny on the Bounty. Before her selection, she could have asked: Who is Marlon Brando?

"I don't care much for the cinema," she explains through an interpreter.

That does not mean that she does not care much for Marlon Brando. "He is a very kind man," she says, "and he is very helpful in teaching me how to act."

Does their friendship go any farther than this? Not as yet.

They had their first date last week, a dinner together at the Hotel Tahiti. She was asked if she would go out with him again.

The answer required five minutes, during which she blushed, covered her mouth to hide a smile and finally came up with the diplomatic answer: "If he asks me."

Tarita's home is on an idyllic isle surrounded by a crystal clear lagoon. Her father once made starch from tree roots but now is retired.

The girl advanced through the equivalent of the ninth grade, studying French history, geography and mathematics, left school to come and live with a married sister in Papeete. Tarita's great passion was to dance, and that was to be fateful in her future.

MGM had searched widely for a girl to play Maimite, the love of Fletcher Christian. Many actresses were considered in Hollywood, but Brando held out for a native girl.

The Tracks

New York (CP)—Calmuet Farm's Porky surged to the front in the stretch to take the 26th running of the $69,300 McLennan Handicap Saturday before the season's largest crowd, 22,328, at Miami's Hialeah Park

The four-year-old finished 2¾ lengths ahead of Don Poggio 2¾ Hands was third, 2¾ lengths farther back.

Teamed as an entry with Calumet's On-and-On, Yorky paid $6, $3.10 and $2.70 in winning $45,045 for his owners. Don Poggia paid $5.80 and $4.10, All Hands $8.

orky ran the 1⅛ miles over a fast track in 1:48. On-and-On, with Bill Hartack up, never was a factor and finished last in the 14-horse field.

Game Competitor

Never Give In took the price for truly Spartan performance.

"He hit his head coming out of the gate," said jockey Bob Ussery. "He probably was half dazed all through the race. I wanted to take the lead at the half-mile pole but he couldn't do it."

At Arcadia, Calif., Sister Antoine, a four-year-old filly who wouldn't have been in Saturday's $60,400 Santa Margarita Handicap except for three late scratches, came flying through the stretch to win it in a photo finish from Paris and Pike and Geechee Lou.

Sister Antoine paid $48.60, $22.40 and $11.60; Paaris Pie $17.40 and $11.60, and Geechee Lou $5.

The winner's time for the 1⅛ miles was 1:49 3-5. The victory was worth $37,900 to Hirsch Jacobs, owner and trainer.

Astrological Forecast

Tuesday, February 7, 1961
By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: Make sure you do nothing today or tonight to upset anyone whom you regard as a friend but who is having his own problems. However, you are certainly able to make a fresh start toward getting insurance, trust funds, wills, financial affairs with all others on a better basis. Be romantic, thoughtful of one you love the most also.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) If you deliberately meditate for a while today, you can get some very valuable intuitive hunches that can help to bring your goals nearer to you. Later, don't be forceful with good friends. Win out through passive resistance.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Partners will be honest in their appraisal of you today and you can then come to a better understanding for the future, make more binding agreements. Don't be hasty later in dealing with higher-ups ,especially in civic affairs.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) You can be very efficient in your labors now. Try to establish more harmonious relations with fellow-workers or associates. P.M. carry on with important work and do not be hypnotized by an overly-dynamic newcomer. Be sensible.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) If you carry through on any ventures as you prefer instead of talking your affairs over with some grasping expert, this can be a most successful and happy day for you. P.M. step out with good friends and have a delightful time.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are capable of handling basic matters so well now that those closest to you will be highly pleased. Be very cooperative. However, take care you do not make some radical change which will be detrimental to you later.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Every opportunity is yours now to impress important people with your good business sense and can actively take part in any necessary travel, etc. Don't get bogged down with any dull doldrum chores and lose out on today's fine aspects.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Financial experts can assist you greatly now in all your most basic affairs, so be sure you do not waste time with the unimportant or become extravagant where pleasure is concerned.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Garner the important data you need today from your newspaper, then carry through with personal follow-up. Strive for greater efficiency in your work which will lead to more ease in the future. Avoid dull individuals. Grow.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Investigate that which is puzzling to you and analyze the methods you are using to reach your goals. Take particular care while out driving. Treat an associate diplomatically so that you do not lose this valuable ally.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) This is the right day to get the co-operation of good, progressive allies who are in the mood to be of assistance. Use the direct approach instead of trying to work so many angles. Your goals will then be reached far more quickly.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be altruistic now in going after your desires so that you gain the favors and co-operation of those who are vitally concerned with them. Strive to please the public in general in order to gain the greatest benefits.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) This can be a most productive and happy day for you if you get into the world of activity early and refrain from worrying over any possible or imaginary problematical affairs. Pln your day, then follow through intelligently.

If your child is born today . . he, or she, will be one of those intelligent individuals who will want a logical answer to any question, and will ferret out any information that will solve problems facing him, or her. However, you must early teach to consider the other fellow as well and then the chart becomes most successful, especially where partnerships are concerned. The doctor or scientist is also in this chart.

SCHOOL DAYS

DEBUNKS MYTH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former ambassador an congresswoman Clare Boothe Luce denounces as a myth the popular conception of an ambassador: One who wears a silk hat, cutaway coat, striped trousers "and spends all his time attending parties where a lot of liquor is flowing." She told a meeting here: "Actually the duties o fan ambassador are fantastically heavy and are of immense value to his country—if he is a good ambassador."

Hillier South

HILLIER SOUTH—On January 10th, 1961, Mrs. Alex Rattray, Consecon, received the notice of the death of her sister, Nellie, Mrs. William Whyte, at Dundee, Scotland. Other surviving members of the family are a sister, Dundee, Scotland, and a brother residing at Hamilton, Scotland.

The past week the fruit growers and also the vegetable growers held their convention at King Edward Hotel, Toronto. Many attended from the district.

Mr. B. C. Bishop and Mrs. J. McNeil, who were former residents, have returned home from Memorial Hospital, at Picton.

Achievement Day will be held on February 4th, at Picton Collegiate. The 4-H Club have been busy with the completion of record book and the project, "Club Girl Entertains." Pupils of school and parents are invited.

An interesting event took place in Hillier Hall on January 21st, when the 4-H Club girls and their leaders were co-hostesses to W.I. members. Mrs. A. Rattray, by special request, contributed to the program "Bobby Burns" night, as a bonnie lassie. She was dressed in Scottish cap, tartans and kilts. The girls presented Mrs. Rattray with a suitable gift and the club girls and their leaders each were given a gift from the W.I. members.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wilson celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on February 4th at the Wellington Hall, when they were "at home" to relative and friends. Congratulations are extended.

Science at Work

Topics this week: Moon shadows, a new comet, airborne disease and hot spots on the moon.

TO CHASE A SHADOW

Russian scientists hope to learn more about a forthcoming eclipse of the sun by having a jet airliner chase the shadow of the moon.

On Feb. 15, for 165 seconds, the moon will pass between the earth and the sun, thus throwing a shadow on the earth. The jet, flying above the clouds, will follow the shadow. Its high speed is expected to allow the Russians an additional 75 seconds to make measurements — more than a stationary observer on the ground would have.

This eclipse will be visible in Europe, but not in North America.

DISEASE VIA AIR

Almost 300 species of birds fly into Egypt from Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union, the Syrian and Palestinian coasts, and the Caspian Sea. From Egypt many of the birds fly on to Africa.

Many of these migrating carry silent travellers—parasitic ticks that live on human and animal blood and often trade disease for their living.

U.S. Navy researchers in Cairo, who found ticks on many of the birds, indicated they could carry human diseases such as Crimean hemorrhagic fever, Q fever, rabbit fever, tick typhus and brucellosis as well as animal diseases.

COMET CANDY

The day after Christmas, astronomer M. P. Candy of England's Royal Observatory found a new comet in the heavens. It was travelling southward with little change in brightness.

On Feb. 8 it will reach its closest point to the sun. The existence of Comet Candy was confirmed by astronomers in East Germany — and by custom bears the name of its discoverer.

LUNAR HOT SPOTS

Some spots on the moon—notably the floors of some larger craters—don't cool off as rapidly as the rest of the lunar landscape.

Astronomers measuring the heat radiated from the moon's surface say that some of the crater floors stay 40 or 50 degrees warmer than their surroundings.

TO SET A WATCH

A new device, smaller than a matchhead, to be built into watches of the future will help regulate time.

Called the triostat, it enables watch repairmen to adjust a slow or fast watch more accurately and easily by simply moving a wheel on the back.

Judge Pritchard Dies in Whitby

WHITBY (CP) — Ontario County Judge John Elton Pritchard, 59, died Sunday in Oshawa General Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Born in Minto Township, Wellington County, he was educated at Harriston High School and University of Toronto. He graduated from Osgoode Hall Law School in 1927 and practised in Toronto until 1953. He was named King's Counsel in 1938, and was a deputy magistrate from 1943 to 1947.

On Oct. 21, 1953 he became judge of the Ontario County court and local judge of the Supreme Court. He served as chairman of the police commissions of Oshawa, Whitby, and Pickering Township.

He was a past master of Wellington Masonic Lodge, Toronto and a member of the Oshawa Scottish Rite Club. He was a past president of the Whitby Dunlops Hockey Club.

Surviving are his wife, a son and a daughter.

The funeral service will be held Tuesday afternoon at Whitby United Church with interment in Harriston Cemetery.

35 U.S. Flights Switched to Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Thirty-five flights with more than 4,000 passengers were diverted to Montreal International Airport during the weekend because of snowstorms in the eastern United States and parts of Eastern Canada.

Downtown Montreal hotels were taxed to capacity.

MISSED CHALLENGE

VIENTIANE (AP)—An American adviser of the Laotian army was shot and wounded by a Laotian army guard Saturday as he drove past King Savang Vatthana's Vientiane palace. A United States Embassy spokesman said Fred Stolder, 61, apparently did not hear a challenge to halt.

Inquest Ordered Into Shooting Death of Woman

LITTLE CURRENT (CP)—Crown attorney E. L. Claridge said Sunday he has ordered an inquest into the shooting death Friday night of Mrs. Madeline Mandamin, 34.

Police said Mrs. Mandamin was shot in the stomach at her home in the Wikwemikong Indian reserve 10 miles south of this Manitoulin Island community.

The victim's husband John told police he had taken a gun from its rack to shoot at a dog. He said it accidentally discharged as he turned around, killing his pregnant wife.

Mrs. Mandamin, pronounced dead on arrival at hospital in Sudbury, some 80 miles northeast of here, was the mother of five children, all under eight years of age.

Mandamin, a woodcutter on the reserve, walked 1½ miles into the Wikwemikong settlement to report the shooting to the parish priest and police.

No date has been set for the inquest.

Agricultural Society Holds Annual Meeting, Elects Officers

TWEED—The annual meeting of Tweed Agricultural Society was held on the afternoon of January 28th in the Council Chambers with 15 officers and directors present. The meeting was called to order at 2.00 p.m. with president William (Bill) McCrea, in the chair.

In his opening remarks he thanked the officers and directors for their co-operation during the past year and noted that patrons generally seemed well pleased with the program offered on Fair Day. He also added that he was convinced that Tweed Fair was making headway and suggested that young people should be encouraged to serve on the Board of Directors. He expressed the gratefulness of the board to Lorne Holmes and Don Olliphant, who built the ladies' new rest room at the fair grounds at no cost for their labor.

FINANCIAL REPORT

The secretary-treasurer Doug Spencer, presented the financial report at this time. His report showed total expenditures of $4,645.07, with receipts of $4,316.07. However, with the government grant to come later in the year, the board should be in a sound financial state.

Donations totalled $807.40 and gate receipts $1,264.07. Over 200 memberships were sold. A total of $1,081.65 was paid out for exhibits which did not include the horse race prize money. Improvements to grounds and buildings amounted to a little over $400.

There was some discussion on the financial report and ways and means of improving the financial structure of the fair were under review.

INSURANCE SURVEY

Frank Cowan Company presented a survey of insurance coverage, and it was agreed that the present coverage was insufficient for replacement purposes. The new coverage will be almost double the amount now carried.

A grant of $25 was made to the high school trumpet band for assisting at the fair. Reports were received from various committees, including horse races, E. Hodgins; cattle, Harry Coulter; horses, Henigan Rush; swine, Thomas Lynn; entertainment, Sam Curry; cheese, Jack Wilkinson; hog producers, T. C. Graham; poultry, W. A. Beatty; roots and vegetables, Sam R. Dafoe; concessions, John O. Sager; tickets, J. A. Thompson; dance committee, T. Linn.

Mr. H. Rush noted that the horse exhibit was not up to the usual standard and voiced his disappointment in this regard. On the request of a group of lady directors, the prize money offered for ladies' work; bottled goods and domestic science was increased to $1, 75 cents and 50 cents. This is the first revision in this department in many years.

A field crop competition will be sponsored in 1961, but the product was not decided upon. President McCrae will represent the Society at the annual Ontario Fairs' Convention in Toronto, this month. Delegates were named to the Central Ontario Fairs' meeting in Belleville for February 2nd. These were: president — Harry Coulter; 1st vice-president — Wilber Bateman, and Emerson Hodgins.

New Sunday Paper Makes Debut in Britain

LONDON (Reuters) — A new national newspaper, The Sunday Telegraph, has made its debut in Britain.

The new paper, the first national Sunday newspaper launched in Britain since Lord Beaverbrook started The Sunday Express in 1918, is published by the 1,100,000-circulation London Daily Telegraph.

The new paper sells for 5d (about six cents) and, like The Daily Telegraph, supports Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative party.

The Sunday Telegraph entred a Sunday field that has experienced two "deaths" in less than four months. The casualties were The Empire News and The Sunday Graphic.

Macmillan currently is under pressure by the opposition Labor and Liberal parties to set up an official inquiry into alleged monopolistic trends in the newspaper industry.

These demands have been spared by a struggle for control of Odhams Press, which publishes two newspapers and nearly 150 periodicals and magazines. Odhams announced Jan. 25 a plan to merge with the British organization of Canadian newspaper magnate Roy Thomson but the Daily Mirror group countered with a takeover bid for all of Odhams' stock.

TWO MERGED

Last fall the Liberal London News Chronicle and its afternoon companion, The Star, were merged with the Conservative London Daily Mail and The Evening News.

Some people of Fleet Street—London's newspaper row—thought the Sunday Telegraph's main challenge would be to the two established "quality" Sunday papers — the Thomson-owned Sunday Times and The Observer. Both cost 6d (about seven cents).

The right-wing Sunday Times has a circulation of more than 1,000,000 while the independent, Liberal - minded Observer has 700,000.

Manikin Better Than Live Person In Practising Resuscitation

Seconds may mean the difference between life and death in mouth-to-nose respiration of stricken people. Such respiration is vital between the time the victim is found and a mechanical resuscitator can be brought into play.

A Danish-devised manikin for articicial respiration practice has been used for the past year to help train rescuers to a standard of proficiency that may be the difference between life and death. This Ambu-manikin is distributed by British Oxygen Canada Ltd.

Dr. Henning Ruben (with the assitsance of other doctors), conceived the idea three years ago in Copenhagen. Since then, doctors and first-aid workers throughout the world have praised its value.

Research has shown that the manual methods of respiration (such as Nielsen and Schafer) even in the hands of trained rescuers are frequently insufficient since the passage through the throat of the victim may be blocked by the tongue. Consequently, mouth-to-nose resuscitation has been re-introduced.

It is not possible to rehearse this method effectively because a make-believe victim cannot mimic obstructions of the air passage through the throat. Furthermore, there is the inevitable squeamishness in rehearsals that wouldn't arise in a situation involving survival of another human.

The manikin duplicates the critical position of an unconscious human being under accident conditions.

One of the studies where the manikin was tested constituted training of 40 volunteers from a Red Cross chapter. Some of them were trained with the manikin, others were taught without it. Two months later all 40 volunteers performed mouth-to-nose respiration on a voluntarily curarized and anesthetized person. The amounts of air blown into the lunge during period of 30 seconds each were measured by a special electronic method, and showed that the most effective results were obtained by those trained on the Ambu-Manikin.

When a person becomes unconscious, the jaw muscles relax and the jaw falls back. Being fixed to the jaw, the tongue falls back and closes the passage of air through the throat, so that air cannot be insufflated into the lungs by the rescuer. To re-open the passage, the rescurer must be trained to do it manually, without help of equipment and to directly blow his expired air into the victim.

Based on facts found during extensive research the following became apparent:

Pushing or pulling up the jaw may not open the air passage through the throat. However, when the head is tilted somewhat back, pulling or pushing forward the jaw opens the air passage. Even such a simple action as closing the victim's mouth will open the air passage through the throat. The air passage will also be established by tilting the victim's head backward. When in addition to the maximum tilting of the head backward the victim's mouth is closed, a good air passage is produced through the pharynx. This latter method was found to be the easiest method to be learned by laymen.

The Ambu-Manikin duplicates the human respiratory system. Through rehearsals, it will be shown if the "lungs"—a plastic bag — are being inflated properly, thus guarding against blowing air into the stomach where it does no good. (This can be more easily avoided in the mouth-to-nose techniqeu.)

London Home Espionage Centre Says Prosecutor

Five Go on Trial Charged With Spying

LONDON (AP)—The government charged today that a small house in a quiet London suburb was in fact a high-powered radio station transmitting secrets to Moscow.

Attorney-General Sir Reginald Manningham - Buller, opening the prosecution of five persons charged with looting British naval secrets, said government agents made tests in the house and heard signals apparently coming from the Moscow headquarters of a spy ring.

At a preliminary hearing, Manningham-Buller told Magistrate K. J. P. Barraclough:

"When you have heard the evidence the Crown will call, you should be left in no doubt that all the accused were generally engaged in spying in this country, obtaining information likely to be useful to a potential enemy and in the passing of that information to a potential enemy."

The defendants are three men and two women: Gordon A. Lonsdale, 37, a company director; Peter J. Kroger, 50, a bookseller, and his wife Helen J. Kroger, 47; Harry F. Houghton, 55, and Ethel E. Gee, 47.

WORKED FOR NAVY

Houghton and Miss Gee were employees of the naval research station at Portland.

The Krogers and Lonsdale carried Canadian passports and speak with North American accents.

All five defendants were arrested a month ago — Lonsdale, Houghton and Miss Gee when they kept a rendezvous near the Old Vic Theatre, the Krogers at their home.

(The RCMP in Ottawa said Mr. and Mrs. Kroger are "definitely not" Canadian citizens. They were still investigating Lonsdale.)

Manningham-Buller described the work at the naval research station as highly secret. He said both Miss Gee and Houghton worked in the underwater weapons section.

"Miss Gee was employed in the drawings office records section," the attorney-general said. "This section keeps copies of drawings and of test pamphlets relating to the work done in that establishment.

IN TRUSTED POSITION

"Miss Gee had the duty of recording the issue and return of these pamphlets and drawings so that none should get lost or misused. She had access to these drawings and pamphlets, some of which were of the most secret character. She held a position of trust."

Manningham-Buller said Houghton went to work at the research station in 1952 after spending more than a year on the staff of the British naval attache in Warsaw.

"He was responsible for the acceptance, distribution and filing of all papers pertaining to the port auxiliary repair unit," the attorney-general said.

"In that position he had ac-

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: A high pressure area over the Great Lakes gave sunny skies to most of Ontario Monday, with afternoon temperatures ranging from the mid-30s in the south to the high 20s in the north. A developing weather system over the Gulf of Mexico was expected to give increasing cloudiness today and mainly cloudy skies Wednesday to the extreme southern sections of Ontario. There will be a slow moderating trend in the temperatures across the north, but the rest of Ontario will see no significant changes today and Wednesday.

ELDERLY WOMEN, WIDOWS SUBJECT OF HOUSE DEBATE

Members Talk Out Resolutions

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons considered the plight of widows and unmarried elderly women Monday.

It was private members' day, a day set aside for resolutions from back-benchers, when ideas are aired but rarely acted on. Two proposals were up for debate, both from Liberals.

After trying for four years, Gabriel Roberge, Megantic, Que., lawyer, succeeded in getting the House to consider his proposal to extend unexpired unemployment benefits to women whose husband die while out of work. Three hours and some 18 speakers later, debate on his motion was adjourned, thus setting it back near the end of private members' motion with hardly any chance of it coming up again this session.

Then the Commons turned to the suggestion of Hubert Badanai, 66, former Fort William mayor that old age assistance should be provided to unmarried women and widows of 60 years of age instead of 65. His idea was talked out, which also shunted the motion to the end of the list.

EXPAND DEBATE

Mr. Roberge's motion gave MPs a chance to discuss the unemployment insurance fund and the act under which it is set up.

CCF MPs Murdo Martin, Timmins, and Erhart Regier, Burnaby-Coquitlam, said the motion only pointed up the need for a comprehensive program of social welfare legislation.

The unemployment insurance fund, said Mr. Martin, a firefighter and labor leader, has developed into "a great and bottomless pork barrel into which everybody is trying to put their hand."

Ferguson Browne (PC-Vancouver Kingsway) took Mr. Roberge's motion as the starting point for a free-wheeling criticism of the present Unemployment Insurance Act — complete with what he feels should be done about it.

But Douglas Fisher (CCF-Port Arthur) interrupted Mr. Browne's "splendid speech" to complain that he was talking about the 45th motion on the

Segment of Student Body Objects To Recent Articles in School Paper

HAMILTON (CP)—The "poor taste" of The Muse, McMaster University's literary magazine, has drawn the ire of a segment of the student body.

Two petitions have been circulating the campus this week objecting to the "intellectual content" of the magazine and two poems in particular.

John Pace, third-year arts student, said that in a random survey 30 or 34 students had disparaging remarks ranging from "vulgar" and "disgusting" to poor taste on the contents of the magazine.

The poems were by McMaster undergraduates Ken Gibson and Cyril Harvey Deroo.

In Genesis I, Mr. Gibson, assistant editor of The Muse, writes a "hip" version of the creation of the earth from the viewpoint of God.

It begins:

"In the beginning I created heaven and earth.

"I remember it well.

"Time: 9.25 a.m.

"Place: Chaos.

"My name is God.

"I'm a deity.

"That cold morning I was sitting round listening to St. Michael wail with a riff."

Mr. Deroo's poem, entitled Election No. 3, and depicts the platforms of two candidates—sin and God.

God, according to the poem, is the "dark horse."

Rev. P. R. Clifford, dean of men at McMaster, said that he had received complaints from outside, but preferred to leave the matter to student comment.

Dr. N. H. Parker, principal of the McMaster Divinity College, said "I deplore such things, but my policy is to ignore them."

Says Canada Should Oppose S. Africa in Commonwealth

KINGSTON (CP)—Mr. Justice J. T. Thorson, president of the Exchequer Court of Canada, said today Canada should oppose South Africa's admittance to the Commonwealth as a republic unless the union abandons its policy of apartheid.

Speaking to a luncheon at Queen's University, Mr. Justice Thorson said the "union, in effect, is a police state with a system in which the non-whites are the slaves of the whites."

He said Canada must face the issue squarely when it is debated in March at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London. The issue of whether South Africa should be admitted to the Commonwealth as a republic "is a moral one and transcends considerations of political and economic advantage."

Canada's duty was clear if this country was to be true to itself and worthy of respect in the community of nations.

Mr. Justice Thorson said Canada must stand "resolutely against the evil inherent in the apartheid policy of the Union of South Africa, and openly declare that as long as she persists in it—with its denial to the non-white members of her population the human rights and fundamental freedoms to which they are entitled as human beings—she is not fit to be a member of the Commonwealth of Nations, and will not be welcome in the multi-racial family of nations that the Commonwealth has become.

"If the matter should come to a vote Canada should vote for the exclusion of the Union from the Commonwealth," he said.

Mr. Justice Thorson said he may be criticized for his remarks on grounds that he has gone beyond the bounds of judicial propriety.

"I deny that I have done so," he said. "When I condemn the apartheid policy of the Union of South Africa . . . I assert my right as an individual to speak as I do."

South Africa contended that its apartheid policy was domestic and that no one outside the union should interfere with it.

Mr. Justice Thorson said he disagrees with this contention because the policy is a transgression against humanity.

Text of his speech was issued to the press before delivery.

Northwestern Ontario Brief Requests Govt. Assistance

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government will receive a bulky sheaf of resolutions Wednesday asking immediate steps to accelerate northwestern Ontario's development.

A delegation of 50 members of the Northwestern Ontario Associated Chambers of Commerce, in presenting the brief to Premier Frost and his cabinet, have added a few pats on the back.

However, many of the resolutions are highly critical of delays in opening up what the association calls the "big half" of the province.

Major criticism is directed at the Northern Ontario Economic Development Committee which held hearings in Port Arthur and Fort William in 1959. The brief says the committee seems incapable of changing government policy and has not been worth the time, money and effort expended.

The delegation asked the committee be augmented by leading northwestern Ontario citizens who could help ensure early action.

Eleven of the 40 resolutions prodded the government for highway development, considered vital to the region. They seek completion of the Trans-Canada Highway between Port Arthur and the Manitoba border; completion of the 90-mile Fort Frances-Atikokan highway; pushing the Pickle Lake road further into northern areas; and a start on the Red Lake-Pikangikum road to provide needed employment for 5,000 Indians often near starvation.

Dealing with moves to attract investment and industry, the brief opposes increases in industrial power rates by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

It also urges that the logging tax be eliminated and that jackpine reserves be made available to timber operators along with timber for secondary forest industry.

The chambers want a reciprocal licensing with Manitoba of trucks, extension of airports and refunding of aircraft gasoline tax.

They urge a complete review of the provinces liquor laws and education of Indians regarding alcohol.

Other resolutions concern communications, education, Indian affairs, mining and planning and development.

The delegation is led by President Thomas S. Jones of Dryden and includes representatives from Fort William, Port Arthur, Kenora, Fort Frances, Dryden, Sioux Lookout, Red Lake, Atikokan, Geraldton and the "new frontier" district of Patricia.

Mr. Jones said there are more than 2,000 newcomers to the labor market in the area annually.

"The unemployment trend must be reversed," he said. "And this program will help to do it."

Kennedy's Proposals Spark New Dispute on Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's program to halt the flow of U.S. gold abroad is winning favorable reaction on Capitol Hill. But his proposals sparked a new controversy over foreign aid spending.

Chairman J. William Fulbright (Dem. Ark.) of the Senate foreign relations committee read into Monday's presidential message new assurances that the foreign assistance program would be kept in operation despite the unfavorable balance in U.S. payments.

But Harry Byrd, Democrat of Virginia and chairman of the finance committee of the Senate had a distinctly different idea, saying:

"I think a much more positive and constructive effort must be made to reduce our foreign economic aid."

He said Germany, Japan, England, France and other industrialized nations now are enjoying prosperity as the result of U.S. aid.

"If foreign assistance is still necessary, the time is overdue when these nations, in their prosperity, should assume their share of the responsibility," he said.

Former president Eisenhower recommended a $4,000,000,000 foreign aid program. Democratic leaders have said Kennedy would recast this to call on other nations to bear more of the burden of helping newly-independent countries.

Kennedy's plans to halt the flow of U.S. gold abroad include a continuation of Eisenhower's proposal to tie U.S. foreign aid to purchases of American goods and to curb U.S. military spending abroad.

His Good Deed Just Brought Much Abuse

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP)—Jay Flerum, owner of a concrete mixing plant here, tried to play good samaritan for a few minutes Sunday night.

Flerum, noting the city hadn't plowed the street in front of his home or other nearby streets, attached a plow to one of his trucks and began doing the job himself. He stopped after clearing several blocks.

"I just took too much abuse," he said. A number of angry residents criticized him for being so late. One accused him of "making a pretty penny on this job." Flerum returned home, parked the truck, and read the Sunday paper.

FARMER MEMBER SAYS SHOW WAS PURE NONSENSE

Against Coloring Of Margarine

TORONTO (CP) — A farmer-member of the Ontario legislature Monday termed "nonsense" a recent demonstration on the steps of Queen's Park in which a group of women showed the difficulties of adding yellow coloring to margarine.

Charles Janes (PC—Lambton) said farmers are having a tough enough time without added commotion from margarine. He couldn't see any discrimination in the present Ontario law forbidding manufacturers to produce yellow margarine.

"People have no hesitation in eating white cheese," he said. "Why not margarine? This is all nonsense."

Speaking during the throne speech debate, Mr. Janes said a railroad strike would mean the end of rail transport in southwestern Ontario. He said farmers found during the last rail strike that transport trucks gave better service than the railroads.

The legislature referred back to its private bills committee a private bill seeking tax exemptions for the Ottawa Civil Service Recreation Association when it met opposition from Liberals and CCF.

TO SEEK APPROVAL

CCF Leader MacDonald moved that the bill be referred back to allow Ottawa city council to make representations as to whether it approved of the tax exemptions. The association's taxes this year total $20,-000. Premier Frost agreed.

The bill, introduced by Irwin Haskett (PC — Ottawa South), was up for second reading.

Ross Whicher (L—Bruce) said he did not believe the legislature had any business passing legislation unless it was requested by the municipality concerned.

Liberal Leader Wintermeyer said the present case went farther than a request by a charitable or religious organization.

Mr. Frost said he was against tax exemptions in principle, but "if you had a hard and fast formula in these matters you might do a great injustice. Each case should be judged on its own merits."

Provincial Treasurer Yaremko tabled the annual report of the public superannuation fund, which showed a deposit of $90,920,741 in the treasury as of March 31, 1760. The fund in the 1958-59 fiscal year totalled $74,-348,000.

Pilot Killed

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Mathieu Conti, pilot of a light plane that crashed into a mountain near Alpe d'Huez Monday, died in a hospital here today. Two radio news men Conti was flying to report on Alpine avalanches that have taken 36 lives died in the crash.

Three Austrian skiers were buried in an avalanche in the Weer Valley of the Austrian Tyrol Monday. Two managed to free themselves and a search is on for the third.

22 More U.S. Electrical Companies Face Sentences for Fixing Prices

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Another 22 of America's biggest electrical manufacturers and 14 of their employees appear for sentencing today for violating anti-trust laws by fixing prices and destroying free competition in sales of power transformers and turbine generators.

A total of $331,500 was imposed Monday by Judge J. Cullen Ganey as he condemned the violations as a blot on American business. He also gave 30-day jail terms to seven executives, effective next Monday, and suspended similar prison sentences for 19 others.

For the 19, however, he imposed five years' probation "where a watchful eye can be kept on their activities."

Of today's defendants, 14 companies and five individuals were among those pleading for leniency in court Monday.

All had previously entered pleas of guilty or nolo contendere (no defence).

Ganey labelled the case "a shocking indictment of a vast section of our economy."

Attorney-General Robert Kennedy said in a statement he favored "even more severe sentences" than those recommended by his justice department aides. The government had sought fines totalling $1,227,-500 and jail for 23 men. It said the case involved firms doing an annual business of $2,000,-000,000.

Judge Ganey said the 29 corporations and the 45 men—all the defendants in the conspiracy which the justice department called the biggest in anti-trust history—"flagrantly mocked the image of the economic system of free enterprise which we profess to the country and destroyed the model which we offer today as a free world alternative to state control and eventual dictatorship."

Get No Money But Leave Staff Week's Labor

Vault Left Knee-Deep In Records, Old Cheques

Safe robbers who forced their way into the Thurlow township municipal offices are believed to have had their work for nothing after sledging their way into the vault and strewing township records.

Township clerk Earl Dafoe said he could see close to a week's work ahead for himself and his office staff re-sorting thousands of cancelled cheques and other office records.

The intruders dug through a brick wall to get into the vault and then after their fruitless search for cash found that the vault door had not been locked.

PICTURES ON PAGE 3

"We use the vault as fire protection only," noted Mr. Dafoe.

Entry to the township offices was gained by prying off the lock at the front door.

Then sledges and bars were used to break through the wall to get into the vault.

Once inside the vault, filing cabinets were ripped open with records being strewn about the floor. Mr. Dafoe said it appeared that records were almost knee deep on the vault floor.

Desk drawers in the township office were also ripped open by the intruders in their vain search for cash.

CAMERAS STOLEN

The vault wreckers also entered the offices of the Moira River Conservation Authority, situated in part of the municipal building, and made off with a camera bag containing a valuable 35 M.M. camera and a reflex camera, along with camera equipment.

The door to the Authority office was forced from the inside main hall. Filing cabinets were checked and the camera bag taken from the top of an inner office filing cabinet.

The back door to the Authority office was found open while a screen was also found ripped from the office window —apparently an attempt on the part of the intruders to guarantee themselves as many routes of escape as possible should they be discovered.

This morning provincial police were checking for fingerprints and other evidence which might lead to the identity of the intruders.

About two years ago the Thurlow township officers were broken into. On that occasion the door of the vault was pried open.

COMPLETE SUGAR DEAL

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban government announced Monday night the sale to Bulgaria of 100,000 tons of raw sugar at 4.08 cents a pound. The deal is believed part of the general agreement under which the Communist bloc will take 4,000,-000 tons of sugar.

Quebec House Suffers Damage By Smoke, Water

QUEBEC (CP) — A three-alarm fire today caused heavy damage to a section of Quebec's 77-year-old legislature building. No one was injured.

Most of the damage was caused by tons of water poured into a small area on the fourth floor of the greystone building on Quebec's fashionable Grande Allee.

The fire was discovered about 5:30 a.m. by an employee arriving for work and was declared under control about 7 a.m.

Works Minister Rene Levesque, after a survey of the situation, said the legislature will sit as scheduled. Earlier he had said he thought today's sitting would be cancelled.

But Mr. Levesque said employees whose offices were damaged would be asked to stay home today while damage is assessed and the building cleaned up. Earlier he had ordered the building closed for the day.

LESAGE VIEWS DAMAGE

Premier Lesage toured the damaged area.

Water dripped through the ceilings and light fixtures into a group of second-floor offices occupied by the lieutenant-governor and his staff.

The building was completed in 1884 after a fire in April, 1883, destroyed the original structure, built in 1834 and reconstructed a number of times.

It was desgined by Canadian architect Eugene Tache in 17th century French Renaissance style.

A third alarm is automatically turned in for a fire at the building.

The fire started in a small top-floor vault containing files of the colonization, lands and forests and labor departments.

Most of the material destroyed was old records.

Cause of the outbreak was unknown.

Flames were confined to a small area on the floor.

Drops Bombshell

Weaver Drops Ambulance Service Feb. 11, But Gives Equipped Vehicle to Town

TRENTON — R. W. Weaver, president of the Weaver Funeral Home and Ambulance Service, last night electrified members of town council with the announcement that as of 6 p.m., Saturday, February 11, his company would no longer operate the town's sole ambulance service.

To soften the blow, and as a demonstration of his concern for the people of Trenton, Mr. Weaver presented the corporation with a late model, fully-equipped station wagon ambulance.

Appearing before council as the representative of his company, Mr. Weaver read from a prepared text, the reasons for his "drastic action."

"May we respectfully point out that, when council requested us to carry on for the balance of 1960 for the period between July 31 and Dec. 31, we felt reasonably confident that this might, or could have been, a solution to the local problem. Since that agreement was made, I think you will agree that there have been repeated attempts by certain individuals on council to discredit, embarrass and ridicule our operation, and the president of the company particularly. They have criticized the fact that we had entered into agreement on a subsidy basis. While our integrity and motives have been questioned, we would only state that the common decency of courtesy and ethical business practice will not permit us to become involved in a controversy that we feel has become a personal issue and, incidentally, we also feel, is now a political football."

Mr. Weaver added that "the operation of an ambulance service today has changed considerably from 25 years ago."

He said that the company was not prepared to enter into any further subsidy agreement. He said that since the agreement, whereby council paid a six months' subsidy of $1,800 for the period between July 31 and Dec. 31, the company had continued to run the service without any contract or provision for a contract.

WILL HELP

He assured council that his company would assist in the training of personnel to operate the ambulance.

"As public service has always been our first concern, we still are aware of the fact that the public, who are dependent on ambulance service, should also receive consideration and protection in this matter", said Mr. Weaver. "With this in mind, we are now presenting you with a fully equipped Ford station wagon ambulance, complete with oxygen, siren, red light and a two-level stretcher. This also includes three changes of linen. This vehicle can only be used by the corporation of the Town of Trenton as an ambulance for the protection of the citizens until such time as it is deemed advisable to trade it in on new equipment".

At this point in his discourse, Mr. Weaver placed the keys to the ambulance and the transfer of licence in front of Mayor James MacDonald.

"Gentlemen", he said, "At this time, we present you with the keys to a fully equipped ambulance for the corporation of the Town of Trenton, along with the transfer of licence".

"We sincerely regret that we have found it necessary to take such drastic action", Mr. Weaver said in closing. "While we realize that it solves our problem, it does not alleviate the existing problem for council, as this service involves a great deal more than appears on the surface".

After Mr. Weaver had left the council chamber, discussion on the latest development in the controversial ambulance issue was postponed until the "unfinished business" section of the night's agenda. When the subject was introduced, Mayor MacDonald looked around the table and asked, "Now that you've got the keys to your ambulance, what are you going to do now? Weaver gave up the service to hasten your decision".

SHOULD RENEW GRANT

Councillor Ross Burtt suggested that the town renew its custom, dropped last year, of granting $3,000 to Trenton Memorial Hospital and ask that the hospital staff be responsible for the operation of the ambulance.

"We asked them last year, and they wouldn't entertain the thought," Councillor Vagn Lange reminded him.

"I think we should appoint a committee to bring in a decision by the end of the month on this issue," said Councillor N. J. McNair, who has been a strong opponent of paying the Weaver company a subsidy. "I think that Weaver's made a mistake. There nothing personal about my opinion. He's courting opposition. One firm has offered to establish business here and two others are still thinking about it. Before long there may be another funeral service here."

Councillor D. R. Fraser said that he thought Councillor McNair should head the committee which will examine the merits of accepting the ambulance from the Weaver company with good grace and providing personnel to run it, or invite a private operator to run a service.

"I'll oppose any idea that costs more than $3,600," said Councillor Lange.

"I'm interested in solving this issue at once," said Councillor Lloyd Worrall.

"Well, Councillor McNair said he had the answer last summer," said Councillor Fraser.

"Should the town accept this ambulance?" asked Councillor Fraser. "We're not in the ambulance business as of next Saturday night. The majority vote at the polls indicating that council should be responsible for service was far from conclusive percentage - wise. The people didn't get out to vote on the issue. Let's stay out of the ambulance business. Let a private operator run it. I won't go for anything that costs over $4,000 a year."

After further discussion, including a run-down on communities of a size comparable to that of Trenton which do pay ambulance subsidies, council agreed to store the new ambulance until a committee of Councillors McNair and Burtt can bring in recommendations as to the best and most economical way to solve the issue. The ambulance will be stored in the town shed and Mr. Weaver will be notified by the town clerk that council's action in the matter will be guided by the committee's report.

Three Homeless As Fire Guts Frame House

GLEN MILLER — Fire destroyed a one-storey frame house and adjoining garage at Glen Miller early today leaving a family of three homeless.

The home was owned by Art Melarkey, a civilian worker at 6 Repair Depot. Mr. Melarkey, his wife, Jean, and their 12-year-old son, Gary, escaped from the house, but lost all household goods and personal possessions in the blaze.

Mr. Melarkey said that he was awakened by a slight explosion and found that the house was a raging inferno. The garage seemed to have burst into flames at the same time.

Flames and smoke jumped 100 feet into the air, while men from the Trenton fire department tried to subdue the blaze and stop it from spreading to neighboring houses. The firemen were hampered in their efforts to get water to fight the fire from the river by having the hose lines and the fire truck freeze up in the below-zero temperature.

An estimate of the loss was set at $10,000.

The homeless family have been taken in by neighbors until arrangements can be made for permanent accommodation.

At the height of the blaze, two cats, family pets, were seen running from the burning building.

BUILDING OPENS

LONDON (CP)—A new £10,000,000 office building which will house The Daily Mirror and The Sunday Pictorial, both published by Cecil Harmsworth King, was opened Monday. The grey-concrete, 18-storey building is in Holburn Circus.

Taylor Target Of Criticisms By Council

TRENTON — Chief Constable F. J. Taylor was criticized by Councillor Ross Burtt last night because of his statement that "persons who oppose a new police station do so from selfish motives." The chief's remark was incorporated in his annual report released to council last week.

"If trying to keep taxes and the mill rate down is selfish," said Councillor Burtt, "then we are selfish. If having some consideration for young people with a small income and older people living on pensions is selfish, then we are selfish. Very few people have a fine salary like the chief of police has. He refers to the station as a 'packing box.' Well, if it was cleaned up, it wouldn't look so bad. He wants it to look as bad as possible. I think it's too much for the chief to call us 'selfish.' These remarks should come from the police commission."

"I presumed that council was not prepared to build a new police station this year," said Mayor MacDonald. "Now we get a page and a half in the chief's report on the 'packing box'."

"I've talked with several policemen privately," said Councillor McNair, "and they all say they're satisfied. They suggested a few improvements. The chief doesn't want any improvements. The desk in Taylor's office is worth more than all the furniture in the Belleville police chief's office put together."

A committee wil lbring in a report about recommended changes and repairs to the present police station.

Fire Chief Says East-Side Hall Absolute 'Must'

TRENTON — In a detailed request for additional quarters and new equipment, Fire Chief Cecil Ellis told council last night that a fire hall on the east side of the river was a must.

He said that members of his department were constantly terrified that the bridge would be open or a truck would be stuck on the bridge when the fire trucks were called to a fire on the east side. He said that the men had "nightmares" when they thought of a possible loss of life or large property damage which might result due to such a situation.

Fire Chief Ellis also said that the department required a new pumper to replace a 1943 model and he would also appreciate a new car.

Another request was for a direct telephone communication system, whereby all regular firemen and volunteers could be called simultaneously instead of using the lengthy process of calling each man individually.

Councillor Vagn Lange, while he commended the fire chief for the efficient running of the department, said that he thought the town could not afford an east-side fire hall at this time.

He said that there was a fire truck (the aerial ladder truck) sitting in the public works department shed at the present time and that, while there was no written agreement with the air force, he felt assured that RCAF equipmnt would always be made available to the town in an emergency. Four additional men would be needed to run the new hall, he said, and their salaries alone would total $16,000 which would mean a rise of three or four mills in the town's mill rate. He said that 1961 should be a year for Trenton to streamline expenses. He suggested that Councillor Worrall try to get a written agreement with the RCAF that the town would not be left stranded if a fire broke out on the east side.

"Being as how I'm chairman of the protection to persons and property committee," said Councillor Ross Burtt, "I have the plans for the new east-side hall and I intend to present it when the time comes to bring down the budget. If it's not feasible, we can omit it from the budget. But we'll do what we can."

Councillor Lange said that he couldn't see how the town could afford a new pumper this year, either.

Chief Ellis also asked council for an increase in salary. He said that he had made a survey of fire chiefs' salaries in towns comparable in size to Trenton and that his was low in comparison.

Councillor Burtt said that his committee had agreed to an increase.

Council Briefs

TRENTON — Councillor Ross Burtt, chairman of the protection to persons and property committee of town council, last night read his monthly report on the activities of the dogcatcher.

"We had 16 dogs caught in January," he reported. "Five of these were claimed, eight have been destroyed and we have five dogs on hand."

"Is this report for January only?" asked Councillor Lange, apparently wondering about the total, which adds up to 18.

"Certainly," replied Councillor Burtt. "I've got enough troubles without going back any further than that."

TRENTON — A Bay Street resident, who again complained about rats from the town dump entering her home, is about to have all her problems (as well as council's problem and possibly the problems of the rats), solved. The house where she lives is owned by the town and council has decided to ask the lady to move, after which the house will be demolished.

TRENTON — Councillor Lloyd Worrall, chairman of the Industrial and Economic Development Committee of town council said last night that he regretted the "unfortunate terminology 'depressed area'" which has caused controversy in Trenton for the past week, since he had asked Lee Grills, MP, to use his influence to have the town thus designated.

Councillor Worrall explained that the term had originally been used by the federal minister of finance and that it was not derogatory but referred to certain government concessions given to industry in areas so called.

"The citizens would benefit by such a move on the part of the government," said the councillor, "and I'm sure they would not refuse the benefits."

Letter Asks For Protection In Subdivision

TRENTON — An official of the Godden Development Company has written town council asking that council refuse permission for any owners of multiple units to hook onto the sewer in the Devere Gardens area.

The letter said that a builder meant to construct a six-unit apartment house in this area, whereas the district had originally been designated as a "single family dwelling area". Multiple unit dwellings, the letter said, would be detrimental to the district. It asked that service to such types of dwellings be held in abeyance until the area was annexed by the corporation.

"I'd like to make a motion that no one can hook onto town services until annexation takes place", said Councillor Worrall.

"We made an agreement last year to allow people outside the corporation to hook on to the sewer if they paid $200", said Councillor Lange.

"It's Fred Hendrick's sewer in that area", said Councillor Burtt. "Nobody should be allowed to hook onto it".

"This matter has nothing to do with Hendricks' sewer", said Councillor Fraser.

"I don't think we should cut people off who are planning to build out there", said Councillor Lange.

Town clerk O. W. Larry said that he had had a recent enquiry about extending such privileges to someone who was planning to construct a multi-unit building near the Queensway Hotel.

"If this building is commercial or industrial, it's a different story", said Councillor Lange. "A house might be okay, but we might have trouble with excess wator in the sewer if it was a factory. And a factory shouldn't get the service for $200."

Mr. Larry will make further enquiries as to the type of building the constructor intends to erect.

Murray Johnson Rink Wins Two In Open Spiel

The Men's open bonspiel, which will continue until Saturday night was officially opened last evening at the Quinte Curling Club by the president, Harry Trepanier, and with the entry already filled the event looks like the best the club has staged since its inception three years ago.

In order to make the draw come out even on Saturday, it was decided to let the local curlers have a couple of nights of fun among themselves. Sixteen rinks were formed out of those who were not already committed to play and the three-game winners and the two-game winners will proceed into the draw on Saturday. Two games of one draw and one game of the second draw were played lost evening and tonight starting at five o'clock, one game of the first draw and two games of the second draw will be played and the winners declared.

There are two events in the spiel, the Primary for the Corby Trophy and the Consolation event. A rink winning three games in the one draw goes on to Saturday while a rink that loses the first game and wins the next two also goes forward. A rink cannot win a game, lose the second, and then win the third, and qualify. The committee have decided to give a prize each day for the one-game high winner in addition to the other prizes offered.

On Wednesday there will be sixteen rinks in play and also on Thursday and Friday and this will give sixteen rinks back in play for the silverware on Saturday. Murray Johnson was the only two-game winner in the draw on Tuesday night and needs only one more game to be eligible for Saturday. Ben Corke and Jack Sills won their second game and have to have another win to be eligible for the two-game winner. Some excellent curling was witnessed and the ice was exceptionally good after a lot of hard work by the ice committee. The curlers enjoyed cheese and crackers between games, the cheese being donated by the Cheese Producers and it was of excellent quality. The draw results:

The faces we loved are now laid low,
Their loving voices are still;
Their hands so often clasped in mine,
Lie now in death's cold chill.
We often sit and think of them,
When we are all alone;
For memory is the only thing,
That grief can call its own.

—Lovingly remembered by their daughter Beatrice Westlake and son-in-law George Westlake.

MARTIN. — In loving memory of my grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Martin, who both passed away, February 7th, 1958.

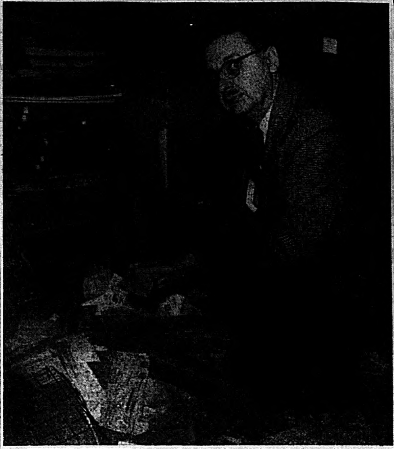
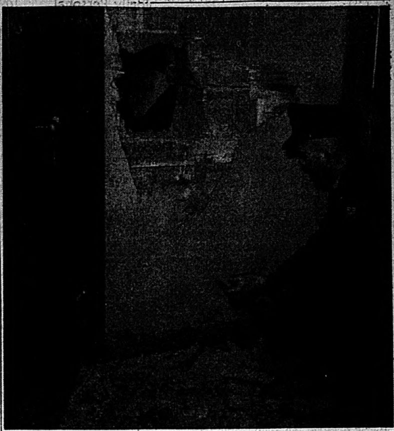
RUSSIA NOT AHEAD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration's military high command has tentatively concluded there is no "missile gap" favoring Russia at the present time. This view coincides with former president Eisenhower's farewell comment that the much - feared missile gap "shows every sign of being" a fiction.



JUMBLED RECORDS — are what Thurlow towship clerk Earl Dafoe found this morning when he arrived for work at Cannifton municipal offices. Safecrackers had battered their way into the vault and strewn thousands of cancelled cheques and other records around in search of money. Mr. Dafoe is seen amid the mess which will take at least a week to sort out and re-file.



AND IT WASN'T LOCKED — Safecrackers chiselled through the vault wall at the Cannifton municipal offices but their efforts were needless — the vault door wasn't even locked. OPP Constable John Fullerton inspects the broken wall.

Blood Donor Clinic Exceeds Objective of 300 Bottles

For the first time in the history of Red Cross blood donor clinics in Belleville, the number of bottles required has been exceeded.

Local Red Cross officials said today that 341 bottles of blood were collected during yesterday's clinic at the Kiwanis Centre. The objective was 300 bottles.

"This was the biggest and best clinic we've ever had in Belleville", commented blood donor committee chairman A. S. Lewis.

"It's very encouraging", said Mrs. J. T. Lewis, a member of the local branch's executive committee.

Mrs. Lewis said 146 donations were made during the afternoon and 196 during the evening session.

Mr. Lewis said that in addition to the 341 accepted donors, 10 others were rejected.

G. R. Cameron, chairman of the blood donor committee for 10 years until relinquishing the post this year to Mr. Lewis, said he could not remember one clinic held here since the end of the Second World War at which the quota had been reached ,let alone exceeded. He believed the closest local clinics had ever come in post-war years to reaching a 300-bottle quota occurred "more than a year ago when about 268 bottles were collected".

Local Red Cross officials attributed much of the success of yesterday's clinic to advertisements which appeared in The Ontario Intelligencer and others which were broadcast by CJBQ. The ads reminded Quinte area residents that almost 50 per cent of the blood used last year at Belleville General Hospital had been donated by outsiders.

The next clinic will be held April 14.

Creative Use of Hands Said Threatened by Many Machines

Canadians should put their hands to creative use during their leisure time rather than expect to be entertained through some spectator medium because they find that they are completely miserable and frustrated when called upon to provide their own amusement. This was the theme presented by Mr. Thor Hansen, art director of the public relations department of the British American Oil firm, to local Rotarians at their weekly dinner meeting yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Quinte.

Man's ability to create with his hands that which his mind has invented or developed is the particular characteristic which sets him apart from all other forms of life. This ability, however, is threatened with eventual decay due to the advanced machines which are taking over many of these tasks of creative handiwork due to a higher productive capacity. The majority of man's tasks are now of a routine nature allowing him little time or opportunity to engage in some task of a creative nature and thus man's unique characteristic bent towards creative expression is denied. This, suggested Mr. Hansen, has introduced a feeling of frustration which is evident in so many walks of life today.

Indulging in recreational handicrafts during one's leisure time has proven to be very beneficial to those engaged in either tedious or demanding jobs, commented the guest speaker, and cited a few examples noting that weaving appears to be a very popular recreational handicraft amongst teachers.

Devoted to the propagation of Canadian culture through a greater and wider expression of creative handiwork by Canadians, Mr. Hansen noted that the "culture" provided by too many artists appears to be the result of an extensive misery complex which renders them preoccupied with the ghoulish, morbid and sadistic side of life which creates a defeatist attitude towards their work.

This needn't be so, advised the speaker, since there is also the happy and relaxing side of life which is within the reach of almost everyone who looks for beauty rather than for ugliness. This trend, he asserted, is predominant in almost everyone since it is only human nature to look first for what is beautiful or good whether it is in acquiring a painting or a new car.

SPONSOR SCIENCE FAIR

This unique facet of man's character can be developed through a good program of handicraft instruction and encouragement in the community and in cultivating this natural bent Canadian culture will be enhanced rather than Canadians being frustrated with the great amount of leisure time they now have available. "Please promote Canadian crafts and Canadian craftsmen", concluded Mr. Hansen.

The Rotarians' program for the day was also enhanced by two exhibits by local high school students which are to be displayed in the forthcoming Science Fair which the Rotary Club is sponsoring at Moira Secondary School in the evening of February 17th. The winning exhibit of this show is to be entered in the annual Science Fair in Toronto under the sponsorship of the local club.

President Bill Hurst was chairman of the meeting. George MacIlhern introduced the speaker and Merv Jones expressed the thanks of the club.

FINGERPRINTS . . . are what provincial police identification man Constable Don Byers is looking for. Constable Byers is seen dusting for prints on battered filing cabinet at Cannifton municipal offices.

C of C Promotion Judged Best Of All Chambers

A full-page advertising layout published last year in The Ontario Intelligencer by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce has been judged by the Canadian Chamber as one of the three most attractive newspaper promotions sponsored by the 850 chambers in Canada.

The local chamber's layout, which was published April 23, 1960, has been included in a promotion kit now being sent to all Chambers of Commerce in Canada in advance of Chamber of Commerce Week, April 16-22. It pictured 1960 President Enos David, his executive officers, listed 11 current projects and gave 11 reasons why business and industrial leaders should consider membership in the chamber.

Advertisements of the Picture Butte, Alta., and St. John N.B., chambers are included in the kit as other examples of attractive layouts.

This Revolutionary Age

The Machine Age, the Atomic Age and, prematurely but understandably, the Space Age —by such names do we call our times.

Rank misnomers these, for all but a fraction of the world's people.

In future centuries most of the world's inhabitants, if there be any, may well look back on the twentieth century as the Revolutionary Age.

It is the tragedy of the white man that he has been moving ahead of the times, that in most of the countries where he lives he has been through his revolution, peaceful or bloody, and now, hopelessly out of touch with the tempo of the times, dreams of a world of order and discipline, in a day when order and discipline inevitably mean submission to poverty and servitude for the majority of the earth's inhabitants.

Only in Russia, where the revolution came late, is there a smoldering spark of revolutionary spirit still alive in Europe and North America. The revolution of the British was so typically slow-paced and moderate that many will even deny it ever occurred. The French have long since lost the white heat of their passion for liberty, equality and fraternity. The rugged individualism which was the spirit of 1776 rarely pokes its way through the flotsam and jetsam of words which were once principles and are now meaningless platitudes.

Broadly speaking, the continents of Europe and North America have had their revolutions, while the revolutionary age is just dawning in Asia, Africa and South America.

The continent which may prove ripest for revolution is South America. Somebody may protest that there revolutions are commonplace. This, though, is to miss the real meaning of the type of revolution about which we are talking, a mass revolt against the conditions of life of the working classes. Though the Communists may deny it, the English, French and American revolutions shared with the October Revolution of 1917 in Russia the common aim of altering the economic conditions of the lower classes and, moreover, in all four cases this aim was eventually achieved. Practically all the revolutions in South America in the past have been either nationalistic revolts, aimed at throwing off a foreign yoke, or palace revolts, merely substituting one group of exploiters for the gang in power. It is doubtful whether there has yet been a real revolution in the Near East and Middle East, although it may yet be too early to judge what will evolve in Nasser's United Arab Republic. Most of the unrest in Africa is basically racialist or nationalist in nature, although there genuine revolution and relief of the exploited natives may go hand in hand with liberation from foreign or white domination.

Latin America has all the ingredients for proletarian revolutions—adject poverty side by side with immense wealth, growing populations, a hard kernel of revolutionary-minded intellectuals, mainly in the universities, a mounting impatience—and at last a revolutionary hero, Fidel Castro.

Amongst all the reports of Castro's terroristic tactics and abusive language, there has been lost to sight the fact that his regime has actually made a substantial start towards giving the peons the three things they need most—land, schools and better housing. Ian Sclanders in Maclean's Magazine describes how barracks have been turned into schools, expropriated estates, many of them formerly U.S.-owned, converted into small holdings, landlords dispossessed and the homes sold, (on a rent-purchase basis), to former tenants and new apartment buildings erected.

The objectives of these reforms, (though not the methods used) are in keeping with the ideals expressed in the U.S. Declaration of Independence. But the U.S., longing for order in the world, has bolstered Latin American governments with arms, which are used mostly to keep the oppressed peons from revolting, and the only revolutionary voice heard from outside the continent comes from the Communist world, from Russia and, increasingly, from China.

It may be significant that the only time President Kennedy faltered in his first press conference was when he was replying to a question concerning South America. In his answer he referred to U.S. interest in the betterment of the lot of the people and voiced the hope that this would come, pledging U.S. aid in this "peaceful" revolution. The word "peaceful" sounded out of place and ill at ease, as if it knew it had wandered into that sentence by chance and was staying there under false pretences. In much of South America the revolution will not come peacefully—but though it will inevitably come with violence it need not necessarily, for that reason, be Communist dominated.

Are You One Of Those Old Temp. Snobs?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Nothing is easier than turning into a Weather Snob, that lowest and vilest of creatures. I had foolishly thought I was immune to this immature disease, but a recent trip to Southern California proved how mistaken I was about the nobility of my nature.

Arising one morning, with the temperature in the high 70s, I sauntered down to the hotel pool for a swim, or what I laughingly call a swim. I picked up a newspaper on my way.

"Midwest Hit by Violent Snowstorm," the headlines gloated. "Chicago Under 12 Inches of Snow — Below Zero Temperatures on Way."

Did I shed a tear for friends and relatives trapped on icy streets and in snowbound garages? Did I pick up the phone and offer to fly back if my services were needed?

You know perfectly well what I did — I rushed to the drug store and bought a dozen gaily-colored postcards of the hotel and the pool. And, as I dipped my tootsies in the water, I wrote a dozen friends the same smirking message: "Am swimming this morning. Hot and sunny. Hope you are well."

What could show a more loathesome character than this petty gesture of superiority? And I, a man who revels in the four seasons, who likes the blustery winds of winter, who insists that "weather makes no difference to me."

Yet we become quickly infected in sub-tropical climes. Perhaps there is a nagging sense that the people back there in winter are really facing some challenges that are good for them, while we loll in sunbaked indolence. Some uneasy sense of guilt must lie behind it.

How else explain the preoccupation with weather in places like Florida and Southern California? Bad weather Up North or Back East takes precedence in the headlines over almost any other story; who cares about the Congo when New York is hip-deep in snowdrifts?

Everywhere I went, natives and tourists alike were discussing the storms and arctic temperatures in the rest of the country. We pretended we were sorry, but it was hard to keep a prideful tone out of our voices. We almost felt as if we deserved better weather; somehow we were smarter than they, luckier, children of the gods.

As I got off the plane in Chicago, I said to my wife, "It was 81 this afternoon in Beverly Hills," "I can tell," she said shortly. "The heat's swollen your head." That's what it does to Weather Snobs.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 7th, 1941.

The announcement from Toronto by the Minister of Fish and Game that an increase in the wolf bounty from $15 to $25 is being considered seriously by the Government, will be good news for hunters in the northern parts of Hastings County who state that wolves are on the increase and are threatening to exterminate deer in that section. Despite reports that wolves are numerous, however, the first day of the organized annual wolf hunt in Peterborough County, went fruitless as a score or more hunters combed the swamps and woodlands in the Burleigh district, without even sighting one of the pesky animals.

Responding generously to an emergency appeal for funds for the British Pharmacists' War Victims Funds, druggists of Belleville at a special meeting voted and donated a substantial sum for the alleviation of British druggists who suffered through Nazi bombings in Great Britain.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WORRY-ALLS

Hot wars and "cold" wars do their mammoth share to upset the world and make it leaner, sadder, and more forlorn in all its ways. But the Worry-alls come in as an easy second.

Who are the Worry-alls? Well, those who have nothing really to worry about, but who worry about everything! Those who are not satisfied with being miserable themselves, but who want everyone about them to join in their misery.

It is well to take careful note of yourself to discover whether or not you are breaking out with this dread disease — for it is a disease.

No healthy human being ever worries about trivialities.

Worry cannot endure in a happy body, either.

So here you have two of the best medicines in existence for the prevention of worry — which in the end may make a Worry-all out of you — health and happiness.

Another remedy is — Work! Be strong. Have an inward reverence for the body in which you live. Be happy that you have this body. Then bury yourself in your work.

Real workers rarely worry. Surely not the healthy, happy workers.

Disappointments and sorrows come to all. But let us shoulder them—or rather, unsholder or work out of them — and pass on. Let us so fill our time with work, or with helping the "other fellow," that we have no time in which to worry or grieve, or self-pity!

If the Worry-alls persist in parading, let them parade — but let us not give them an audience!

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

LOSING LIFE AND FINDING IT

An artist died recently whose life had been particularly significant to the young artists of his generation. Many of these young men now distinguished in their field look back to him, to his wise counsel, to his friendly spirit and sacrificial ways as chief factors in keeping up their morale and encouraging them in any success they have had.

When this man had passed sixty, a quite remarkable thing happened. He had always been a good artist, but suddenly in the early sixties his art blossomed out, matured, and took on a new, more significant dimension. It was one of the clearest cases imaginable of a man who apparently giving so much of his time to others that he had insufficient time to develop himself was nevertheless growing within to such an extent that in his last years he became the artist everyone knew him fundamentally to be.

Jesus declared that, if we lose our lives we find them. He assured His contemporaries, and all who followed, that the surest way to ruin one's life is to give complete attention to its interests and development and let the rest of the world go by. He Himself gave up everything and gained the world in the largest sense anyone in the stream of human history has gained it.

Hawthorne's story of the humble minister Ernest who came to resemble the great stone face is an example of how simplicity and service pour unsought treasures into human life.

Use Mines For Storage

Printed Word

Speculators in Canada's mining market may be well advised to hang on to their shares of Consolidated Moose Pasture, Ltd., and other such holes in the ground, prospects for which once looked attractive but now seem dim. According to an article in a recent issue of the Wall Street Journal, several United States companies have found uses for abandoned mines.

One of these is reported to be storing some 2,400 tons of paper records and 44,000 rolls of microfilm in a worked-out limestone mine. Another is planning to convert a limestone cave into a factory. A third is converting a depleted coal mine into a storage chamber for natural gas.

Government agencies are also reported to be renting underground space for storage, and jitteriness about atomic bombs may bring about the conversion of old mines into living and working quartess for those designated as "key personell".

As Canada must be as rich in abandoned mines as in operating properties, the United States development appears to offer a hint of one way that disappointed shareholders might derive a small income from their holdings. Most Canadian mines are too remote from settled areas to be practical sites for factories, but they could still be used for storage of company and government records, such as old income tax returns, which must amount to many tons of paper annually. Indeed, if it were decided to house the entire income tax branch in underground quarters, few other citizens would object.

Insanity And Leisure

Oshawa Times

In the course of a lecture at the University of Toronto a little while ago, Bernard Miles, an English actor - director, suggested that with leisure time for the worker, governments are beginning to subsidize the theatre because it provides one of the sinews of sanity. "They will pay rather than have the workers go mad with leisure," he said.

Founder of London's dockside Mermaid Theatre, Mr. Miles was in Toronto with his company to present the play "Treasure Island". Sponsorship of the theatre out of public funds, he noted, is rapidly increasing in England. In 1945 the British Arts Council put aside $700,000 for that purpose. In 1960 the amount was $4.2 million and in another ten years, he said, it would be double that "if peace breaks out." He mentioned to the British scheme whereby municipal taxing authorities may devote to public entertainment part of the local assessment, ranging from Bristol's one-fiftieth of a penny in the London's sixpence in the pound.

Mr. Mills was not expressing any new thought. For most of the postwar years we have been hearing gloomy warnings about the great dangers of extended leisure — most of the warnings coming from people who seem to think that the good old days were when a man had to toil for 12 hours a day or more to eke out a living.

There may be some sort of danger in leisure, but we doubt it. We have never seen any documented evidence to indicate the presence of danger, and we have never enjoyed personal experience. Indeed, if there is danger, it might be fun to live dangerously for a while

In any case, there is another weakness in the Miles argument. Governments have turned to subsidies for the theatre not to provide more entertainment for bored people but simply to keep the live theatre alive. The theatre was, in fact, much more vigorous in the days when there was a great deal less leisure for the average man. The automobile, television, outdoor recreation and spectator sports have absorbed the leisure hours, at the expense of the theatre. If governments are indeed concerned about the boredom of the electorate (which they are obviously not), they should subsidize the sort of entertainment that calls for a minimum expenditure of intellectual energy.

Corporate Statesmen

Financial Post

To the highly paid, highly taxed company executive, it is very tempting indeed to profit on commercial information or connections and to make, all at once, a lot of money through a private deal.

That many do engage in deals "on the side"—perhaps with the approval of their boards of directors — is well known. Through his possession of power, the executive of stature is a member of the twentieth century elite. But, when he lacks capital, as a great, many of them do, he is not, in the fullest sense, at one with the rich among whom he usualy lives. He remains in that sense a second-class citizen.

It is increasingly clear, however, that executives who make money "on the side" must not only be in the clear legally. They must also appear to be in the clear to the public—legally and morrally.

When it comes to light that an executive of a publicly owned company has been engaged in financial manoeuvring of a personal nature—manoeuvring that was possible because of the job he held—the consensus of the community is to look on him with scorn.

Corporations which are not family-owned or privately held are, increasingly, being generally regarded as quasi-public institutions and the men who manage them are, for better or worse, being called upon to act as corporate statesmen, which is a much broader responsibility than that of corporate money-maker. Like their political counterparts, they are finding that a very total kind of probity and, just as important, the appearance of probity are beyond price.

Pinworms Still a Problem, May Grow More Prevalent

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Some 60 years ago my sister had a little girl of 7 or 8 years who couldn't rest at night.

"When put to bed she would toss and turn, flop from one side to the other. It was most distressing.

"The family doctor decided she had a brain disorder, and my sister sent her down to the farm with mother. Mother consulted an old, retired local doctor. He said the child had pinworms, and before retiring should be given an enema of warm water mixed with corn starch and (I think) several drops of turpentine. I can't recall the exact amounts.

"Anyway, it worked like a charm. What do you think of that? — Mrs. L. F. J."

I think it's a most interesting letter and one from which we can learn some things. Not that I would, today, condone the use of that particular remedy, but I wouldn't doubt that it was the best one known to that wise old retired doctor 60 years ago.

Today there are better, more effective, and easier remedies to use.

But there is nothing out-of-date about the old doctor's wisdom in suspecting, and then finding, pinworms. They are still a problem, and with the rate at which the population is growing, and the necessity for many people to live in steadily more closely knit groups, it wouldn't surprise me if pinworm trouble might become even more prevalent, unles we do something to stop it.

A child, or an adult for that matter, may not be aware of the reason why he is so restless. Pinworms can, by depriving a child of rest, play havoc. It's one of the things to look for when a child thrashes around and grinds his teeth in his sleep.

You don't as a rule find pinworms unless you look for them. They look like little short bits of thread. But in some fairly recent studies (yes, there has been some intensive research on this problem) it has become apparent that pinworms are more common than we thought. Evidently they bother some people very little. They may make others extremely unhappy. So it's well worth keeping pinworms in mind.

As to treatment, the heroic measures of past years are no longer necessary. Medicines taken by mouth, especially the newest types, successfully clear away the pests.

The one thing to remember is that getting rid of pinworms doesn't insure against getting them again, any more than killing a mosquito insures against another mosquito coming along.

The best protection against getting pinworms is care in washing the hands before eating. It's not always easy to get children to wash before eating, especially when the eating involves a candy bar or sandwhich. However, do your best. Also make sure that everyone else in the household is free of pinworms. They are transmitted, or course, by swallowing invisible little eggs which later hatch out into worms.

Probably the obvious cause: Too much exposure to the sun. A lip cream with a petrolatum base may avoid this discomfort.

Now Yachts Go Compact

Sault Ste. Marie Star

The compact car has given the automobile industry a shot in the arm in the last couple of years. Now there is a compact yacht that promises to do the same thing for boating.

The February issue of Esquire magazine reveals the story of the trim, trallered auxiliary sailboat fitted out for cruising. The size is that normally associated with open-cockpit day-sailers and racing boats — roughly 17 to 25 feet over-all.

The biggest news about the compact yacht is the price, which no longer restricts the pleasures of yachting to those who can afford to pay $20,000 or more. Prices on this boat start under $2,000 for the smallest and simplest, and to $5,000 or $6,000.

The magazine reports that this model provides amenities which easily make it a yacht, in a doll's-house kind of way. It has bunks, galley, ice chest, marine toilet and storage space in miniature completeness.

Perhaps most important, the compact yacht has "trailerability." With a hull that remains tight at all times and is light enough to ride on a trailer, it is a boat that can be carried cross-country behind the car, then put in the water and sailed off right away.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

In President Kennedy's press conferences, these young squirts of reporters often refer to the "barrage" of questions Mr. Kennedy was subjected to. They probably mean "bombardment", for a barrage is a barrier of artillery fire behind which our troops advance, or a barrier laid down to prevent the enemy from advancing.

Do these reporters mean they laid down a barrage of questions behind which they sneaked up on the President? Or perhaps they laid down a barrage of questions so that the President could not advance with a reply.

Reading the questions posed so far to the young new President by the press, anybody who has ever been shot at, and that portion of the present generation, realizes that it is bombardment that he is being submitted to.

Bombardment is more or less a random sort of business. It does not suggest aimed shots so much as a general slathering of a target. But what pleases all old soldiers who now watch, with considerable comraderie in their hearts, the young naval personage to the south of us, is the fact that the word bombard comes from the Latin word bombus, which means a loud noise.

It is doubtful if he can be intimidated by loud noise.

LONDON HOME

cess to fleet orders and drawings and in particular one book, a secret publication called Particulars of Warships."

Manningham-Buller said detectives had been keeping an eye on Houghton and Miss Gee for several months before arresting them and Lonsdale Jan. 7.

He said a parcel Miss Gee handed to Lonsdale that day contained 310 photographs, including photographic copies of 202 pages from the secret book Particulars of War Vessels.

When Mrs. Kroger was arrested later at her home, the attorney-general said, an eight-page letter in Russian was found in her purse.

Manningham-Buller said detectives working on the case secretly obtained a search warrant last Sept. 23 and got possession of a leather brief case Lonsdale had left at a London Bank.

The attorney-general said the brief case contained a magnifying glass, two film cases, a camera, a number of lenses, keys and other articles.

The detectives put the case back, Manningham-Buller continued, and later saw Lonsdale drive with it to the Kroger home.

Manningham-Buller said detectives found a radio transmitter buried in rubble under the Krogers' home.

"This little suburban house was a high-powered radio station able to receive and transmit messages to Moscow."

He added that agents made monitoring tests at the house and heard signals apparently coming from Moscow in accordance with signal plans that had been found in the house and at Lonsdale's home.

Manningham-Buller said the Krogers provided the spy ring with its communications centre "and possibly acted as its bankers."

He added that British investigators believe Lonsdale "is in fact a Russian," because they found in the Kroger home Russian-language letters to him from a woman who appeared to be his wife and who is living in the U.S.S.R.

Some of the letters were in the form of microdots—photographs of an original, reduced in size until they are no bigger than the period of a typewriter.

Among the articles found in the Kroger home, Manningham-Buller said, was a powerful microscope suitable for reading such microdots.

A hidden compartment under the kitchen floor contained the powerful radio transmitter receiver and a high-speed tape recorder, he added.

The detectives who raided Lonsdale's London flat after his arrest found $1,800 in U.S. currency hidden in a Chinese scroll.

They also turned up a Canadian passport and birth certificate in Lonsdale's name. Both were forged, the attorney-general said.

Point Anne Man Facing Charge Of Rape

NAPANEE — A Point Anne man has been charged with rape and a Belleville resident is in jail as a material witness in connection with an alleged attack near Napanee Saturday.

Charged with rape is Owen MacDonald, 23, of Point Anne. Held as a material witnes is James MacPherson, 26, of Belleville.

The alleged rape of an 18-year-old Napanee girl occurred in a car parked in a driveway west of Napanee. Both men are in Lennox and Addington county jail. Provincial Corporal Allan Cockburn and Constable John Henry are investigating. Police will confer today with Crown Attorney K. S. Ham.

Council, Civic Officials Guests of Kinsmen Club

Members of city council and city department heads led by Deputy Mayor Robert Temple last night were guests of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville at an annual Civic Night banquet at the Shrine Club.

Among the guests were Aldermen Jack Ireland, Jack Ellis, Jack Deacon, Donald Whalen, George Wishart, Eugene Harrison and Leslie Reid; city manager J. R. Reynolds, city engineer Malcolm Turnbull, city assessor Leighton Thompson, acting city clerk Adam Stalker, Recreation Committee chairman Lloyd Doran, city treasurer Terry Bender, city welfare administrator George Whitman, and city planner Charlie Mott.

Deputy Mayor Temple represented Mayor A. McLean Haig, who was unable to be present.

Chairman of the banquet was Kinsmen Club president Frank Huson.

The deputy mayor was the guest speaker and, in about 10 minutes, he summarized the activities of council.

He said a proposed new bridge over the CNR tracks on North Front Street will be started "within three months" and that this year council hopes to launch Stage 1 of the sewage disposal system.

"If we complete it by March, 1963, we will receive a federal government grant of 25 per cent of the capital cost of the project", he said. "But if we don't complete it by then, we will receive a grant for 25 per cent of the capital cost of the project so far completed".

A three-year re-assessment program, started in 1959 by city assessor Leighton Thompson, will be finished next year and implemented the following year, he said.

The city's land-use plan, "over which there has been plenty of controversy and we expect, will be the subject of more controversy", should be ready within the next month.

CALL PUBLIC MEETINGS

However, public meetings will be called at which the taxpayers [illegible] be invited to air their views.

In conclusion, Deputy Mayor Temple said Belleville should look forward to the future and a healthy and profitable industrial and commercial business area.

Charman of several Kinsmen Club project committees outlined the achievements of their committees to the visiting civic officials.

Murray Atkinson reported on the activities of the swimming pool over past years. He said that the idea of a pool was born in the 1947-49 period when several service clubs in the city began preliminary work of the project. However, they abandoned it and, in 1950 the Kinsmen Club took on the project by itself.

Mr. Atkinson said the costs of operating the pool have increased sharply over the years and that now he did not know how the club could "keep the pool going without the aid of the city."

Norm Eyre, 1961 chairman of the swimming pool committee, said that last summer 5,400 free swimming lessons were provided to the city's children and that once a week a retarded children's group occupied the pool. He hoped the pool would open this year on May 15, provided needed repairs can be made beforehand.

Jack Hamill recalled that in 1959 city police had asked the club for assistance in establishing a driving school in Belleville. The club spent $1,400 on equipment for the school and also provided a $900 film projector, he said.

HANDLE 30 CASES

Don MacLean, chairman of the eye-glass committee, said that since last September 1 the beginning of the club's 1960-61 fiscal year, the club had handled 30 eye-glass cases at an estimated total cost of $480. This compared with 64 cases approved in the 1958-59 year and 48 cases in the 1959-60 year. He commended the city's eye specialists and physicians for their co-operation, and thanked the city welfare department and nurses in the public health department for their assistance.

Ivan Hilborn summarized three methods by which the club raises money for its service projects. He said the annual light bulb drive in September usually nets the club about $1,000 and that an annual $25-a-plate dinner also nets about $1,000. An annual Christmas draw sees profits of between $300 and $800. He noted that the Kinette Club, the club's auxiliary of women members, plans to hold a fashion show in the near future and that all proceeds will be turned over to the Kinsmen Club for its service work.

A cheque for $1,500 was presented on behalf of the club by President Frank Huson to Deputy Mayor Temple as another payment towards retiring a $25,000 debenture issued by the city for construction of the swimming pool on Dundas St. East. Mr. Huson noted that the cheque "isn't of the amount we would like to give, but it is the amount we have pledged to give each year." The swimming pool debt now stands at less than $9,000.

ELDERLY WOMEN,

order paper—a wide-ranging proposal from Mr. Browne to improve the act.

Mr. Badanai made an impassioned plea in support of his motion to lower the age at which widows and unmarried women qualify for old age assistance. At present, assistance is provided to both men and women between 65 and 70 after a means test.

PAINTS SAD PICTURE

"One of the saddest sights to look at is a destitute woman whose bloom of youth has departed with the years and where the frailty of the human body has visibly set in," he said.

"As a consequence, she is invariably seized with a spirit of dejection the like of which can only be found in people whose creeping despair reflects the extreme of adversity."

He suggested the cost of providing old age assistance could be met by adding an extra one-half per cent to the current three per cent contributions from income, corporation and sales taxes.

He said pensions should be based at the age at which men or women find it difficult to get work.

"The humanitarian aspect of this resolution is such as should move not only this government but even a heart of stone."

J. P. Deschatelets (L-Montreal Maisonneuve-Rosemont) rapped Health Minister Monteith for keeping "very troubled silence" during the discussion. He should "let us know where the government stands instead of sitting idly by while this measure is talked out by Conservative members."

Knowing How to Listen a Must

By LESLIE J. NASON, ED. D., WITH HARRY KARNS

(Article 7)

MAKE SURE YOU LISTEN

You no doubt knew, before we told you, how important it is to learn to read well. But now we're going to tell you something that probably will surprise you.

A student gets only about one-fourth of his facts and ideas from reading.

He gets the other three-fourths from listening.

Yet, the listening skills of most students are slight, in many cases non-existent. Today's children are told to "Pay attention!" but alas, not how to pay attention.

No more than 10 per cent of your thinking space is needed to hear what teacher is saying. What happens with the remaining 90 per cent can make the difference between "A" and "F".

Either you consciously choose thoughts to fill this space, or it will fill up with noises, music, fear, hunger pangs and other snips and scraps too weird to describe.

Here are some suggestions that will help you listen efficiently:

1. Fill your thinking space beforehand with a pattern of ideas related to the lecture.

Skim the day's assignment before class and listen carefully to the teacher's introductory remarks. A good teacher always explains briefly in the beginning what he is going to talk about.

Twenty minutes of preparation before attending class will save you an hour and will increase your ability to understand the unfolding of new ideas and new laws. It will improve your note-taking ability and help you use the class period as a study period. It will cut the overall amount of work required to achieve mastery in any given course.

2. As the teacher talks, think of how the points fit into the general pattern and into what you already know about the subject.

GAMES HELP GRADES

3. If an idea comes up that doesn't seem to fit, ask a question about it.

Glen tried to listen carefully in high school physics class. But he reported he found it difficult to follow the teacher and needed to spend too much time on the textbook after each class and before going ahead with his homework.

We suggested that he read ahead in the textbook, even though he might have some question about points discussed there. He did this and made a delightful discovery. He could follow the lecture. His questions, formed while reading the book in advance, were automatically answered during the class period — because he was on the lookout for the answers.

4. Sometimes it helps to play a little game. We have invented one called "Anticipation."

Here is an example that shows how you play it:

Herman was failing in all subjects. He was a bright boy, but classroom lectures never got through to him. We suggested he listen with the aim of guessing what the professor was going to say next.

"How in the world can I do that?"

He tried. A week later he came in to report a grade of "A" on a philosophy test and to tell us:

"Now I understand the trick."

He had learned to trick his mind into sponging up and organizing the lecture. The trick depends on a simple fact of psychology. Your mind can't keep telling you what the speaker is going to say next without first organizing what he has been saying.

5. Another game that produces good results is one we call "What else?"

The rule of play is to keep asking yourself, as you listen to the lecture:

"What else would I like to know about this subject?"

This game forces the mind to organize the facts and ideas of the lecture along with the things you learned previously into a pattern that will reveal a gap in the total picture.

6. Should the lecture fail to supply the answer to any question thus raised, the next step, of course, is to go find the information on your own from a book.

ART OF NOTE TAKING

There is another learning art closely associated with listening — the art of note taking.

The most powerful driving force toward a clear understanding of a lecture is the act of condensing a speaker's remarks into a short statement in your own words. This is the key to taking notes. Notes should usually consist of nothing more than these statements in your own words.

The big mistake most students make in taking notes is that of trying to write down everything the speaker says. This is unnecessary, harmful, and for most persons impossible. Too many notes interfere with listening.

Your notes should represent only those materials not adequately covered in the textbook.

They should be brief.

They should cover only the vital points.

After a class period in which you have taken notes, rewrite them. This is an excellent review of the material covered. Amplify your notes and make them a major part of your review for tests.

As you see, the art of listening consists of quite a bit more than merely keeping the wax cleaned out of the ears.

Let's glance quickly over what we have been saying:

1. Read the lesson in advance.

2. Fit the points of the lecture into the framework of knowledge you already possess.

3. Ask questions about questionable points.

4. Anticipate what teacher will say next.

5. Ask questions to develop new ideas.

6. Find answers to questions the lecture leaves unanswered.

7. Make notes brief and to the point in your own words.

Wedding

SPENCE—DAVIS

Bethel Temple, Trenton, was the setting on Saturday, January 14th, for a lovely wintertime wedding when Sharron Rose Davis of Trenton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Davis, became the bride of Kenneth John Spence, Carrying Place, R.R. 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Spence. The Reverend R. Reid of Trenton officiated before a background of ferns and baskets of white, yellow and mauve 'mums.

Mr. Wayne Vance presided for the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. W. Reid, who sang, before the ceremony, "Because," and during the signing of the register, "I'll Walk Beside You."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her bridal gown of Chantilly lace featuring a fitted bodice having a Sabrina neckline outlined with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The sheath-like sleeves ended in lily-points over the wrists. Alternate tiers of silk and nylon tulle with inserts of Chantilly lace formed the graceful skirt. She wore a shoulder-length veil of illusion tulle with inserts of Chantilly lace roses, held by a pillbox type headdress of matching lace dotted with seed pearls and iridescent sequins, and carried a bouquet of red roses in cascade form tied with white satin streamers.

Mrs. Larry Davis of R.R. 2, Trenton, sister-in-law of the bride, as matron of honor, wore a gown of iridescent mauve brocaded satin in street-length, fashioned with fitted bodice and torso waistline; long sleeves and bateau neckline. A white feathered hat, matching shoes and a crescent-shaped bouquet of white and yellow 'mums completed her ensemble.

Miss Sandra Samain of Belleville R.R. 3, was senior bridesmaid, and Miss Nancy Spence, junior bridesmaid, sister of the bridegroom, were gowned alike in green brocaded satin in street-length, featuring fitted bodices having rounded necklines with drop waists, short sleeves. They wore white feathered hats, matching gloves and shoes, and carried crescent bouquets of white and mauve 'mums.

Mr. Larry Davis, of Trenton R.R. 2, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Donald Ray and Dale Davis, brother of the bride, both of Trenton, were ushers.

A lovely reception was held at the Canadian Pacific Recreation Hall, in Trenton, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore a gown of moss-green French wool, in sheath style with brown accessories, and corsage of yellow 'mums. The bridegroom's mother, who also received, was attired in blue lace with matching accessories and corsage of pink 'mums.

For travelling to eastern points, the bride chose a beige coat with mink collar and green accessories.

Those present were from Stirling, Marmora, Belleville, Toronto, Smiths Falls and Carrying Place.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was an honored guest at a shower given by the members of Bethel Temple in Trenton; at one given by her matron of honor, Mrs. Larry Davis, of Trenton, and by her fellow workers of the Town Hall, Trenton, at the home of Mrs. W. Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Spence will reside in Petawawa Army Base where the bridegroom is stationed.

E.L.D. Arts, Crafts Exhibit

The first exhibition of the recently-formed East Central Ontario Arts and Crafts Association was held in the public library, Peterborough, on Saturday evening.

Fifty-four paintings were approved from those submitted by a jury composed of Mrs. Roman Schneider, Mr. Alex Miller and Mr. Oscar Schlienger. Exhibiting from Belleville were Mrs. Lewis Andrews, Mrs. Thornton Brown, Mrs. Victor DePaul, Mrs. Austin Walters and Mrs. Robert Williamson.

Mr. John Layton had on display some admirable work contributed by the tile, ceramics, weaving and leatherwork divisions of the Belleville Crafts.

Mr. D. Maddocks, C.P.B., in his remarks to the members, quoted from a recent Globe and Mail interview where Mr. Murray Ross of York University said, "To free man to use his creative powers is the fundamental purpose of a liberal education."

In the absence of Mrs. Stewart Bagnani of the Toronto Art Gallery, Mr. Paul Bennett told of his experiences in the different art centres of the province.

This exhibition will be shown at the Corby Public Library on February 20 to 25 inclusive.

Attractive Paintings Displayed By Local Artist at McCarthy

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," so sang the poet and this is exemplified in the delightful autumn scenes, as well as other paintings, now being shown at the McCarthy Theatre, by Miss Mary Moult, local artist.

Miss Moult has a flair for catching the jewel-like glow of flaming sumacs, reddening maples and sapphire-like waters, all of which have a 'peace that endureth.'

Another outstanding talent of this artist is the exactness of her detail in farm buildings and farm life. Other scenes in this display include a study of a pine tree, showing the massiveness of the straight trunk, the quiet, drooping branches, and underneath the carpeting of the springy brown needles. It stands out against the dense background of green.

A street scene in late winter depicting the melting snow, and the sloping partially snow-covered roofs of the brick houses, fronted by a row of stark maple trees, shows careful perspective.

MARSH SCENE

The marsh scene, depicting an expanse of blue waters and in the foreground, a clump of purple arrowheads, is rich in coloring, giving a breath of late summer. The tall purple spikes and the lush greenness of the arrow-shaped leaves is most appealing, so realistic one can almost catch a breath of the darkness of the murky depths from which they spring.

"The Old Mill" with its cluster of buildings, has also a touch of winter shown by the leafless trees, the elliptical curve of protruding brown rocks and the little patch of greenish water beyond the mill, again portray the artist's observation and love of detail.

LOVELY AUTUMN

The autumn scenes hold the spotlight. One shows the coloring hillside with zig-zagging sumacs and yellowing larches; a cluster of white homes which border the still waters of the river, giving their reflections to its surface. Another, depicts tall elms with yellowing leaves beside deep blue-green waters at the bend of the river. On the opposite bank crimson and soft yellows vie with the tips of evergreens and in the distance, white homes. A lovely bit of work, rich in coloring and of deep serenity.

"The boat houses", lent their reflections to the quiet waters, while the lone red-shirted man in the white skiff, added interest, and the nearby wharves, show good drawing, and observation; and "The Red Barn", with its red machinery, the kitchen garden, and distant woods; and "At The Crossroads", a bit of winter either early or late, has a note of despondency with its rundown patched-up shack-like building with poster-adorned shed, and veregated roofing. (These three have been on exhibition before) each one true to life.

"The Jutting Evergreens" bring to mind a similar scene on the shore of Lake Placid, N.Y. with its two evergreens standing at attention on the rocky promontory, the distant crimsony woods, yellowing birch and rocky foreground, make up a most attractive sketch.

In all the painting there is strength of subject; clarity of coloring, good composition and a strong desire on the artist's part, to "Paint the thing as she sees it for the God of things as they are", a most delightful attribute!

Familiar Classics Played By Nicole Henroit-Schweitzer

By EUGENE LANG

For the second presentation of this season by the local branch of the Community Concert Association, Nicole Henriot-Schweitzer, pianist, appeared in the Collegiate Auditorium before a large proportion of the present membership in her debut recital here. Since making her American debut in 1948 she has been a repeated attraction every year in a number of cities in the U.S. and especially in Boston she seems to have become a tradition in her annual appearances there. She has played with many leading American orchestras and has made various recordings for both London and Victor Records.

Her program was one of familiar content except for the opening Vivaldi-Bach Concerto Grosso in F Major. One question arises here, namely, if Bach transcribed this from its original instrumentation for organ, then who retranscribed it for piano? And since more than one question stalks this mind at present, it would be interesting to know how is it that the program listed Mozart's Sonata in C Major, K. 330, but that Miss Henriot-Schweitzer played instead this composer's Sonata in C Major, K. 545 without letting the audience know of the sudden change in program.

Miss Henriot-Schweitzer is technically very proficient and instills into her playing a decided subjective and personalized interpretation that sheds new light on the works that she chooses to perform. She has a formidable left hand in power and can sweep the keyboard with dazzling display as exemplified last evening. Her pianissimo passages were delicately articulated, but her fortissimo outbursts were marred with overpowering left hand thunderings that unbalanced the expressive engenderings of the right.

The familiar Clair de Lune of Debussy and his penetrating Prelude from "Pour le Piano" were given a rendition of Gallic strength and Parisian pathos. The entire second half of the recital was devoted to six works of Chopin, all of them familiar to pianophiles. The numbers played were Fantaisie in F Minor, Op 49; Valse in D Flat Major, Op. 69, No. 1; Ballade in G Minor, Op. 23 and three Etudes, Op. 10, No. 12 in C Minor; Op. 25, No. 1 in A Flat Major and Op. 25, No. 12 in C Minor. The artist of the evening concluded with two encores, one a little music box novelty and the other Chopin's Prelude Op. 28, No. 20.

As to Miss Henriot-Schweitzer's interpretations of the Chopin group, let everyone find their own meanings in her performance. At times silence is golden — shall we leave it at that?

Following the recital the pianist and workers, directors and executive of the local Association were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Finkle, 252 Bridge Street East.

Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Farley are pictured signing the register following their recent marriage in King Street United Church, Trenton. The bride is the former Miss Marjorie Eva Ketcheson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett D. Ketcheson, of R.R. 3, Consecon. The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. John W. Farley of Trenton. FARLEY — KETCHESON

TRENTON — King Street United Church in Trenton, decorated with tall standards of spring flowers against a background of fern, was the setting of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, January 28, when Marjorie Eva Ketcheson, of Consecon, was united in marriage to Dr. William John Farley of Trenton.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett D. Ketcheson of R.R. 3, Consecon, and the bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. John W. Farley, of Trenton.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Donald Pipe, of Consecon, assisted by the Rev. J. T. Irwin, of Trenton.

The guest pews in the church were decorated with wide, white satin bows.

During the ceremony, the soloist, Mr. Jim McKay of Carrying Place, sang "The Lord's Prayer," and "O Perfect Love."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a romantic gown of peau de sole, with a fitted bodice accented by a wide yoke of French Chantilly lace, featuring a dramatic wing collar sprinkled with sequins and seed pearls. The long sleeves, ending in lily-points over the wrist, completed the dramatic effect. The floor-length skirt featuring the new "flat front" look, was gathered at the back in a bustle effect and cascaded into a chapel train. She wore a small white satin headdress, with a shoulder-length veil sprinkled with sequins and seed pearls. Her bouquet was fashioned in cascade style of three centre gardenias surrounded by white carnations, entwined with green ivy.

The bride's attendants, Mrs. Judy Hinchey, of Montreal; Mrs. Anne Paro (sister of the bridegroom) of Napanee; and Miss Marilyn McFee of Kingston, wore gowns of sapphire blue velvet, with scooped necklines, elbow-length sleeves, and bodices with fitted midriffs. The full skirts, featuring bustle backs, were finished with self roses. They wore matching headdresses, gloves and shoes. The gowns were of an identical design. They carried bouquets of shasta daisies, tinted blue.

The bridegroom was attended by Dr. John Hinchey, of Montreal, and the ushers were: Mr. Douglas Ketcheson, of Consecon, brother of the bride and Mr. Alfred Paro, of Napanee, brother-in-law to the bridegroom.

The reception was held in the parlors of the church. The bride's table was centred by a three-tiered wedding cake and decorated by the bridal bouquets.

The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a brocaded gown of pure silk, of regency blue, featuring side drapery accented with jewel trim. Her hat was of white organza, banded with blue velvet with silk flower trim and she wore a corsage fashioned of white carnations.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a gown of winter-white, fashioned of embossed tapestry satin, with a white and black hat, dramatized with ostrich feathers. Her corsage was of yellow rosebuds.

For the wedding trip to points in western Ontario, the bride chose a violet pure wool sheath, with a keyhole neckline trimmed with crystal beads. Her accessories were in a slightly deeper shade of violet and her hat was fashioned of violet shaded flowers. Over the sheath, she wore a chocolate brown coat with pastel mink trim and her corsage was a mauve hybrid orchid.

On their return from the wedding trip, Dr. and Mrs. Farley will live at 3330 Ridgewood Ave., Montreal, Quebec.

Out-of-town guests from Kingston, Montreal, Belleville, Stirling, Bancroft, Toronto and Peterborough.

Before her marriage, the bride was honored by a number of showers and presentations. Among the hostesses were Miss Marilyn McFee and Mrs. Mary Ellen Spicer, of Kingston, and the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. J. W. Farley, of Trenton.

Gifts were presented by the nursing staff and patients of Connell IV at Kingston General Hospital, and the euchre club and neighbors in Consecon.

First Series of Talks on 'Domestic Affairs' Held Monday at B.G.H.

The first of a series of talks and discussions, designed to give married couples a more thorough knowledge of a variety of subjects related to domestic affairs, was held on Monday night at the Belleville General Hospital. The speakers for the evening were Mr. R. Pringle, Barrister, and Mr. G. Tripp, of the Bank of Nova Scotia. They were introduced seperately by Mr. John Luscombe.

Mr. Pringle began his talk by explaining some of the legal aspects concerning divorce and separation. In Canada, the only ground for divorce is adultery; however, the basic deteriorant in about three out of four divorces is incompatibility. Where children are concerned, the husband is compelled by law to supoprt any children under the age of sixteen.

With regard to joint tenancy of property, Mr. Pringle explained that a husband can make a "once-in-a-lifetime" gift to his wife of $10,000, which may take the form of property, whereby if the husband died five years or more after the agreement, the wife would avoid paying succession duties. At one time, it was the law that a woman's property became her husband's after they were married, but according to present-day law, a woman may hold property in her own name, and is not subject to pay her husband's debts, nor can he sue her for possession of said property. However, a man is held responsible for the debts of his wife.

WILLS

Regarding Wills, should a man omit a depnedent wife or child from his will, the woman may appeal to the Dependents' Relief Act, where she may be designated to receive a certain portion of the estate. However, it must be proved that she is not guilty of adultery, desertion, or cruelty. Mr. Pringle also brought out the important point of both the husband and wife having a will. Many women feel that since they own nothing in their own right, a will is unnecessary. However, in the event that the wife died only a short time after her husband, perhaps in an accident, the wife not having time to make a will regarding her newly acquired property and the estate might be divided in a manner contrary to her true wishes.

The theme of Mr. Tripp's talk was "Bank Services". He described the various points concerning the different accounts. Under Savings Accounts there are: single name accounts, joint accounts, trust accounts and installment accounts. There are also Current Accounts, used for the conduct of business, and Personal Security Accounts, where a person agrees to set aside a certain amount of money, from two to $50 per month. This account is covered by insurance for the length of the contract.

LENDING PLANS

Mr. Tripp discussed some of the lending plans, including Business Loans, used by corporations and business houses to conduct their business, and Consumer Credit Lending, which is a plan to assist married couples in purchasing furniture, automobiles. The interest rate, at 6 per cent is much lower than finance companies.

He also covered Safety Deposit Boxes, Traveller's Cheques and Money Orders. Safety deposit boxes may be rented for $5 and up, depending on the size. The main advantage of travellers' cheques is that should they be lost, the money can be obtained from the bank upon presentation of the cheque numbers. He mentioned the Personal Checking Account, where a statement is sent out periodically.

Mr. Tripp stressed the importance of keeping a record of where your accounts are held, such as bank accounts Wills, and insurance.

Both speakers were thanked by Mr. John Luscombe.

On February 20, at 8.30 p.m., Mr. L. Reid, Principal of Quinte Secondary School, will be discussing "The Importance of Education".

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Albert M. — He's trying to force me out of the business.

Myron M. — He's 50 years behind the times.

Albert M. — My brother and I are in our 60s. When our father died 20 years ago, he left us his umbrella business on a 50-50 basis. Myron and I had worked with him since our teens.

I am unmarried, but Myron is married and has two sons. I'm convinced he's trying to ease me out of the partnership to make room for them. He embarrasses me before the help, the salesmen, and the customers. He treats me like a nitwit, ordering me around like an office boy. When the phone rings, he says "I'll take it." When someone walks in, he says "Let me handle this."

It's strange, isn't it, that when my father was alive he turned to me for advice, let me make the decisions and do all the ordering. And we made plenty of money! Now suddenly I don't count.

Myron should be man enough to come right out and ask me to leave.

Myron — Al should offer to wind things up, after what he did last month. He likes to play Big Shot and the salesmen know they can fool him. When one supplier told him a competitor bought 1,000 yards of some junk, Al took 5,000 yeards. We didn't need it, couldn't use it, couldn't get rid of it.

He may have been okay for Papa, a quarter of a century ago. But for today his slipshod methods and careless record-keeping are a handicap. He's of the Carry-it-all-in-your-head school of bookkeeping. He has no idea of how to run a business in today's rat-race.

I'm willing to let him go through the motions of keeping busy, but I've told the salemen to come directly to me because the firm will not be responsible for deals with Al. If he really had the interest of the business at heart, he'd make way for my boys who are live-wires.

The Council — The old order changeth, of course, but there's no need for Myron to speed it up with a demolition crew. Surely Albert can be approached as a reasonable business partner, open to an honest discussion of what's best for the firm, both in terms of dollars-and-cents and of the human factor.

Granted, Albert made a buying boo-boo. We'll wager Myron made one or two in his time, also. Some mistakes can be repaired, others cannot. The 5,000 yeard "lemon" may or may not be a total loss, but humiliating a 50-50 partner and hacking down a hardworking brother could be an irreparable error.

No, in order to make "room at the top", Myron must find a more humane and feelingful procedure. The nephews must respect Uncle Al and appreciate the sweat and toil he contributed to the family enterprise. Then, the M.'s of both generations, even Myron himself, must concede that no one is indispensable. And that part of good management includes preparing for and training replacements. Uncle Albert can be enlisted to serve during the transition. Satisfied that the "new order" is in the best interests of the business, he can withdraw gradually and with dignity. And as an "Emeritus", he'll serve as a consultant for the college-trained successors who seek an old-fashioned "short-cut", once in a while.

The Bible has a beautiful psalm that begins: "Behlod. how goodly it is for brothers to dwell peacefully together." A relationship that began in a loving home, and was nurtured by a proud father, ought not be scratched out on a profit-and-loss ledger. Albert can face and accept the hard facts of business easier than the hard heart of a brother.

Beware of Fats

by Mary Moore

Before we face the serious subject of watching the animal fats we eat, I want to tell you about reading Alice in Wonderland to Gary.

As you know, he is four-and-three-quarters -years old and it has been my dream ever since he was born to read children's stories aloud to him.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

TUESDAY

Italian Minestrone (see Monday); Grated Cheese; Italian Crusty Bread or Italian Breadsticks; Tomato Jelly Salads with Cottage Cheese on Lettuce; Baked Custard with Fresh Frozen Strawberries; Coffee.

I was recovering from a bout of bronchitis, which he had just recovered from. He brought me a stack of books that belong to Marianne and Pete frm their childhood. He selected Alice in Wonderland for me to read. He climbed up beside me and, tucked under my arm, listened spell bound while I read in a husky voice seventy-one pages. When Davey (three) woke from his afternoon nap Gary called to him "Davey, Davey, Davey! If you come quick you will be in time to hear how White Rabbit was late for the Duchess!"

Marianne asked "Mum, are they tiring you?" Tired? How could I deserve this and maybe heaven too?

To get back to business.

We are being bombarded by advertisers and dedicated food fact finders to cut down on the animal fats we eat. As you know the animal fats come from butter, cream, milk, ice cream, eggs, cheese, meat, fowl. These are all things we prize and enjoy but which add cholesterol to the blood which in turn deposits it in the lining of our arteries.

Dr. Ancel Keys is a physiologist at the University of Minnesota and he says "Eat less fat meat, fewer eggs, and dairy products. Spend more time on fish, chicken, calves' liver, Canadian bacon (!), Italian food, Chinese food, supplemented by fresh fruits, vegetables and casseroles", if we are to cut down our rapidly increasing death rate from heart disease.

Now these habits that we have to break are of long standing and we will have to be determined indeed to make any progress.

A great explosion will erupt from butter makers and dairymen when margarine and vegetables and fruits are approved.

But facts are facts and if the switch from animal fat foods to a more diverse vegetarian-like diet reduces the incidence of heart disease we should make the switch. It is the housewife's duty to be alert to these warnings.

No less of a heart specialist than Dr. Paul Dudley White, physician to ex-president Eisenhower, preaches and practises this low-animal fat diet. Need I say more?

QUESTION BOX

Question: Does a boy appreciate you more if you keep him waiting when he calls for you to go out on a date? I am seventeen, and my best girl friend says that this is what you should do if you want him to think you are not overanxious. Both my mother and I think she is wrong and that it is rude to keep him waiting. What are your ideas on this problem? — Miss O. B. S., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: That your best girl friend is definitely off on the wrong foot! No one, of any age ever acquired popularity by by keeping others waiting. I can assure you that the boy calling for you will not think you are overanxious if you do not keep him waiting! If you do keep him sitting around for a half hour, chances are it won't be long before he stops asking for dates at all! Disregard your friend's advice and be ready and waiting when your escort arrives.

Question — Before Christmas you wrote a column about how to sign cards, You said that when a man and wife sign it together, her name should come first. Does this also apply to other kinds of greeting cards, such as birthdays, etc? Some other experts on the correct thing to do don't agree with you. On what do you base your decision? — Mrs. G. P. V., Newardk, N. J.

Answer — I believe in this because of the old axiom of "ladies first!" Regardless of whether it is a birthday greeting or a get-well card, I think it should be signed "Betty and Jim Brown." Only in the case of signing the full married name should the man be mentioned first: For example, "Mr. and Mrs. James Brown."

Question — A man with whom I have never had a date before, escorted me to dinner and the theatre the other evening. He presented me with a lovely corsage before we started out. I expressed my appreciation for this all during the evening. My question is, should I now write him and thank him for the flowers and the nice time he gave me? — Miss F. L. E., Toledo, Ohio.

Answer — No. Further expressions of appreciation would seem to be just a little too much and rather superflous in this case.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Trail Smoke Eaters are not the only Canadian hockey players throwing their weight around on the hockey cushions of Europe. Bob Veder, ex-Kitchener player who has been on the continent for six weeks or so, is home with some hilarious tales of puck-chasing goings-on.

Veder coached the Hague team of Holland for three games during a tour of Austria and Italy, he told a Kitchener sports writer.

"Bolzano was the highlight," he said. "We had to be escorted out of the city by 150 policemen after the game. Don Cook, a Waterloo junior, started it when he broke his stick on the boards. The bottom part of the stick hit a spectator and that started a row. Cook threw his stick at a Bolzano player and speared him in the neck."

"When he went to the box two fans clobbered him. Goalie Gary Millman got tossed out of the game but refused to go so the referee changed his mind and let him stay."

By this time, Veder said, a capacity of 4,500 hot-blood paisanos were all for hanging the Netherlands team by the heels. "After the game we had to walk more than a block to the bus. They had 40 cops in front to break open the way and 40 more behind. Another 70 lined the sides of a narrow runway holding a metal chain to keep the crowd back."

Crowds greeted the team, Veder said. The smallest was in Cortina where they charged $4 a head in the Olympic Stadium left over from 1956. About 3,500 paid there.

A lot of Canadian hockey adventurers are in Europe either on national squads, or trying to get on them. The Innsbruck, Austria, team is coached by Jack MacDonald, who played with Penticton when they lost the Allan Cup to Kitchener in 1953.

Charlie Brooker, former Kitchener Dutchman, and member of Allan Cup teams, is coaching the Kitzbuhel, Austria club.

"They live in a chalet," Veder told the Kitchener scribe." They eat all their meals at the expense of the hockey club. Charlie is the playing coach and he is the big man. They pack their home rink. Recently with a holiday weekend coming up they scheduled eight games for nine nights. The rink was sold out."

But it isn't so easy for Charlie as far as coaching is concerned. He speaks no German and only one of his players speaks English. This individual, a defenceman of little merit, is Charlie's interpreter, and Veder, who speaks German, says that some of Charlie's dressing room talks suffer in the translation.

Brooker suffers from interference from the top brass, too. Once the club president, after viewing a couple of 90-minute workouts, declared they weren't long enough and should run up to four hours. Charlie got even. He ordered a practice for eight o'clock New-Year's morning.

And get an earful of this: Veder says only the imports are paid on most European clubs. The Dutch homebrews actually have to pay to belong to the club sponsoring the Hague club and the proceeds of the games help run the club's activities.

The local boys who make the European national clubs, while not much as far as Canadian standards go, think they are Rocket Richards, and give their Canadian coaches plenty of trouble in this respect.

For some of the coaches the pay is good. McDonald draws down something like $4,000 a year and lives in England during the summer. That's not hay in a land where a buck is worth something like 90 cents.

Veder, the Kitchener sports editor says, has set himself up as a supplier of hockey talent for continental teams, and has contacts for nine clubs next season.

"The players should realize it isn't quite as easy as it sounds. The Canadians are the players the people want to see. One I know has been on the ice for as long as 55 minutes a game. Yet he seems to be enjoying it."

Next year Veder will be needing Canadians for teams in Italy, Switzerland, Austria and Holland. For a young lad who has no professional ideas and who wants to see the world, it looks like a big deal.

Phils Sign Jim Owens

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Jim Owens, a righthander, involved last year in off-field incidents which resulted in fines and a suspension, says he hopes to prove he's a much better pitcher than he was in 1960 when he slumped to a 4-14 record with Philadelphia Phillies.

Terms were not disclosed in the contract he signed Monday but Owens said: "I'm satisfied. After the year I had I really didn't have much of an argument, did I?"

Owens, 27, had a 12-12 mark in 1959.

THL Said Leafs' Breeding Ground

Irish, Marlies Get Players

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A council floundered through three hours of proposals and suggestions Monday night and acknowledged the existence of a controversial farm system which has been operating many years.

The Toronto Hockey League has been the breeding ground for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League for years and council members showed concern.

Boys from out of town have been brought here by Leafs and placed on midget teams, boarded and sent to school, moved up to Junior B and eventually, if they are good enough, placed on the A teams, Toronto Marlboros or Toronto St. Michael's.

Sam Pollock, representing the Montreal Canadiens -sponsored Peterborough Petes, asked Rev. David Bauer of St. Michael's: "Is education grounds for a player's release?"

It has been pointed out that players had not only been shipped to Toronto from all over Ontario for the Marlboros and St. Michael's but boys obtained from other Junior A teams had asked for releases so that they might attend St. Michael's College.

APPEALS GRANTED

On occasion, when one NHL-sponsored Junior A team already had a boy's release, he appealed to the OHA in order that he might go to St. Michael's on grounds of wishing to continue his education at that school. The appeals have been granted and the boys became property of the Maple Leafs.

Pollock and other members of teh council felt St. Michael's operated under a different set of rules from the other clubs and could see no reason why a boy who is the property of one club should be granted a release to move to St. Michael's.

Hap Emms of Niagara Falls stated: "I don't think we should blame Father Bauer. After all, it's the Leaf scouts that send the boys there."

Pollock, who for years has signed some of the best juniors for Montreal right under the noses of the other members present, suggested that the other five clubs in the seven-team loop should set up a hockey league such as the one in Toronto so they could bring the good players to the town of their Junior A club and have no fear of the boy being drafted or signed by anybody else.

Nothing was settled on the issue.

A motion for improvement on the draft rule was suggested by Emms. It calls for dropping the age limit to 15. Players drafted must play for the Junior A team and if they cannot make it be returned to the club from which they were drafted or, if permission from that club be obtained, play for the B team affiliated with the A club drafting them.

Bill Sweeney Heads A.H.L.

NEW YORK (AP)—The defence clamped down on Springfield's Bill Sweeney last week, but the American Hockey League's leading scorer still has a commanding margin.

Sweeney picked up only an assist and has 75 points on 28 goals and 47 assists, a nine-point edge over runner-up Buffalo's Phil Maloney, who has 27 goals and 39 assists.

The next four places are dominated by Springfield, league statistics released today show, with Brian Kilrea holding third place followed by Billy McCreary, Jimmy Anderson and Bruce Cline. Anderson is top goal-scorer with 34, Kilrea tops in assists with 49.

Springfield's Marcel Paille is leading netminder, allowing an average of 2.79 goals a game.

Ottawa Rough Riders

Form Bargaining Group

OTTAWA (CP)—What is believed to be the first "players' association" in Canadian professional football has been set up by members of the Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders.

They have named end Bobby Simpson, an Ottawa alderman, and defensive captain Gary Schreider to dicker with the club management on issues including payment for exhibition and Grey Cup games, accommodation, public appearances and training-camp conditions.

Schreider said today in making the announcement he wouldn't be surprised if other bargaining groups are formed in th. Big Four and Western Conference. United States National League players took such a step about three years ago.

There was immediate speculation that formation of the Ottawa group, not yet formally recognized by the club executive, was touched off by discontent arising from the Sam Etcheverry case.

Etcheverry, former Montreal Alouettes quarterback, signed with the NFL St. Louis Cardinals after refusing to be traded to Hamilton Tiger - Cats. He claimed he was traded without the consent required in his contract. Other players have said the move threatens their security.

However, Schreider said today the Etcheverry incident has nothing to do with the Ottawa group's formation, which had been discussed here for about two years.

His announcement said: "The association does not intend or wish to deal in basic player contracts but to act solely as a vehicle of liaison between the Rough Rider players and the executive body."

Simpson and Schreider, both Canadians, met Monday with club President Barry O'Brien, chiefly to discuss executive recognition of what has been named "The Ottawa Rough Riders Players Association." The matter will be taken by O'Brien to the full club executive, Schreider said.

Behind the move was a core of a dozen Riders who work here. They held their organization meeting early in January and sent the draft minutes to the approximately 35 members of the 1960 club. So far 90 per cent of the players have approved the minutes, Schreider said.

The meeting drafted association proposals to be discussed later with club executives.

CITES AIM

Schreider said he cannot reveal these proposals in detail until they are discussed with the club but that their aim is to wipe out "a lot of petty bickering and rumblings that we have every year."

A main complaint, he said, will be lodged on payments for Grey Cup games. Last fall Riders and Edmonton Eskimo players receivel $500 each for playing in the classic.

Schreider said the association favors a winner-loser split on the gate money designated for players, the principle followed in the NFL.

Pirates Ink Bob Friend

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob Friend, Pittsburgh Pirates' ace righthander who won 18 games last year, signed his 1961 National League contract today.

Friend broke the club strikeout record for a season set in 1912 by Claude Hendrix by whiffing 182 batters last year. His 18-12 record won him the league's comeback - of - the-year award. He had an 8-19 record in 1959.

Meet for Light-Heavy Title

Johnson Favored 3-1 Over Bowdry

By WHITNEY MARTIN

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The end of the rainbow looms tonight for boxer Harold Johnson.

The Philadelphian meets Jesse Bowdry of St. Louis in a scheduled 15-round bout at Miami Beach Convention Hall, with the National Boxing Association version of the world light-heavyweight championship the prize.

Johnson, 32, is a 3-to-1 favorite over his 23-year-old opponent, so anything but a successful quest for the title he has been chasing for years would rate as a distinct upset.

Promoter Chris Dundee expects a crowd of 6,000 and a gate of $60,000. The fight will not be broadcast or televised.

Bowdry used two fights as a springboard to the match for the crown taken from Archie Moore by the NBA for failure to defend it within a stipulated time. He knocked out Freddie Blades and won a decision over Willie Pastrano.

SECOND TRY

It will be Johnson's second crack at the crown. He was knocked out in the 14th round by Moore in 1954 in the fifth of their meetings, but the only one involving the championship. Moore also won three of the other four.

Bowdry has sparred 68 rounds and Johnson 72, in preparation for the bout. Each camp is predicting a knockout.

Each fighter will get 25 per cent of the net gate and has the added incentive of a $250,000 offer by a local restaurateur for a bout with Moore within 90 days should he win, the money split $150,000 for the winner and $100,000 for the loser.

Scoring will be on the 10-point-must system. The winner of a round gets 10 points, the loser nine or fewer.

Johnson hasn't fought in nine months and Bowdry has had only two bouts during the last year.

Russia Needs Youth

'Solly' Talks Hockey

OTTAWA (CP)—Russia needs more youth and shake-up in tactics to ensure victory in the world hockey championships in Switzerland next month, says Nikoli (Solly) Sologubov, the Soviet team's backbone.

The big veteran defenceman, team captain and honored master of Soviet sport, is quoted in the Soviet news bulletin issued by the embassy here.

"In my opinion, the first thing to do is to supplement the national team with young players," he says. Russia has them and should have good reserve strength if the coaches don't ignore the youngsters.

"There is also the question of tactical flexibility," says the man who most Canadian observers feel could have made the National League. "Our tactics have remained practically unchanged in recent years and apparently it's time to give thought to changes and even to adopting something from the arsenal of the Canadian players."

After Russia's 1954 triumph in its first attempt at the world championships when it battered Toronto Lyndhursts and its 1956 Olympic championship, Canada, the United States, Sweden and Czechoslvakia hastened to duplicate the Russian characteristics of speed and excellent physical fitness, he suggests.

AFL PLANS EXPANSION

HOUSTON (AP)—K. S. (Bud) Adams, president of the American Football League and owner of its champion Houston Oilers, said Monday night Cincinnati is "being seriously considered" for a franchise but that the AFL probably won't take official action until mid-summer. Other cities mentioned for possible AFL franchises are Chicago, Kansas City and Atlanta, Adams said.

Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival

"MAKING THEM MOVE FIRST

In the past few seasons during the Stanley Cup play-offs Montreal Canadiens have swept the opposition aside without too much apparent trouble. But in many games the battle was tough and close until a key goal was scored. On several occasions this key goal was scored by the muscular Marcel Bonin. As a result, Bonin is now considered to be a good "clutch" player who can score when the pressure is on.

Why some athletes, like Bonin, are good in the "clutch" is not my subject for this column. This is a subject that would take up far more space than is available. Instead, I want to describe a scoring play I saw Bonin make against Toronto because it was a classic example of how the puckcarrier can make the goalkeeper move first— a key to beating the net guardian when you go in for a clean chance.

In making this play Bonin broke in from the blue line with the nearest Leaf yards away. As he went in the Canadien star headed for the right goalpost. Bower moved over to cover this side. When Bonin was about 10-12' away from Bower he cut quickly across the front of the goal. Bower quickly moved across too. As Bower came across, Bonin shot low to the spot the Leaf goalkeeper had just left — and scored. Here was a play that forced Bower to move — if he had not come across Bonin would have had open net to shoot at. Here is a play well worth practising since, if performed coolly and with good timing, it has to open up the net. For more hints get my bulletin "Belliveau Makes The Play" by sending stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10c to Hockey Hints, 80 King St. W. Toronto.

SOO GETS HELP

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Sault Thunderbirds, in second place in the Eastern Professional Hockey League but slumping lately, announced Monday the acquisition of forward Jerry Osch, 20, from Calgary Stampeders of the Western League, where he scored seven goals.

Last season he had 47 goals for Saskatoon Quakers of the Saskatchewan Junior League.

The acquisition of Esch, from the parent Chicago Black Hawks of the National League, brings the Sault Ste. Marie roster to 18 players.

Boomer Strengthens Scoring Bid

Minor Hockey

Red Wings, Canadiens, Frontenacs, Bruins, Browns and Maple Leafs advanced into the second round of the BMHA's Squirt playoffs at Memorial Arena last night.

The Wings blanked Rangers 3-0 to win that series 5-2. T. Waite scored two goals and J. Scott had the other.

Canadiens and Royals tied 2-2 but Canadiens took the series by a 7-5 two-game total. M. Acquafreddo and R. Mulvihill scored for the winners last night. R. McLean and B. Gawne had the Royals' goals.

Frontenacs were held to a 2-2 deadlock by the Barons last night but cooped the series by a 3-2 total. R. McIlquham fired both Frontenac markers while M. Lucas and S. Sharpe scored for the Barons.

Bruins edged the Flyers 2-1 to take their series 6-4. B. Romain scored both Bruin goals while R. Lambert replied for the Flyers.

Browns defeated the Macs 4-1 to take the round 11-1. A. Slapkauskas triggered three goals and C. Powell one. D. Beecher scored for the Macs.

Maple Leafs shaded the Black Hawks 2-1 for a 3-2 series victory. D. Cass potted both Leaf goals and R. Beaumont scored for Hawks.

The Midget playoffs also got under way last night, the first games in their two-game, total goals-to-count series. Second games will be played next Monday.

Maple Leafs edged the Black Hawks 3-2 with goals by Wayne Wilkinson, Billy Moffat and Jim McGuire. Garry Benson, Frank Farrell and John Ooderdonk picked up assists. Wayne Wood fired the two Hawk goals with David Ford helping on one.

Rangers thumped Red Wings by a 11-1 count. Jim Woodcock fired three goals with two each for Harold Babcock and Don Holloway, Don Robson and Stan Woodcock each had a goal and assist, Dick Pingel a goal, Jerry St. Denis three assists and Art Lucas one. Paul Bennett from Jack Archer was the Wing scoring play.

Canadiens downed the Bruins 8-3, led by Carl Boomhower with three goals and one assist. Pete Emerson had two goals, Rick Denard, Ron Post and Gerry Gill one each. Post, Gill and Mike Normington drew assists. Richard Hay and Jack Boyle had the Bruins' goals, Brant assisting on one.

FALSE RUMOR

Juan Vicente Gomez, Venezuelan dictator from 1908 to 1935, often spread rumors of his death, then shot or jailed anyone who began celebrating.

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernie Geoffrion returned to the hockey wars with a vengeance last week and promptly strengthened his bid for his second National Hockey League points-scoring championship.

The Montreal Canadiens' right-winger got back into action after missing six games with a knee injury and in three games got three goals and one assist to bring his season-total to 66 points on 30 goals and 36 assists.

That gives him a margin of four points over Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Maple Leafs who managed but one goal and two assists in three games to raise his total to 62 points.

Big Frank leads goal-scorers with 41 in 53 games.

Geoffrion won the points-championship in 1954-55. Teammate Maurice Richard finished just one point back of Geoffrion while sitting out a three-game suspension.

HELD THEIR PLACE

Geoffrion's linemates, Dickie Moore and Jean Beliveau, had no trouble holding their third and fourth positions in the race.

Moore collected two goals and one assist to raise his total to 32 goals, 29 assists and 61 points, one back of Mahovlich. Beliveau managed only an assist and has 58 points on 20 goals and 38 assists.

The league's leading badman is Chicago Black Hawks' defenceman Pierre Pilote with a total of 104 minutes in penalties.

Toronto's Johnny Bower leads the league's goaltenders with a 2.55 average and Chicago's Glenn Hall is second with 2.60.

Soccer Brawl Finds Cops Best Shots

SAN SALVADOR (AP)— Several soccer fans are nursing bullet wounds, unexpected victims of a soccer brawl that got out of hand.

There is no love lost when an Argentine team meets one from neighboring Uruguay. And the Argentine juniors and the Montevideo Defensor teams upheld tradition Sunday although they met some 5,000 miles from their homelands.

Rough play began almost as soon as some 20,000 fans settled into their seats. The referee's threat to expel players committing flagrant fouls had little effect.

Midway in the second half, two players swapped punches. This sparked an explosion which involved all those on the field. Spectators joined in. Hundreds of fans in the stands got into the act by setting fire to seat cushions and hurling them in the general direction of the field.

The referee suspended the match when the punching, kicking, arm twisting, shoving and wrestling continued.

The Uruguayan team, main target of the crowd's displeasure, was put in the stadium basement until things cooled off. The crowd around the basement doors refused to disperse for hours. Then police fired some warning shots, which found their mark in a few unlucky fans.

An Argentine trainer and player were reported seriously injured in the melee on the field.

The game was tied 0-0 when called.

Commission Head Resigns

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)— Dr. Joseph Elia of Reno resigned Monday as chairman of the state athletic commission because he did not wish to interfere in the middleweight championship fight between Gene Fullmer and Sugar Ray Robinson scheduled in Las Vegas.

Dr. Elia, who has said several times he is a close friend of Robinson's personal physician, quit a few hours after saying in Reno that one of the New York promoters of the Las Vegas title match was not licensed in Nevada and the March 4 boxing match would have to be delayed.

As he resigned, however, Elia said plans for the fight were "proceeding on schedule."

Dr. Elia also said Fullmer, promoter, Norman Rothschild of Syracuse, N.Y., is not licensed and "the fight certainly is not definite yet."

Er. Elia also said Fullmer, the champion, has not yet signed for the bout.

Commissioners Jimmy Gay and Jim Deskin said in Las Vegas the fight definitely is on for March 4.

They said Fullmer and Robinson both have signed contracts and that Rothschild will be licensed in Nevada as soon as he arrives in Las Vegas. They said he already has been investigated.

MONTREAL (CP) — Goaltender Jacques Plante and defenceman Doug Harvey plan to rejoin the faltering Montreal Canadiens in Boston today but it is not known whether they will play against the Bruins Thursday.

Plante has not played for Canadiens since Nov. 24 when he was sidelined by a knee injury. When the injury healed, he couldn't get his job back from Charlie Hodge.

But the team, hampered by injuries to several key players, has faltered recently and slipped into second place behind Toronto Maple Leafs.

Plante has played eight games with Montreal Royal of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, allowing 24 goals as Royals won three, lost four and tied one.

He will practice with Canadiens today before a decision is made as to whether he will play Thursday.

Harvey, bothered by a recurring ankle injury, also will practice to determine whether he is fit.

Meantime, it was disclosed that Claude Provost, injured Saturday against Chicago, will be inactive for a minimum of a week to 10 days. A cast has been placed on his injured knee.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Warriors, who don't appea rto have a ghost of a chance of making the Western Hockey League playoffs, were the objects of some haunting Monday night.

Barrie Ross returned to face his former mates in a Victoria Cougars uniform and scored two goals to help defeat Winnipeg 4-1. He was traded several weeks ago when Warriors obtained the playing rights of Gerry James from Victoria.

The win solidified Victoria's hold on sixth and last playoff spot. Winnipeg remains tied for last with Edmonton Flyers.

Other Cougars marksmen were Leo Amadio and Bill Saunders. Marcel Pelletier, in the Victoria net, had a shutout going until Lorne Davis beat him with only five minutes remaining. He kicked out 37 shots, Winnipeg's Harry Lumley 34.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Alex Duff sidestepped a professional hockey career in favor of education and, looking back 20 years, he feels the decision was the right one.

Duff, general manager of the Henry Morgan department store chain, was considered one of the more promising prospects of his era and attracted McGill University intercollegiate champion teams.

"But I never gave any offer much serious thought," he says. "The old Montreal Maroons approached me once and the offer was tempting. But I felt I had a moral obligation to turn it down for an education. I still think I made the right decision."

He graduated with a bachelor of science degree from McGill in 1937 and played hockey for several more years before giving up the game to pursue a career in business.

WON ALLAN CUP

He played part of two seasons with Canadians of the old Montreal senior league and was one of the bright lights for Kirkland Lake Blue Devils in 1939-40 when the Northern Ontario city won its only Allan Cup.

He retired the next season but two players from that team—beaten only once all season—made the National Hockey League. They were Bill Durnan, one of the NHL's all - time great goalies, and right-winger Johnny MCready, with Toronto Maple Leafs for several seasons.

Duff says he believes the attitude toward the game has changed a great deal in the last 20 years.

"Hockey now is big business. In my day there was more friendly competition. The rivalry was something terrific. At the time $200 or $300 was considered a lot for a player in one season. But soon after salaries shot up. I think the rise in salaries had a detrimental effect on minor hockey.

"When there wasn't any money around, people wanted to participate more. But now youngsters would sooner watch somebody else play than get out on the ice themselves."

FASTER TODAY

As for the game itself, Duff thinks it's faster and more appealing than it used to be.

If he had it all to do over again, would he follow a different course?

"No, certainly not. Practices were fun. Everything seemed to be fun. But I guess we can't go back to the '30s. Our mode of living is changing all the time and hockey, like everything else, is affected."

The highlight of his career, he says, was being a member of the Blue Devils.

"There was a lot of spirit on that team and desire to win was uppermost in each player's mind."

The only loss all season was to Sydney Millionaires in the Eastern Canada semi-finals.

"The team was extremely well balanced. There was a lot of talk that year that the Allan Cup winner would take on the NHL's Stanley Cup winner, primarily to show the comparison between the two clubs. I guess that spurred us on.

"But the New York Rangers won their series a week before we won ours. It would have been difficult for them to wait for us, so the series was called off."

Royals Trio Tops Junior Points Race

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Draper has started picking up points as if they were going out of style but may be making his move too late.

The stocky left winger for Toronto St. Michael's College Majors is the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series' second highest goal-scorer. But the difference between him and scoring leader Rod Gilbert of Guelph Royals is 25 points with only 12 games remaining for Draper.

Gilbert has 46 goals and 43 assists in 38 games for 89 points. Draper has 34 goals and 30 assists for 64 points and fourth place in the standings.

Official statistics released Monday, including Sunday's games, show Guelph's Jean Ratelle retained second with 76 points on 29 goals and 47 assists and teammate Bob Cunningham third with 74 points, including 27 goals.

Murray Hall of St. Catharines Teepees was dropped into fifth place by Draper's nine - point output during the week. Hall has 63 points, four more than teammate Ray Cullen with 20 goals and 39 assists.

Gerry Cheevers of St. Michael's maintained his goaltending lad with a 2.73 average, having allowed 60 goals in 22 games, including one shutout.

Jane Fonda Makes TV Debut in 'String of Beads'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Jane Fonda, who is doing it, believes that following a parent's footsteps in show business is more often caused by a neurotic drive than by inherited talent.

Jane, at 22, already established as a Broadway and motion picture star, tonight makes her TV debut in an NBC dramatic special, A String of Beads.

"One must be neurotic to get into the performing arts," the pretty young actress says. "In other areas, creative people do their creating in private . . . But actors are on exhibition when they are creating. And to be willing to subject oneself to this involves lots of complicated psychological things."

Therefore, she reasons, actors "must be more neurotic and selfish — insecure — than the average persons."

PASS IT ON

"And if they happen to be parents, they are not likely to be particularly good parents. And they pass this insecurity along to their children."

Jane insists that her father, Henry Fonda, has been an exception to the theory.

CBS just can't seem to make up its corporate mind about anything these days. After all the hullabaloo last week over cancelling Circle Theatre's The Spy Next Door, a drama about Soviet espionage in the U.S., it has now been rescheduled for Feb. 15—after the taped show had been seen by a covey of vice-presidents and pronounced safe in areas which might bring a protest from the Russians.

Astrological Forecast

Wednesday, February 8, 1961

General Tendencies: Now you have a day when you are able to accomplish a very great deal if you will act in a conventional and conservative fashion and refuse to be influenced by some unexpected circumstance or discontented individual that tries to throw you off what you have been organizing for some time past. Put new facet to longtime ambitions for best use.

Aries (March 21to April 19) You have every opportunity now to contact a most influential person who will give you the right advice so that you can make big headway. Get rid of any notion to fritter this day away on pleasure. Be active and succeed!

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) You can now garner that data you need, even if it means writing letters, telegrams or going on a short trip. Don't permit some nervous relative to deter you. Follow through judiciously on whatever is right and just.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—Take the advice of authorities today where a certain problem is concerned in connection with the one most important to you. Come to a real understanding. P.M. take care while out driving or walking. Don't be extravagant, either.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — If properly attuned astrologically, you should arise feeling just fine today and can then get out either for business or pleasure and make this a most happy and productive day and evening. Be with those who are truly congenial. Grow.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Everything seems to be going along quite prosperously for you today, but be sure you do not permit this to make you egotistical and demanding. By retaining equilibrium, you can set wheels in motion for an even greater abundance. Be wise.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Surely the right day to be in the company of truly interesting persons who can be most helpful in your career, whether in business or in the arts. However, be certain not to simply sit down in easy chair and dream. Be active!

Property and managment is the forte here. Be sure you give the finest academic and business education possible.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada won't interfere with distribution of the Soviet magazine The Soviet Union Today as long as the publication respects its legal responsibilities.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green in a letter to Ottawa city council read Monday said all embassies were free to circulate informative material, "as long as they do not make statements offensive to Canada or other countries."

He said this was consistent with the democratic concept of freedom of the press.

Mr. Green gave the federal government's views in reply to Ald. Murray Heit's request for an investigation of sales of the U.S.S.R. publication on Canadian news stands.

Unions Threaten Strike to Block Planned Merger

LONDON (Reuters) — Union representatives of 13,000 editorial, printing and electrical workers employed by Odhams Press and The Daily Mirror newspaper combine threatened Monday "to strike if necessary" to block a planned merger involving the two groups.

A statement by the union representatives said that an "action committee was set up to fight the takeover bids and mergers threatening the existence of newspapers and magazines."

The unions' action followed merger and takeover proposals concerning the Odhams group, publishers of The Daily Herald and the Sunday newspaper, The People, as well as a host of magazines and other publications.

First it was announced that Odhams and the British newspaper chain owned by Canadian publisher Roy Thomson would be merged. This was followed by a takeover bid by the Mirror group for the shares held by Odhams' many small stockholders.

The Mirror group Monday night announced that its formal offer to Odhams stockholders is expected to be sent out Wednesday and will include a bid worth about £1,000,000 for preferred shares in Odhams.

This will include both categories of Odhams preferred shares—those for six per cent and those for 6½ per cent.

This will mean the total Odhams offer, including the 12,000,000 common shares, will be worth about £33,000,000.

Meanwhile, Thomson in a television interview said he would favor an inquiry into restrictive practices in the newspaper industry.

Replying to a question by Liberal party leader Jo Grimond, Thomson said there were restrictive practices in the industry and added, "I do not think the unions could reasonably deny that."

He said that an inquiry "would be in the interests of the press and the unions themselves and it would be better to bring them into the open and before the public."

He added, "let me say I have no complaint about the unions. I have been very fairly treated by the unions in my dealings."

Boundary Line Keeps Trucks From Fire

WINDSOR MILLS, Que. (CP) An invisible boundary line Sunday kept the only available fire equipment from reaching a fire in which seven children lost their lives.

The fire destroyed a two-storey farmhouse four miles from this community 85 miles southeast of Montreal and wiped out the family of Mr. and Mrs. Marc St. Laurent.

While it burned, the Windsor Mills fire truck sat in a garage.

"We have only one fire truck and I couldn't send it because there would be nothing left in case of a fire in town," Windsor Mills Councillor Leon Desaulniers said Monday.

He confirmed a police report that he had been asked to send the truck to the St. Laurent farm, but declined because the farm was beyond the town limits.

Former Official Implicates Union In Beating Foes

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says the Canadian Labor Congress is investigating allegations by a former official of the Seafarers' International Union "implicating the union in beating of its foes."

In a copyright story by labor reporter Wilfred List, the newspaper says the charges came from Michael Sheenan, an SIU patrolman in the Montreal area who, the story says, broke with the union in the last month.

The Globe and Mail adds:

"Reports reaching this newspaper's Ottawa bureau indicated Mr. Sheenan had been dismissed, but an SIU spokesman maintained he had resigned Jan. 25 after his activities had been challenged by the union leadership.

'As a patrolman, Mr. Sheenan acted as a representative of the union in dealing with the companies and crews. One of the originals of the SIU, he was at one time close to Hal Banks, SIU Canadian vice - president, and represented the union at several overseas conferences of international maritime organizations."

STUDY DOCUMENTS

The story says Sheenan is "incommunicado while the congress studies his story and documents he is reported to have delivered to senior CLC officers."

Sheenan is "reported to have attributed to the SIU a beating received several years ago in Owen Sound by Capt. H. F. Walsh of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild," the story says.

"Others were also named as victims of the SIU."

The story says William Dodge, CLC executive vice - president, refused to comment on the report concerning Sheenan. It says an unidentified SIU spokesman in Montreal described Sheenan as "a disgruntled, minor official."

It says Ottawa sources indicate the government has been keeping a close eye on the situation.

The SIU represents unlicensed seamen employed by shipping operators on the Great Lakes. It was expelled from the CLC last April for raiding the National Association of Marine Engineers, which since has merged with the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

Two Vancouver Men Criticize Grattan O'Leary

OTTAWA (CP) — Two west Vancouver men have written Prime Minister Diefenbaker suggesting that M. Grattan O'Leary be replaced as chairman of the royal commission on publications and that the commission start its work over again.

The letter is signed by John Bell and A. H. Roberts and was tabled in the Commons Monday for Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur), who asked to see all written complaints about the commission chairmanship of Mr. O'Leary, president of the Ottawa Journal.

It was the only letter tabled with a direct reference to Mr. O'Leary. One other letter from J. Roy Ildstad of Quatsino, B.C., urged Mr. Diefenbaker to oppose anti - American sentiments expressed at the hearing and prevent acts detrimental to American publishers.

The prime minister replied to Mr. Ildstad personally. He said he would bring the matter to the attention of the commission and added:

"I would, however, point out that in any action taken by the government in respect of economic matters, such action is not based on anti-Americanism but on pro-Canadianism, and is generally so understood in the United States."

TAKE OTHER VIEW

The letter from Mr. Bell and Mr. Roberts expressed incredulity over what the letter called Mr. O'Leary's protests against "anti-American references."

The letter continued: "These statements cannot be classified as insignificant but rather by their outrageous content indicate the chairman is completely prejudiced and incapable of executing his duties in a proper manner."

Claude Gauthier, one of Mr. Diefenbaker's secretaries, replied and quoted the same reply that the prime minister gave Dec. 16 to Mr. Fisher when the CCF MP suggested Mr. O'Leary had been guilty of "liverish prejudgment." That reply said in part: "All commissions, of course, determine their decisions after hearing the evidence."

The Bell-Roberts letter took exception to a statement attributed to Mr. O'Leary. They quoted him as saying:

"I believe every evening Canadians should get down on their knees and thank God for our good neighbors."

Philippines Set to Write Off SEATO as Effective Agency

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP)—The Philippine government is ready to write off Seato as an effective anti-Communist force in Asia.

Filipino leaders think the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization might not survive its March meeting.

This was lernd as Foreign Secrtary Felixberto Serrano and othr Philippine officials arrived to prepare for a state visit Wednesday by President Carlos Garcia to this Southeast Asian nation.

It was learned Serrano bluntly told the U.S., British and French ambassadors in Manila his government feels Seato has failed to meet the Laotian crisis because it has not driven back the Communists.

BLAME U.K., FRANCE

Serrano's government believes Britain and France have paralyzed the organization and fears the U.S. may be bowing to its NATO allies.

Serrano, it is understood, is planning to go to Bangkok for the Seato foreign ministers meeting next month to urge the anti - Communist nations of Southeast Asia to replace Seato with separate defence treaties with the United States, thereby bypassing Britain and France. South Korea, South Viet Nam and Nationalist China, and possibly Thailand, are believed to hold the same views.

These nations are opposed to the British-sponsored plan to restore the international armistice commission for Laos composed of India, Canada and Poland. They fear it would mean a halt to American aid to the anti-Communist forces in Laos and at the same time make Communist penetration of the kingdom easier.

The Philippine and Malayan governments already have proposed the formation of a new association of Southeast Asian states and are to hold talks about the proposed grouping here next weekend.

Halt Repair Of Mailboxes By Prisoners

OTTAWA (CP) — Reports of widespread mail thefts have been followed by a government decision to end its long-standing practice of having mailboxes repaired in federal prisons.

Postmaster - General William Hamilton announced the move to the Commons Monday and added that all post offices soon will display posters offering rewards of $200 to $2,000 for information leading to arrest and conviction of mail thieves.

Reports last week said police were trying to break up a ring opening mailboxes with keys smuggled out of penitentiary workshops and cashing stolen cheques with forged identification papers printed in penitentiaries.

For years the post office's street letter boxes and relay boxes have been repaired in prisons—chiefly Kingston penitentiary, Mr. Hamilton said. Only the metal work was done in the prisons. The convicts did no work on locks or keys—at least, not officially. Henceforth, commercial firms will do the work.

FIRST REPORTED IN 1956

Late in 1956 postal authorities "received an indication" keys might have been manufactured secretly, in Kingston Penitentiary and smuggled outside, Mr. Hamilton said. "Protective measures" were promised by federal prison officials.

After the recent mailbox thefts with illegally - manufactured keys, Mr. Hamilton said, "my officials informed me that keys were again issuing from Kingston Penitentiary despite the protective measures which had been taken there."

He said he had considered changing locks on the 40,000 mailboxes in Canada but this would cost more than $200,000 and there would be "no effective increase in security."

Mr. Hamilton noted that in most cases where mailboxes have been rifled, the box has been forced open. Keys were not used.

He said that in the nine months ended Dec. 31 the number of mailbox thefts declined to 248 from 292 in the corresponding period a year earlier. Post office losses in such thefts dropped to 787,042 from $135,547.

Looters Busy

MOULIN - SOUS - FLERON, Belgium (Reuters)—Police reported Monday looters have stolen money, household possessions and even rescue equipment from this landslide-buried hamlet.

Policemen made strict identity checks to prevent further looting as rescuers searched for the body of a mother believed to be the last of the 11 known victims in Friday night's collapse of a 300-foot slag heap of ash and cinders.

Earlier reports had placed the number of dead at 10.

Seeking Ways To Strengthen NATO Council

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States is seeking ways of strengthening and unifying the 15-country North Atlantic Treaty Organization, State Secretary Dean Rusk told his first press conference Monday.

Various proposals, including one of turning the next NATO council meeting into a Western summit conference by heads of state, are under intensive study, Rusk said. Prime Minister Diefenbaker of Canada has advocated such a summit meeting.

Rusk also said, in reply to a question, that the United States disarmament experts are studying the problem of whether and how Communist China can be included in the nuclear test ban talks or in any future disarmament negotiations between the West and the Communists.

To be realistic, Rusk said, an arms control system must cover the major powers. He declined to say how or when Communist China might be invited into arms control talks. And he gave no indication that the administration of President Kennedy would favor either recognizing the Peking regime or seating it in the United Nations.

Three-power talks among the U.S., Russia and Britain are to be resumed in Geneva March 21 in the hope of negotiating a permanent ban on nuclear tests.

DEAN APPOINTED

Rusk announced appointment of Arthur H. Dean, a onetime law partner of the late Republican state secretary John Foster Dulles, to head U.S. negotiators at the Geneva test ban talks. Dean has had wide diplomatic experience, including dealing with the Communists at the Panmunjom talks leading to the 1953 Korean truce.

Rusk also emphasized that just because there is a new U.S. administration and Moscow has been tempering its anti-American line, this does not mean cold war problems will disappear.

He said Americans should not be unduly optimistic that the East-West situation has changed basically. He seemed more hopeful of progress soon on lesser issues than on major ones.

On Laos, The Congo, Cuba and other world trouble spots Rusk emphasized that the U.S. is not demanding solutions that simply support American policy. The Kennedy administration would support neutrality and independence for a country providing the Communists didn't interpret neutrality as a opening for Communist infiltration.

24 Persons Said Killed in Angolan Riots

LISBON, Portugal (Reuters)—Gunmen opened fire when they were flushed from a woodpile in the last outbreak of anti-government violence in Portuguese Angola, it was reported Monday.

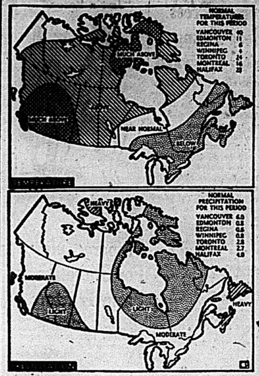
The clash occurred after a funeral held in the West African colony's capital of Luanda Sunday for victims of earlier shootings.

A total of 24 persons have been reported killed in Angolan violence linked with the rebel seizure of the Portuguese liner Santa Maria.

The newspaper O Secula said in a story from Luanda that the gunmen were hidden in a nearby woodpile during funeral services for six policemen and a soldier killed Friday.

It said neighborhood residents spotted them and told police.

Four persons were killed in the clash, seven injured and an undisclosed number arrested.



WARM IN WEST — Above-normal temperatures are predicted for Western Canada and below-normal readings are expected in the east in the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau for February.

The outlook is based on long-range predictions and is not a specific forecast. A change in weather patterns may produce major errors.

Most of Canada will have moderate precipitation during the month. (CP Newsmap.)

Walker Given Cash Settlement By Chiropractor

TORONTO (CP)—Kevin Griffin, 25, who trudged to Vancouver from here last November, isn't getting the $10,000 he said he was to receive for the hike.

"That's all cancelled," said Prescott chiropractor M. R. Seeley in a telephone interview Monday. "It wasn't for $10,000 cash anyway."

He said his contract with Griffin, an out-of-work hospital orderly, was for a $10,000 scholarship to any recognized university to study medicine — if he reached Vancouver in time for the Grey Cup game.

"But he didn't have his high school, so he couldn't enter any university," said Seeley.

He said arrangements had been made for settlement in cash and "I'm satisfied and he's satisfied." He wouldn't disclose the amount.

LOOKING FOR WORK

Griffin, who returned to Toronto about two weeks ago, was not available for comment. Friends said he had been out of work and they thought he had left Toronto in search of a job.

Griffin wore corrective shoes during the hike in which Seeley had an interest. He first met the chiropractor last August on a walk from Montreal to Toronto.

"He was almost a cripple when he came to see me," said Seeley. "His feet were swollen and he could hardly walk. He couldn't have done it without the corrective shoes."

Matt Deane of Toronto accompanied Griffin on the Toronto-Vancouver walk and was supposed to receive $2,500. But this was a deal between Griffin and Deane, said Griffin's friends.

Seeley said he had never heard of any deal with Deane.

January Housing Loan Activity Sets New Mark

OTTAWA (CP)—Pre - Christmast amendments to the National Housing Act pushed NHA lending activity last month to the highest January level in the act's 22 - year history, Works Minister Walker announced Monday.

In a Commons statement, he attributed this to "swift and vigorous response" of the house-building industry to the amendments, which had had "a very significant impact" in easing unemployment.

Mr. Walker said there were 3,515 applications for NHA loans in January, compared with 157 in January, 1960, and the previous record of 3,191 in January, 1958. He gave no figures on loan approvals.

Of the total, 1,460 loans were made by approved lenders—the banks and recognized insurance and other financial institutions —as against 151 a year earlier and the previous peak of 1,580 in January, 1955.

HANDLED BY CMHC

The balance of 2,055 loan applications were handled by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the government's housing agency.

Although most of these loan applications were from potential home owners and house builders who already had purchasers for their units, the total also included bids for limited dividend loans for low-rental housing projects.

Actual housing starts in December were up 4.4 per cent from a year earlier, Mr. Walker said, without citing comparative figures. In addition, extension of home improvement loans to rental properties had resulted in $4,683,000 in such loans—highest dollar volume since September, 1958.

Chief among the NHA amendments passed by Parliament in December was an increase in maximum government - guaranteed loans from $12,800 for all types of single-family dwellings to $14,200 for three - bedroom homes and $14,900 for larger houses. The permissible repayment term was extended by five years to 35 years.

Ryerson Press Offers Young Writers' Award

TORONTO — A new $1,000 cash award for young authors has been announced by Dr. C. H. Dickinson, general manager of The Ryerson Press.

To be known as The Ryerson Award for Young Writers, this prize will be offered annually for the best prose book manuscript — fiction or non-fiction — submitted by an author under the age of 30. The $1,000 prize money will be in addition to all royalties earned by the book after publication.

"Establishing this award offers us the opportunity of encouraging and giving recognition to young Canadian writers of promise," said Dr. Dickinson. "In England, in Europe and the United States youthful writers have leaped into prominence with startling books — often highly controversial books. We feel there are young Canadians, too, who should be heard and we hope this award will provide an incentive for them.

"In addition to winning the $1,000 prize," added Dr. Dickinson, "the young author will become immediately a nationally recognized literary figure as his or her book will be advertised and promoted from coast to coast in Canada."

To complete for The Ryerson Award for Young Writers an author must be a Canadian citizen, or a permanent resident of Canada — and be under 30 years of age on December 31st, 1961. The prize-winning author will be asked to supply proof of age.

Manuscripts submitted for this award should contain between 50,000 and 150,000 words, have literary distinction and be on a theme of current interest. The winning manuscript will be selected by a panel of three judges appointed by The Ryerson Press. Manuscripts that do not win the Award will be considered for publication by Ryerson under the terms of its usual contract.

To submit a manuscript for the Award, no entry blank is needed — but both the package and the manscript should be clearly marked, "The Ryerson Award for Young Writers." All manuscripts offered for the 1962 Award must be postmarked no later than December 30, 1961. They should be mailed to The Ryerson Press, 299 Queen Street West, Toronto 2B, Ontario.

A brochure setting out the full conditions of The Ryerson Award For Young Writers may be obtained on request from The Ryerson Press.

Dartmouth, N.S., to Become 3rd Largest Maritime City, Now Biggest Canadian Town

By DAL WARRINGTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—Six years ago the Angus L. Macdonald bridge across Halifax Harbor took you to the Halifax suburb of Dartmouth, population 15,000. Now it takes you to the Maritimes' newest and third-largest city, population 50,000.

Officially this is still a town until the Nova Scotia legislature grants a city charter, expected soon. Meanwhile civic bosoetrs boast that Dartmouth is Canada's largest town. A war and the bridge made it such.

Before the Second World War only 9,000 people lived here. The war expanded defence establishments and brought people to man them. Over-crowding in Halifax sent newcomers flocking aboard the ferries to find living space in Dartmouth.

When they started building the bridge in 1951 census-takers counted 15,037 Dartmouth noses. The bridge, one mile long, cost $11,000,000 and was finished in 1955.

In the next five years the town averaged almost 2,000 new residents a year. By 1960 the population was 24,600.

DOUBLED SIZE

On Jan. 1, 1961, Dartmouth doubled that figure by absorbing seven fast-growing suburbs. This amalgamation swelled its land area to 16,000 acres from a mere 1,700. By contrast, Halifax with 109,000 people is confined to a 4,400-acre peninsula.

Dartmouthians, a majority of whom work in Halifax, used to consider themselves suburbanites. Now they have taken to calling their town one of "the twin cities of the East."

The old label, "a bedroom for Halifax," doesn't fit as well as it did. Industrial growth has made Halifax a bedroom for many who work in Dartmouth.

You hear a lot these days about Maritime economic problems. Often overlooked is the fact that except for Edmonton and Calgary, Metropolitan Halifax; which includes Dartmouth, has been the fastest-growing metro area in Canada, percentage-wise, even outstripping Toronto.

NAVY HELPED GROWTH

Census figures show that between 1951 and 1956 the Halifax fringe areas, Dartmouth among them, gained 47 per cent in population. This growth was not just a Halifax overflow. Contributing to the Dartmouth boom are a navy air station, armament depot, naval reasearch establishment, munitions magazine, oil refinery, shipyards, aircraft repair plant, new electronic, aluminum, cable and steel - fabricating plants, and gypsum and petroleum shipping terminals. Coming is a federal oceanographic institute now under construction.

Communities of new houses and apartment blocks have spread in an expanding ring around Dartmouth. The face of the old town has changed too—a 19-store shopping centre just off the bridge, another going up in the north end, new downtown stores and remodelled old ones.

The town has a new and flourishing weekly newspaper—the Free Press. Publisher Ralph Morton makes no bones about his hope to become a daily as soon as possible.

For some things, citizens must still look to Halifax. They have no hospital of their own. They have a hockey rink, a baseball park and numerous bowling alleys but no radio or television station. The BBG rejected a radio station application last year. They have only one movie theatre, one hotel and one motel, although others are planned.

CREATED PROBLEMS

Most embarrassing of all was the decision by the Junior Chamber of Commerce to hold the town's big "amalgamation ball" in Halifax. They said they couldn't find a place large enough in Dartmouth.

Mayor I. W. Akerley, who fathered amalgamation, admits it created plenty of headaches for town officials. The town took over 11 suburban schools with 200 teachers, more than doubling its education staff. It must maintain an additional 60 miles of streets. The 27-man police force will have to be doubled, the fire department bolstered with more men and equipment.

Dartmouth also assumed a $5,600,000 Halifax county debt, most of it for schools, water and sewer lines in the former suburbs. However, the newly acquired territory will boost property assessment to $121,000,000 from $30,322,000.

Charles Vaughan, who retired as mayor of Halifax last fall, predicts that by the end of the century Dartmouth will have more people than Halifax today. Mayor Akerley is even more optimistic. "We hope within the next decade to become the largest city in the Maritime provinces." Only Halifax and Saint John, N.B., are bigger now.

Perhaps the planners of the Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Company, trying to cope with the town's demand for phones, are more impartial prophets. They estimate Dartmouth will have 90,000 residents within 19 years.

As for the bridge, more than 19,000 vehicles cross it on peak days now. They're planning to build a second one before 1980.

BECOMING CITY — Dartmouth, N.S., with a population of 50,000 is to become the Maritimes' newest and third-largest city. Meanwhile civic boosters boast it is Canada's largest town. This aerial shows the business section (upper right) and the Angus L. Macdonald bridge (lower right), linking Dartmouth with Halifax across Halifax harbor. (CP Photo).

THINK MAN ABOARD SOVIET 'SPUTNIK'

No Clear Answer Available Yet On 'Missile Gap'

Kennedy Backs Away From Earlier Criticism

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy said today he hopes the United States is "completely secure" in its space age defences against Communist power—but at the moment he lacks a "clear answer" to whether there is a missile gap.

At a press conference the president backed away from the strongly critical position he had taken during the political campaigns last fall. He charged then that under Republican leadership the U.S. was falling behind in the missile race.

The fact is, he said, that studies he ordered in the Pentagon on the missile gap problem have not been completed and will not be for a few days. When they are finished—perhaps by Feb. 20 on some matters—he will recommend to Congress any changes needed in budget provisions for weapons programs.

In discussing the over all American-Soviet power relationship the president said:

"The United States will not strike first."

He thus by implication ruled out any policy of what has been called preventive or pre-emptive war. He said the realization that the United States will not strike first is one of the important considerations in estimating the balance of missile forces.

BLEW UP STORM

Kennedy spoke guardedly on the issue in the midst of storm kicked up by a defence department briefing of reporters Monday. The reporters were advised that Kennedy administration officials had concluded tentatively as a result of the Kennedy-ordered study that there was no missile gap.

Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's press secretary, then sought to deny the reports. He said they were inaccurate because the studies leading to such a conclusion had not been finished.

Kennedy declared today he had talked about the problem Tuesday with Defence Secretary Robert McNamara.

"He stated," Kennedy said, "that no study had been concluded in the defence department which would lead to any conclusion whether there is a missile gap or not."

CLAIM BRIEFED

Reports of the alleged missile study, written by newspaper men experienced in reporting military affairs, are not attributed to anyone. The New York Herald Tribune says in today's editions that Defence Secretary

UN Diplomats Renew Debate About Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Diplomats renewed discussion on The Congo behind the scenes today with two major opposite points of view before them — whether Patrice Lumumba is an African patriot or an "unproved myth" guilty of murder and oppression.

Both pictures of the deposed Congolese premier were presented Tuesday before the 11-member United Nations Security Council which then adjourned so that delegations could confer privately.

Congolese delegate Evariste Loliki drew fire from several sides when he asserted that Lumumba, for whom he once acted as political adviser, was guilty of "murder, incitation, violence, terror and corruption."

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin described Lumumba as a "remarkable African national leader" imprisoned in foul conditions at the order of "colonialists" who would like to kill him.

Sir Patrick Dean of Britain, council chairman for this month, adjourned the session with the suggestion that delegatiins consult and decide when to meet again—perhaps Friday.

KEY ISSUE

Although Lumumba is only one of the problems of the fragmented Congo, his fate has emerged as the central issue in this emergency session.

Indonesia, Guinea, Libya and Yugoslavia called Tuesday for his immediate release from prison, following similar pleas by such countries as India and Ceylon.

But Loliki, emissary of President Joseph Kasavubu, said Lumumba's reputation as the only truly national Congolese leader was an "unproved myth." He had won support by terror and corrupting politicians and military men.

It is for Congolese law and the Congolese people, not the United Nations, to judge Lumumba, Loliki said. The army under Kasavubu and his chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. Joseph Mobutu, was a true national army, Loliki added, criticizing UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold for calling it a "faction."

Meanwhile, United States Ambassador Adlai Stevenson and Zorin confirmed in separate talks with correspondents that they had failed to reach agreement on The Congo in a private conference.

CRITICIZES TREND

CHATHAM (CP) — Education is the world's greatest problem and dangerous trends besetting it today are a result of the progressive system of education, Bishop Charles Leo Nelligan of Assumption University told the Kent County Herford Club Tuesday night. He said that "lack of discipline, both mental and physical is a danger of progressive education."

Today's Chuckle

The man who laughs at the boss's jokes does not necessarily have a sense of humor, but he surely has a sense of direction.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis — over the northern and central sections of Ontario sunny and mild weather is expected to continue into Thursday. Across Southern Ontario, however, there will be increasing cloudiness today as a weather system moves slowly across the eastern United States. There is a threat that some snow may spread northward into portions of Ontario bordering the lower Great Lakes tonight.

'I Have Been Bloody Fool' Is Cry Of Briton Charged as Soviet Spy

LONDON (AP)—A Scotland Yard detective testified today a trusted British civil servant exclaimed "I have been a bloody fool" when he was caught slipping Royal Navy secrets to a Soviet agent posing as a U.S. naval attache.

Detective Supt. George Smith told a magistrate that Harry F. Houghton, 55, a clerical officer in the Royal Navy's underwater weapons department, later confessed to his part in the spy ring in an effort to clear his finacee, bectuse he had "dragged her into this mess."

Houghton was arrested with his fiancee, Ethel Gee, 46, who worked with him at the secret naval research station in Portland, as they kept a rendezvous in the heart of London with Gordon A. Lonsdale, 37.

The government charges that Lonsdale was a Soviet agent who carried a forged Canadian passport.

Detective Smith said Houghton told him that he persuaded Miss Gee to let him have a number of secret documents to be copied for a man who had introduced himself as "Cmdr. Alexander Johnson," of the U.S. Embassy in London.

Smith testified that he and fellow detectives seized the three Jan. 7 on a London street after watching Miss Gee hand Lonsdale a shopping basket holding several parcels.

Smith said the parcels contained four pamphlets relating underwater weapons tests and a can packed with film of 212 pages from the secret Royal Navy book Particulars of War Vessels, supposedly accessible only to trusted navy men and civil servants.

Accused with the two navy workers and Lonsdale are Peter Kroger, 50, a bookseller, and his wife, Helen, 47, who lived in suburban Ruislip. The hearing now being held is to determine whether the five shall be tried for espionage.

Attorney-General Sir Reginald Manningham - Buller told the magistrate Tuesday the Krogers' modest cottage was equipped with a powerful radio transmitter and receiver which they used to keep in touch with a spymaster in Moscow.

The shortwave radio transmitter was found concealed beneath the kitchen floor.

The government said also found in the cottage were:

Miniaturized documentary films called microdots—documents reduced on film to a dot no bigger than the period of a typewriter;

A powerful microscope suitable for reading microdot messages;

A cigaret lighter built to hold negatives, and more than $8,000 in U.S. currency and travellers cheques.

MINING TOWN OF ELLIOT LAKE TO BE ASSISTED

Four-Year Program Given to House

TORONTO (CP)—The mining town of Elliot Lake will be kept in operation by a four-year program of $4,000,000 in interest-free loans, Municipal Affairs Minister Warrender announced Tuesday.

Premier Frost backed up Mr. Warrender's statement in the legislature by saying Ontario may "write off" part or all of the debt owed by the uranium mining town if it fails to revive.

Mr. Warrender said he was confident the town would survive. But he said the population had dropped to 15,000 from the 25,000 it boasted in 1959 when it was announced uranium contracts wouldn't be extended.

Ontario has loaned the town $1,877,000 over the last three years. The new loans are $1,132,000 this year, repayable in 1965-67; about the same amount next year repayable 1968-73 and $976,000 in 1964, repayable 1974-76.

IS 'IN RECEIVERSHIP'

"Ellot Lake is virtually in receivership," said Mr. Frost. "There isn't the slightest good to ask the residents to pay sums they can't pay."

Mr. Warrender said the loans would allow the town to operate without an increase in municipal taxes from the 1960 rate.

There are some 300 vacant houses in Elliot Lake and a community of more than 700 house trailers. Mr. Warrender said the government hoped many of the trailer residents would gradually move to permanent houses.

Liberal Leader Wintermeyer suggested the government invoke a maratorium on mortgages.

"Young people are losing their homes," he said. "Others are losing their life's savings."

At least 75 per cent of the homes are national housing act mortgages and are the business of the federal government.

"We wouldn't have the slight-

FARMING DANGEROUS

GUELPH (CP) — Farm people are engaged in the most hazardous occupation in Ontario, Agriculture Minister Goodfellow said Tuesday night. Addressing delegates to the annual meeting of the Farm Safety Council of Ontario, he said the introduction of appliances and mechanized equipment created a situation dangerous to the farmer and his wife.

Many Civil Suits Likely Over Electrical Conspiracy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The federal government breakup of the giant conspiracy in the $2,000,000,000-a-year heavy electrical equipment industry, halting illegal price-fixing and bid-rigging, may be followed by many civil suits.

Customers may seek to recover thousands of dollars, perhaps millions in alleged overpayments. Such action could be in the courts for years. The suing customer must prove he was damaged by the price-fixing or bid-rigging. This is not easy, lawyers said.

Industry sources, meantime, said equipment prices remain virtually unchanged.

The government investigation that began 18 months ago ended Tuesday as U.S. district court Judge J. Cullen Ganey finished sentencing 29 companies and 44 of their executives.

It was a two-day job in Ganey's courtroom where he imposed total fines of $1,924,500 and 30-day jail terms for seven men.

A 45th individual, too ill to appear, will be sentenced later.

There were 20 indictments in all brought in by four grand juries. The 14 remaining were disposed of Tuesday, after Monday's session.

All the indictments accused the defendants of fixing prices, maintaining them at high and artificial levels and restraining, suppressing and eliminating competition.

The defendants either pleaded guilty or nolo contendere (no defence) but the judge said both were an equal admission of the charges.

There can be no appeal of the sentences to a higher court. However the judge can be petitioned to reduce the penalty.

Company fines, totalling $1,787,000, must be paid within 10 days. Individuals, assessed $137,300, must pay within 20 days.

The seven jailed will serve their prison terms, starting next Mondy, in prison at nearby Norristown, Pa.

The industry's two biggest firms — General Electric Company and Westinghouse Electric Corporation—bore the brunt of the penalties. Government lawyers said they do more than 60 per cent of the total business.

GE was fined $437,500, Westinghouse $382,000. Sixteen GE executives, three of them ordered jailed, were fined $55,000, while 14 Westinghouse officials must pay $27,000. Two of them go to jail.

The industry supplies most of the equipment for transmission, generation and distribution of electric power to operate television sets and toasters in virtually every American home.

The transformers, oil-circuit breakers, low-voltage power circuit breakers, watt-hour meters, insulators and other items help operate submarines, battleships, atomic energy plants and dams.

The U.S. economy depends on this equipment. Judge Ganey, noting this, called the violations "shocking."

San Francisco's city attorney, Dion Holm, said cities across the country may join in suing the firms for refunds. Holm estimated San Francisco has spent about $8,000,000 for heavy equipment with GE, Westinghouse and Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company.

GE, Westinghouse and Allis-Chalmers said they are investigating past and present pricing policies. GE added it would "make it right with our customers."

It is possible that the fixed prices—even rigged bills—may not have been excessive, that the companies merely took a normal profit.

To get around this impasse, the government may propose a settlement based on seven-cents-an-hour, with the rest left up to a royal commissioner.

At least this is what the brotherhood says it has been hearing around Ottawa lately.

Govt. May Name Board To Settle Rail Wage Dispute

OTTAWA (CP)—Will the federal government drop the multi-million-dollar railway wage dispute into the lap of a royal commission?

Officials of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) say they've been hearing rumors it will.

The question came up in the Commons last week, and Prime Minister Diefenbaker's non-committal reply was:

"When and if any such decision is made it will be announced in the House in the proper course."

If such a step is taken, say brotherhool officers, it will be fought bitterly by them.

"We will not agree to putting our case through another washing machine," said William J. Smith, national president of the 40,000 - member brotherhood, largest union in the 15-union negotiating team that represents some 111,000 non-operating railwaymen.

The government is hoping for some sort of solution to the wage impasse between the railways and their "non-op" workers—a stalemate that led to a strike threat last Dec. 3 and the government's legislative action to shunt the strike crisis ahead to May 15.

The "non-op" unions, who represent almost all workers who do not actually run trains—have called a new national rail strike for May 16.

They want a wage increase of 14 cents an hour as recommended by a majority report of a federal conciliation board headed by Mr. Justice J. V. H. Milvain of Calgary.

The railways refuse to pay the increase.

Castro's Regime Charges Priests Active in Bomb Plots

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro's regime kept up its bitter anti-clerical campaign Tuesday night with a charge by Defence Minister Raul Castro that Roman Catholic priests are active in bomb plots against the government.

The prime minister's younger brother told several thousand students that one priest was caught planting a bomb at a munitions depot and another was arrested trying to join invaders from the Dominican Republic.

It was one of the strongest attacks on the clergy since the Castros came to power, and once more the target was Spanish-born priests, the majority of the cergy in Cuba. The Castro regime claims they act on the orders of Spanish dictator Francisco Franco.

Despite his charges, Raul left the impression the Communist-dominated regime plans no immediate action against the church. He called for patience in the face of "anti-national" activities by the priest and said the regime always will ensure religious freedom.

The students, listening in a drenching rain outside the presidential palace, introduced new revolutionary chants: "Cuba yes, priest no," and "Raul, Raul, make prelates cut the (sugar) cane and if they don't, send them back to Spain."

Shortly after the rally a bomb explosion was heard in suburban Miramar. It was the 10th in the last three nights.

Raul's appearance in Havana was a surprise in view of reports the government has gathered the biggest concentration of armed forces in the country's history to attack rebel strongholds in south-central Cuba's mountains.

An estimated 60,000 Castro men have sealed off 1,600 to 4,000 insurgents in the Escambray Mountains of Las Villas province, 185 miles southeast of Havana. All civilian movement for 30 miles around the mountains has been restricted.

Informed sources said the rebels are the best armed and entrenched opposition the Castros have met since the overthrow of dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Insurgent sources admitted the government cordon was cutting the flow of supplies and reinforcements to the anti-Castro

MEMBERS TALK OUT INITIAL ACTION ON PLAN

Govt. May Raise Veterans' Pensions

OTTAWA (CP) — A government plan to raise veterans' disability pensions was met Tuesday with Commons praise so lengthy and lavish that the government didn't get a chance to detail its intentions.

The parliamentary oddity, which saw MPs of all political hue literally talk themselves out of initial action on the proposal, arose in a four-hour debate on the resolution stage of the legislative process.

A government proposal involving money — as this one does—is preceded by a resolution that does not contain details but merely offers a chance for initial debate on the general idea.

Only with the resolution adopted can the government say just what it intends to do—by introducing the necessary bill. Only the government can put up such a measure, and private MPs are prohibited from trying to amend it later.

PLANS MISCARRY

Veterans Affairs Minister Churchill who, as government house leader also calls the order of house business, had planned on getting the resolution adopted Tuesday night so the bill could be introduced and then debated in principle on second reading Thursday.

But in effect he couldn't pilot the resolution past its avid supporters. They still were praising it at the 10 p.m. House adjournment. Mr. Churchill was to try again today in order to keep the Thursday debate on schedule.

He has said that one effect of the government plan would be to increase the rate of pensions payable to families of the 140,000 Canadians who lost their lives in the two world wars.

Other benefits would increase grants for burial expenses of pensioners, and entitle Canadians who served in other Allied forces to make claim for Canadian pensions "no matter where they chose to live in the world."

Pension rates vary according to the percentage of disability. A 100 - per - cent disabled pensioner who is single gets $1,800 a year. Since 1956 the Canadian Legion has sought a one-third increase.

Government ranks produced some of the sharpest criticism of the existing administration of veterans pensions.

O. W. Weichel (PC—Waterloo South), who lost a leg in the First World War, said some veterans are living with disabilities and "are still paying day by day, and will all their lives."

As they grew older many of them wondered how long they could keep their jobs. They needed help.

He suggestel the act be changed so that widows of veterans who received pensions for a disability classified as less than 50 per cent could continue to get the pension after their husband's death. At present only widows of veterans with a disability of 50 per cent or more continue to receive the payment.

Govt. Has New Approach to U.S. Aimed at Cargo Planes Purchase

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government has made a new approach to the United States aimed at U.S. purchase of the Canadian CL-44 cargo plane, it was learned today.

Defence Minister Harkness dispatched a letter to U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara soon after the latter's Feb. 2 announcement of purchase of 53 American transport planes for the U.S. Military Air Transport Service.

Details of the new Canadian proposal were not divulged.

It is the first time Canada has taken up the matter with the new U.S. administration.

On Jan. 13, Mr. Harkness received a letter from former U.S. defence secretary Thomas Gates which apparently rejected the earlier Canadian proposal for a plane swap—Canadian acquisition of the F-101-B American jet interceptor in exchange for American purchase of the Montreal-made CL-44.

The Kennedy administration's decision to acquire American transports appeared to kill all chance of Canadian sale of the CL-44 to the U.S. military.

It is understood that Mr. Harkness feels that the RCAF needs a new interceptor to replace the CF-100 subsonic jet and is doing his utmost to acquire one.

The U.S. has agreed to supply the F-101B if Canada will take over maintenance of American-operated Pinetree radar stations in this country. To do this, Canada would have to supply some 5,000 personnel and around $40,000,000 annually.

It is believed that there is a division of opinion in the cabinet over acquisition of a new interceptor and that External Affairs Minister Green has opposed obtaining any new major weapons while there is still hope for some disarmament agreement.

German Hears Russian Words Among Signals

South African Reports Sound Like Mike Switch

BONN (Reuters) — A West German astronomer said he picked up fragments of Russian words and sentences while listening to signals sent out today by Russia's seven - ton spaceship.

But he said that though the signals were definitely from the spaceship he could not be sure the words also came from it.

The signals were picked up by Heinz Kaminski, head of the Bochum Observatory.

He said that at 12:10 p.m. (6:10 a.m. EST) he heard the spaceship's signal on a frequency of 19.994 megacycles. It went on for 22 minutes and became weak at times.

As it weakened he heard the fragments of Russian words and sentences.

Russia has said nothing about the progress of the spaceship, heaviest so far put in to space, since it was launched Saturday.

DURBAN (Reuters)—A South African astronomer claimed Tuesday, signals from Russia's new seven-ton spaceship indicated the possibility of a human being aboard it.

Hein Ottens, head of the Natal branch of the South African Astronomical Society, said he had used a highly-sensitive receiver and picked up signals from the spaceship for 35 minutes.

He added that the signal was punctuated by a sound like the flicking of a switch — which could mean there was a microphone aboard it and that the switch was being operated by a human being.

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters) — A physics professor at Melbourne University said he sighted Russia's new satellite Tuesday night.

Dr. V. Hopper said it passed almost overhead at Pakenham, 40 miles south of here, at about 8:30 p.m. local time.

"It appeared to be in the right orbit and travelling at the right speed,' he said. He watched it for five or six minutes.

He said it was travelling faster than any other satellite he had seen.

Astronomers at Belfield Observatory, near Sydney, said they have been unable to track the Sputnik because insufficient details have been released by the Russians.

NEEDS HARD WORK

TORONTO (CP) — Melvin M. Belli, San Francisco lawyer who has won judgments worth more than $10,000,000 in malpractice suits against doctors, gave some tips to Toronto law students Tuesday. Mr. Belli told the massed students of Osgoode Hall and University of Toronto law schools a lawyer should spend 20 hours in research for every hour in court.

FOUR YORK TRADING DRIVERS WIN AWARDS

Four drivers in the Belleville branch of York Trading Limited have won awards for recording more than 86,000 miles of accident-free driving in 1960, it was announced today.

A Trenton motorist, Leonard Chas. Sweete, suffered a cut to his arm early this morning when his car went out of control and rolled over on 401 highway near the Wallbridge Road. Police said only the one vehicle was involved.

The deglaciation of North America after the great ice age about 10,000 years ago involved the melting of 5,700,000 square miles of ice.

Fog Cloaks District in Thick Mantle

The Quinte district today was cloaked in a dense ground fog formed by radiational cooling, but it was expected to lift before nightfall.

The Trenton aviation weather forecast office reported at 10.30 a.m. that ground fog extended east to Kingston and north to Stirling, possibly farther north, but the sky over Toronto and Watertown was clear and sunny.

"I don't know what the ceiling is yet because we haven't received any report from pilots," said the forecaster. "But I don't think the fog goes higher than 1,200 feet. It should dissipate quickly because there are no clouds over it to prevent the sun from working on it."

Visibility varied anywhere from zero to a half mile between midnight and 5 a.m. Just before midnight both ceiling and visibility were zero.

The forecaster said today's fog was an example of what Toronto had Tuesday when two TCA Viscount airliners were diverted to Trenton because they couldn't land at Malton Airport. Two RCAF aircraft were "itching" to become airborne this morning, he said, but were forced to wait until the fog lifted.

"One of the planes was going to Edmonton," he said. "The pilot would have had clear skies all the way out, once he got away from our ground fog."

The forecaster said there was no wind up to 30,000 feet over Buffalo and that this might also apply to the Quinte area.

NO CLEAR

Robert McNamara had briefed the reporters.

The Pentagon made no comment on the reports.

On a "missile gap," Salinger said:

"No such study has been completed. No such finding has been made in any such study. The stories therefore are inaccurate."

After the reports began circulating, some Republicans in Congress were quick to call on Kennedy to apologize to former president Eisenhower for charging there is a "missile gap" between Russia and the United States.

Eisenhower, in his farewell state-of-the-union message last month, said, "the 'bomber gap' of several years ago was always a fiction, and the 'missile gap' shows every sign of being the same."

Brainwashing Under Red Regime Outlined by Speaker

"Brainwashing, sometimes called also menticide or the murder of the mind, is the term usually applied to describe the process whereby, under the Communist regime, the decisions and attitudes of the individual personality are overruled and overcome in the interest of the victory of the Communist state, so that the brainwashed individual is rendered completely unable to stand up and defend his own mind and will".

The foregoing was Dr. J. M. Shaw's introduction to a talk on the Communist use of brainwashing, a technique derived from psychological experiments with dogs, in their way of life and in their international relations to the local Kiwanis Club yesterday afternoon at the Kiwanis Centre.

It was over 30 years ago that a Russian scientist, Pavlov, conducted a series of experiments with dogs to produce conditioned reflexes or unnatural reactions to artificially induced conditions of nervous stress and strain, and found that prolonged subjection to this nervous tension, coupled with the indiscriminate variation of stimuli with results, would induce a neurotic or psychotic breakdown of the dog's mind. In short the dog's brain would go "out on strike" explained the Queen's University professor emeritus.

Pavlov's experiments and procedures have been adopted and developed by the Russians and Chinese for use on human beings; to convert over to Communist policies and ideas those people who would normally revoke them. The use of these techniques can bring about the complete reversal of a person's normal actions of way of thinking, noted Dr. Shaw.

The important point or factor in the use of Pavlov's findings is the frequent and indiscriminate variation of stimuli (an incident or object which, through common use or association, will produce an automatic response in a person exposed to it) with the resultant response in order to confuse and muddle a person's normal thinking process. This factor has been used in the past by the Communists and is currently being used by Mr. Khrushchev said the guest speaker.

TRYING TO CONFUSE

This accounts for the Russian leader's varying attitudes of alternatively proposing peaceful co-existence and threatening war and the use of force and is nothing short of major psychologicl warfare to confuse the thinking of the Western World, stated the University of Edinborough graduate. That such tactics have had an effect is obvious when no lesser personage than Prime Minister Macmillan of the United Kingdom was prompted to advise the Russian premier that his actions were confusing and to call for an honest declaration of purpose, asserted Dr. Shaw.

The Russian premier's actions call for a positive and constructive method of psychological warfare on the part of the Western world with all the mental, moral and spiritual steadfatsness possible in order to combat the arbitrary and indiscriminate use of this grim and inhumane force by the Communists to gain their own ends, suggested the speaker.

Professor Shaw was introduced by Taylor Franklin and thanked by Anthony Cekota, who remarked that it was a known fact that Pavlov had been requested by the Russian government to submit a report applying his findings to use on human beings shortly before his death.

Two committee reports were submitted by Key Clubs and boys' and girls' work. President Bob Brain presided over the meeting.

Two Hardwood Trees Cut Down By Unknowns

Apparently some thieves are not afraid of a bit of hard work.

At least that is the thought of one Belleville district resident who yesterday complained to police that unknown parties had cut two hardwood trees on his property—apparently for firewood. The trees were on vacant farm property on 6th. concession of Thurlow township near O'Brien's Bridge.

And the thieves were tidy people. Brush trimmed from the tops of the downed maples was burned on the spot.

But the real reason for the brush burning is believed to have been to avoid suspicion on the part of any neighbors who might have noticed the tree cutting.

Four Rinks Qualify to Play On Saturday

Four rinks can now sit back and await play on Saturday after completing their rounds in the first day of the Men's Open Bonspiel, which is continuing until Saturday night. Rinks skipped by Jack Sills and Ernie Wilkinson will enter the final round on Saturday in the primary event, while rinks skipped by Charles Bonter and Ben Corke will take part in the consolation event.

There were some close games in the last round on Tuesday night, two rinks being beaten by a single shot. Gordon Edwards went down to Ernie Wilkinson 11-10, while Don McNevin met the same fate from Charlie Bonter. Both were excellent games and witnessed by a large gallery. Probably the best shot of the whole 'spiel was made by Ernie Wilkinson playing against his brother Harold, in the second game of the draw. Harold was two down coming home and when Ernie went to throw his last rock there were three against him in the "house." Ernie made a perfect draw to the "shot" rock, and by freezing it Harold was unable to move it and still count three to win. It was a beautiful shot.

Today the 'spiel will entertain many outside rinks and which will include rinks from Unionville, Kingston, RCAF Napanee, Bancroft and Oshawa. Al Parkhill, president of the Ontario Curling Association, will bring a number of former Belleville residents with him and it will be more than a day of curling. The boys will be renewing old acquaintances.

Scouting activities

By CHRIS F. LEGGAT

Mr. Clark Locke, assistant provincial commissioner for Handicapped Scouts, and Mr. Dennis Lewis, field Commissioner for this work visited with local Scouting officials this past week. They conferred with the District Commissioner, P. L. Allcorn and with Mrs. C. D. Ashley, A.D.C. Training, as well as with president L. G. Monteith, W. O. Walters and J. W. Hodgson of the district council executive.

Commissioners Locke and Lewis spent a day at the Ontario School for the Deaf which sponsors two Cub Packs and two Scout Troops of some 114 boys under twelve staff Scouters. After visiting with the Pack Scouters they observed school classes in action and attended both troop meetings after school. They were very favorably impressed by their visit.

Work among handicapped boys in Ontario has expanded greatly in the past ten years. While fine work is being done in the institutions such as the Smiths Falls Hospital, at the Ontario School for the Blind and in the local provincial school great emphasis is being put on serving individuals throughout the province. Troops and Packs are encouraged to seek out and include local boys who are crippled, or have other physical impairments as well as those with certain social problems who can be greatly assisted by the Scouting program with its great appeal.

LARGE FIRST-AID CLASS BEING HELD

Some forty-six local Scouts are receiving first-aid training in a class being conducted by Mrs. C. D. Ashley at the Ontario School for the Deaf. Twenty-four of these Scouts are O.S.D. boys while 13th Holy Rosary, 15th Sir Winston Churchill, 17th East minster, and 18th. Parkdale Troops have the other twenty-two Scouts being trained. Council secretary Jack Hodgson and staff Scouters of 16th O.S.D. with Group committee members are assisting in the practical work. Scouters J. H. Bateman and G. Russell of 15th are rendering valuable help also.

Report Taxable Assessment up Over a Million

Taxable assessment in the city of Belleville increased by $1,231,698 during 1960 and now stands at $29,116,240, it is noted in the annual report of city assessment department headed by Assessment Commissioner Leighton Thompson.

Total assessment in the city, including property exempt from taxation is $34,782,905. Business assessment in the city amounts to $3,158,715.

City assessment is weighted quite heavily on the residential side, the report notes. Total residential assessment is $17,222,910, making up 59.15 per cent of the total. Non-residential assessment amounts to $11,893,330, or 40.85 per cent.

The city's population increased by just under 400 persons during the past year and is given as 29,070 as compared with 28,700 a year ago.

A breakdown of property types shows there are 5,421 one-family dwellings, 957 two-family dwellings, 199 three-family dwellings and 103 apartment buildings.

There are 862 places of business.

Owner-occupied homes are in the majority with 5,467 so listed, as compared with 3,835 tenant-occupied homes.

Total area of the city is given as 7,655 acres, made up for 5,937 acres of land area and 1,718 acres of water.

Realty transfers registered during the year covered property valued at $6,095,464, with an assessed value of $1,405,280. Percentage of assessed value of sale value was 25.05 per cent.

Man Injured In Fall From CPR Bridge

Daniel Maracle, 48, of Shannonville, was taken to Belleville General Hospital Tuesday afternoon for emergency treatment after falling 15 feet from the Canadian Pacific Railways bridge across the Moira River.

Mr. Maracle apparently slipped through between the ends of the ties and the bridge and struck his head on the ice.

He was spotted lying on the ice under the bridge by a nearby service station attendant who called police.

MRS. WILLIAM PARK
Trenton

A funeral service was held Monday at the Weaver Funeral Home for Mrs. Agnes Jane Park, who died at her home, 90 Murphy St., Trenton, last Friday. She was 75.

The service was conducted by Rev. D. C. McLelland of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church of which Mrs. Park had been a member.

Bearers were Jack Robinson, William Isles, Jack Elliot, Garfield Gibson, Cecil Marchand and Ted English.

Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

Mrs. Park was born in Ormsby but had lived at Bancroft before coming to Trenton 45 years ago. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Park.

Although Mrs. Park had been in failing health for the past year, she continued to be active in the St. Andrew's Women's Auxiliary and served as treasurer of the Senior Citizens Club. Mrs. Park will be greatly missed by her many friends and acquaintances.

She is survived by her husband, William, two daughters, Mrs. Reginald (Muriel) LaBelle, Toronto, and Mrs. Phillip (Marjorie) Woodacre, Trenton; four sons, Clayton, Frank and Reginald, all of Trenton and Harold of Toronto; nine grandchildren and six great-grandchildren also survive.

Frost Delays Herchimer Sewer Project

Excessive ground frost, revealed during preparatory work to extend to a depth of some four feet, has required the public works department to delay the start of actual construction on the new sanitary sewer on Herchimer Ave. This work, scheduled as a local improvement, would be too expensive an undertaking under these conditions, it was stated this morning by city engineer Malcolm Turnbull.

Elsewhere in the city various works projects have been progressing satisfactorily. The construction of the storm sewer on Willow Drive is expected to be completed by this week, although asphalting and curbing operations will have to wait until late spring.

The winter works ditching program being carried out east of Herchimer Ave. and north of the extension of Pine St. is progressing satisfactorily.

The daily checking of ice thicknesses and water levels on the Moira River between the CPR bridge and Highway 401 is continuing. It has been noticed that the water level of the river is exceptionally low and, in some places, the river is frozen to the bottom.

Due to the recent lack of snow street cleaning on both Front and Coleman Streets has been carried out and road patching throughout the city is being carried out daily. During the recent extremely cold weather considerable maintenance work was accomplished by the crews in the department's workshops.

WORKED TOO LONG

MIAMI (AP) — City attorney Olavi Hendrickson has resigned his $17,500-a-year post, saying he is sorry if his eight-hour stay in a nightclub embarrased the city. Hendrickson reiterated that he was at the club to collect information about the legality of the strip spot's operation. "I understand I may have been over - zealous—over - enthusiastic," he told the city commissioners.

Work of Board For the Blind Is Reviewed

Hastings County Advisory Board for the Blind held its quarterly meeting at the home of the chairman, Everett S. Fairman, 226 Charles Street, on Monday evening. A review of the work accomplished was given by the field secretary and other members. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. George Wishart.

A report of the Christmas party given by the Rotary Club at St. Andrew's Church was given by Mrs. H. Rollins. A gift was delivered to each blind person by members of the board. The sale of Blindcraft products at Ireland's store realized $539.80, which was a gratifying increase over other years.

Miss Elinor Roblin read the financial report which showed that $6,240 or 80 percent from Dec. 1959 to Dec. 1960 had been received from the Belleville United Appeal, of which, the C.N.I.B. is a participating agency. It is expected that in Belleville the United Appeal will give 85 per cent of the budget requested this year. It was pointed out that the C.N.I.B. budget is based on the actual cost of service for the preceding year and is not an estimated budget. For the county a total of $14,047.99 was raised, an increase of $1,631.54. This sum includes the amount received from the United Appeal.

MADE MANY VISITS

Field secretary P. I. Timmins reported that he and his assistant, Don Ferguson, had visited most of the registered blind in the county to ascertain their needs and to look after their welfare. Eye examinations were provided and glasses given where they were needed. Repairs for talking books and radios, clothing assistance, batteries for radios, white canes, clothing and fuel assistance were among the requests. Several residents of the Quinte-St. Lawrence home required residence supplementation. A Bancroft man is going to Kingston for special intensive training. At a school eye survey in Madoc, 613 children were examined, 16 were referred to parents for further attention and two made applications.

Mrs. R. J. Hunter and Mrs. C. D. Porritt of Tweed were appointed to the board. Mrs. H. Rollins was re-appointed to the admissions board.

The resignation of A. D. Archibald, who has been a member of the board for over 30 years, was received with regret. A replacement on the Board of Governors will be made to succeed Mr. Archibald. Mrs. George Wishart was re-appointed to the Board of Governors. A nominating committee was named.

Mrs. H. Rollins announced that the 11th anniversary of the White Can Club will be held at the YMCA on March 27.

Refreshments were enjoyed by the members before the meeting was closed.

Moira Teachers Visit Toronto

While most of their colleagues from Belleville were attending the annual district educational conference at Napanee last Friday, teachers of Moira Secondary School went in the opposite direction and visited six high schools at Scarborough.

The teachers spent the day observing the Scarborough teaching faculty in action and discussing mutual problems with them. A reception was held by the host teachers.

Linton Reid, assistant principal of Moira, said the teachers from his school were enthusiastic about the value of this type of service training.

Fresh Chapters Written In Parents-Children Case

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Another chapter was written Tuesday in a long court battle between divorced Toronto parents over the custody of two young girls and a boy.

In the latest episode, the Supreme Court of Canada refused to take any action against the father who lost custody of the two daughters to his former wife and then left for the United States with one of the girls.

A new chapter will unfold in the Ontario Supreme Court next week when the father plans another attempt to have the two girls placed in his custody.

Mrs. Vera Leona Kruger, 38-year-old mother of the girls, won their custody in a 3-to-2 decision of the Supreme Court of Canada Jan. 24. The majority judgment was opposed by Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin and Mrs. Justice C. H. Locke.

The court reversed judgments of the Ontario Supreme and Appeal courts under which custody had been granted to the father, Ernest William Booker. 41-year-old general agent of the Crown Life Insurance Company.

SOLD HOUSE

Walter Williston, counsel for Mrs. Kruger, said Mr. Booker is believed to be in New York. Before leaving for the U.S. he had sold his Toronto home for $37.500.

The motion asked the court to rule that Mr. Booker be refused the right to see his daughters at any time. It asked Mr. Booker be liable to arrest for violating the custody judgment of the court under which the two girls were not to be removed from Ontario and that Mr. Booker's assets be attached.

The motion also asked for the custody of a son, John Scott Booker, 15. He was left in his father's custody by the lower court judgments and his custody was not an issue in Mrs. Kruger's successful Supreme Court action last month.

Chief Justice Kerwin said, in effect, that the Supreme Court of Canada, an appeal court, had no jurisdiction to act on Mrs. Kruger's motion.

"We consider that all proceedings in connection with the contempt alleged against the respondent (Mr. Booker) should be taken in the Supreme Court of Ontario," he said.

Earlier, the chief justice said that the position of the boy was not in issue in the hearing because he was not a party in the case before the court last month.

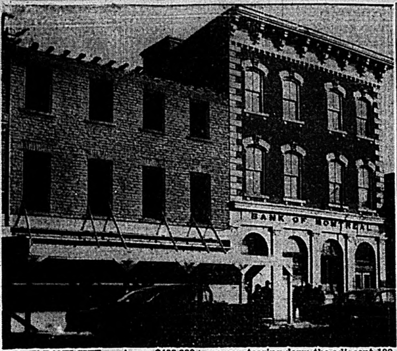
Malcolm Robb, counsel for Mr. Booker, said he will ask a judge of the Ontario Supreme Court Feb. 15 to vary the granting of custody of the two girls to Mr. Booker's former wife. She now is married to Richard Kruger of Toronto, named by Mr. Booker as co-respondent in his divorce action.

A notice of motion filed in Toronto Feb. 1 states that Mrs Kruger "is not a fit and proper person to be awarded custody of the said two children." It says that the Kruger household is marked by constant quarrelling by Mrs. Kruger and her husband and that they had attempted since June, 1959, to bring Mr. Booker "into hatred and contempt in the eyes of his children."

The court was given no details of Mr. Booker's departure for New York. However, a document filed by Mr. Kruger said the second daughter, Jennifer. 7, was ill at the time Mr. Booker left the country.

Mr. Williston said Mr. Booker's departure for the U.S. with Susan was a "flagrant, deliberate breach of this court."

Mr. Robb argued that if the court heard Mrs. Kruger's motion it should hear a similar motion by his client. He said he could assure the court that in this event Mr. Booker would return to Canada.



NEW BANK SITE . . . A new $400,000 Bank of Montreal building is scheduled for construction at the corner of Bridge and Front Street on the site of the present structure seen above. Wreckers are now tearing down the adjacent 100-year-old structure which will provide increased frontage along Front Street. New two-storey bank will have dimensions of 58 by 94 feet.

No Real Canadian Study Made of Crime's Cause, Cure Says Probation Official

TRENTON — The opinion that the Canadian public is apathetic toward the work of rehabilitating criminals was advanced by Daniel Coughlan, director of probation services in Ontario, who addressed an inter-service club dinner here Monday night.

"There is no real research into the cause and possible cure of crime being carried out in Canada," he said. "There is a lack of education in this subject and there is no literature dealing with this problem available to Canadian readers."

Mr. Coughlan said that other countries, such as the Scandinavian countries, Britain and the state of California had launched programs to combat ignorance of the cause and cure for crime.

He said that a small start had been made in Canada. The members of the Junior League of Toronto have donated thousands of dollars for research into the problem and a Dr. Grygier, an Anglicized Pole, with United Nations affiliations, assisted by a Dr. Spencer of England, is carrying out research at the University of Toronto.

Mr. Coughlan said that the attitude of moral judgment has stuck with civilized man and that this prevented him from seeing the Christian doctrine in regard to the wrong doer.

"Christ said to the woman at the well, 'Go thou and sin no more'," sai Mr. Coughlan. 'He wasn't concerned about her past or present, only about her future. We are all our brothers' keepers; we all have a part in this thing. One reason we have repeaters in crime is that society's attitude makes it almost impossible for a man to reform."

He said that great strides have been made in the field of medicine. Out of research has come a vaccine for polio; doctors have learned much about metal illness and alcoholism. Science is enquiring about the hows and whys of drug addiction. Yet nothing much is being done about the criminal.

PEOPLE COUNT

"In the final analysis, it's the people who count. The people decide the type of penal system we have. The people must force the issue and demand more research into the cause and cure for crime."

At the beginning of his address, Mr. Coughlan gave a brief historical sketch of how service clubs came into being. The clubs underwrote the work of the church. In turn the government through pensions, baby bonuses, etc., is underwriting the clubs.

Mr. Coughlan was introduced by Jack Taylor. Mr. Coughlan has been a sailor, prize fighter, Anglican minister and is now the probation services director of Ontario.

About 200 members of the Rotary Club, the Kiwanis Club, the Kinsmen Club and the Lions Club attended the social evening. Among the head table guests were the four presidents of the clubs represented, T. A. Spruston, Norman Davis, Ross Forster and John Spencer.

The Rotary Club, being the senior club, was the host. The idea for the inter-club get-together was sparked by the Community Co-ordination Council, whose membership is comprised of service club representatives.

U.S. President Sends Citizen His Picture

United States president John Kennedy has at least one staunch admirer in this city.

He is Barney LaMorre, 266 East Moira street, a collector of autographs.

Like all hobbyists of this type, Mr. LaMorre, believes that in the majority of cases, if you ask, you shall receive.

Last December he decided that an autograph of President-elect Kennedy would be a colorful addition to his collection.

It was, so to speak, a "long shot" but like some of its ilk, might pay off. So Mr. LaMorre believed.

He was right.

In fact the long shot paid off with a colorful daily double.

The other day he received a handsome eight-by-ten glossy photograph of President Kennedy on which was inscribed in the presidential handwriting, "To Barney LaMorre, With Best Wishes, J. F. Kennedy".

"I cannot express my surprise", he said later. "I thought perhaps I might get an autograph through a secretary, but even that was a wild dream".

"I really appreciate the photograph", Mr. LaMorre said, "It was a splendid gesture on the part of the presiture on the part of the president who is among the busiest men in the world".

"On the other hand I am a Canadian and President Kennedy went out of his way to personally autograph the picture and have it sent to me."

"I am very proud of it".

May Use 'Wheelbarrow' Ambulance

TRENTON — Councillor N. J. McNair today said Trenton residents will not be without an ambulance service of some kind after Saturday, "even if people have to be taken to hospital in a wheelbarrow".

He denied a report in a Toronto newspaper which said a council committee had made arrangements with a Belleville funeral home to provide Trenton residents with emergency ambulance services after the Weaver Ambulance Services ceases operating at 6 p.m. Saturday.

He said ararngements with a Belleville firm are pending, but that no definite arrangements had been made. However, he said, he is working on a plan to provide ambulance service, but did not elaborate. Council has not rejected Ralph Weaver's gift of a fully-equipped ambulance, he said.

From America; A New View?

To paraphrase an old saw, one action is worth ten thousand words, the value of words having greatly decreased over the past years. It is, therefore, refreshing to see a man back up his well-sounding words with something infinitely better, well-meaning action.

We commented some time back on a speech by Mr. George Romney of American Motors who, in response to a suggestion by Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, stated that he would welcome Canadian ownership, participation and control in his company's Canadian subsidiary which has just recently opened a new plant in Brampton

This cheerful and refreshing attitude by a man who has become a guide to the thinking of the American automotive industry, (his firm was the first builder of the compact car), was something quite new for American firms who do like to keep their foreign subsidiary firms closely tied to the mother plant's policies.

Mr. Rooney's firm has now backed up his words with action.

This past Friday it was announced that American Motor has given its Canadian subsidiary, Kelvinator of Canada, full freedom to compete against the parent firm in the world markets. Previously the Canadian plant had to restrict its activity to the narrow confines of the home market. The Canadian plant will also be able to make use of the world-wide distribution facilities of Kelvinator International, states R. J. Woxman, president of the Canadian firm.

This action is significant not only on the local but on the international scene. To Canadians the spread of such action on the part of American parent firms would be most helpful in allowing Canadian industry to find its own level through trade on world markets.

It is up to the Canadians involved to see if they can put a quality product on the world market at a price competitive with German, American, English, Japanese and other competitors. This is one of the responsibilities which they must accept together with the freedom which they have just received.

Just a Coincidence

We are constantly being told that repeated demands for wage increases have been responsible for the steadily rising level of prices of goods which we consume. In some ways, this may be an oversimplification of a complex economic problem, but there can be no reasonable doubt but that wages and prices are linked. Deciding which comes first, wage increases or price increases, which is the cause and which is the effect, may be as difficult as the old question about the chicken and the egg, but the relationship is obvious in both cases.

Now the consumer price index has dropped, for the first time since last summer, and this decrease in December followed hard on the heels of a decline in industrial wages in November

Is this a case of cause and effect? One may be tempted to jump to that conclusion but to do so, we suspect, would be to over simplify once again. The cut in prices came much too quickly to be the result of lower wages. True, the general economic situation may have had some effect on the reduction in clothing prices, which the Dominion Bureau of Statistics says was the result of "widespread year-end sales," but it is surely obvious that these sales were not the result of lower wages paid in producing the goods.

A warning seems advisable for those who hope that the trend will continue. Decreased consumer demand, resulting from widespread unemployment, may produce some instances of lower prices in the months immediately ahead but the wholesale index of 30 industrial materials rose in the three-week period from December 30 to Jan. 20. One would suppose that such increases might well be reflected in higher prices at the retail level at some time in the months ahead, unless manufacturers and retailers find it expedient or imperative to trim profit margins.

The apparent connection between retail prices and industrial wages provided in the latest Bureau of Statistics report was almost certainly little more than a coincidence.

A little old lady entered the department store. Instantly a band began to play, an orchid was pinned on her dress, a $100 bill put in her hand. She found herself being photographed from all sides and TV cameras beamed down on her. "You're the one-millionth customer," the master of ceremonies told her, smiling broadly. "And now can you tell us what you came here for today?"

"Yes," said the little old lady: "I'm on my way to the complaint department." (Lion Magazine.)

Stone Versus Concrete

By Raymond Callieret in UNESCO Features

Mr. Edmond Helby of Tananarive (Madagascar) is interested in the "ageing" process of cement. He writes: "I have observed, particularly in Spain, the remarkable durability of dating back to the Roman era. The same is true of the Pyramids and the Sphinx in Egypt. But can we hope that our modern constructions will resist time so well? I have noticed that concrete is particularly sensitive to the effects of certain atmospherical phenomena. For example, it breaks up and crumbles when it is exposed to sea spray. The steel framework rusts and swells, shattering the block surrounding it."

When cement was invented about a century and a half ago, it raised high hopes... This artificial stone was thought to be capable of rivalling natural stone. One of its inventors even called it "Portland cement" because it was believed to possess all the qualities of the stone quarried at Portland, in the south of England, and widely used at that time for building purposes.

These hopes, however, were soon disappointed. While it was recognized that cement (in its modern form of reinforced concrete) is well endowed with mechanical qualities, which enable engineers and architects to achieve technological miracles, its ability to stand up to assault by chemical agents is often found wanting. In 1913, a strange accident occured in the French city of Vannes: the concrete water mains were found to be disintegrating. This led to the discovery that pure water,especially in granite areas, is harmful to concrete.

Since then, a number of other facts have been discovered and various studies have been carried out. Engineers and architects now know very precisely under what conditions and with what precautions concrete may be used in different surroundings in conjunction with various chemicals.

Does this mean that the life expectancy of reinforced concrete buildings is as great as that of the monuments of antiquity? Certainly not, but perhaps for reasons other than those which most people imagine..

First off all, it should be noted that the ancient monuments which have survived up to the present day represent only an infinitesimal part of all the great buildings constructed through the ages. Of course, most of these structures were destroyed by man, but it seems likely that others died a natural death — and this would indicate that they were not as durable as many people believe.

In the second place, concrete cannot be compared to stone without taking into account the different economic and technical conditions under which these two materials are used.

For example, let's compare the Great Pyramid in Egypt with the new exhibition hall of the French National Centre for Industries and Techniques, in the suburbs of Paris, which is certainly one of the world's most remarkable structures.

It should be stressed at once that the first is solid, while the second is hollow. In the case of the Pyramid, about 3,350,000 cubic yards of stone are piled up over twelve acres; while in the exhibition hall a huge vaulted roof containing only 8,100 cubic yards of concrete covers a surface of five acres representing an average thickness of only eleven inches of concrete. It is rather like comparing a stone to an eggshell. And no one would be surprised if the eggshell proved the more fragile of the two.

There is little doubt that if certain ancient monuments - aqueducts, arenas and pyramids - were rebuilt today in concrete on the same scale, the result would be structures that are also capable of defying the centuries. In terms of physical resistance, concrete is easily the equal of stone. The Romans themselves used cement in their structures and it has stood up as well as the surrounding stone.. This celebrated cement, whose formula medieval builders were unable to rediscover, was a mixture of lime and pozzuolana, a volcanic ash.

On the other hand, the chemical resistance of cement is far from perfect and it is vulnerable to attacks from various agents (but then so is stone).. Moreover, it is easy to correct this weakness. A number of different types of cement are used to manufacture various forms of concrete which can be adapted to different environments. High alumina cement stands up very well to pure water; sulphated slag cement is immune to the corroding effects of sea-water, etc..

But, while cement is theoretically the equal of the best building stone available, it is used in practice under very different conditions and that is the essential point.

The great monuments of antiquity were built on massive lines, with absolutely no concern for cost.

On the contrary, for economic reasons, reinforced concrete is used today only after engineers have made complicated calculations whose sole purpose is to reduce the thickness to a minimum and to take full advantage of all the properties of the material.

It is true that the steel rods in reinforced concrete may rust, causing the concrete covering them to shatter and destroy a structure in a very short time. But this type of accident is not at all inevitable. It occurs only if the concrete is not of the right consistency, if the wrong type of cement is used in its preparation and, above all, if the steel rods are not covered with a thick enough layer.

Here again, economic considerations determine the durability of the building material. In fact, even in coastal regions, it is quite possible to build reinforced concrete structures that will be extremely durable. It is only a question of money.

But the men who erect our modern buildings are not Pharaohs and are not at all interested in eternity. Their goal is to produce structures which will last a century or, at the most, two hundred years. They use concrete with this in mind, for cities change along with men's needs and the concepts of town planning do not remain the same. Why, therefore, erect buildings as if they were to last forever when they may become useless fifty years from now?

Universities Are Divided

Cleveland Plain Dealer

Which is correct: "For within this tremendous area is produced; two thirds of the oats, more than half the corn, more than half the barley, etc." or "For within this tremendous area are produced: two thirds of the oats, more than half the corn, etc?"

The University of Chicago held out for "is produced," Northwestern University preferred "are produced." Harvard said "is produced," the Literary Digest said "are produced." This all happened in 1926.

A recent survey disclosed that 14 of the original 2F schools queried now believe "are produced' 'is correct, one preferred "is produced" and six didn't reply. The Universities of Chicago, Pennsylvania, Princton, Harvard and Temple changed their former preference for "is produced" to "are produced."

Although we prefer "are produced" ourselves, we're quite willing to go along with the suggestion made by Holy Cross—re-write the sentence.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

LET THEM WIN THEIR SPURS

When word was brought to King Edward III of England that his son, Prince Edward, was in great danger at the Battle of Crecy, the king inquired, "Is my son killed?" "No sire, please God." was the reply! "Is he wounded?" "No sire." "Is he thrown to the ground?" "No sire, but he is in great danger." "Then," said the king, "I will send no aid. Let the boy win his spurs; for I wish if God so order it, that the honor of victory shall be his." From that time on the "Black Prince," as Prince Edward was called from the color of his armour, because a name of renown throughout Europe.

Few people can let the kids take it. They must send help. They must ease them along. "I don't want my son to go through the sacrifice I endured in my childhood and youth."

But bless you, that is the thing which made you the successful person you are. You were not borne up by eagles wings or angels wings. You did not even climb a ladder. You scaled the side of a precipice — and the result was strength and increased daring.

We never make life better for ourselves or for our loved ones by making it too easy. There is nothing the matter with comfort, provided it is not put first in life. The first thing of importance in life is discipline, which involves learning through difficulty.

Have the courage to let youth endure those trials which will produce maturity.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

Having recently been confined to bed and out of sight of the TV, I have been listening to a lot of radio for a change. And naturally I sought the soothing sort of music that goes with bed. Symphony hours received a lot of my time and I was impressed by the amount of modern composition that is now included in these learned programs.

It seems to me that contemporary serious composers belong to what might be called the deedle-deedle school. They appear to be scared stiff of their orchestra. They confine themselves to a few instruments at a time, never daring to let the whole caboodle loose, as did all their predecessors, such as Beethoven, Schumann, Tchaikowski. Occasionally they let the heavier instruments utter a few brief deep hoots. But for the most part, they confine themselves to the lighter instruments, moving at a very fast pace with an overall effect of deedle-deedle. Rarely if ever do they risk a slow passage in which any sonority or volume is possible. Like mice in the attic, they scamper, Hindemith, Bartok, Milhaud, Strabismus — ah, now, I made that one up! You have to see what Strabismus means in the dictionary; very apt, I think.

But there, like mice in the attic, squeak, twiddle, peep, deedle-deedle they go for half an hour at a time. A half hour in which the main body of the orchestra must sit there, bemused, thinking of something else.

LOVE THAT RETURNS

Love always returns, if it is love which has been sent away. There is a back-bound to all things, great or small, which have as their purpose the sweetening of human life. But love has the greatest back-bound of all.

Do not think that the love you give away is not returned. It starts back the minute it is placed in circulation.

It comes back in enriched thought, in a chastened heart, in the satisfaction that you have given something beyond purchase with money or any other price.

Love returns in the appreciation that you have for all arts and music, for every snowflake that falls, for every flower of spring, for every tint in the winter sky as the sun paints the glories of sunset — streaked fingers on clouds and piled up domes.

Love really never goes away. It just runs errands!

And when love does return, it brings with it a taste of immortality. It cleanses the path of every man and woman, and is forever raising the standard of every possibility toward which man strives.

If you will treat love as you would your favorite flower — watering and feeding it — you will get the same results in new beauty through continual flowering.

Love keeps returning all the time, to accumulate anew and to gather fresh momentum for a new sending out and coming back again.

Most Cases of Bad Breath Can Be Effectively Treated

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have a very bad case of halitosis. What food I eat seems to have little to do with it. Brushing my teeth does no good, as the trouble evidently is from the stomach.

Even my little children avoid my affection, and it's terribly embarrassing. My general health is good and my teeth are in excellent condition. I am only 23 and have been troubled with this since I was about 14. Please help. — Mrs. B. L."

I'm one who believes that a condition like halitosis which makes people embarrassed or miserable over a period of years is an important one.

To be sure, when people just imagine that they have this trouble, and fuss and fret without good reason, all you can do for them medically is: first, assure them sincerely that they are just hunting for trouble that doesn't exist; and, if that doesn't work, tell them plainly that they've got to be reasonable and accept the truth.

But where there's genuine evidence that the breath smells bad over a continuing period of time, it deserves careful attention.

It sounds to me as though the condition described in the above letter probably is real, not imagination.

However, just because brushing the teeth and changing the diet don't help, it's not an adequate reason to assume that "the trouble is evidently from the stomach." I'll grant that stomach disorders might be the cause. Sometimes they are. Not often, but sometimes.

More likely it's in one of the areas through which the breath passes, the respiratory region. That is, the nose, throat, bronchi (or "bronnical tubes" as some call'em!), the lungs. All these are part of the repiratory system. It seems logical, doesn't it, that you have to sonsider these areas when looking for the cause of chronic bad breath?

There are lung disorders of varying severity. There are infected tonsils or adenoids. There is a condition known as bronchiectasis in the bronchi. There can, also, be infection of the gums, although a dentist will detect that soon enough. The teeth themselves may not show any evidence at first, although in time they will suffer, too. Dental floss may help.

These are among the ready possibilities when bad breath is continuous. Plainly, it will take some skilled observing to determine which trouble is present. Well, that's what doctors are for.

Bad breath, if it is real and not just an imaginary or accasional trouble, has a cause. As a practical matter, most of these can be treated effectively, once the real cause is isolated.

See (or better yet, call in advance) any doctor in your area and tell him you are concerned about diabetes. Take a sample of urine collected about two hours after eating a meal high in carbohydrates — sugars, starches, etc. A blood test for sugar is even more informative if taken after the meal.

The Highest Tragedy Is Too Commonplace

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The worst word I would apply to the human race is a word you might hardly expect to hear at all. It is "dramatic." The human race is in love with the dramatic.

A few months ago an infant was critically ill in Mississippi. The doctors said that a new drug, Celebin, recently developed in Great Britain, was the only thing that had a chance to save him.

With the aid of U. S. Air Force and Navy jets, plus a helicopter, the new drug was delivered in less than 30 hours. The pilot's picture was in the papers; also the doctor's and the infant's. Everyone rejoiced at this miracle of modern transportation.

I rejoiced, too, but I was also sad. For this is the kind of dramatic emergency that moves us to compassionate and superhuman efforts. A stricken baby. A life-or-death situation. Medicine an ocean away. Everyone rise and cheer — will the pilot make it?

But what of the undramatic in human life? The millions of infants and children slowly wasting away without an "emergency." The daily toll of death and disease and deprivation. The bland statistics.

We look upon the world as an amphitheatre in which we are the spectators. A new drama is played on the stage weekly: a plane crash, a burning tenement, a dying baby. We are shocked and horrified and we rush to help. It is all a glorious and thrilling production.

The real evil in the world, however, is not the spectacular, the occasional, the vividly catastrophic. The real evil lies in our neglect of causes, our indifference to conditions, our unwillingness to give the time, the money and the effort to stop preventable disaster.

Our millions of retarded and emotionally disturbed children could be saved. Our tenements are condemned only after they have cost lives. Our delinquents are shut up years after treatment or correction can do them any good.

We don't want to hear the dull, bleak, dreary tale of mass suffering and general chaos in our social order. We want to be stirred by the particular, aroused by the singular, made to feel generous by donating to the child whose skin has been burned off, while other children in nearby hovels live under the same threatening conditions.

Drama is what we like to see. And soon, perhaps, the ultimate drama will be performed: The audience as well as the actors will disappear entirely. Dramatic irony can go no further.

Grade Six Student Starts Own Campaign to Aid Y

When Rickye Green, a grade six student at Sir Winston Churchill School, was given an art class assignment to draw an advertisement about some product or service, he came up with a poster boosting the local YMCA's campaign for a new building. This is not unusual since Rickye, who lives at 71 Humewood Drive, is a second-year member at the "Y" and regularly participates in the gymnasium, swimming and crafts programs for his age group.

Diane Thompson of 22 Stanley Park Drive, was one of the first to make a contribution to Rickye's one-man campai n for funds for the "Y". Also a grade six pupil, but at Bayview School, Diane is enjoying her first year as a "Y" member. She takes an active part in the girls' gym and swimming classes and in the Boot and Saddle Club activities.

Rickye and Diane are but two of close to 2,000 young people taking an active part in the varied and interesting program of events provided for the young people of this community by the Belleville YMCA. The continuing growth of the local membership coupled with the need for mor- services and adequate space has prompted the citizens responsible for the operation of the local "Y" to embark on a new building program.

Name Officers Of Firemen's Mutual Aid

The regular monthly meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Firemen's Mutual Aid Association was held in the club house at Point Anne. This association is composed of all the fire departments in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties and many problems perculiar to the individual groups are discussed and solutions reached. These associations are under the guidance of the Fire Marshal's office, which appoints co-ordinators in each area. The local association has Chief Gerald Vance of Belleville as its representative and his main function is to direct required epuipment to any area in case of fire that cannot be controlled by the local brigade.

During the meeting a number of items pertaining to the fire service were discussed.

Herb Mallory, fire marshal's instructor, conducted the election of officers.

The new officers are: President, Chief Cecil Ellis of the Trenton fire department; vice-president, Chief F. M. Clarke of Point Anne fire department, and secretary-treasurer, R. Haker of Trenton.

After the election a presentation of a past president's gavel was made by Chief Vance on behalf of the association to the retiring president, Chief John Aquino of Batawa.

The Point Anne department demonstrated a new method of heart massage now being adopted by such municipal departments as New York, Baltimer, Toronto and Hamilton. This method has been found to be effective and is used in conjunction with any of the recognized methods of artificial respiration.

A film dealing with industrial fire departments was then shown and at the conclusion of the meeting, a turkey luncheon was served by the host department.
